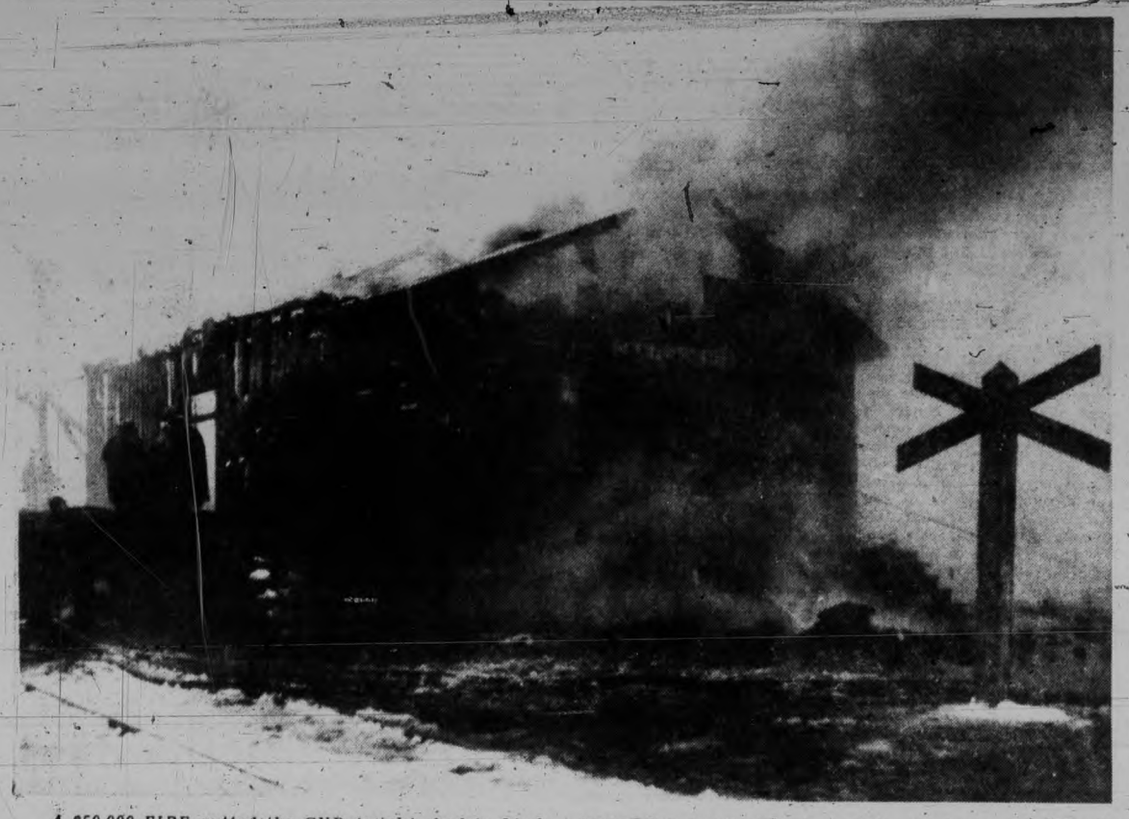
$50,000 FIRE AT LINDSAY RAIL SHED



A $50,000 FIRE gutted the CNR freight shed in Lindsay Friday afternoon. Firemen are shown battling the flames which were fanned by a brisk wind. Firefighters reported a small explosion among contents stored in the warehouse during the fire, which was not completely extinguished for five hours. —(Bright Photo)

Police Arrest Hundreds Of Teen-Agers

Hooliganism Thrives In Polish Cities, Crackdown Ordered

VIENNA (AP)—Hundreds of teen-agers have been arrested in Poland in recent weeks in a drive to put down acts of hooliganism by roving gangs of young rowdies. Polish newspapers reaching here report frequent raids by police in cities Warsaw, Krakow and Lublin and in smaller towns. The young rowdies are rounded up and sent to labor camps.

Western diplomats in Vienna see the rowdyism as an expression of restlessness of Polish youths with Communist restrictions, and only indirectly as a form of anti-Communism.

The newspapers say Communist youth organizations have been infected by rowdyism. On a recent excursion "the first cultural and educational demand of the Communist youth leaders was an energetic demand for vodka," one newspaper commented.

The juvenile gangs appear similar to those warring with authorities in some United States cities.

NEWSPAPER COMPLAINTS

Newspapers make these complaints.

Gangs of young thugs attack "respectable people" on the streets of Warsaw and other cities in broad daylight. They enter state-run stores and beat up the managers and assistants, apparently just for the fun of it.

They assault police, turn Communist-organized dances into brawls and have such defiance of the Red regime that they break up Communist meetings.

The hooliganism, says the Warsaw newspaper Zycie Warszawy, has even reached the point that high school students beat up their teachers. It adds:

"The range of hooliganism consists of public rows, foul language, window breaking, destruction of public property, like the spoiling of park benches, attacks and fights which often end with bodily injuries and even death of the person attacked."

India Undecided

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's government has not yet decided what position India will take Jan. 22 when the deadline for the retention of unrepatriated prisoners under the Korean armistice agreement is reached. Official sources report top Indian officials are giving fully as much attention to that problem as to the country-wide clamor against the proposed American military assistance to Pakistan. But they have not reached an agreement on how India will vote in the neutral nations' repatriation commission when the time comes for a final ruling.

Crowd Tramples 17 People At Tokyo Palace

TOKYO (AP) — Metropolitan police said at least 17 persons were killed and 41 injured under the feet of a surging throng as hundreds of thousands of Japanese flocked today to the Imperial Palace to Wish Emperor Hirohito a Happy New Year.

The newspaper Asahi estimated that 700,000 s armed around the palace grounds in downtown Tokyo.

Police said the thousands of men, women and children, dressed in their holiday best, were caught in "terrible crushes" during the afternoon.

An unidentified Canadian officer at the scene said some of the victims were crushed so badly that bones protruded through the skin.

SEVEN APPEARANCES

The crowds hoped to get a look at the emperor and empress who had appeared on a balcony seven times earlier in the day.

Kyodo News Agency said the vast throng got out of hand at about 3:30 p.m., the deadline for signing the imperial register and offering best wishes to Hirohito.

The crowd swarmed toward the gates of the palace grounds as police tried to bar the entrance at the deadline. Thousands who had not yet had a chance to sign the register tried to push through. Men, women and children fell under the feet of the onrushing crowd.

Fire Chief Unhurt When Wall Collapses On Him

LINDSAY (ENS—A New Year's day fire took just two hours to race through the old wooden CNR freight shed in Lindsay Friday afternoon. The loss was tentatively set at around $50,000. It broke out about noon and by 2 p.m. only the north wall and the walls of the office section in the south end were left standing in the 200-foot long structure. Cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

Fire Chief Alex Wylie escaped unhurt when a dangerous section of a flaming wall that had been put out and was being pulled down fell on top of him, pinning him by his legs up to his thighs. Firemen quickly pulled him clear and he suffered no ill effects.

Firemen said today that several of them had been made ill by fumes and smoke from what they thought were chemicals inside the building. They also reported a small explosion among the contents during the fire. The last firmen did not leave the scene till five hours after the blaze was discovered.

HOUSES ENDANGERED

Houses across the street were endangered by the blazes that started a fire on one roof and ignited a hydro pole before firemen managed to extinguish them. Electric power to the houses was temporarily cut off when the fire caused a transformer to blow out. Hydro men soon repaired the damage.

All contents were lost except office records and equipment that were rescued from the office in the south end of the building.

Firemen, with the help of CNR employees who manned their own hose kept on the outside of the building, at one time had seven streams of water playing on the roaring fire, but could not stop it before it had run its course. After a time the CNR hose sprang a leak and had to be abandoned.

FURNITURE ORDER LOST

Largest single item lost in the fire was an order of furniture that had been received for one of the Lindsay stores. Normally the loss would have been much higher, but two days before most of the contents had been delivered.

No one had been on duty at the sheds since the evening before. However, three coal stoves had been been left burning to prevent the contents from freezing. The fire apparently started near the centre of the building and spread through it when a line of freight cars at the loading platform was moved from the scene. A strong gusty wind kept it burning fiercely until only the north and south walls were left upright.

Freight agent is Clarence MacKay and shed foreman Louis Brown.

This was the second fire within three months on CNR property. In October, about $40,000 damage was done when a coal shute burned.

120,000 Maoris Crown Queen Chief Of People

ROTORUA, N. Z. (AP)—New Zealand's 120,000 Maoris today marked their official welcome to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh by "crowning" them paramount chieftains of the Maori people.

Some 11,000 Maoris from all over New Zealand spent Friday night camping out on the Rotorua race course which was transformed into a Maori pa village for the occasion.

To do homage to the Queen and the duke, some tribesmen had travelled many days.

The Maoris' ancient traditions were observed in the welcoming ceremonies.

Attended by Prime Minister Sidney Holland, the Queen and the duke were met on arrival by two successive weros (challenges). Warriors brandished their spears within a few feet of the Queen, made frightening grimaces and stamped their bare feet on the grass.

This was the traditional challenge made in the past by Maoris when a visiting tribe approached their village.

Once accepted into the ground, the Queen was met by a fierce ceremonial war dance performed by 140 Maori warriors. Then 150 Maori girls in flaxen native dress sang their welcoming song.

The Queen was escorted to the dais where a seven-year-old girl of the host Arawa tribe presented her with a bunch of flowers.

Senior chieftains then presented their addresses. Each brought gifts for the royal couple and at the conclusion of her reply to the welcome the Queen brought a roar of appreciation from the assembled Maoris with the words "Kia ora koutu." (Farewell to you all.)

After she had replied to the speech of welcome, the Queen was entertained with song and dances.

Lord Norwich Dies Suddenly On Steamship

LONDON (AP)—Lord Norwich, 63, who served in Britain's Parliament, government and diplomatic service over three decades as Alfred Duff Cooper, died Friday aboard the French steamship Colombie while on a holiday tour.

Lord Norwich was the husband of a noted stage beauty, the former Dianna Manners. She was with him aboard the Colombie.

Their son, John Julius Cooper, who succeeds to the title, said he had been advised that the death occurred as the ship was off the port of Vigo, on Spain's Atlantic coast.

Duff Cooper, a Conservative who was war minister and a first lord of the admiralty in the troubled years that led up to Munich, was knighted in 1948. He was made a viscount by the Queen in her birthday honors list June 4, 1952, and entered the peerage as Viscount Norwich of Aldwick.

A gifted writer and historian, he was minister of information in Prime Minister Churchill's war cabinet from 1940 to 1943, then became the government's representative with the French Committee of National Liberation. From 1944 to 1947 he was ambassador to France.

HONORED BY FRANCE

When he retired, President Vincent Auriol conferred on him the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor—the highest distinction France can award to a civilian and rarely given to foreigners other than heads of state.

A man who had no use for appeasement, he resigned as first lord of the admiralty in 1938 at the time of the Munich crisis because he disagreed with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of dealing with Hitler.

Plan Cigarette Research

NEW YORK (CP)—American cigarette manufacturers are mapping plans for concerted action to combat fears that cigarettes cause lung cancer. Convinced that the cigarette is innocent of this charge, the industry is holding daily closed meetings at a New York hotel in the hope of counteracting recent wide publicity given to the charges before volume and profits are affected. Also at stake are the billions of dollars paid annually by the industry in state and federal taxes, for advertising and to the millions of job holders in farming production and distribution.

Although none of the companies will even admit the meetings are going on; it is known that plans are being made for huge joint expenditures for impartial research.

The New York Times today says an industry-wide approach is planned, a thing which has never before been done for cigarettes. There are tobacco trade groups at various levels in the industry but an association for the manufacturers themselves is specifically barred by the federal decree of 1911 which broke up the tobacco trust in the United States into several companies with diverse ownership.

Although chary of taking any joint action, the cigarette makers are convinced they must act together rather than as individual companies even if it results in a court test, The Times says.

In any event, they hoped to put their story across to the public and rid the cigarette once and for all of the charges levelled against it.

No agreement has yet been worked out as to what form the effort will take, but manufacturers are using as their basic premise a statement made by Paul M. Hahn, president of the American Tobacco Company, in which he said that it had not been proved that cigarettes have ever caused a single case of lung cancer.

Find Toronto Hunter Dead In Cavan Pasture Field

A Toronto hunter—the object of a 13-man search late Friday afternoon and early Friday night—was found dead in a Cavan township pasture field about 9 p.m., a short distance south of Bailieboro. Dr. J. W. Wright of Millbrook said that the hunter, 60-year-old Alton Cleveland of Ashdale Ave., Toronto, died of a heart attack. There was no post-morten and there will be no inquest.

Mr. Cleveland was the oldest of three Toronto men—all of them employed in the same department of the Canada Wire and Cable Co., Leaside—who set out Saturday morning for a day's shooting. His companions were John Ross, 28, of 840 Pape Ave., and Johnathan White, 27, of 640 Euclid Ave.

The trio hunted New Year's morning and returned to their car near Bailieboro for lunch. Then they set out again—this time with Mr. Ross and Mr. White together, and Mr. Cleveland by himself.

When Mr. Cleveland didn't return to the car by dusk his two companions asked Cobourg provincial police for help to find him.

"It took me just about 20 minutes to round up 10 men in the district," said OPP Constable Frank Clough. "Considering that it was New Year's and a cold day I think the men deserve a lot of credit for their quick response."

The party of 13 started out shortly after 7 p.m. and Mr. Cleveland was found about 9 p.m., lying in a pasture field, by Dawson Rutherford of Bailieboro. Others who took part in the search, most of them district farmers, were Floyd Osborne of Oshawa and Ralph and Robert Greer, Edwin and Clarence Eagleson, Ernest and Arthur and Roy Breckenbridge, and Willis Wood—all of Millbrook.

Commonwealth Has Good News

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Commonwealth finance ministers meeting here next week will be able to promise the Commonwealth its happiest economic new year since the end of the Second World War.

This is the opinion of Australian treasury officials who today are busily preparing for the economic conference due to begin Monday.

The conference, first to be held outside Britain, will be largely a stock-taking of the results of the "Commonwealth Plan" decided upon at the economic conference in London a year ago.

It is considered most unlikely that anything decisive can be reached in the problem of the free convertibility of sterling to dollars. But the view is taken here that this goal is being approached steadily with the improving economic position of the sterling area.

Approves Expressway For Scarborough

TORONTO (CP) — A $40,000,000 expressway along the foot of Scarborough bluffs, which tower up to 300 feet over Lake Ontario immediately east of Toronto, today won the approval of Fred G. Gardiner, chairman of Toronto's metropolitan council.

Mr. Gardiner said it was the best idea he had seen to solve the traffic bottleneck to the east of the city.

J. D. Millar, deputy minister of highways for Ontario, opposed the plan because of the cost and because of possible landslides from the bluffs, which skirt the lake shore.

Ore Ship Limps Toward U.S. Port

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The ore ship Permanente Silverbow limped toward San Francisco under coast guard escort today after two of her holds were flooded in a slashing collision with a freighter off the northern California coast.

The 7,629-ton ore carrier, southbound from Portland, Ore., with some 45 crew members aboard, collided late Friday night with the Manila-bound 7,606-ton freighter Colorado about 145 miles north of San Francisco.

The Colorado's forepeak was flooded, but she reported no danger.

Family Reunited After Mix-Up

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Crump family of Leamington, Ont., were reunited Thursday.

Mrs. Gene Crump, 28, left with her three children for England in September to visit in West Bromwich.

She was due home in January but Mr. Crump thought it would be nice to see his parents again and surprise his wife for Christmas. He flew to England Dec. 21 and phoned his mother from London. He found his wife had sailed for home Dec. 19 to surprise him.

Mr. Crump, 31, stayed for a week with his parents, then flew home Dec. 28, passing his wife's boat for the second time.

Danger In TV Pope's Warning

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius today called television "both a precious and dangerous instrument."

In a statement addressed to Italian bishops on the eve of Italy's first regular TV broadcasts, the Pope spoke of "the deep reaction it is destined to exert on the public and private life of the nation."

Said the Pope: "In these days, the cinema, sports and the hard necessities of daily work tend to keep family members away from home more and more of the time and to upset the natural development of family life. . . .

"Television can serve to bring the family together again in the home and to keep them from the dangers of unhealthy places."

But of its dangers, he said: "Before us is constantly present the sorrowful picture of the harmful power of the cinema. It can only be frightening to think that through the medium of television it is possible to introduce into the home the same poison of materialism and hedonism that only too often appears on the screen."

Raise Driving Age To 16 Years Now

TORONTO (CP) — A highway Traffic Act amendment raising the legal driving age in Ontario to 16 from 15 years, went into effect Thursday.

The amendment, passed at the last session of the legislature, cancels all driving licences now in the hands of 15-year-olds who up to now could take a driving test and get a licence for $2 if they passed.

Two Aboard Train Stuck In Snow Drift

HENSALL, Ont. (CP)—Railway section crews work for more than three hours Friday to free a Canadian National Railways Clinton-to-London passenger train, which stuck fast in a five-foot drift of snow north of Hensall.

Stranding of the train on the snow-laden tracks was the major result of a severe storm which piled snow up to three feet deep in western Ontario.

There were only two passengers aboard, Oscar Karlsen, of Sarnia and AC2 William Karlsen, of Alberta, stationed at Clinton. Both were bound for Sarnia.

Tension Eased Pearson Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Top NATO officials are agreed that international tensions have "somewhat diminished", but that communism still menaces the security of the free nations, External Affairs Minister Pearson says in a year-end message.

The minister spoke in an address prepared for delivery over the CBC's international service.

At the December meeting of the NATO council in Paris, Mr. Pearson said, it was agreed that the danger of open military aggression is "perhaps less than it was a year or two ago."

"It would be folly to allow ourselves to be lulled into a sense of false security," he added.

In the Far East, he said, the Western nations must be careful lest differing views should disrupt their unity.

"Our Asian policy must comprise much more than 'mere opposition to communism. We must have a positive policy. . . ."

Incorporation Set For 1956

Czechoslovakia Groomed To Join Russian State

By WILHELM KRASSER

VIENNA (Reuters) —Czechoslovakia is being groomed, politically and economically, for eventual incorporation in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, observers here believe.

The Czech constitution is being remodelled on Russian lines and in every phase of Czech life and industry Russian methods and advisers are being brought in to tell the Czechs how to do things the Russian way.

The Czech brewers, famous for centuries for their beer, were sent to Russia to learn brewing.

A Russian also has been appointed technical adviser to the Czech beet sugar industry—even though it was Czechs who started the beet sugar industry in Russia early in this century.

Meanwhile the process of assimilation is continuing. Already, the Czechoslovak constitution has been remodelled on Soviet lines.

MOVIES AND BOOKS

The army has senior Soviet officers in charge of its training and organization, and wears the same type of uniform, uses the same weapons, drill and even words of command as the Red army.

The schools are using more and more translations of Soviet text books.

More and more Soviet movies, in their original language with Czech or Slovak sub-titles, are being shown.

The indications are that the date set for the completion of the process of incorporation is 1956. For, although Czechoslovakia's current five-year plan ended Dec. 31, there is to be no new five-year plan until 1956, the year the Soviet Union's own next five-year plan is due to start.

How closely Czechoslovakia is already linked with the Soviet Union is shown by foreign trade figures.

While Czechoslovak imports from the Soviet Union were 6.8 per cent of her total imports in 1947, they had reached 36.4 per cent by 1952. Similarly, Czechoslovakia's exports to the Soviet Union increased from 4.9 per cent in 1947 to 31 per cent in 1952.

Pair On Way To See Gouzenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Senate spy hunters will leave late today for somewhere in Canada to interview Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet code clerk in Ottawa who tipped Canadian authorities in 1945 to a far-flung Red espionage network.

Chairman William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) of the Senate internal security sub-committee and Senator Pat McCarran (Dem. Nev.) arranged to make the journey by train, accompanied by an official reporter and a committee lawyer.

Time and place of the interview were kept secret. However, Jenner and McCarran expect to be back here for the opening of the new session of Congress Wednesday.

Turpin Fined

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters) — Randolph Turpin, 25, British and Empire middleweight boxing champion, today was fined £2 for keeping a rifle without a firearms certificate.

The court ordered the .22-calibre rifle confiscated.

5 Scantily-Clad Children Wander In Snow Youngest 5 Months Old, Had Bare Legs

OTTAWA (CP) — Five scantilyclad children, the youngest five months old, were found Thursday, wandering in the snow near their home on the eastern outskirts of the city. Three were sent to hospital and provincial police said an investigation is being made.

Police said the five are the children of Mr. and Mrs. William Behan.

The youngsters were found by a neighbour, Mrs. James Murphy. All were suffering from frostbite.

Patrick, five months old, was found on a sleigh with his legs bare, and is still being held in hospital. William, 2, and Richard, 3, were released. The others were Daniel, 6, and Jimmie, 8.

Police said their mother went into the city to shop while the father was visiting his mother-in-law. The children were left in charge of a neighbour's son, 19 years old, police said, but he apparently turned the job over to his 12-year-old sister.

Seeks New Record

OMAHA (AP) — Col. Willard W. Millikan, 35-year-old Second World War ace seeking a new coast-to-coast airplane speed record, sped east today despite a broken fuel indicator after a refueling stop here. Col Millikan averaged 610 miles an hour between Los Angeles, his take-off point, and Omaha. Before his fuel indicator quit somewhereee over Colorado his speed hda reached as high as 820 miles an hour.

Revellers Go All Out

Big New Year's Hangover Nursed Around World

By REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

The people of the free world New Year's Day nursed the biggest collective hangover since VE-Day.

As the clocks struck midnight from Tokyo to London the New Year came dancing in as revellers expressed high confidence in 1954.

Particularly gay in the small hours of the morning were cities surrounded by bloody fighting against Communists.

In Saigon, Indo - China, both French and Viet Namese gulped down champagne and danced in high spirits not seen there since the end of the Second World War.

In Singapore and Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, joy was unconfined until early in the morning, while only a few miles away in the jungles British troops continued their hunting for Communist Guerrillas.

The mood of carefree revelry even invaded England, where usually New Year's Eve is observed earnestly, but with dignity.

At the traditionally vicious Chelsea arts ball in London hilarity went over the top, and more than 60 revellers were treated for minor injuries. Among the 7,000 dancers in period costumes were actor Orson Welles and film producer Sir Carol Reed. They saw plenty of action until 5 a.m. when they curled up in the middle of the dance floor and went to sleep.

In Scotland, special trains brought thousands home from England to sing "Auld Lang Syne."

A Scottish tradition is to enter the new year free of debt. In Glasgow long lines of householders waited to pay the final instalments on their gas, electricity, rent and water bills for the year.

U.S. Afraid Russians Will Stall

Believe Moscow Tactic To Delay Progress At Big 4 Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials expressed hope today that the Berlin Foreign Ministers' meeting actually will open Jan. 25, but they said the Russians still can stall the big four conference if they wish.

Strong suspicions about Russia's tactics persist because one of Moscow's main purposes in the project is believed to be to delay French action on the proposed European community and so to delay western plans for controlled rearmament of west Germany.

Russia can forward this aim by keeping alive hope of successful east-west negotiations, either by promising conferences or actually holding them. Either by prospects of international peace by negotiation, the less pressure, presumably, Frenchmen would feel to accept EDC and thereby abandon their deep-rooted opposition to any revival of German military strength.

Notes which the Western powers handed the Soviet foreign office Friday accepted Jan. 25 as the opening date for the Berlin meeting, agreed also to a Russian proposal that the place of the meeting be determined by Big Four officials in Germany and said that there is no point now in any further talk about an agenda for the conference since the ministers themselves will be meeting soon.

POSSIBLE DELAYS

Several possibilities of further delay are conceded:

1. The French government is to be reorganized in mid-January after the new president takes office.

2. A site must be selected for the conference. The western powers proposed the Allied Control Authority building, which the Russians do not like. There is some speculation that the Soviet Union may alternatively propose a former broadcasting headquarters which they control in West Berlin. That almost certainly would meet with ready Western acceptance.

But there also has been speculation that the Reds would propose alternating the sessions between East and West Berlin or among the four occupation sectors of the city. Despite difficulties such as news reporting by Western correspondents, authorities here say such arrangements could be worked out.

WOULD REJECT PROPOSAL

If the Russians should unexpectedly insist that the meetings be held in East Berlin, the Western powers, according to Washington officials, would reject the proposal flatly.

3. Another possible cause of delay is the matter of subjects to be discussed. Again the key question is whether Russia would like to drag out the preliminaries to a conference for as many weeks as possible.

In previous note exchanges the Western Powers and the Soviet government have in effect agreed that the future of Germany is of major importance. Russia will bring up her demand for recognition of Red China as a fifth big world power.

The West has repeatedly called for completion of an Autsrian Independence Treaty, and Russia has refused to agreed to talk about this at Berlin.

Authorities here are uncertain how long the conference may last State Secretary Dulles is prepared to break it off in two weeks if it serves only the purpose of a Ruussian propaganda sounding board. But if the Soviet Union demonstrates desire to reach an agreement even on secondary issues, the conference may be extended.

Without referring to the prospective conference, Soviet Premier Malenkov in a New Year's statement in the government newspaper Izvestia, said he believes there are favorable opportunities for reducing international tension in 1954.

The statement, in the form of answers to questions submitted by Kingsbury Smith of the International News Service, was published in the government newspaper Izvestia.

But a day earlier the Communist party newspaper Pravda accused the Western powers and West Germany of ganging up on Russia to sabotage the forthcoming talks.

There were two other olive-branch statements from Moscow Friday. The Communist party newspaper Prayda said 1954 "opens wider possibilities" for reducing international tension, while author Ilay Ehrenberg said, "It seems that the end of the cold war is near." Ehrenberg, one of Russia's leading propagandists, said Western agreement to a five-power conference including Red China is the key to relaxation of the tension.

Fellow PoWs Use Daggers To Halt Return

SEOUL (AP)—A young Texas corporal, one of 23 American war prisoners who originally stayed with the communists, said today "there might be others who would come out" if given protection from dagger-wielding fellow PoWs.

Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor, who changed his mind and asked Friday [illegible] a description of conditions inside the pro-communist neutral-zone compound and said Indian guards should search it for hidden weapons.

Batchelor is the second of the 23 non-returning Americans to ask repatriation. His story of life in the wire-enclosed compound near Panmunjom, told during a 40-minute press conference, conflicted at many points with reports of the Indian custodian command on conditions in the stockade now holding 21 Americans, one Briton and 327 South Koreans.

ARMED WITH DAGGERS

The 22-year-old corporal calmly faced a battery of reporters, cameras and microphones as he made these points:

1. Both South Korean and American pro-Red prisoners in the camp are armed with daggers to intimidate any prisoner who wishes to escape. "It would be difficult at times for the Americans to get out."

2. Chinese communist leaders have "some contact" with prisoners in the neutral-zone compound, despite Indian reports to the contrary.

3. "A lot of fellows are quite mixed up and there might be others who would come out" if they had a chance.

4. All outgoing letters from the camp are written jointly and read to the other prisoners.

5. The prisoners are split into factions and the leaders of various groups sometimes fail to pass on information given them by Indian officials.

SAY WEAPONS

Indian spokesmen have said repeatedly that there are no weapons in the compound and that it would be a simple matter for any prisoner wishing repatriation to approach a guard.

At Panmunjom today the United Nations command gave the Indian command a sweeping endorsement of its head count of Chinese prisoners of last Thursday — a count the Communists angrily protested.

The UN command said it regards "as a normal and necessary administrative action," the count which gave 135 pro-Communist Chinese PoWs their chance to return to the Reds. It was UN command policy "that every effort should be made to ensure that every prisoner . . . should have every opportunity to make a free choice as to where he wishes to go."

The statement diametrically opposed the stand of the South Korean foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, who protested the head count on behalf of his government.

Store Robbed Of Cigarettes

LAKEFIELD — (ENS) — Cigarettes, valued at approximately $35, were stolen late New Year's even or early New Year's day from Arthur Whitlock's store on Bridge St.

Mr. Whitlock discovered the theft 11 a.m. Friday when he went to open up.

The thief or thieves got into the store, which is at the west end of the high-level canal bridge, by smashing in an unused door on the east side of the building. The cigarettes were taken from the snack bar section of the combination grocery store and snack bar.

So far as Mr. Whitlock could tell, after a preliminary check of his stock, nothing else was stolen.

Chief Constable Price Morris is investigating.

Mayor Hugh Waddell Bids Adieu To Staff

Mayor Hugh F. Waddell made the round of the department his final official visit to the city hall Thursday afternoon. He made heads and other members of the staff, extending to them his wishes for a happy New Year.

Mayor Waddell collected the remnant of recent correspondence and other papers, and left it as he came to it two years ago enhanced by the memory of his cordial personality, dignity and courtesy, and by an administrative record appreciated most by those who had been closest to it.

Three Accidents Outside City

Provincial police at district headquarters here in Peterborough were pleased with the public's response to repeated warnings to drive safely. Only three small accidents were reported over New Year's. Two people were slightly injured in a crackup near Skyboro airport but neither required treatment. Similar to their opposite numbers in the city, the OPP found it unnecessary to jail anybody for drunker or impaired driving.

"We were exceptionally well pleased with the results," OPP Sgt. Stanley Palmeteer said today. "There were few accidents despite the fact the roads were quite slippery. And we had no drunk drivers."

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Darling of Bridgenorth P. O. both received facial cuts and bruises in an accident 8.30 a.m. New Year's day on Highway 7, near the Skyboro airport.

Mr. Darling told the OPP that he was driving north on the highway and was forced over to the right by a southbound car, partly over on the wrong side. His right wheels caught in a crust of snow left by the snowplow and the 1952-model car went out of control.

It plunged into the east ditch, striking a culvert, and it stopped after hitting the side of a built-up private drive. Damage to the vehicle is estimated at $200.

Mr. Darling received a cut on the side of the head and he was given outpatient treatment in the hospital; his wife, Elaine, also received outpatient treatment for facial cuts.

OPP Constable Emmet Crough investigated.

Other minor accidents were reported near Young's Point and Lindsay. There were no injuries and little property damage.

Russia Starts Nickel Smuggling

VIENNA (AP)—Police said today they are investigating the likelihood that large quantities of nickel, possibly paid with gold sent by Russia to England, are being shipped illegaly behind the Iron Curtain.

The Austrian police said they believe illegal traders may have established a "nickel road" between East and West that runs through Bavaria and Austria.

They said they arrived at that suspicion following seizure of 80 bars of raw nickel at Piding, on the German side of the Austrian-German border, during the last few days.

TWO SEIZURES MADE

The seizure of this nickel follows confiscation Dec. 10 of 3,000 kilograms of raw nickel in Salzburg, and an earlier seizure of 200 kilograms which had been illegally imported into Austria from Germany.

The police said they believe the illegal transports were organized by international smugglers, possibly making headquarters in Switzerland. They speculated that sterling funds reported received by the Russians in exchange for gold bullion delivered to England may be partialy used for payment of the illegal nickel shipments.

Says Russian Guard Shot Up Compound

BERLIN (AP)—A young German journalist who spent almost seven years in Soviet captivity said today that a drunken Russian guard wantonly sprayed the compound of a camp in East Prussia with bullets and killed three German prisoners last ept. 25.

The incident occurred, he said, at the Tapiau camp in East Prussia.

Werner Hemm, 29, who came back to Berlin shortly before Christmas with other repatriates, said he was in the camp at the time of the shooting. Arrested in East Berlin in February, 1947, Hemm was sentenced to 10 years as a "saboteur."

Hemm described life in Russian camps as one long round of "damp, black bread, salted cabbage," illness and death. The shooting at Tapiau was the only outbreak of such vicious violence he saw, but he added there were constant grapevine reports of similar occurrences elsewhere.

Scold Queen For Getting History Wrong

GLASGOW (AP) — An angry group of Scots patriots scolded Queen Elizabeth today for getting her history wrong. They said parts of her Christmas Day broadcast to her people were "entirely inaccurate."

The rating came from the St. Andrew Society of Glasgow, which [illegible] because Elizabeth called herself "Queen of England" and referred to the first Queen Elizabeth as her forebear.

After declarmg its undying loyalty to the Queen, the society's council said in a published statement that "it intensely deplores and emphatically protests against certain inaccurate terms and references in the Queen's message." It added:

"The reference to Queen Elizabeth of England (1588-1603) as a forebear of her Britannic majesty is entirely inaccurate.

"Queen Elizabeth of England died unmarried and childless. The ancestor and forebear of our noble Queen was Scotland's contemporary monarch—Mary Queen of Scots—not Elizabeth of England.

BRITAIN AND BRITONS

"The suggestion that the voyage of her Britannic majesty around the world is being taken in the role of Queen of England is not in accordance with fact. As monarch of the homeland her status is surely Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

"The council urges that the words Britain, Britons, and British shall be used at all times when Britain or the British nation and peoples are referred to."

Englishmen studying the statement noticed the Scots pulled a bit of a boner themselves. The dates given for the first Elizabeth's reign—1588-1603—were wrong. Elizabeth came to the throne in 1558. Taxed with the error, the Scots blamed a typist.

MAILED COPIES

William Adam, Glasgow lawyer and secretary of the society, said he had mailed copies of the protest to the Queen Mother, Prime Minister Churchill and all Scottish members of Parliament.

In her broadcast the Queen spoke of her Commonwealth tour and said: "This will be a voyage right round the world—the first that a Queen of England has been privileged to make as queen."

Lafer she said: "Some people have expressed the hope that my reign may mark a new Elizabethan era. Frankly, I do not myself feel at all like my great Tudor forebear."

Skiing Excellent At Eight Points

TORONTO (CP)—Skiing was excellent today both on the tow hills and in the bush at eight Ontario points—Bracebridge, Collingwood, Huntsville, Midland, Owen Sound, Sinclair township, Sudbury-Levack and Sundridge.

Conditions were good at seven ski points—Barrie (excellent in the bush), Flesherton-Markdale (good to excellent), Gravenhurst, Haileybury, Kitchener, North Bay (excellent in the bush) and Orangeville-Hockley (fair to good on the tow hill). Skiing was fair at Dagmar and Kirkland Lake and poor at Cobourg, Larder Lake and Newmarket.

All other points reported no skiing due to lack of snow.

Hospital Commission To Improve Standards

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Commission on Hospital Accreditation, which aims at improving standards of hospital care, began to operate officially Friday.

Dr. A. L. C. Gilday, commission chairman, said today that to be classified as accredited, "a hospital must measure up to accepted standards of organization, records, facilities; and services which indicate the level of patient care is high."

The commission is made up of representatives of the Canadian Hospital Association, the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, L'Association des Medecins de Lange Francaise du Canada, and the Canadian Medical Association.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New Yorkers lit fewer cigarettes during the first eight months of 1953, thereby costing the state some $500,000.

The state tax department, in a year-end report, said cigarette tax revenues for the eight months ended Nov. 30 totalled $41,025,112, a drop of 1.21 per cent from the comparable 1952 figure of $41,525,112.

The rate of decline indicates that residents of the state are smoking 25,006,600 fewer packs annually than they did a year ago. Speculation suggests that principal factors may be higher prices and health considerations.

Wires Congratulations To Gurkha Patrol

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) Gen. Sir Gerald Templar, British high commissioner in Malaya, wired congratulations to a Gurkha patrol which surrounded a guerrilla camp in Johore state today and wiped out six terrorists with one burst of fire.

"This is a fine start for 1954 and an achievement which will be difficult to beat," Gen. Templer's message said.

OBITUARIES

MATILDA M. ENNIS

NORWOOD (ENS)—The death occurred in hospital in Peterboroug on New Year's Day, after a short illness, of Matilda M. (Tillie) Ennis, the last surviving member of an old Dummer township family. Miss Ennis was the daughter of Sarah Drury and Michael Ennis, and following her education in the Brick School, Norwood Public and High Schools she went to Toronto where she was for many years a milliner. Four years ago she returned to Norwood.

A member of the United Church, the funeral will be held [illegible] War funeral home at 2.00 p.m. with the Rev. H. K. Wright, of Norwood United Church, officiating. Burial will be in Norwood cemetery.

PHILIP FLYNN

MARMORA (ENS)—The death occurred at his home on Matthew street, on Wednesday evening of Philip Flynn, resident here for 12 years.

Mr. Flynn returned four weeks ago from Belleville hospital where he had received treatment for two weeks for internal hemorrhages. A recurrence of these on Wednesday preceded his death. He was born 84 years ago in Erinsville, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Flynn of that district.

With the exception of a small period devoted to farming, he had spent most of his long active life in lumbering. He was a bush foreman for many years through which he came to be widely known and respected. On February 6th 1922 he married Carrie Vezina, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Flavian Vezina of Stoco, who survives him, also one son Donald of Kingston. Further surviving is one brother Thomas Flynn of Erinsville. He was a devout Roman Catholic. Requiem Mass was sung at the Sacred Heart Church today at 10.30 a.m. Rev. W. P. Healey officiating. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery.

LOIS MARGARET ANDRUS

The death occured in hospital on New Years day after a very short illness of Lois Margaret daughter of Cleveland Andrus and the former Evelyn Armstrong of 576 Wolfe St. Born in Peterborough five years ago she was never strong. She attended the Sunday School of Elim tabernacle and the kindergarten of Prince of Wales public school.

There survive her parents, two brothers David and Neil at home and her grandmother Mrs. H. M. Armstrong of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Monday at 2.00 p.m. at the Kaye funeral home George St. with burial in Little Lake cemetery. The service will be in charge of the Rev. B. G. Evans and the Rev. F. Warburton.

Fog Postpones 3 Football Games In U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—Widespread fog hit the Football League program today, forcing officials to postpone three games and call three others after play had started.

Rugby League and Rugby Union matches also suffered.

[illegible] Arsenal was leading Aston Villa 3-0 in a preview to their Football Association Cup match next Saturday, when fog closed down the game after 22 minutes of play. In the other London match, West Ham led Stoke 4-1 when the match ended after 84 minutes.

Division I leaders, Wolverhampton Wanderers and West Bromwich Albion, drew away from their nearest rivals with wins today. Wolves stayed on top with 39 points with a 3-1 victory over Cardiff, while West Bromwich, one point behind, gained a 3-2 home victory over Preston. Huddersfield stayed in third place, six points behind the leaders, despite a 5-2 loss to Portsmouth.

Leicester maintained its lead in the Division II despite a 7-1 loss to Leeds in an away game. Doncaster sneaked into second place with a 4-2 victory over Notts County, taking over the runner-up position from Everton, whose game with Oldham was postponed by fog, by virtue of a better goal average. Both teams have 33 points.

Division III (Southern) leaders, Ipswich, were held to a 1-1 tie at home by Millwall, but still maintained a commanding seven-point lead over Southampton, who lost to Bristol City 1-0 today.

Fog prevented the Division III (Northern) leaders, Port Vale, from widening their nine-point lead over second-place Gateshead. But Gateshead lost its chance to make up some of the point difference by dropping a 5-0 decision to Chester.

Hearts took over first place in the Scottish League Division with a 4-3 victory over Airdrieonians, while Queen of the South, now in second place, lost to Partick Thistles 6-2. Only Hearts' better goal average separates the teams.

In the Scottish League Division B, Motherwell widened its lead to seven points with a 3-0 victory over Ayr, while second-place St. Johnstone bowed 3-1 to Forfar.

Nickel Company Buys 300 Acres

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., has acquired 300 acres of land on the Welland ship canal for a nickel refinery, H. J. Fraser, vice-president and general manager, announced today.

He said the plant will be used for the treatment of pyrhotetic concentrates. However, processes for the treatment of these concentrates were still in the development stage and the plant would not be built until they were more fully developed.

Several of the property owners from whom the Humberstone township lands adjoining Port Colborne were purchased have the right to remain on the property for at least a year.

Most of Falconbridge's nickel now is refined in Norway. The building of a refinery here will concentrate the world's nickel-refining at Port Colborne, on the main link of the St. Lawrence seaway development, already the home of the International Nickel Co. Ltd., refinery.

Both Falconbridge and International Nickel mine their ore in the Sudbury district.

Mrs. William Little

The funeral of Mrs. William Deck, who died on Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Max Swan, RR No. 2, Ida, was held on Thursday at the Kaye funeral home. The Rev. Walter S. Crone of Buffalo and formerly of Peterborough, and the Rev. J. L. Hockney of the Church of the Open Bible, conducted the service. Burial was in Ray's cemetery, Lakefield. Pallbearers were James Soles, Morris Little, Elmer Rowe, Cliff Schell, Meryl Coburn, and Henry Little.

Butler Hickey

Many frieinds of the late Butler Hickey attended his funeral this morning from his late residence at 267 Park St.

Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by his nephew, Rev. John J. Hickey, assisted by Rev. L. Dubbery, deacon, and Rev. G. Gaughan, subdeacon.

Attending priests in the sanctuary were: Monsignor J. V. McAuley, Lindsay, Monsignor P. P. Butler, Peterborough, Reverend Fathers J. McGuire, L. Leahy, G. Weiss, J. Maskey and F. Fitzpatrick.

Pall bearers were: David Ahern, Cecil Wolff, Alexis McCormick, Dr. Mark Crough, Dr. William Hayes and J. K. Sheehy.

Prayers at St. Peter's cemetery were offered by Rev. Father Hickey assisted by Mons. McAuley and Father Fitzpatrick.

Have Complaints About Customs

RIDGEWAY, Ont. (CP) — Complaints about immigration and customs restrictions on U.S. citizens who have year-round homes in the Niagara district of Ontario have been put before the federal government.

W. L. Houck, Liberal member of Parliament for Niagara Falls, said Thursday he has taken the matter up with Ottawa following complaints from the Federated Bertie Owners Association that the U.S. residents are being unfairly treated.

He said he expected a federal decision in the matter shortly.

MORE ABOUT—

Lord Norwich

In his autobiography, published a few months ago under the title "Old Men Forget," Lord Norwich told how terms of the Munich agreement are in the papers this morning. "While I was dressing this morning I decided I must resign."

CRITICIZED INDIFFERENCE

Earlier, as war minister in charge of speeding up army recruiting, he had found what he was quick to label "lazy indifference" among the British public. He declared "it is the duty of those in authority to frighten the people of this country out of their wits."

Lord Norwich told in his autobiography of what he called his perfect marriage to Lady Diana, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland. She was acclaimed the most beautiful woman of her generation when the late Max Reinhardt staged "The Miracle" with her as the Madonna.

Norwood Midget Drop Two Games In Minor League

The season's largest score was racked up Thursday night in Peterborough Minor Hockey Association play when the Shamrock midgets trounced Norwood 16-1. The Norwood midgets also suffered a second defeatt and this time were white-washed by the Aces 5-0.

[illegible] were closer in the other three games played. The Aces edged past the Optimists 3-2 in the only bantam game while the Aces eked out a 3-1 victory over the Oddfellows and the Oddfellows slipped past Norwood 5-2 in juvenile games.

LEAD SHAMROCKS

Gary Darling, Bill Mahoney, Pat Baker and Pete Stewart led the Shamrocks to their crushing defeat over the Norwood Midgets. The Shamrocks took a 6-0 lead in the first period, added four more in the second and finished with another six.

Norwood's only goal was scored by Glenford Miles, assisted by Doug Lockheed.

In their other game the Norwood midgets managed to keep the score down but at the same time couldn't beat Aces' goalie Len Hickson. Paul Parnell and Paul Murphy put the Aces up 2-0 in the first. Peter Heffernan and Larry Ferguson added two in the second, Ron Brown and Wils McArthur finished the scoring in the third for a 6-0 score.

THREE PENALTIES

Only three penalties were handed out in the bantam game, won 3-2 by the Aces over the Optimists. In the fairly quick play Heffernan, helped by Cain, put the Optimists up 1-0 in the first. But the Aces with Vilneff and Billingsley scoring went ahead 2-1 in the second. That one goal lead was enough as the teams played to a one-all tie in the third. Anthony scoring for the Ace and Rutton for the Optimists.

Two goals, both by Terry Dorls, in the first 10 miles of the Aces-Oddfellows juvenile game were enough for a victory. The Oddfellows cut the lead to one in the second on a goal by Renwick, but Strickland added an assurance goal for the Aces in the third.

The Oddfellows came back in their second game to break even on the night with a 5-2 victory over Norwood. Gray and Goldie scored for Oddfellows and Byers — for Norwood in a 2-1 first period.

But in the second period the Oddfellows began to pull away as Roy scored on Renwick's pass. Renwick and Goldie added a pair for the Oddfellows in the third while Millan scored Norwood's second tally.

City Council Inaugural

The inaugural of the city council at 3 p.m. Monday is a departure from the customary morning meeting of many years.

The new warrants of the ratepayers will be confirmed by City Clerk E. A. Outram in receiving the oath of office first from Mayor-elect Norman G. Graham, followed by the swearing in of the five aldermen who have been elected for two year terms.

An innnovation decided by the electors will be the formal placing of Mrs. Alene Holt as a member of the council, the first woman to be elected to the municipal company in the long corporate administration of Peterborough.

Mr. Outram will administer the oath of office and duty to Stanley McBride, John A. Dewart, P. J. Anglesey, Mrs. Holt, and Gordon Powell.

The other members of the council whose terms extend into this new year are: Aldermen Harold Rehill, Arthur Burrows, William Beggs, Gordon Farquharson and R. E. Knox.

Ald. Knox was appointed as successor to Mr. Graham on his retirement last year as an alderman elected for two years.

Mayor Graham will be invested with the golden mayoral chain by Gordon Monkman, its donor to the municipality.

The opening prayer and invocation of divine guidance of the council in 1954 will be offered by by the Rev. M. P. Poole, rector of All Saints' Church. Mayor Graham will conclude the afternoon ceremony by an address, mainly a preview of the work ahead of the administration.

Coffee and refreshments will be served after the adjournment in the council's reception room off the chamber. Meanwhile, the council in committee of the whole is expected to appoint the chairmen and members of the standing committees.

First business meeting of the council will be 7.30 p.m. Monday.

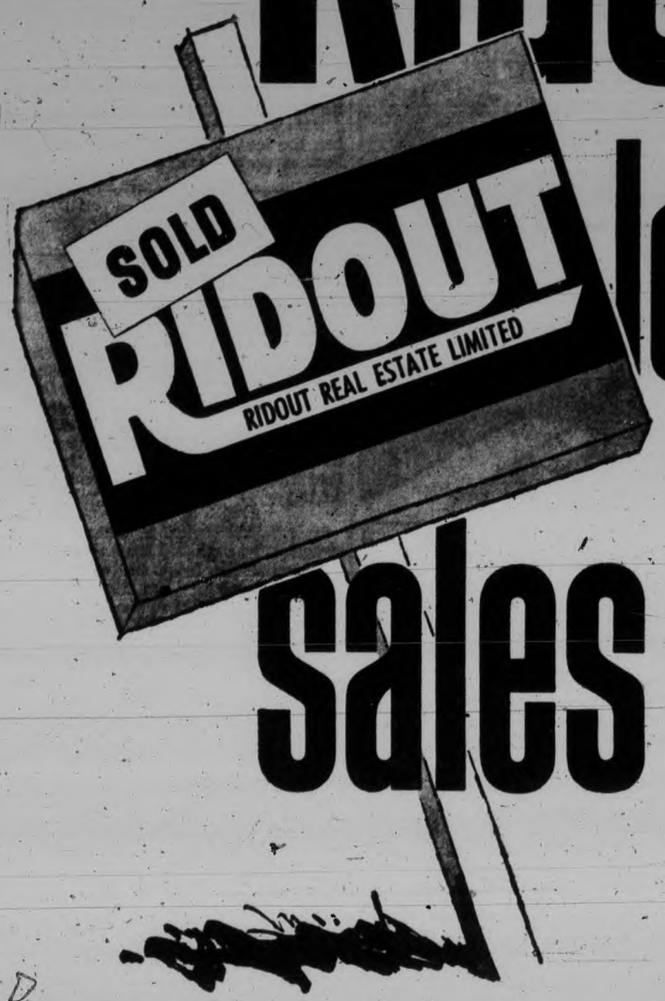
Ridout Real Estate



leads the continent

sales over $50,000,000

for year 1953

THE number of homes bought and sold last year through Ridout surpasses that of any other realtor in Canada or the United States by a wide, wide margin. Were these homes in one community, it would be nearly 1/3 the size of Kitchener, twice the size of Oakville or ½ the size of Sarnia.

The sales record achieved by Ridout Real Estate in 1953 proves two facts, important to you.
1. When you look for a house to buy, Ridout has the widest selection from which you can choose — right size, right location, right price and right terms. 2. When you want to sell, Ridout has the longest list of waiting clients.

The buying of a home is one of life's most important purchases. It is one time when you can buy happiness. That is why Ridout considers that their place is at the crossroads that lead to satisfaction for the buyer and seller of Real Estate.

RIDOUT REAL ESTATE LIMITED

This Year's Economic Prospects

At the end of the year grave men, wise men and politicians make forecasts. There have been forecasts about the economy of Canada, of Britain, or Germany, of the western world as a whole, and, in keeping with the season of brightness, they have on the whole been cautiously optimistic. One element is common to all these forecasts: the condition of the American economy. If all is well with it the assumption is that all will be well with all the other countries in the Western world. If business does not go well in the States the rest of the Western economic hegemony will not be healthy, either.

* * *

No economist denies that the mood and state of the whole of the non-Communist world depends on the continued prosperity of the U.S.A. As one of them put it in reviewing the economic prospects for 1954: "The tremendous wealth and industrial activity of the American economy — outdistancing that of all other countries by so much more than before the war—provides not only dollar aid in various forms, but a vast market for the raw materials and manufacturers of other countries. If this market falters even by a fraction, experience has shown that the earnings of other countries—particularly those in Europe and the sterling area—drop precipitately. Depression spreads from them, in turn, to others less directly dependent on the United States".

* * *

What is true for European countries is even more forcefully applicable to Canada. Canada would be the first country to feel economic tremors from across the border. This is true despite the basic soundness of the Canadian economy and the very real wealth which Canada has. Although Canada is not dependent on American aid, directly or indirectly, it is dependent on American markets and prices both for buying and selling. Further, the tremendous investment of American capital in Canadian business, industry and resources makes this country highly susceptible to American economic conditions, and to any laws, import regulations, tarriffs and political actions taken to offset any economic drooping, or conversely, not taken. (For instance, the American government has no definite counter-depression policies, either domestically or through international co-operation.) Also, so closely related are the American and Canadian societies that any uneasiness in the former is immediately reflected in the latter.

* * *

What then are the American prospects for this year, on which Canadian prospects so deeply depend? Government and business economists in the U.S. have predicted a decline of between five and ten per cent., in the gross national income of the States for the year, but this is not as discouraging as it sounds. The figures on which the guess is based go no further than October last, and the consumer demand—the buying mood of the people for houses, cars, television sets and all the hundreds of articles whose manufacture and selling turn the wheels of American business—cannot be determined until the spring. Retail sales and personal incomes held up well in the pre-Christmas season.

* * *

A fundamental element in the American economy—as in the Canadian—is the rate of capital investment. The New York Times has surveyed it and found it running at a higher percentage of the national income than in 1952. One company which specializes in this sort of figure fabrication has estimated that capital investment in 1954 will decline eight per cent. The same company a year ago estimated that 1953's rate of capital investment would be down eight percent from 1952. In fact, it increased eight per cent. So even the best prophecies are only guesses.

In general this seems to be the American prospect: a slight falling off in industrial production (due in part to a decrease in American government spending for defence and foreign aid), fewer new houses, somewhat lower prices for both manufactured and farm goods, a slowing down in the rising rate of employment but no catastrophic depression.

* * *

This is a view of the U.S.A., and, as we have said, what happens in the U. S. will quickly be reflected in Canada. However, large Canadian enterprises already under way—Labrador iron, aluminum at Kitimat, the St. Lawrence seaway development, Hydro projects and other major works and capital investments should keep the Canadian economy prosperous and on an even keel, even should the American economy undergo one of the periodic pauses which seem to come about every three years, a pause between one burst of instalment buying and the next.

Whatever economic forecasts are made are, of course, contingent upon the world political situation, that is, on the issue between war and peace.

Sp W 4 m 15,000,000

[illegible] what greater than 15,000,000. We began in 1867 with a fifth of this number, and our progress has not been bad—not bad at all. Indeed, this figure of 15,000,000 makes us feel quite bulky. There are now about the same number of Canadians in the world as there are Jews. When we have added another ten millions to our ranks we shall be as numerous as the Mexicans. We are considerably larger in population than the Netherlands, than Norway, than Sweden; we have still to catch up with Turkey, with Egypt, with Spain. In the matter of population, we stand at present side by side with Ethiopia; that is to say, if all the Canadians and all the Ethiopians were to band together, they would equal one-fifth of the population of the U.S.A.

We need not stress the fact that size of population is not an end in itself, and that as a single statistic it proves nothing. Our 15,000,000 has to be considered with our 3,845,144 square miles of territory, in which we rattle around like peas in a bladder; if we lived in a small country we should be a far more homogeneous and easily recognizable people than we are now. Our worries about a national consciousness and a national culture would be at an end; where people are living in one another's pockets these things develop quickly.

There is now talk of doubling our population by 1975. We do not know quite how this is to be done, but presumably the statisticians, having considered natural increase and immigration, think that it can be done somehow. We have no particular views on the matter, though we are curious to know what a more thickly populated Canada would be like. The prospect does not worry us. We do not foresee any intolerable crowding in our day, or in that of our grandchildren.

Whether Weather?

One of the most popular items on the CBC's Toronto television broadcasts is the early evening weather report given on the program called "Tabloid". The fellow who does it races rapidly across the continent, flourishing an area of high pressure here, a sniff of rain in another corner, an anti-climax in Kansas, a blue brew off Nova Scotia and whirligigs over the Prairies, ending up with a confident prediction that the temperature in Toronto now is 46 and that tomorrow it will be down to 24, with snow-flurries around the top of the Royal York.

It is all wonderful fantasy, expert, sure, and breathless. If one does not follow the scientific, meteorological gyrations, one at least has a pleasant ten minutes watching the show and at the end, a forecast for Toronto, Ottawa and other related points which may be wrong even for Peterborough.

The popularity of this program is partly owing to the TV maestro of the weather, but chiefly, we suspect, because the weather itself is interesting. It is always varied, never completely predictable, and its shenanigans—demonstrated on the black-board before, and over our heads at the actual time—have the excitement of the changeable.

Weather is the biggest topic of conversation, because weather is whether? Any fool can be right, any wise man wrong. It is good, clean, safe fun. Now TV has extended our reach for it—out to Victoria, right down to the Florida panhandle.

We now read the weather reports contained in far-off papers. The Victoria Times last Saturday had a beautiful summary (Victoria, you know, is proud of its weather, very sensitive should it misbehave). Some misbehaviour must have stirred the Times that day. The summary was this, in big black letters: WEATHER—SLOUDY. That's the sort of thing weather does, even to a printing office. That's why it is perennially interesting, daily exciting.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Aneurin Bevan says that Churchill belongs to the 18th century. And when Nye begins abusing his enemies we suspect that he belongs in the Old Testament.

A doctor writes that the sense of hearing is temporarily dulled by eating. And at this season of the year total deafness may be expected in anyone between 7 and 17.

President Naguib decrees that any Egyptian caught flirting with a woman in a public place, by word or deed, shall go to prison for seven days. And when we reflect what 'deed' might mean to the lively Egyptians, we wonder if this is not a light penalty.

EINSTEIN

He Remade Our Outlook

AS WE LOOK ahead in this New Year we see a world under the cease-less pressure of change; a change so rapid and diversified that anyone transported from the beginning of the century into the midst of present-day life would find many features of it unintelligible. The chief transforming agent has been modern science, both through its technological creativeness and through its influence on our ways of thinking and our [illegible] sey, where living quietly, but not in retirement, is a man who has done more than any one in our time to change the climate and perspective of scientific thinking itself.

* * *

THIS SPRING the world will celebrate Einstein's seventy-fifth birthday. There will be messages from mathematicians and physicists. Philosophers will pay homage to the man who has never written a word about their subject, and who has revolutionised philosophy. The specialists will pay their tribute on which the rest of the world forms its judgement. But the world has long seen in Einstein something beyond the scientific theories: some quirk of imagination which has leapt from his mind to ours, and has revealed to us nature as a book of endless and unforeseen speculuations.

* * *

LIKE NEWTON, like Darwin, Einstein has remade the outlook of his and following generations. Those who have not grasped this, in each generation, go on thinking of science as a heap of gadgets, and grumble at the growing complexity of the tin-opener and the atomic pile. But the penetration of our lives by the discoveries of the great scientific minds has been far deeper and more radical than this. And it is not the complexity but the simplicity of their thought which has made it a challenge to all that others took for granted, and which has always conquered. Newton, Darwin and now Einstein were not in any sense brilliant thinkers, quick at academic research or crackling with fireworks of invention. All three were fairly slow boys at school and college. All three made their discoveries away from the seats of learning, in solitary and rather forbidding study. All three brought to the study of nature the searching simplicity which hermits once turned on their visions.

ALBERT EINSTEIN was born in a Jewish family in Germany on March 14, 1879. His father was a small business man who did not prosper, and who moved first to Switzerland and then to Italy in search of better luck. When the boy was left behind at school in Germany, he ran away. Later he finished his degree course with some difficulty in Switzerland. He had no university prospects, and had to take a job as a minor official in the Swiss Patent Office. He did his own thinking in the evenings, and he was still working in the Swiss Patent Office when he published his first great papers in 1905.

There were three papers that year, and in them the young man of twenty-six made outstanding advances in three separate branches of physics. It is odd now to recall this wealth of discovery in a single year, when in the lay mind Einstein's name stands simply for Relativity. And certainly the most adventurous of the papers of 1905 was the first statement of the theory of Special Relativity. But it is doubtful whether the theory of Relativity would have been read with nearly so much attention, if Einstein's other word of 1905 had not marked him as a leader in framing the concepts of the new quantum physics. All his work in this annus mirabilis, his wonderful year has the same stamp of simple intellectual grandeur: it looks into the heart of physics.

* * *

THE HEART of physics at that time had in fact developed a murmur, which was small but nagging. The triumphant laws in which Newton had given order to nature for more than 100 years could still be tested and found right, almost everywhere, there was the small murmur of exceptions. The planet Mercury was not keeping time; the speed of light refused to behave as classical physics expected; and the newly discovered electrons seemed to change their mass with their speed.

Physicists were trying to meet these minor irregularities with minor adjustments. Einstein from the outset looked for no ingenious gloss on the laws of physics and for no small errors of formulation. He looked at the unwritten assumptions on which the laws were built.

* * *

NEWTON, who had the same directness of mind that Einstein has, had been conscious of these assumptions but had found them unavoidable; since his day only two or three scientists had spared a thought for them. Put in scientific terms, the assumptions were that space and time are given to us absolutely and are the same for every observer. Put more generally, the assumptions postulated a sharp division between the observer and the natural world. Classical physics saw nature as a chain or network of events which unrolls itself in imperturbable sequence, and of which the observer is a witness but not a link. The observer is a god, altogether outside the machine of the physical world.

What Einstein asked about this majestic view was not whether it is true, in some abstract sense, but whether it is practical. Does science in fact record impersonal events? Can it distil the actual event from our observation of it? Once the question is asked, the answer is plainly, No. Physics as we practise it does not consist of events; it consists of observations. And between the event and those who observe it there must pass a signal—a ray of light perhaps, a wave or an impulse—which simply cannot be taken out of the observation. Event, signal and observation: that is the relationship which Einstein saw as a fundamental unit in physics. Relativity is the understanding of the world not as events but as relations.

SOMETHING like this had been said by philosophers for some time: that science must get rid of abstractions and make its system only out of what is in fact observed. But Einstein was the first to take the philosophy seriously, as something more than a pious, impractical hope. He put it into equations; and within a few years physicists were astonished to find that it explained the erratic behaviour of Mercury and predicted the bending of light near the sun. His first papers established a link between energy and mass.

These are the deep and challenging ideas with which Einstein revolutionised both large-scale and quantum physics in a few years. He enlarged them to include gravitation in the theory of General Relativity in 1915, and is today still working on a Unified Field theory which should extend them to electricity and magnetism. And it will now be plain why the influence of these ideas has been so much wider than science. For they are universal ideas; they reach below the artifices of mathematics and indeed the laws of physics, to the basic conception of the relationship between man and nature.

WHEN the first war broke out in 1914, Einstein had been a young giant and an enfant terrible among physicists for some years, and was director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Research Institute for Physics in Berlin. The German Government was anxious to find intellectual support for its imperial ambitions, and put great pressure on its leading men. Ninety-three of them signed a manifesto of support. Einstein did not sign, and with two others issued a counter-manifesto against militarism. Einstein had in fact chosen Swiss nationality as a young man because he disliked German regimentation; and he chose later to become German again as a gesture of support to the Weimar Republic.

The Weimar Republic exposed him to attack on two flanks. To the rising Nazis, he and his theories were of course simply un-German. To men across the Rhine with bitter memories, he was a German scientist of whom too much fuss was made. In 1919, the eclipse expeditions had confirmed to the world what no one had guessed before General Relativity, that light bends toward the sun. In 1921 Einstein was given the Nobel Prize—although, cautiously, not for Relativity. When Einstein visited Paris in 1922 to lecture, he had to be hidden from French nationalists demonsfrating against the German. Twenty years later the demonstrators were collaborating with the Nazis, and Einstein had to flee out of reach of both to America. Those who hid him in 1922 recall with pleasure that he brought his violin with him and he played in quartets.

EINSTEIN went to America in 1932 and has worked at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton ever since. He has been a lifelong pacifist. Yet he broke with this as with other doctrines when it seemed no longer to fit the facts of the world. On August 2, 1939, he wrote to tell President Roosevelt that recent work in atomic physics, which had been disclosed to him privately, made it probable that an atomic bomb could be constructed; and that since this work had begun in Germany, it must be feared that the Germans would try to make such a bomb. The marvellous boy who at twenty-six had for the first time equated mass with energy, now at sixty saw that equation threaten the world.

* * *

HE lives quietly in a suburban house in a suburban street in Princeton. A year ago he refused the Presidency of Israel because he thought himself too old. He is patient even with the strangers who sneak up to his front porch and have their wives photograph them as if they were just coming out of the great man's house. If he has any impatience left it is, as it always was, with authority. Some months ago an English scientist visiting Washington had occasion to telephone Einstein's house. He could hear the long-distance operator say to his housekeeper, "Washington is on the line for you." And he heard the housekeeper exclaim, in horrified German, "Oh my god! Washington! What has gone wrong now!".

Rich Man With Great Heart

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

SOMEWHERE IN CANADA now a man is feeling the glow of satisfaction that comes from doing a good deed not for personal glory but of the sight of men. He must be a rich man, because his magnificent gesture cost him $50,000.

This man gave the $50,000 to the Church of England in Canada with the instruction that it was to be distributed, all of it and all of it this year, among low-paid clergymen of the mission service of the church—the other condition was that his name was not to be revealed.

So church officials have had the happy task of dividing up this money among some 250 missionaries from Vancouver Island and the sub-Arctic to Labrador and Newfoundland—the average of these Christmas cheques is about $200. And the gift has no strings. It is apart from the clergyman's stipend and is for his personal use. It is not to buy the mission a new organ, but to lighten a little bit the trials borne so cheerfully by these devoted men and their families in the remote parts of this country.

We have no idea of the identity of this fine Canadian who has brought life and cheer into the Christmas of 250 mission workers and his anonymity should be respected. But what a wonderful thing he has done! He must be wealthy, as we have said. But above that he is generous, kind imaginative, and intensely human. He could have made this a capital fund, the income to be used for the purchase of hymn-books for the Eskimos, and his philanthrophy would have been applauded. Instead he insists on no personal publicity, requires that the money be paid out, every dollar of it, over this Christmas. It was a wonderful and beautiful thing to do.

Why Apes Do Not Talk

(Indianapolis Star)

During a convention of the French Geographical Society, an expert on South Asian jungles told the story that Malays consider apes to be a kind of especially clever human beings. According to the natives, apes are perfectly capable of talking, but won't do it in the presence of people, for fear of being recognized as people and having to pay taxes.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem . . . Be in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail: for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even to Babylon; there shalt thou be delivered; there the Lord shall redeem thee from the hand of thine enemies. (Micah 4:8,10.)

* * *

Now gather thysel in troops, O daughter of troops: he hath laid siege against us: they shall smite the judge of Israel with a rod upon the cheek. But thou, Beth-Lehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting . . . And he shall stand and feed in the strength of the Lord, in the majesty of the name of the Lord his God; and they shall abide: for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth. (Micah 5:1, 2, 4.)

In my Father's house are so many mansions; if it were no so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you . . . Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest: and how can we know the way?

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me . . . If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever. (John 14:2, 5, 6, 15, 16.)

For the Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody. Hearken unto me, my people; and give ear unto me, O my nation: for a law shall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to rest for a light of the people. (Isa. 51:3, 4.)

Fun Among The Nobles

(Edmonton Journal)

There is something profoundly disillusioning about the recent report of a court case in Stockholm in which a Swedish count was ordered to pay about $95 in damages for his frisky behavior at an exclusive fancy dress ball. The count was alleged to have exploded 50 gas-filled balloons with his cigarette, thereby inflicting painful burns on 10 of his fellow-aristocrats.

Most Canadians have always had the idea—instilled by romantic novels and Hollywood movies—that social gatherings of the European nobility were dignified and formal affairs— minuets and deep bows and all that sort of thing. It is a shock to find the lords and ladies exploding balloons in each other's faces and the party winding up in court.

Human beings seem to be distressingly alike, these days whether one encounters them on Skid Row or in Burke's Peerage.

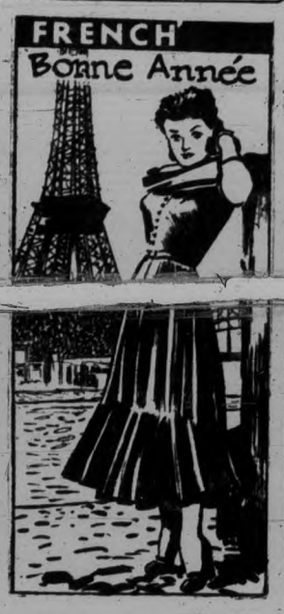
Happy New Year



Peterborough GE Generators Are Being Installed In Power Station At Falls

The ever-increasing use of electricity is a barometer of the progress and prosperity of Ontario. As the Province moves forward on the industrial front and increases its agricultural production, as its growing population maintains an unsurpassed standard of living, more and more electricity is needed. Ontario Hydro is meeting these demands by the expansion of its generation and transmission facilities.

In the eight years since World War II, Ontario Hydro has increased its generating facilities and its network of power lines throughout the Province in an unprecedented program of expansion. Thirteen new power sources have been brought into service, and the Commission's dependable peak capacity has been increased by 2,209,900 horsepower or 85.1 per cent since 1945.

Now, the giant of them all is being constructed at Queenston, the Sir Adam Beck-Niagara Generating Station No. 2. The new plant, named in honor of the man known as the "father of Hydro", is just upstream from its neighbor the Sir Adam Beck-Niagara Generating Station No. 1, at one time the largest hydro-electric plant in the world. Spread across an eight-mile distance, the works of the Sir Adam Beck-Niagara G.S. No. 2 include the intake structure two miles above the Falls, near Chippawa; the twin tunnels under the City of Niagara Falls; the open-cut canal and the new powerhouse at Queenston, located six miles below the Cataracts. Construction of the new project began in December, 1950.

In 1954, the new station will join the southern Ontario power "grid," when five of the 100,000 hp units will be placed in service, followed the next year by six more units. In 1956, the twelfth unit of the first phase of this project, including a recently authorized pumped-storage reservoir, will be in operation with a total installed capacity of 1,428,000 hp including the pumped storage. Provision has also been made for the addition of four more units as required, to give the new development an eventual capacity of 1,828,000 hp. The estimated cost of the Niagara Project is $343,742,000, with a peak labor force of approximately 6,800 men.

BUILT IN PETERBOROUGH

At the powerhouse, which will eventually generate nearly two million h.p., a CGE installation crew under Bob Gray moved in last month on the assembly of the first generator. Made at Peterborough Works, it may start producing power in April. Another installation crew, under Harold Taylor of CGE, has just started to install two giant circuit breakers recently shipped from Peterborough. Ten more of these oil circuit breakers are to be shipped from Peterborough Works. They have important new features and are the largest ever built in Canada.

THE BIG PLAN

Sir Adam Beck would have heartily approved the intense and thorough study and preparation that went into planning the huge development.

Before the first shovelful of earth was bitten by the power-shovels, skilled engineers had bent over their drafting-boards to draw up the plans and details, engineers had constructed and studied models of the project to ensure the best and most economical features, contracts had been drawn and tenders let, facilities for the comfortable housing, proper feeding, medical care and recreation of the workers had been arranged.

It is all but impossible to convey the sweep of the idea, to envision the thousands of men and the massed ranks of complicated machinery needed to bring the project to fruition. It is a far cry from the slaves of Pharaoh, inching their way with blocks of stone across the shimmering desert toward the rising Pyramids, the lash of the slavedriver ever at their backs, to the willing work of free men entering upon an endeavor that dwarfs the ancient Pyramids and makes them folly. For here is to be erected a living expression of a free peoples desire for an ever higher standard of living, made possible by the harnessed powers of mighty waters transmuted into the vital force of electricity.

THE PROJECT

Many engineering problems had to be solved in the Niagara project, some of a unique nature. The waters of the Niagara River, which will revolve the turbines of the new powerhouse, have to be conveyed a distance of some eight miles, before poring down the penstocks of the new station in the Niagara Gorge. This meant that the City of Niagara Falls had to be by-passed in some manner. This was solved by the designing of twin tunnels, 5½ miles long, which would be driven into the subterranean rock as far as 330 feet below the city, and emerge into a 2¼-mile open-cut canal, which in turn carries the waters to the huge forebay for delivery to the penstocks. Each of these phases of the development presented challenges of its own.

Because of indecision respecting the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project, and because demands for power in Ontario continue to soar, the Commission announced on April 23, 1953, that provision is being made for additions to the Niagara Project to meet the anticipated shortages.

INTAKE STRUCTURES

The building of the intake structures alone is an engineering feat of first magnitude. Located two miles above the Falls, the two intakes will divert 15 milion gallons of water a minute to the tunnels, enough to supply all the citizens of Niagara Falls with their daily requirements for one week. Try to envisage this immense amount of water pouring into the structures, and a realization will be had of their terrific size. The control gates of the intake structures at the upstream portals of the tunnels, among the largest of their type in the world, are required to hold back the waters of the river should it be necessary to clean or repair the tunnels.

These are the main engineering equations Hydro engineers solved in the design of the intake structures: a location where sufficient water would be available for the project; a structure whereby water would enter the intake without turbulence; a means of prohibiting floating ice from interfering with the flow of water.

After exhausive verification tests on the Niagara Model, two 550-foot long gathering tubes were designed, with intricate inlet ports along their lengths. There will be protection offshore, paralleling the main currents of the river. A tunnel section is being dredged four hundred feet out in the river. This will permit an adequate flow of water, not only for the tubes, but also to carry ice past the intakes. The river's shore is to be smoothed out, and that part between the old shore and the intake tubes filled in, to obviate obstructions to the flow of water and floating ice. To allow the intake tubes to be constructed "in the dry", a timber-crib cofferdam eleven hundred feet long and 400 feet of earth dyke have been built about their sites.

The massive intake control gates will be 58 feet high, with a 45-foot clear opening and weight approximately 200 tons each. Supporting towers will rise some 77 feet above deck level, or more than the height of a six-storey building.

TWIN TUNNELS

The twin tunnels driving through far under the City of Niagara Falls are among the more spectacular engineering achievements of Ontario Hydro. Five access shafts were sunk into the rock past the depths of the tunnels. Through these, the earth and rock are removed and they are entries and exits for men and materials. They are offset in such a manner they can be also used for construction of both tunnels, running parallel at a distance of 250 feet, centre to centre. These shafts are sunk about 6,225 feet apart along the tunnel route with depths varying from 200 to 330 feet, dependent upon the tunnel's horizons.

The scene of construction in the tunnels is one of intense activity. Deep underground, workmen toil within the huge vault of the tunnel. Fifteen-ton trucks travel to and from the face of the tunnel to the shafts with their excavated loads, or return for a refill, able to pass on the fifty-one foot wide "floor" of the tunnel's completed half-circle. This "floor" of the half-tunnel is actually wider than the concrete sections of a four-lane highway. A power-shovel or a jumbo drilling-rig works at the tunnel face. Underground workshops repair tools and machines right on the job. There is the constant subdued thunder of air being forced into the tunnel for ventilation. Far overhead, the City of Niagara Falls goes about its business. It is an inspiring exhibition of man's ingenuity, courage and vision.

The twin hydraulic pressure tunnels are, as far as it is known, the largest of their type in the world. They will have a rough diameter of 51 feet, which will be reduced to 45 feet by the three-foot thick circular concrete linings. As the penned waters of Niagara rush smoothly through their circular depths, the tunnels will be capable of withstanding the enormous stresses and strains the water action will build up. Approximately 1,056,00 cubic yards of concrete will be required to line the tunnels. Concrete surfacing at the first tunnel is expected to be completed by the end of 1953.

It was computed that almost ten million tons of rock (over 4 million cubic yards) will have to be excavated and removed from the tunnels. Some 38,290 tons of structural and reinforcing steel will be used in supporting the roof and sides of the tunnels.

HIGHLIGHTS OF SIR ADAM BECK-NIAGARA G.S. No. 2

LOCATION: Niagara River; intake two miles above Falls (near Chippawa); powerhouse six miles below Cataracts (near Queenston).

ULTIMATE INSTALLED CAPACITY: 1,370,000 kw (1,828,000 hp).

RATED HEAD: 292 feet for main plant.

DESIGNED AND CONSTRUCTED BY: Ontario Hydro; tunnelling contracts awarded to Rayner-Atlas Company, and Perini-Walsh and Associates.

CONSTRUCTION BEGUN: December, 1950.

IN-SERVICE DATES: 1st stage: 1,428,000 hp (12 units and pumped storage). 1954—5 units, 500,000 hp 1955—6 units, 600,000 hp; 1956—1 unit, 100,000 hp and pumped storage, 228,000 hp. 2nd stage: 4 additional units (100,000 hp each) to be installed as required.

Ultimate Installed Capacity: 1,828,000 hp.

ENGINEERING FEATURES: TWO INTAKE STRUCTURES—500-foot long gathering tubes submerged offshore.

Twin Tunnels—5½ miles long, driven under City of Niagara Falls; will handle 15,000,000 gallons of water a minute.

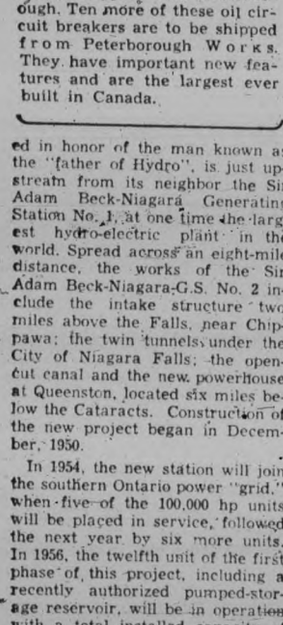
Open-Cut Canal—2¼ miles in length, from tunnel emergence to forebay; average width, 200 feet; average depth through rock 70 feet.

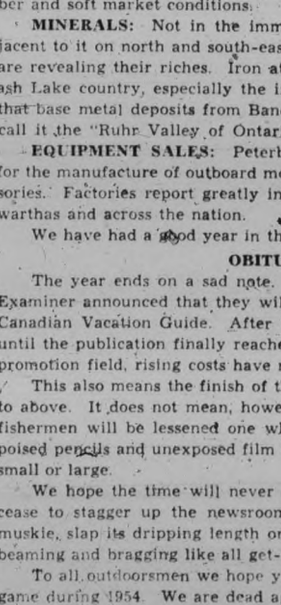
Powerhouse—at base of Queenston cliffs; approximately 900 feet long (12 units), 63 feet wide, 50 feet high, with provision for extension to house 4 additional units, making the eventual length approximately 1,150 feet.

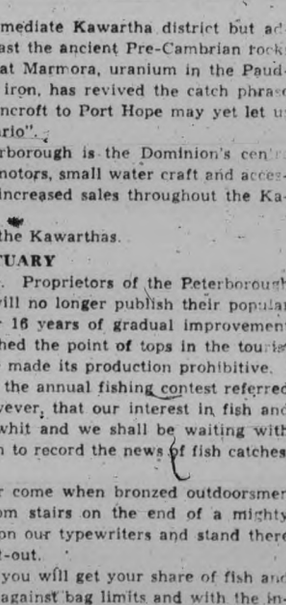
HUGE NIAGARA TUNNEL—Interior view of construction in No. 1 tunnel at Sir Adam Beck-Niagara G. S. No. 2 project. Shown here is a section of completely lined tunnel which is reduced from 51 feet in diameter to 45 feet with the three-foot concrete lining. The concreting of this tunnel is now virtually complete. There are two of these 5½-mile long pressure tunnels which will carry water from the upper Niagara River to the open-cut canal. The tunnels have a combined capacity of 15 million gallons of water per minute. In terms of combined length and diameter, the tunnels are considered to be the largest of their type in the world.

AERIAL VIEW OF POWER SITE, NIAGARA—General view of the powerhouse site and 2¼-mile long open-cut canal associated with Hydro's greatest power development, Sir Adam Beck-Niagara Generating Station No. 2. At the base of the 300-foot cliff on the lower Niagara Gorge (extreme left of photograph) is the new powerhouse, now in an advanced stage of construction. (Adjacent to the new station is the original plant, Sir Adam Beck-Niagara G.S. No. 1). Above the new powerhouse is the forebay. Cutting a swath across the land is the canal linking the forebay and the twin 5½-mile long tunnels. The tunnels will carry into the canal a total of 15,000,000 gallons of water per minute. The X-cross-over of the old and new canals is clearly visible. To the right, above the cross-over, will be located the new pumped storage reservoir.

CANAL EXCAVATION at the point of off-take to the new pumped storage reservoir which has been authorized as part of the overall project at Niagara. The purpose of the reservoir is to store water which may be drawn from the canal for use at times of greatest need. The pumps associated with the reservoir scheme when operated in reverse become turbo-generators with an installed capacity of 228,000 horsepower. The addition of this capacity brings the total of the first stage of the project to 1,428,000 horsepower.







Happy New Year

NICK NICKELS

There is no better time than the first of a new year to assess the district business of our outdoors during the past twelve months.

In all its facets it appears to have been excellent.

FISHING: According to our annual fishing contest, the results of which appear on Page Nine of today's newspaper, the response of entrants seems to have fallen off from other seasons. This does not mean that fish are fewer; on the contrary, our provincial biologists have proved to us time and again that the lakes are loaded. The trouble is that we are not catching enough of them. The Kawarthas have probably the best gamefish waters in the province today, and one of the most heavily fished. Let us give the government hearty applause for shrewd, long-range planning and good management.

HUNTING: Balmy fall weather put a jinx on deer hunting for its first week, turned more seasonable and produced a good shoot for the second. Regardless of too many roadside pot hunters, whose opinions we never listen to at any time, very few old timers tell of coming back from the woods empty handed. There were some, but deer do not always stay in the same areas, as disappointed hunters are finding out.

TOURISTS: A top year, bar none. The Chamber of Commerce listening post tell us of more inquiries resulting in more new guests who left more money behind. Resort owners verify this and say their establishments were filled for more weeks during the 1953 season than at any time heretofor. Consequently, they appeared to have less to beef about at their annual fall convention; only a handful were interested enough to attend to air their troubles.

COTTAGERS: Less Crown Land for cottage sites was sold in 1953 for two reasons: (1) though there is still plenty of land available, that which is accessible by car is scarcer and those who contemplate buying have to be content with road building or approaching properties by water. It takes a bit of thinking. (2) There seemed to be less money available for the buying of lots, in comparison to the top years, 1948-49. Cottage building followed the same ratio as lot-buying, down a bit.

TIMBER: There has been less cutting due to less available timber and soft market conditions.

MINERALS: Not in the immediate Kawartha district but adjacent to it on north and south-east the ancient Pre-Cambrian rocks are revealing their riches. Iron at Marmora, uranium in the Paudash Lake country, especially the iron, has revived the catch phrase that base metal deposits from Bancroft to Port Hope may yet let us call it the "Ruhr Valley of Ontario".

EQUIPMENT SALES: Peterborough is the Dominion's centre for the manufacture of outboard motors, small water craft and accessories. Factories report greatly increased sales throughout the Kawarthas and across the nation.

We have had a good year in the Kawarthas.

OBITUARY

The year ends on a sad note. Proprietors of the Peterborough Examiner announced that they will no longer publish their popular Canadian Vacation Guide. After 16 years of gradual improvement until the publication finally reached the point of tops in the tourist promotion field, rising costs have made its production prohibitive.

This also means the finish of the annual fishing contest referred to above. It does not mean, however, that our interest in fish and fishermen will be lessened one whit and we shall be waiting with poised pencils and unexposed film to record the news of fish catches, small or large.

We hope the time will never come when bronzed outdoorsmen cease to stagger up the newsroom stairs on the end of a mighty muskie, slap its dripping length on our typewriters and stand there beaming and bragging like all get-out.

To all outdoorsmen we hope you will get your share of fish and game during 1954. We are dead against bag limits and with the increased pressure on these sports in the Kawarthas we doubt, and hope, they will never be achieved again.

Here's a baseball item from St. Thomas which is of interest with talk going around of COBL revival this year: "There is definitely going to be one change in the Senior Intercountry League setup in 1954. That's the exclusion of the Oshawa Merchants. Such a step is imperative because of the long trips and the refusal of the Oshawa club to reimburse visiting teams as they did last season. John Harris of the Oshawa club said that his team would have to be treated as others this year, so there will be no Oshawa opposition. It is understood that London will also vote against Oshawa which makes it final. The telegraph vote is to be taken on Jan. 2."

It will be recalled that the fierce Aussies won a week ago over DiPaulo and Hi Lee, but the latter lost both falls and was of very little help to the Italian, who won a fall. Ilio's partner this time is the huge, bewhiskered Hombre Montana, a guy who will give slashing Layton and fiery Fred a rough time of it. Semi-final sees Firpo Szybsko pitted against popular Johnny Barend, while Tony Martinelli meets Johnny Harmon in the prelim.

Rangers Must be Wacky

An item in Saturday's Globe said the New York Rangers had farmed Ike Hildebrand out to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, a minor pro setup. But earlier in the week Ike had phoned Bob Pierson, senior lacrosse club prexy here, that there was a shakeup coming in the Ranger's camp and he and a few other rookies were being sent down for the time being. Ike added that he might go back to Cleveland Barons of the AHL where he broke in under Jim Hendy. So we don't know the score for sure, except that Ike is disappointed at stepping down—even if only temporary—but he figures now he'll be able to play lacrosse here again next summer. As an NHL-er he probably wouldn't be allowed to risk injury at Lacrosse.

* * * * * *

While the Rangers aren't doing so well in the NHL this year, and will get Muzz Patrick in as coach this month, we don't see where they can blame Ike. Max Bentley recently has been insisting on having Ike on his line in power plays, so Hildebrand hasn't seen as much action as earlier with the Rangers. Nevertheless he has scored 16 points so far, which is mighty good for a rookie at this time of the season. Ted Kennedy, starry captain of Toronto Leafs, has but 19 points to date, while Bentley, Gus Mortson, Cal Gardner, Elmer Lach and many others have 14 or less points. Ike has played 32 games, whereas Eric Nesterenko of Leafs in 31 tilts has just nine points. And Rangers are well back of Toronto in the standing. We don't get it.

Local Squads Resting Up

Both our OHA clubs have several days to rest up ere swinging back into action for the last half of their schedules. They're starting the new year off in good fashion, both fighting it out for top place, Young Petes being tied with Oshawa (via Port Perry) for first place and Petes being in a dogfight with Kingston for second slot just back of the leading Oshawa Truckmen. Both local clubs are currently riding a winning streak and have no serious injuries to worry about at present. Chum Fryia's feat of scoring five goals in that 7-5 Pete's win last start in Kingston is a season's record in the group. He must be just about leading sniper in the loop now— and we should have official figures on it shortly.

The chunky forward came here several years ago from Northern Ontario to star in Junior "B" ranks with Oddfellows. Was on a pro list for a time. Stepped up then to senior "B" with the Legionnaires, but a shoulder injury sidelined him for a good part of the season. He switched over next year to the Petes and has been their most consistent scorer the past couple of seasons, usually leading the pack in the lamp-lighting department. Chum is a heady hockeyist, making few mistakes when in around the rival net. It's a picture to see him scooting in on a breakaway, faking the goalie out and sliding the disc into the cage. A fine puckist.

SCOFF AT PRO REPORTS

Australia's 19-year-old tennis wizards, Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, and American Champion Tony Trabert Friday scoffed at reports they were being tempted by pro offers. The Melbourne Herald said Jack Kramer, American promoter, had dangled feelers in front of the game's most notable amateur personalities. Hoad, star of Australia's 3-2 Davis Cup victory over the U.S., said he "would like to win Wimbledon and some more Davis Cup matches first."

Urge Change In Import Rule Permitting Eight U.S. Players

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian sports editors and sportscasters urge the Canadian Rugby Union to change its rule setting at eight the number of United States players who may be imported each year by any Big Four and Western Conference team.

In the annual Canadian Press year-end poll 41 of 74 voters suggested a change, but they weren't agreed on whether more or fewer imports should be allowed.

Of the 41 voting for revision of the rule, 25 thought imports should be cut, nine voted for more and seven, ignoring the player-limit angle, plumped for abolition of the rule which makes an American import a Canadian for football purposes after he has played four seasons in Canada.

MANY OPINIONS

There were votes against the four-year rule, in fact, from ballots with many varieties of opinion, although it was not mentioned specifically in the question: "Do you believe the Canadian Rugby Union should alter its import rule? If so, how?"

Four of those who voted for more imports also added comment about the four-year rule; five of those who voted for fewer imports opposed the four-year Canadianization; and so did six of the 33 who balloted to leave the number of imports unchanged.

They reflected concern among football followers that the four-year rule eventually will result in imports shoving Canadians off the benches in increasing numbers. Next year, some Big Four and Western Conference teams will be able to dress 10 or more four-year American-Canadians as well as their quota of eight imports.

The question of imports is on the agenda of the CRU annual meeting in March, and it is believed that some change will be made.

STATUS OF IMPORTS

Several voters suggested that the rule should be "once an import, always an import." Others gave the opinion that only citizenship papers should make a player a Canadian.

Tommy Shields of the Ottawa Citizen said that U.S. players should not be qualified as Canadians by any period of football service in this country and Perc Allen of CKOC Hamilton suggested 1953 should be the final year for qualifying imports under the present rule.

Others who opposed the four-year rule included Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Daily Star, Hal Pawson of the Edmonton Journal, Ken MacKinnon of CFCN, Calgary, Alf Shaver of CFRN, Edmonton, and Wes McKnight of CFRB, Toronto.

In voting for fewer imports, 25 of the others turned down a suggestion made by an executive of the Edmonton Eskimos last October that the import quota should be raised to 12 with only eight playing in one game. At the time the idea met with a mixed reception from other team heads.

Seven of the 25 mentioned that fewer imports would increase the opportunities for Canadians in a Canadian game.

PLEA FOR CANADIANS

"Give our own Canadian boys a chance," said Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald in a typical comment. Ken Ellis of CFPL, London, said import quotas should be lowered by one or two "allowing more opportunities for Canadians without lowering the calibre of football."

Other voters were more drastic. C. J. Perdue of the Peterborough Examiner said imports should be cut to one or two, George Carver of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer and Len Taylor of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record thought it should be four, Rex Stimers of CKTB, St. Catharines, Ont., and Dink Carroll of the Montreal Gazette favored six.

W. E. Walker of the Victoria Times said football may price itself out of business if the present trend toward more imports continues.

A veteran Ottawa football writer, Bill Westwick of the Journal, voted for unlimited imports and he was supported among others by Alf Cottrell of the Vancouver Province and Frank McCool of the Calgary Albertan.

Only a few of the voters who balloted against a change in the rules commented beyond their "no." A few considered the question had asked whether they wanted more imports and Hugh Bowman of CJOY, Guelph, Ont., said: "No, there are few enough opportunities for Canadians now."

Jerry O'Grady of the Brockville Recorder and Times drew an analogy with the National Hockey League, adding "many imports are necessary to maintain high standards of play."

Oklahoma Upsets Maryland 7-0 In Orange Bowl Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma and Michigan State took impressive victories over two of the leading defensive teams in United States college football—national champion Maryland and UCLA—in New Year's Day bowl games.

Oklahoma, ranked No. 4, defeated Maryland, one-touchdown favorite, 7-0 in Miami's Orange Bowl for the only form reversal. The Spartans, No. 3, put on a scorching second half drive to come from behind and give the Big Ten its seventh victory in eight Rose Bowl appearances, 28-20 over the Los Angeles crew.

But the day's oddity belonged to the Cotton Bowl, where an Alabama player leaped off the bench to tackle a score-bound runner. Rice got the touchdown and the victory, too, 28-6.

Georgia Tech captured its third straight post-season triumph 42-19 at the expense of West Virginia in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl and Texas Tech rallied for a 35-13 trouncing of Auburn in the 'Gator Bowl, with Bobby Cavazos scoring three touchdowns.

AMONG STANDOUTS

Individually, Oklahoma's halfback Larry Grigg, Michigan State halfback Billy Wells and end Ellis Duckett, all-American Paul Cameron of UCLA, Rice halfback Dick Moegle and Georgia Tech quarterback Pepper Rodgers were among the standouts.

In the Orange Bowl the Sooners, who gained more ground than any other team all season, showed Maryland they were masters at defence as well. Twice in the first half they stopped their opponents inside the 10-yard line. And in the final period Grigg, who got the only touchdown, halted the last Maryland threat by intercepting a pass in the end zone.

UCLA, A three-time Orange Bowl loser, held a 14-0 edge early in the second quarter when Michigan State began to explode. Duckett broke through to block a kick, the first time this has ever happened against a Red Sanders - coached Bruin team, and recovered it for a major.

Wells then led a second-half ground assault that tore to shreds a defence rated the 12th best against rushing during the regular season. His 62-yard punt return late in the game iced the decision.

W. McCarrell's 358 Single Best For the Week As Four Leagues Bowling

Four bowling leagues saw action this week to end the old year, and some tidy scores were posted. The highest single was posted by W. McCarrell in the men's City League with 358, and B. Goodson's 827 triple in the same loop was top three. Cookie's Place led teams with 3483 in this circuit as Payne's had a 1269 team single.

The 6-0 wins went to Payne's, Monumental, Novelty and Cookie's over Parkhill, Family Credit, McBride & Anderson, and Edward's [illegible] were taken by Ferguson, Royal York, McGillis and Sunocos against Stopawhile, Primeau's, Golfers and MacDonald's.

Good triples were: B. McCarrell 757, W. Stanbury 713, D. Brooks 704, D. Carary 752, J. Denault 761, P. Pryde 759, H. Fisher 769, J. Playford, Jr., 709, M. Caccavella 715, D. Vyse 727, R. Lewis 764, G. LaPlante 708; and these singles: J. Playford, Jr., 340, B. Goodson 332, J. Frost 317, K. Mills 314 and D. Vyse 305.

LEADS MAJORS

W. Boon led in the Major League with a 346 single as J. Barnes was best with his 801 triple. Bartley's 3648 was best team pinnage of the week in the city, and Paramounts had top team single of 1347. The 7-0 triumphs were garnered by Bartley over D & W, Paramounts against Hewitt, and Clapper's over Revenoors. The 5-2 wins went to Boucher, Edward's, Patterson, UEW, Burtol, Sea-Horses, Crowley and Silents in that order over Wonder, Plaza, Sherbrooke, Curtis, Lock, E & B Clements and McLeod. Godson won 4-3 from Selkirk.

Good scores included: A. Griffin 735, G. Pagett 761, H. Delahey 776, H. Killen 740, L. Callaaine (311) 778, M. Caccavella 788, W. Boon 703, J. Johnstone 715, K. Mills 739, J. Goodson 719, B. Miller 707 and R. Parnell (337) 721.

LASSES' LEAGUE

Marg Barringer's 324 was best single in the Girls' City Bowling League, and B. Peterkin was high in doubles with 483. Marg Williams' 360 took the 359 blind score. The 3-0 shutouts were by Marines, Black's Curtin's and Collis again Bassell's, Sevenaires, Austin's and Davis, while Aces won 2-1 over Cardinals.

Good singles: B. Peterkin 266, J. Milliken 257, D. Hendren 269, J. Brockley 268, J. Moore 252 and 223, A. Abraham 270, J. Snape 221, D. Martin 230 and 231, J. Castle 235, M. Timm 221, S. Scully 223, M. Hawthorne 221, M. Cunningham 229, E. Thompson 222, N. Ephgrave 235; good doubles: J. Moore 475, J. Brockley 469, D. Martin 461, J. Castle 451, D. Hendren 442, M. Barringer 437, M. Hawthorne 424, G. Milliken 414, M. Cuningham 409, J. Snape 408, M. Sanderson 406, A. Abraham 407, E. Thompson 422 and N. Ephgrave 402.

THE YMCA GIRLS

L. Bonney rolled high single of 236 in the YMCA senior lasses' circuit, as M. Wood hit 233, Betty Castle 230 and Betty Pogue 226. Just three bowlers did better in triples than 600, L. Martin leading with 638, with Betty Pogue hitting 617 and Betty Castle 603. Tigers took six points from Corvettes, while Glens got six by default from Bombers. Hurricanes and Commandos took four from Lucky Strikes and Aces respectively.

At the end of the first half of the schedule the standing shows Aces and Lucky Strikes tied for first spot with 52 points. Tigers have 50, Commandos and Glens 46 each, Bombers 34, Corvettes 28 and the Hurricanes 28. N. Hepburn and M. Simmons are tied with 311 for high single so far, and Dorothy Martin's 799 is top three.

485 FOR SHOEMAKER

Jockey Willie Shoemaker rode one more winner Thursday at Arcadia, Calif., to bring his year's total to 485 and was awarded a large plaque in recognition of his record riding achievements. He had long since broken the record of victories scored in one year—390 last year by Tony de Spirito.

Hawks Delight Fans By Dumping Detroit Wings 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Someone must have told Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers that the National Hockey League season didn't start until New Year's Day. It seemed like it Friday night. The last place Hawks delighted 10,860 home town fans, the largest crowd since their first home game this season, by dumping the fea-

[illegible] Boston the next place Rangers beat off a last minute Boston Bruin attack and came up with a 2-1 win. Ranger rookie Camille Henry provided the winning margin in the third period, scoring his 12th goal of the season.

In the only New Year's Eve game, Montreal Canadiens and the Red Wings battled to a 2-2 tie. Ted Lindsay scored in the third period to give the Wings the deadlock. Marty Pavelich tallied the other goal for Detroit while Maurice Richard and Floyd Curry scored for the Montrealers.

The Friday win left Rangers seven points behind the fourth-place Bruins and seven ahead of Chicago.

The first New York goal dribbled off the stick of defenceman Leo Reise and took several erratic bounces before rolling into the Boston net. Joe Klukay tied it up for Bruins at the 43-second mark of the second period. Then in the final stanza, Nick Mickoski headed a five-man Ranger rush and took a screen shot that set up Henry for his rebound goal.

Bruins pulled goalkeeper Jim Henry for an extra forward in an effort to tie the score in the final minute of play.

The Hawks jumped to a 4-0 lead by the end of the second period before Red Wings could get untracked in Chicago. Veteran Doc Couture scored twice in the first period and Pete Conacher and Jim Peters added one apiece during the second.

Al Rollins, a standout in the nets for Chicago, had his shutout spoiled in the final period when Ted Lindsay and Dutch Reibel scored for the Wings. Wing-mate Sid Howe picked up an assist on each goal.

Referee Frank Udvari handed out 13 penalties, including a misconduct to Howe.

The Bruins play second-place Montreal Canadiens in Montreal and the Hawks move to Toronto against the third-place Leafs tonight.

Trinity College School In Final Round

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Top-seeded Trinity College School of Port Hope, Ont., swept into the final round of the sixth annual Lawrenceville hockey tournament Friday, defeating two opponents while allowing only one goal.

Trinity will meet Deerfield today for the Robert Piel Memorial Trophy and the tourney title.

Barons Clip Providence 6-2

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—With their top line of Fred Glover, Jack Gordon and Eddie Olson providing four tallies, Cleveland Barons defeated Providence Reds 6-2 Friday night and advanced to within two points of the leading Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League race.

Gordon paced the Cleveland attack with two goals and two assists. Andy Bathgate, recently acquired from the New York Rangers, contributed a goal and assist. Goals by Bathgate and Olson [illegible] second frame. Gordon and Ray Ceresino then struck for two more in the finale. Al Baccess and Ken Davies scored for Providence.

WINS ROAD RACE

John Zoetemelk of Weston, Ont., recent arrival from Holland, won the annual road race from Hamilton to Dundas and return Friday. Second was Selwyn Jones of Hamilton, last year's winner.

A Study Of Gospel Of John

by WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

During the early part of 1954 many Sunday schools will be studying the Gospel of John. A word or two concerning that Gospel may be of help.

I had the advantage of a brilliant exposition and analysis of the Gospel by the late Wilbur W. White at some student conferences many years ago, the memory and effect of which have been with me ever since.

The Gospel of John begins not with a record of events, as in the other three Gospels, but with a prologue, or thesis. In this prologue the author sets forth his belief in Jesus as the Eternal Word, the Word which was with God and was God (John 1:1.) It is a plain statement of the divinity of Christ.

Dr. White represented all that follows in the Gospels as the evidences of what the author had set out to prove: the witness of Jesus' mighty works, the witness of early disciples, the witness of the Samaritan woman, the witness of various incidents, the witness of Jesus Himself, and the crowning witness of the Resurrection.

Despite its nature and its witness, the Gospel of John has been the subject of keen controversy.

From the apparent late date of its appearance, and doubt concerning whether its author was the Apostle John, some have questionted its authenticity. Others have seen in the fourth Gospel the addition, the crowning and the climax of all that had gone before in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke.

For me, the Gospel of John bears its own evidence concerning its authenticity. Its incidents in their plain narration bear the mark of truth.

Could anyone have invented them and the discourses of Jesus, which surely have the mark of remembrance?

The three so-called Synoptic Gospels are rich and full, but even with their richness think of all we should miss if we did not have the fourth Gospel!

There is the story of Nicodemus, the long account of the meeting of Jesus and the Woman of Samaria, with its great words concerning worship; the association of truth and freedom in John 8, the ringing testimony of the man born blind (John9), the picture of the Good Shepherd, the Christ the branch and the vine.

Besides being a source of great conversations and incidents the Gospel of John is a source of great texts, such as John 3:16, the concentrated expression of the Gospel of God's love for the world, the nature of true worship (John 4:23, 24); "the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32), and the comforting words concerning immortality in John 14.

And, the Gospel ends on its sense of the immensity of the Christ and all that pertains to Him:

The books that might have been written are only a part of the on-going life of the Master as He lives and acts in the lives of the multitude of disciples who love and follow His. These, too, are continuing witnesses.

NEW CITY HALL

Oshawa's new city hall will be formally opened by Premier Leslie M. Frost Thursday, January 21. Its architecture is flowingly modern, and makes full use of glass.

TO PRESIDE AT ORGAN

Mrs. Adam [illegible] will preside at the organ and lead the choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church until a permanent organist and director is named.

SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

On Monday it will be back again to school for both teachers and pupils. In the public schools and collegiates it will be the start of the longest grind of the school year, 15 weeks before the Easter vacation commences on April 15.

JUST ONE FIRE ALARM

City firemen had a quiet time of it over New Year's. There were no alarms on New Year's Day. None in fact from early Thursday night until 7.04 a.m. today when a defective sprinkler had to be checked at the Timber Structures plant, High Street.

BUSY PHONE

The phone at the city police station was the busiest piece of equipment in the city New Year's eve. Even disregarding early calls, there were 114 calls made between 12.02 a.m. until 2.20 p.m. Friday, a time when normally the phone is relatively quiet. What were the calls about? — What time is it? What drug stores are open? Where can I get some gas?

GOING TO BEAT THE GUN'

Rotarians will beat the gun on Monday for they are having, at their noonday luncheon mayor-elect Norman Graham and members of the city council. In past years it has usually been one of the first duties of the mayor after his inauguration to address the Rotary Club. However, this year the inaugural meeting will follow the Rotary luncheon. Mayor-elect Graham is scheduled to speak.

BUYS 44TH LICENCE

A. J. Arnott, 71, of 88 Lansdowne St., today at the Chamber of Commerce purchased his 44th automobile licence. It was in 1910 when Mr. Arnott purchased his first automobile licence and he has secured one every year since. In 1910, according to Mr. Arnott, there was no ready gasoline in Peterborough. Gasoline was brought in from Toronto in barrels.

WEEK OF PRAYER

Ministers and lay members of the various city churches and denominations will take part next week in special services planned by the ministerial association. On Tuesday evening services will be held in Park St. Alliance Church and Park St. Baptist Church, Wednesday in St. Andrew's United Church, Thursday in Mark St. United Church, and Saturday in the Salvation Army Temple.

SEE A SNOWY OWL

Bird watchers got an unexpected treat early today when a snowy owl was seen on north Aylmer St. Rare in these parts, the bird is believed to have flown south from his usual Arctic haunts because of a shortage of mice, his natural food. He was first sighted in a tree on north Aylmer St. and then flew down and settled on the roof of Highgrade Mill Products. Last week the Peterborough Nature Club made their annual bird census of the district, and though they found 21 different species—a total of 1,025 birds, altogether—they were disappointed because they didn't see a snowy owl. Today they got their chance.

Driver Dies At Wheel; Man Injured

Automobile Hits Rock After Driver Collapses At Wheel

Roy Armstrong, 52, Millbridge, suffered a heart attack at the wheel of his car and died while driving on Highway 62 south of Bancroft about 1.30 p.m. Thursday.

A passenger in the car, Everett Cleveland, also of Millbridge, was slightly hurt when the car started to swerve off the road, hit a rock and bounced over on its side, blocking half the road.

Armstrong and his companion were nearing Spring Lake about 11 miles south of Bancroft when the accident happened.

The driver had previously complained of a pain in his chest. Suddenly he exclaimed, "Oh, Everett!" and slumped over the steering wheel.

Cleveland suffered injuries about his eye and shoulder. He was treated by Dr. S. S. Lumb, of Bancroft. Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson, of Bancroft, said there would be no inquest.

Armstrong, the father of four married children, was employed as a section foreman with the CNR at Bannockburn.

OPP Cpl. Archie Grayling and Constable Milton Perry investigated.

Two Boys Steal Two Cars Crack Up One

After stealing a car from a Reid St. resident late New Year's night two 15-year-old escapers from the Bowmanville Training School for Boys were in an accident early today on the outskirts of Ottawa.

Though the 1949 model car, owned by William A Wight of 167 Adeline St., was badly damaged, neither of the boys was more than shaken up. They were locked up by the OPP, and will be brought back to Bowmanville later today to face car-theft charges.

City police were about to leave early today to bring the boys back to Peterborough, but Bowmanville police went instead. That's where the first theft took place.

The two boys escaped from the training school in Bowmanville at 7 p.m. New Year's day. They stole a car in town to make their getaway and drove it to Peterborough, where they abandoned it.

"Near a big church," was the way they described it to the OPP. Before noon Peterborough police were cruising around in the vicinity of so-called big churches to try and locate the Bowmanville car.

On the second lap of their escapade, the boys went into Keith McDougall's laneway at 513 Reid St. and stole his father-in-law's car. Mr. McDougall heard the sound of the motor when it was started up, but he didn't get out of the house in time to stop the theft.

Apparently the boys then headed for Ottawa and were in sideswipe collision with a transport truck on the outskirts of the city.

AT KENNEDY HOME

P. D. Scollard, barrister in the Bank of Toronto building, visited at Kingston Thursday night the bereaved family of the late Dr. M. P. Kennedy, to whose memory and association he paid a last respect. Dr. Kennedy's offices were also on the second floor above the bank at George and Hunter streets. Dr. Kennedy's funeral was in Kingston today.

'LUNGE PRIZE WINNER in the Peterborough Examiner-Lucky Strike Bait 1953 fishing contest was won by George W. Scott of Coraopolis, Penn., shown above at Bewdley with Mrs. Scott. The largest fish in its class, this beauty was taken off Sunken Island, Rice lake, and weighed 30 pounds, 8 ounces. Pete Sidey was his guide.

Rice Lake Gives Up Winner In Maskinonge Class Pigeon Laker Close Second

By NICK NICKELS, OUTDOOR EDITOR

For the past 14 years the Peterborough Examiner, in conjunction with the Lucky Strike Bait company of this city, have conducted an annual fishing contest. The response of fishermen to it has increased each year until now it has become one of the Ontario yardsticks of game fish and popular fishing waters. The contest will now rest on its popularity, for, the proprietors of the Examiner, who incorported this popular feature in their Canadian Vacation Guide, have decided to cease publication of the tourist guide and the fishing contest that went with it.

District waters — Pigeon lake, and river, Rice Lake, Chandos, Clear and Stony—produced prize-winning fish in 1953, as usual, and Haliburton County lakes are a close second. This trend does not mean that fishermen have responded to the contest from greater distances. When you consider that the contest area extends from the southern boundary of Algonquin Park to the south shore of Rice Lake and east to the Land o' Lakes country, we expect to hear from the whole area and welcome the interest.

Listed below are the first, second and third prize-winners in six game fish classes. The speckled trout class drew no entries:

MASKINONGE

1. George W. Scott, Coraopolis, Penna., 30½ pounds, taken off Bewdley, Rice lake.
2. Denzil Logan, Brilliant, Ohio, 30 pounds, from Pigeon lake.
3. Gerald Brobst, Doylestown, Ohio, 29 pounds, also from Pigeon lake.

SMALL-MOUTH BASS

1. William Germain, 1425 Union Rd., Buffalo, 5 pounds 15 ounces, Pigeon river, Omemee.
2. Don McClellan, Williamsville N.Y., 5 pounds 12 ounces, from Rice lake.
3. William Langman, 267 Berkley St., Toronto, 5 pounds 4 ounces from Maple lake, Haliburton.

LARGE-MOUTH BASS

1. Mrs. June Hayes, Clearview Camp, Young's Point, 6 pounds 13 ounces, from Clear lake.
2. Jack Butler, Waterdown, Ontario, 6 pounds 12 ounces, from Young's Point.
3. Jimmy Haher, 161 Rutgers St., Rochester, N.Y., 6 pounds 2 ounces, off Viamede, Stony lake.

PICKEREL

1. Rollitt J. Goldring, 64 Red Deer Ave., Toronto, 12 pounds 13 ounces, from Chandos lake.
2. W. K. Hill, 31 Westholme Ave., Toronto, 11 pounds 12 ounces, from Flat lake, Haliburton.
3. Thomas Hassall, RR 3, Bancroft, Ont., 10 pounds even, from Paudash lake.

BROWN TROUT

1. Reg. Moore, 342 Charlotte St., Peterborough, 8 pounds ½ ounce, Cavan stream, Millbrook.
2. A. F. Freitag, 69 Sunset Lane, Orchard Park, N.Y., 6 pounds 9 ounces, from Blue lake, Haliburton.

LAKE TROUT

1. Julius Wagner, Dorset, Ont., 31 pounds 6 ounces, from Kawagama lake, Haliburton.
2. Gordon Beattie, 20 Chudleigh Rd., Toronto, 25 pounds, even, from Drag lake, Haliburton.
3. Albert Makin, 137 Valley View Crescent, Rochester, N.Y., 15 pounds even, from Farquhar lake, Haliburton.

SPECKLED TROUT

No entrants.

The prizes — a glass rod for first, reel and line second, and one dozen assorted Lucky Strike baits third—may be had by contestants who call at the display advertising department of the Examiner.

Girl Rescues Grandfather Ice Collapses

Returning Across Ice Of Rice Lake From Hunting Trip

GORE'S LANDING (ENS). — William Westheuser, Toronto, was rescued from drowning in Rice Lake New Year's afternoon by the cool courage and strength of his granddaughter Carol Westheuser.

The grandfather with Carol and her younger sister Gail had walked across the ice to Sheep Island to shoot rabbits. On their way home, after tramping about the island, the ice of recent freezing cracked and broke suddenly under Mr. Westheuser and Carol.

The young girl "rolled" herself up on to the firmer ice, and then turned her attention to her grandfather. An athletic girl, Carol managed to lift and drag Mr. Westheuser, with the aid of his own efforts, to safety beside her.

He helped the young girl as best he could and at the same time supported himself by thrusting his arms full length out on the ice.

FRIENDS ASTONISHED

Friends of the family here were astonished that such a young girl could have managed to save both herself and her grandfather, who is in his sixties.

The high wind that blew down the lake New Year's afternoon from the west had partly subsided at the time of the accident, but it was still freezingly cold. Grandfather and granddaughter arrived home apparently not much the worse for their escape from drowning other than their frozen clothing, and the shotgun at the bottom of the lake.

An employee of a lithographing company in Toronto, Mr. Westheuser has a cottage here at Gore's Landing which he reinforced for winter use. He and his granddaughters motored down from Toronto for the New Year's weekend. It was reported today that they had been warned about the condition of the ice offshore. The weak area through which they had dropped may have been a "hole" of late sealing by ice.

28 New Homes In Otonabee

Twenty-eight houses were built in Otonabee township in 1953.

"They weren't all next to the city either," Don Deyell, building inspector, told the Examiner "Ten miles don't mean anything in the country these days. All you need is a car, and get close to a good road, county or provincial. Even our township roads today are pretty good."

"Mr. Deyell did say that most of the 28 new ones leaned toward the city. Ten sumer cottages were built, six commercial buildings, several of them, including a motel, not yet under way.

Suburban residential investment has transformed the appearance of the main roads radiating from Peterborough. Where only a few years ago, in several instances not beyond 1950, houses were few and were almost entirely farm homes along the roads to Norwood, Wallace Point, Lakefield, Fowler's Corners on the Peterborough-Lindsay Road, and No. 28 to Port Hope.

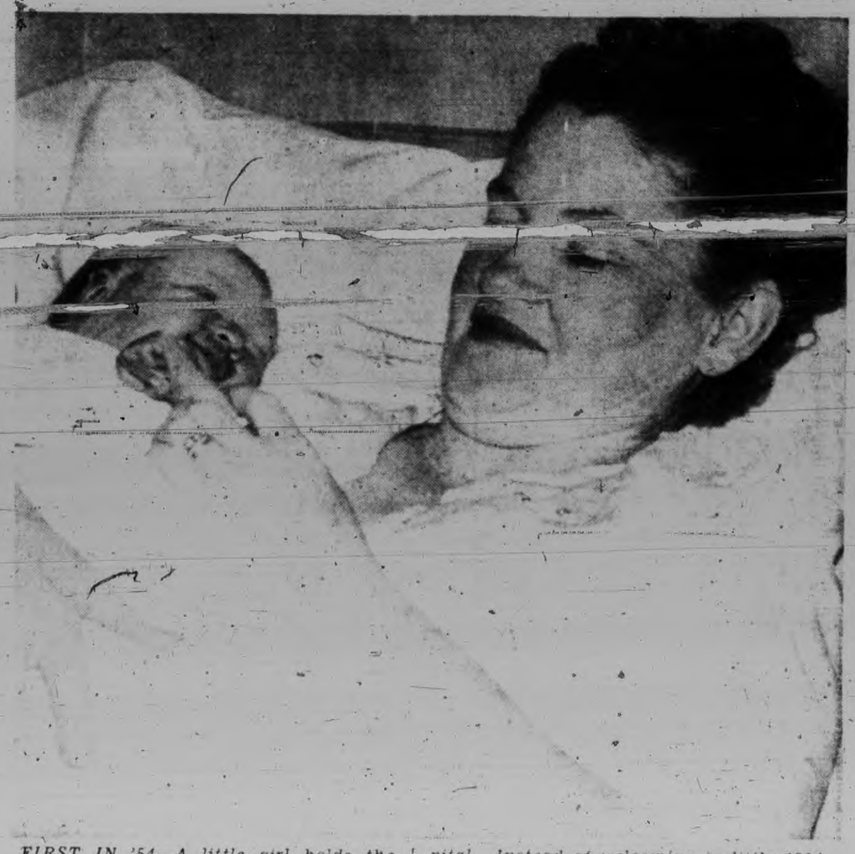
MAUDE TO THE RESCUE

Maude, the black mare owned by Ernie Hughey of Otonabee township, had the horse laugh on a mechanical competitor while out snow plowing New Year's night. While pulling a snow plow on the northeast corner of Park and Parnell Sts. about 10:50 p.m., a tractor got one wheel stuck and couldn't get going. Maude, who was pulling a plow guided by Mr. Hughey, was unhitched and pressed into emergency duty to get the tractor back onto the sidewalk again. Who says "she ain't what she used to be?" — D.W.



FIRST IN '54—A little girl holds the honor of being the first baby born in Peterborough in 1954. At 12:17 a.m. New Year's the babe, weighing seven pounds 13 ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Shaughnessy, 477 Rogers St. at St. Joseph's hospital. Instead of welcoming in little 1954 at a New Year's party, Mrs. Shaughnessy welcomed her little daughter (shown above). The first boy of 1954 was also born at St. Joseph's hospital, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sudds, RR 2 Peterborough.

Four Girls And Two Boys

Six New Year's Day Babies

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaughnessy, 577 Roger St., were invited to a New Year's party, but Mrs. Shaughnessy had another important date to keep, one with Mr. Stork. Thus before 1954 was more than 17 minutes old, Peterborough's first baby, a girl weighing seven pounds, 13 ounces, was born at St. Joseph's hospital.

There were several other babies born in Ontario and Canada before that time (12.17 a.m.) therefore depriving Peterborough, and the Shaughnessys, of the honor of having the first baby born in 1954.

But it was a local victory for St. Joseph's hospital where the first babe was born. Last year's first baby, also a girl, was born at St. Joseph's.

The Civic hospital's New Year's baby was born two hours later, a girl to Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Walker of 132 Sophia St. at 2.05 a.m.

But St. Joseph's hospital did not stop at Shaughnessy baby; there were three others. At 3.25 a.m. the third baby, another girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greer, 271 McFarlane St. and the first boy of 1954 to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sudds, R. R. 2 Peterborough at 11 a.m. The final New Year's baby, another boy, to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnston, 645 Stormont Ave., was born at 3 p.m. also at St. Joseph's.

The little Shaughnessy baby is the pint-sized baby of thee Shaughnessy family. Her seven-pounds 13-ounce weight is above the average new-born baby weight but it's well below that of the Shaughnessy average.

Their oldest daughter, Betty Anne, now six, weighed eight pounds three ounces, while four-year-old Jimmy weighed nine pounds five ounces and little two-year-old Agnes Marie weighed in a eight pounds 12 ounces.

Although she wasn't the biggest the new baby is the luckiest, drawing a large number of prizes from Peterborough stores as the first babe in '54.

Three Industries Locate In Ajax, Buildings Supplied

Three buildings recently completed at Ajax have been leased to new industries. This announcement was made Thursday by Slough Estates (Canada) Limited who built them for the residents of Ajax and its immediate district.

"The first two larger buildings have been occupied for some time by major industries. The new buildings of 11,724 sq. ft. were begun in 1953, and are now just about ready for occupancy. One of the firms makes components of the electrical trade, another turns out compression moulded plasties, including bakelite. The third is allied with the television industry."

The Oshawa Times says: "The announcement is indicative of the mounting interest in Ajax as an attractive industrial centre. It is also proof of the economic soundness of the provision of rental industrial space by Slough Estates. A total of almost 100,000 sq. ft. constructed and fully occupied augurs well for the future of this enterprising British company, and it is probable that construction of further buildings will be announced shortly."

INTERESTED PEOPLE

Early this year in Peterborough Ald. T. D. Miller intimated that he was trying to get some people interested in this plan of housing infant industries, and especially of attracting them to Peterborough. He said at the time that there should be sufficient capital in Peterborough willing to enter into this kind of investment.

Ald. Miller did not mention that subject any further during the year, and presumably he couldn't stir up any interest by men who have sufficient money for such an enterprise.

NOT NEW PROPOSAL

It isn't a new proposal in Peterborough. Some years ago there was a suggestion that the city should be willing to put some risk money into an industrial incubator.

Nothing came of that either. Peterborough councils have long been chary of spending public money in ventures which should ordinarily be carried out by private interest and financing. A municipal housing program was once pushed into the discard of ideas by aldermanic objection to hazarding ratepayers' dollars in a field of expenditure which elected bodies regarded as outside their warrant.

James Dutton, former alderman, recalled a proposal in that direction by J. H. Vernor at a conference called years ago for the purpose of trying to attract more industries to Peterborough.

"During my time on the council we had a get-together with the more prominent manufacturers," Mr. Dutton said. "The council was seriously concerned about industrial progress of the city, and decided to invite industrial executives for any helpful suggestions they might contribute.

"I remember quite distinctly that Jack Vernor proposed that Peterborough should always have some vacant space for people with industrial ideas but not much capital to invest in them. In that stage of establishment a new industry needed practical help until it got on its feet.

"I have always been regretful that we couldn't get some of our citizens interested in such a project, at any rate that we did not provide the building which we all could imagine. I always found Mr. Vernor both interested and co-operative in our civic matters."

The Ajax announcement of this week indicates that five buildings have been erected there by a British company, that two large ones have been occupied for some time and that three new ones will be available and in use about the middle of January. That is known as priming the pump.

Two of City's Three Fatal Accidents In 1953 Occurred On Lansdowne Street

By TED CLIFFORD

What will it be on Lansdowne St. in 1954? Dead bodies or maimed bodies?

Is it a coincidence two of Peterborough's three fatal accidents in 1953 occurred on Lansdowne? Is it coincidence the worst accidents happen at Lansdowne intersections?

Lansdowne carries the bulk of Peterborough's through traffic. With three main streets running into the artery accidents are bound to happen.

True, the George and Charlotte St. intersection sees the most traffic and, consequently, has the most accidents. Only one in 10, however, could be considered serious.

TWO FATALITIES

On the other hand one of every three accidents on Lansdowne St. has sent someone to hospital, and twice this year, to the morgue.

What's the reason? Excessive speed, mainly, combined with a sudden approach from open highway to residential and built-up areas.

Other bad corners: Charlotte and Reid, McDonnel and Reid, Parkhill and Reid.

At the 22 intersections on George St., between Lansdowne St. and Parkhill Rd., there have been 23 major accidents in the past 12 months and at least three times that many minor crashes.

But ask the men who know accidents best; the police, the insurance adjusters, the tow truck men. They'll all tell you Lansdowne St. is the city's longest death trap.

On a bright day as a driver enters the city from the west, the Monaghan road traffic light can be seen only by the cautious.

Only one warning sign, and a small sign at that, gives the strange driver notice of an impending signal.

SIGN IN BACKGROUND

Forming a background to this important light is a large blue-trimmed white sign with big red letters advertising gasoline. When the sun strikes this sign, those red letters blend perfectly with the red light.

Between Monaghan and Park is a fairly smooth road, flanked with a minimum of building, a temptation for throttle-happy feet. The next two traffic lights shouldn't offer any trouble, but they do.

Between the three, Monaghan, Park and George streets, there have been seven accidents this year resulting in injury and death, and about 20 resulting in damage to cars. That's Lansdowne.

At Reid street intersections there have been six accidents with injuries, about 30 with damage.

The bulk of these city thoroughfare traffic injuries involve pedestrians; the majority of the outskirt accident victims are drivers and passengers.

It's smart to know where the accidents occur in Peterborough; it's smart to be careful when you reach those intersections, too.

After all, no one likes being a statistic.

CITIZENS ARE INVITED TO INAUGURAL MEETING

The Citizens of Peterborough are cordially invited to attend the Inaugural Meeting of the 1954 City Council, which will be held at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, January 4th, 1954, in the Council Chamber, City Hall.

This meeting should prove interesting and informative to all citizens. Unfortunately, the Council Chamber is limited in capacity to little more than one hundred seats.

At the close of the meeting light refreshments will be served in the Mayor's Parlour.

May 1954 be a prosperous, successful year for all citizens.

NORMAN GRAHAM,
Mayor-elect

Relaxation Room Necessary Part Of Home

A necessary part of every home should be a room for relaxation. In the modern home of today it is imperative that we have a special area set aside where each member of the family can spend his or her leisure hours. Thus the activities room, hobby garage, and outdoor recreation area have come to be a part of our modern home.

The activities room is an all-purpose room, a bright and informal place where children may play without restriction and where parents and older children may enjoy themselves. It may be used as a study, home office, game room, a hobby room, or for any of countless other purposes. It may have a washroom adjacent to it, and with the addition of a built-in bed may be easily converted to a guest room. The activities room can take the place of a finished basement room. It may contain a bar, a screen for home movies, a ping-pong table and plenty of built-in storage space for toys and games.

Building in the furniture will allow more space for activities. It is well to investigate the possibilities of having the furniture and fixtures built at the time the house is built, as this may be the more economical plan. With an activities room, you have an area where all members of the family can enjoy themselves, and where you can entertain guests. A built-in radio phonograph is an excellent addition, and the uncumbered floor space can be enjoyed by all the family and their friends.

HOBBY GARAGE

When you plan your home, consider the pursuit of hobbies carefully. One space that offers a natural spot for hobbies is the garage.

A radiant heated garage, with adequate extra space, is a fine place for a work bench, lathe, and the endless tools and gadgets with which the hobbyist surrounds himself. Taking the hobby out of the house achieves two purposes: It separates the hobbyist from activities of the home which might prove disturbing, and, if his hobby is a noisy one, it allows the other members of the family respite!

Here again be sure to take into consideration needs for extra floor space in the garage when planning your home, to accommodate any hobby activities you may wish to move to the garage.

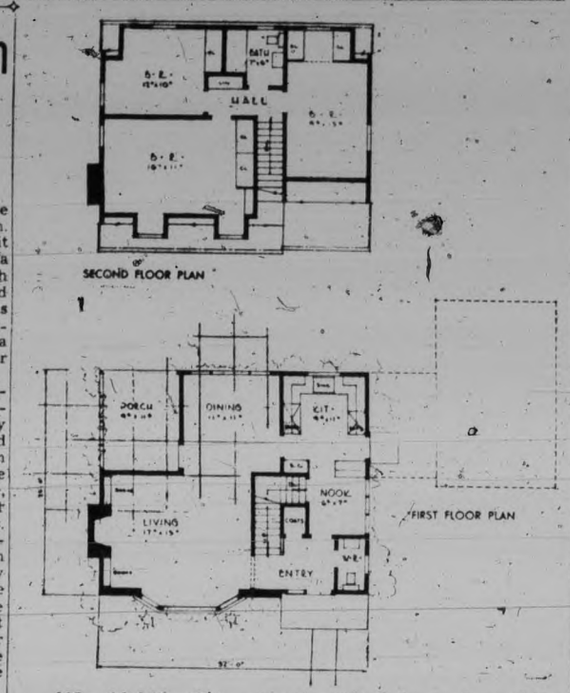
OUTDOOR RECREATION

Earlier we considered the surrounding grounds and landscaping as an integral part of the house. In planning the home, an important feature to consider relative to the house itself is that of outdoor recreation. After the family check list has been analyzed, plans should be made to provide for the activities of each member. It might be well to consider the need for active recreation and for quiet recreation, and to allot each its proper space. For active recreation, the grounds of the new house might have a badminton court, a putting green for golf practice, a wading pool for small children. For quiet recreation, a terrace with deck chairs for relaxation, or a small garden plot or flower bed, will add to the enjoyment of the home. Almost any plot can be arranged to provide necessary recreational facilities if the needs are cited in the original plans.

Arbors, screen plantings and garden walls are very attractive outdoor partitions, and can be constructed economically.

Another interesting addition to the home, and one which offers not only recreational possibilities but also serves as a pleasant way of entertaining guests, is the outdoor grill. Almost anyone with the initiative and a few inexpensive materials can construct such a grill himself. The family is certain to enjoy food prepared and eaten outdoors, and the arrangement gives the men of the family an opportunity to display their cooking talents.

The possibilities for outdoor recreation are unlimited, and depend only upon the desires of the family and the use of originality in planning the house site.



NO. 63-250—This attractive brick home located in Oakville, Ontario has all the refinements most families require in a home. A 45' or 70' lot will accommodate it depending upon whether it is built with or without a garage. Notice how the carefully planned interior provides many extras such as the separate breakfast nook, hall and broom closets, and a first floor washroom. Notice also the extra entrance from the patio into the dining-room. Ideal for a growing family, this house contains approximately 18,520 cubic feet. For working drawings write Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

Friends, Relatives Honor Couple Wed 44 Years

ROSENEATH (ENS): — Upwards of 100 relatives, friends, and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown Tuesday evening in honor of their 44th wedding anniversary.

The Rev. J. R. Wheeler, pastor [illegible] Doreen Nichol was pianist for community singing. Readings were given by Douglas Coyle and Mrs. Earl Waldie; Mrs. Donald George sang "Because." Miss Irene Brown, a niece of the groom of 44 years, read an address and Mrs. Frank George and Mrs. Edwin Acton, sisters of Mrs. Brown, made the presentation of a walnut coffee table, on behalf of the immediate families.

Miss Thelma Acton, Ottawa, read an address on behalf of the nieces and nephews and Carolyn George, Norwood, made the presentation of a silver flower basket filled with red roses.

A. J. Campbell read an address on behalf of the friends and neighbors, and Rupert Nichol presented a trilight lamp and purse of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, though taken by surprise, made appropriate replies.

The program concluded by singing "Blest be the tie that binds."

Lunch was served, a three-tier decorated wedding cake, a gift of the relatives, was cut by the bride of yesteryear.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the former Ada Jewell of Fenella, were married at the bride's home, December 29, 1949, by the Rev. R. L. Edwards, resident Methodist minister of the Roseneath and Fenella churches.

The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jewell, Fenella, and the groom is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, Roseneath.

Their entire married life has been spent on the Brown homestead, one-half mile east of Roseneath, the home where Mr. Brown was born and has spent his entire life. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are active members of Roseneath United Church. Mr. Brown has been superintendent of the Sunday school for the past 22 years. Mrs. Brown is also an active member of the WMS of the church.

Mr. Brown has been an active member of Roseneath Agricultural Society for many years and Mrs. Brown an exhibitor in domestic work for many years at the Roseneath Fair. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have always been interested in any community work for the betterment of the community.

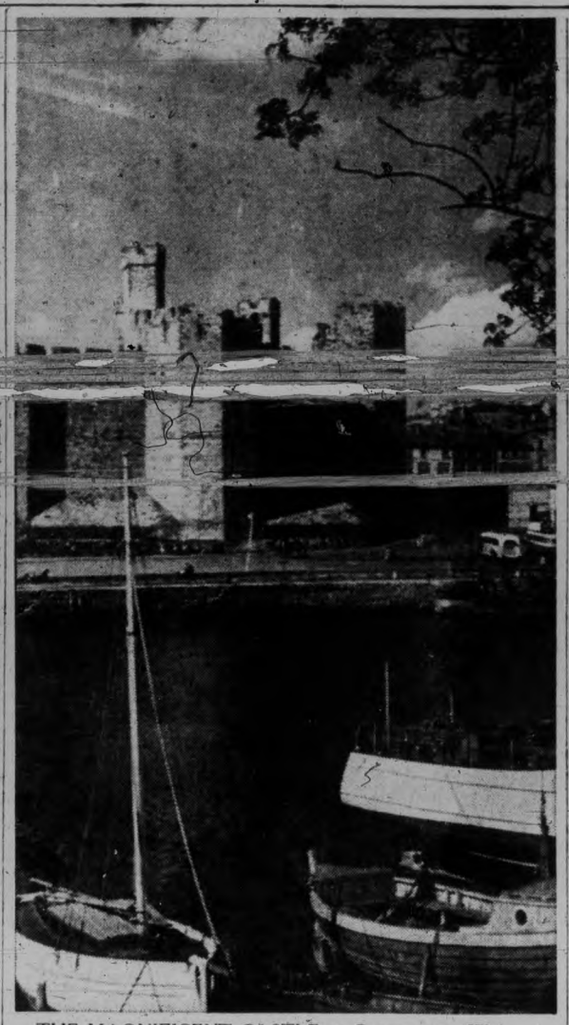
Friends and relatives were present from Ottawa, Smiths Falls, Warkworth, Norwood, Fenella, and the surrounding community.

Order Nuns Remove Rosaries From Garb

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Dunlop has ordered Roman Catholic nuns teaching at Hawkesbury Collegiate to remove crucifixes and rosaries from their religious dress, it was announced Thursday.

The nuns, members of the Grey Sisters of the Cross, were also instructed to use in classrooms their proper names rather than their religious name which is prefaced by "Sister."

The orders were issued after protests from Hawkesbury that the sisters were not following the Ontario High Schools Act which prohibits exhibition in classrooms of religious objects of a denominational nature.



THE MAGNIFICENT CASTLE at Caernarvon, Wales, is a familiar tourist landmark. The castle was begun in 1285 by Edward I.—(British Travel Association Photo).

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Ancient Caernarvon Castle Lures Visitors To Picturesque Wales

The Anglo-Saxons called Wales "Land of the Foreigners" and although is has been closely linked with the destinies of England for some centuries, it is a land which still retains strongly individual characteristics. For those seeking something off the modern track, Caernarvon, one of the loveliest spots in Wales, is also one of the most historic. It is best known today for its magnificent [illegible] by Edward I. The first Prince of Wales was created here.

Caernarvon, meaning Fort in Avron, refers to the Roman fort of Segontium (occupied in the first century A.D.) on a hill behind the Medieval town. Only the footings of the fort buildings are to be seen, but there is a large section of the Roman wall standing on the grounds of 10 South St. This is part of a second fort (fourth century) guarding the harbor. In early Welsh romance, the fort is associated with the Emperor Maximus. His wife Helena, is identified with St. Helen whose well is in the grounds of Llwyn Helen, South St.

POPULAR SPOT FOR CASTLES

At the end of the 11th century, the first Norman Earl of Chester penetrated to Caernarvon and built a wooden castle. Normans were soon expelled, but the castle was still standing when Edward I began the present stone building. The peculiar figure 8 plan of the castle is due to the configuration of the earlier work. The castle is one of the most picturesque in Wales and is best viewed from the opposite bank of the River Seiont, from which position the castle is seen reflected in the water.

Under Edward II, Caernarvon became the legal and administrative centre of the principality and the castle the repository of its official records. It remained the metropolis of Wales until Henry VII's time, when the Council of the Marches was set up at Ludlow Castle which was made the new seat of the Prince of Wales.

DEFENCE STRESSED

The walled town, as at Conway and elsewhere, was established as an English borough mainly in order to provision and garrison the castle. The building of these walls was undertaken and completed before those of the castle. The principle entrance was the East Gate. It remains, but the medieval work is concealed by an overlay of 19th century, except the bases of the towers which are visible in the roadway below the bridge.

Also at Caernarvon is the Parish Church of St. Peblig. It still stands on the ancient site by the Roman settlement. It was presumably founded in the fourth century, though no work earlier than the 14th is visible. This is a window in the north wall of the chancel.

Another interesting place to visit near Caernarvon is Conway at the opposite end of the Menai Straits. It too is an imposing medieval fortress built by Edward I in 1285. There are high Curtain walls and many circular towers. One contains a chapel and the remains of a fine hall. Four miles from Conway are the beautiful gardens of Bodnant, now the property of the National Trust and open to the public. Between Conway and Bangor are Llanfairtechan and Penmaenmawr, two charmingly situated resorts which have a fine view across the sea to Anglesey and a magnificent background of mountains.

SEASIDE RESORTS

A wide choice of seaside re[illegible] extending from the village of Lleyn in the west to Prestatyn in the east. They are also within reach of Snowdonia National Park which possesses some of [illegible] ing scenery in Britain. It ranges from the grim ruggedness of Nant Ffrancon and Beddgelert, to soft wooded beauty of Bettws-y-Coed. The ascent of Snowden (3,560 feet) can be made by a number of routes. At the summit is an hotel from the terrace of which a magnificent view is unfolded.

The Snowden mountains occupy the mainland between Caernarvon and Llandudno, and afford the visitor every opportunity for viewing scenery on a grand scale. There is a mountain railway which starts at Llanberis and makes the ascent without demanding anything more of the visitor than the price of the fare. There are other routes for the more energetic.

An Augustinian Priory, famous for its hospitality, was established at Beddgelert in the 12th century. It was the Latin successor of a Celtic monastery which would date from about the sixth century. The Nantlle Valley is a strange mixture of ancient and modern. At intervals among the busy banks of the slate quarry, hut circles of Roman-British date remain untouched.

Wales is a beautiful part of the British Isles which more tourists are beginning to discover and enjoy.

Delta Wing Jet Order Said Premature

OTTAWA (CP) — A government official says that a report that an order for delta-wing jet planes has been placed with the A. V. Roe Company of Malton, Ont., is premature.

The report said the planes would travel at nearly twice the speed of sound.

The official said Thursday he understood that an order for a prototype of such a plane might be placed in the future. It would be at least two years after placement of this order, however, before the plane could be produced in numbers.

Ontario House Has 10th Birthday

LONDON (CP) — Ontario House celebrated its 10th birthday Friday with a forecast that the new year will see a change of emphasis in trading targets.

Instead of concentrating principally on Canadian buying from Britain, Agent-General James Armstrong said in a statement, the provincial agency he heads will try to extend markets for Ontario goods in Britain and continental Europe.

He said he hopes this will mean greater overseas sales of Canadian cheese, tobacco, soya beans, canned fruits, agricultural machinery, soft wood, chemicals and certain minerals. The trade commissioner of Ontario House is R. H. Stapleford of Stratford, Ont.

News Association To Aid Radio

TORONTO (CP) — Broadcast News Limited, a new organization to supply world-wide news to Canada's privately-owned radio and television stations began operations Jan. 1.

The company is a joint operation of the private broadcasters and the national news-gathering co-operative, The Canadian Press, which since 1941 has served radio through another subsidiary, Press News Limited.

Increasing use of news by radio and television's need for specialized service with pictures led to formation of Broadcast News with the private stations represented on its board of directors. The president is Roy H. Thomson, Toronto, president of Thomson Newspapers. Gordon Love of CFCN Calgary, is vice-president.

Broadcast News operates 12,000 miles of teletype news circuits in Canada, transmitting to 95 private stations news reports based on the domestic and foreign service of The Canadian Press and the international services of The Associated Press and Reuters.

The former Gertrude Doyle of Bathurst, Ont., she taught in various eastern Ontario schools at Belleville, Arnprior, Perth and Portsmouth, and more recently at St. Joseph's School, Winnipeg. Services will be held here today with burial at Kingston.

Purchasing Right Grade Of Lumber

BY MR. FIX (NEA)

Neophyte handymen and do-it yourselfers are usually dismayed and confounded by lumberyard jargon, and end up buying the wrong lumber for the job they have in mind. More often than not, they select higher-priced lumber than they need.

Lumber is graded according to quality and classified as common or select. To buy select lumber when common will do is to throw away money, and it may amount to several dollars if any sizable quantity is purchased.

For instance, if you were to build shelves for the kitchen, and planned to paint them, it would be foolish to buy top-grade finishing wood for the job. Lower-grade wood, with sound knots and minor defects, will serve the purpose just as well when painted.

A slightly better grade of lumber may be required if a clear finish is to be applied. Lumber clear on one side and imperfect on the other will do nicely in some cases.

A good idea is to pick through the lumber carefully. It's often possible to save money by buying a qantity of low-grade lumber, then use only the clear portions between imperfections. Don't hesitate to consult your lumber dealer. Tell him how you plan to use the wood. He will be glad to save you money, because he knows then you'll be back with more bsuiness. And retail lumber dealers are relying more and more on the "do-it-yourself" trade.

Select woods are graded A, B, C and D. A and B softwoods, the two highest grades, are known in lumberyard parlance as B & Better, or 1 & 2 Clear. In hardwoods they may be called FAS (firsts and seconds) or 1s & 2s. In general, the higher select grades are for natural finishes and the lower, C and D, for paint finishes. But there are exceptions to this. Even occasional top-grade common woods can be found good enough to take a natural finish.

Common grades are usually designated by numbers — 1 through 5, the latter being the lowest grade. They are for general utility and construction purposes.

B & Better select grading permits minute pitch pockets, slight splits, small knots and other minor irregularities. It is for highest-quality woodwork, trim and cabinetwork.

Stain and additional small defects are allowed on C-grade select lumber, next lowest in price and quality. It is less likely to merit a transparent finish.

The D grade may have additional defects, including small knots, rough edges, planer skip, etc. It is popular for use on projects in power-tool-equipped workshops.

Common grades follow much the same pattern. Numbers 1 and 2 are good, all-around utility woods. Defects get progressively greater through the other grades. Number 5 has the most imperfections, and it's unlikely that the home handyman would find much use for it.

Q—Is it all right to use spar varnish on floors and furniture?

A—Spar varnish is designed for exterior use and should not be used indoors. It contains a large proportion of oil and produces a flexible film that is high in water fesistance and slow in drying. On the other hand, interior varnishes are harder, less water resistant, contain less oil and dry slower. They should not be used outdoors.

AVOID BUYING higher-priced wood than you need, learn how lumber is graded and how to use each grade.

Niagara Council Fires City Manager

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—City manager Harold R. Cheek was fired by the city council here Friday night.

A 3-2 vote of the council made the dismissal effective immediately and provided for the manager's official removal from office by Feb. 1.

Corporation counsel Clarence W. Greenwald was named acting city

Councilman Anthony C. [illegible], who moved for the dismissal of Cheek, said the failure of a strong pro-city manager councilman to a mandate for a change in managers.

GIVES TWO REASONS

Cheek, who came here in May, 1951, from Lexington, Va., told reporters there were two reasons for his dismissal.

He listed these as his "unwillingness to ignore the provisions of the state anti-strike law" and his unwillingness to "submit to some who insisted on continuation of political patronage."

Cheek would not elaborate further.

Mayor Ernest W. Mirrington, Jr., was one of the two councilmen opposing the ouster move.

Mirrington said the council was discharging one of the best qualified city managers in the country.

New Korean Crisis Looms In Three Weeks

WASHINGTON (AP)— The new year will be barely three weeks old when it brings a new crisis in Korea.

At midnight Jan. 22 at least one —and perhaps two—long-smouldering questions may erupt.

The first is this: What happens to the 22,217 Communist and 349 United Nations war prisoners who [illegible] These include 21 Americans and one Briton who have refused repatriation.

CAN I BE SURE

The second: Will South Korean President Syngman Rhee try to renew the war alone? He has blown hot and cold on his threat to do this, and shows signs of blowing hot again.

The whole question of Korea's future, supposed to be decided at a political conference not yet arranged, may hinge on what takes place Jan. 22.

United States plans are proceeding on the assumption that the war prisoners on both sides will revert to civilian status Jan. 22, as provided in the Korean truce agreement.

Troops Halt Student Demonstrations

TEHRAN (Reuters) — Two truckloads of troops raced to Tehran university today and broke up an anti-British student demonstration.

Several students were arrested. There were no casualties.

Demonstrators rampaged through the university buildings and [illegible] relations between Iran and Britain last month.

Foes of Gen. Fazlollah Zahedi's [illegible] a month ago to wear black armbands. Today's outbreak was the first response.

Anti-British leaflets published by the Pan-Iranian party — whose leader, Daryoush Foroohar, was arrested today — were distributed among the students. They said: "British, get out of our country — we never forget cruelty and robbery."

Authorities believe today's university outbreak is a sign that opponents of the government of all colors are grouping around the outlawed Tudeh (Communist) party in the first serious resistance since premier Mossadegh was overthrown last fall. They think it is timed to influence parliamentary elections due in the next two weeks.

But military forces have complete control. There appears little chance of organized riots.

Toronto Up, Montreal Level On Stock Markets At End of Year 1953

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto, New York and Montreal stock markets ended 1953 with slightly different sessions. New York was down, Toronto was up and Montreal was steady.

On the week's performance, however, there was little change in any market. One Toronto observer commented: "We're too full of turkey to get excited about finance for a few days."

He was not entirely correct, because, although there was little week-to-week change there was some up-and-down excitement in individual sessions.

Toronto's four-day week was divided with two lower sessions, Monday and Tuesday, and two gaining sessions, Wednesday and Thursday. Industrials led the lower trend at the beginning of the week as banks and liquors slipped to join papers and steels.

SHOW HIGHER TONE

Mining and western oil issues Wednesday showed a higher tone as banks, steels, papers, textiles and utilities strengthened in industrials and western oils began to show some strength.

Thursday, the whole market, except base metals, was higher and western oils jumped more than two points on the exhange's closing indexes. Volume was also heavy and the final session of the year showed one of the highest sales figures in recent months—3,745,000 shares.

The Toronto Friday - to - Friday comparison showed industrials down .22 at 312.36, golds down .10 at 67.37, base metals up .90 at 139.49 and western oils up 1.75 at 86.13.

CHANGES SMALL

In Montreal, most Friday - to - Friday averages changes were fractional. Papers, beverages, oils, steels and banks led a stronger trend at the beginning of the week, then utilities, steels and papers eased but led a recovery move toward the week's close.

The weekly average comparisons showed banks up .48 at 36.22, utilities unchanged at 92.8, industrials up .7 at 184.2, combined up .4 at 153.7, papers up 8.80 at 775.69 and golds down 1.02 at 48.49.

In New York The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 50 cents at $108.10.

On the Canadian bond market, two significant facts appeared: 1953 was a record year for Canadian bond sales, $2,300,000,000, compared to $1,600,000,00 in 1952; and a lower cost of borrowing money. Most dealers report it now costs from 15 to 25 cents less to borrow $100 than it did in the early autumn.

Expect Canada To Protest

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — An Australian deal with Russia for the import of canned fish, announced Friday, is "likely to prompt Canadian protests" the Melbourne Herald says today in a Canberra dispatch.

"For 50 years Canada has supplied Australia with canned salmon," but in these days we haven't the dollars to buy them so the Australian government has given a Melbourne firm licence to import £1,600,000 (Australian) (about $3,600,000) worth of Soviet canned salmon and crab meat," the paper says.

During the years of the dollar shortage Canadian fish exporters had seen their trade dwindle and now, when a big slice of trade had gone to Russia, they were resentful.

Car Rolls On Curve Driver Is Injured

Laverne Cooke, 32, of Bewdley, was taken to Civic Hospital New Year's Eve after the car he was driving rolled over on a curve near Coldsprings. Cooke sustained a badly gashed face. Shaken up were the other occupants of the car, Orville Cooke, 28, of Bewdley, owner of the vehicle, and Kenneth Davis, 21, of Cobourg. Provincial Constable Frank Clough, of Cobourg, investigated. Provincial police reported heavy traffic during the holiday but no accidents on No. 2 Highway.

Think Statesman Had Premonition Of Death

LONDON (CP)—Viscount Norwich, British statesman who died Friday in a holiday liner off the coast of Spain, may have had a premonition death was near at hand.

In his autobiography published two months ago, "Old Men Forget," the 63-year-old Lord Norwich, better known as Sir Alfred Duff Cooper, wrote:

"Life has been good to me, and I am grateful . . . but I am fond of change. . . . I shall not be too distressed when the summons comes to go away.

"Autumn has always been my favorite season, and evening has been for me the pleasantest time of day. I love the sunlight, but I cannot fear the coming of the dark."

Editor Forgets To Follow Advice

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Editor Rebecca F. Gross wrote a New Year's traffic safety editorial for her newspaper, the Lock Haven (Pa.) Express.

"Who wants to start the new year in a hospital or a morgue?" she asked in print. Then she provided her own answer—"in spite of statistics no one need be one of these new year accident victims."

On New Year's eve, the 48-year-old editor lost both legs in a highway crash. Her condition was listed as fair.

Police said Miss Gross had gone through a stop sign.

Petroleum Canada's Top Mineral Led Production During 1953

OTTAWA (CP)—Petroleum became Canada's number one mineral during 1953 and led total mineral production to a record annual value of $1,331,000,000.

Preliminary estimates by the bureau of statistics, issued Friday, valued the flow of the West's black gold at $193,000,000, a gain of $55,000,000 from $143,000,000 in 1952, compared with 61,0,00 the previous year.

Petroleum took over top place in production value from gold, which had been Canada's most valuable mineral for nearly 25 years. Prolonged strikes at some mines cut gold production to 4,061,000 ounces from 4,471,000, and value to $140,000,000 from $153,000,000.

Total value of all mineral production was 3.4 per cent higher than the 1952 total of $1,285,000,000, capping a steady 10-year increase from $485,800,000 in 1944.

URANIUM SECRET

The estimates contained no figures on production of uranium, which is kept secret.

Ontario retained first place in mineral values among the provinces, with $460,176,000. Quebec was second at $252,826,000 and Alberta a close third at $245,955,000.

The value of all metals was $709,000,000 in 1953, a 2.6-per-cent decline from $728,000,000 in 1952. Mineral fuels were valued at $311,000,000, 18 per cent above the $263,600,000 the previous year. Other non-metallic minerals were valued at $127,000,000, compared with $125,000,000, and structural materials set a new high value at $183,000,000 compared with $169,000,000.

Among minerals, nickel moved into second place in value behind petroleum, with copper next and gold fourth.

The 1953 value of nickel production was $160,800,000 as against $151,300,000. Copper production fell slightly to 503,000,000 pounds from 516,000,000 but higher prices raised the value to $150,600,000 from $146,700,000.

Price declines hit zinc and lead. Zinc output rose seven per cent and lead production was up 14 per cent. But the value of zinc fell to $95,400,000 from $129,800,000, and of lead to $52,000,000 from $54,600,00.

Iron ore shipments in 1953 were the highest on record: 6,500,000 tons worth $42,722,000 as against 5,200,000 tons worth $33,700,000 in 1952. Remelt iron, a co-product of titanium ore melting, was valued at $3,800,000 as against $1,800,000.

Coal production dropped to 15,760,000 tons at $102,000,000 from 17,579,000 tons at $111,000,000, with several coal mines ceasing operations. Natural gas output was 99,628,00,000 cubic feet worth $11,000,000 as against 88,686,000,000 cubic feet worth $9,500,000.

Transit Commission Takes Over From TTC

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission, serving the new municipality of metropolitan Toronto, Friday took over from the old Toronto Transportation Commission.

One of its first tasks will be to work out a system of zone fares. At present the adult fare is three tickets for 25 cents, plus an additional street-car or bus fare ticket for most lines operating beyond the city limits.

The zone fare will replace the present city and suburban fare system some time after July 21 when the new commission acquires four independent suburban bus lines.

Boxing Promoter Lucky Cappe'll Dies

LONDON (Reuters) — Jack (Lucky) Cappell, 57, London boxing promoter said to have made and lost three fortunes, died at his home here today.

Born in London's east end, he stowed away to Canada in 1920 and in nine years made $250,000 which he lost in the Wall street crash at the end of the '20s.

In 1949 he dropped $14,000 in one night when an international variety show he promoted in London flopped.

Plans To Make Trip In Barrel Over Falls

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Frank Candler of suburban Thorold is planning to make a trip in a barrel over Niagara Falls "sometime soon."

Candler last September sent eight eggs, encased in foam rubber in a barrel, over the falls. One of the eggs was broken but the experiment convinced him a human could make the same trip in a foam-rubber-filled barrel.

Candler said Friday his plans for the construction of a barrel are complete. He declined to discuss them, but indicated the barrel will be constructed on the same principal as the one used for the eggs.

Hunt Jewel Thieves

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Police today hunted thieves who ransacked a bookmaker's valuables, estimated to be worth $30,000. It was the biggest jewel haul in Glasgow in many years and is believed to have been carried out by a well - organized gang. No sounds were heard by the bookmaker' wife and daughter who were in the house at the time of the theft.

Well Wisher Attacked

ROUEN, France (Reuters) — A French North African is in hospital here today with a cracked skull—for wishing a man a happy new year. The man, another orth African who only recgonizes the Moslem calendar, hit him on the head with an iron bar, saying "you have broken the precepts of the Koran; you shall be punished."

Sails For Antarctic

CANBERRA (AP)—Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey today said a scientific station will be set up in the Australian sector of the antarctic. The motorship Kista Dan is sailing from Melbourne Monday with 10 men who will spend 12 months surveying geographical meteorological and other aspects of the south polar region.

Seek Outlaws

ORGOSOLO, Italy (AP)—A force of 500 national police invaded this bandit-infested Sardinian town Friday in a house-to-house search for outlaws who took 35 lives last year. Their principal discoveries among the 3,500 inhabitants were scores of weapons and stores of ammunition. They also took 100 persons into custody, but released all but four by nightfall.

Suggests Opening Books To Get Soccer Pool Story

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The 100,000 Britons who weekly take a flutter on the soccer pools may get the details in 1954 regarding the disposition of their sixpences, shillings and half-crowns.

There's a private member's bill due for second reading in the House of Commons Jan. 29. It would force the pools — which turned over $184,800,000 in 1952-53—to open their books to the public and show how much they keep themselves and how much goes back to the bettors in "dividends."

The bill's originator, Labor MP Fred Mulley, claims he has the support of more than 200 members of all parties. His proposed legislation would enforce the recommendations of the royal commission on gambling two years ago.

POOLS SILENT

So far, the pools have remained silent and stuck to their rights as private companies, keeping their records to themselves. Secretary Rolland Hughes of the Pool Promoters Association has commented however that the government takes 30 per cent of the gross in tax, another 20 per cent goes to pool expenses and commissions and the remainder, "roughly 50 per cent" goes back to the bettors.

Mulley, fellow MPs and some newspapers say that isn't good enough. They think that the pools should fall in the same category as greyhound and horse racing, both of which are operated on the pari-mutuel system and have to publish their financial records.

The soccer pools are essentially the little bettor's sport, embracing soccer fans, chicken-feed punters and the housewife who wants to wager a shilling or two.

The pay-off prize—the amount that draws the headlines—is a tax-free £75,000. From there, dividends dwindle to the commonest category of £1 or less paid to approximately one in 30 bettors weekly and one in three over the 38-week season.

BUSINESS INCREASES

Business gets better annually. The government estimates the turnover will total £38,000,000 ($190,500,000) in the 1953-54 season, adding £20,500,000 to the coffers in tax. Yet the pools, which have declined from some 230 firms in 1913 or so currently, still lag well behind the turnover totals of greyhound and horse racing, which amounted respectively to £135,000,000 and £400,000,000 in 1951.

Most of the soccer pools business is shared by three firms, perhaps due to the high pressure of operation.

Jim Guthrie of the Soccer Players' Union thinks the pools should pour some of their profits back into the game they use to promote. The union is urging that the pools contribute toward improving soccer in better coaching, more playing fields and generally better amenities.

Detroit Curling Club Holds 68th Bonspiel

DETROIT (CP) — The Detroit Curling Club will hold its 68th international bonspiel Jan. 7, 8, 9 and 10 with clubs competing from 13 Canadian cities and six American.

Canadian rinks will come from Ayr, Brantford, Hamilton, Kirkland Lake, Kitchener, London, North Bay, Sarnia, St. Catharines Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto and Walkerton. Defending champion Lloyd Raney of Timmins, Ont., will not bring his rink this year.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill (Kid) Gleason, a big-league baseball star of the 80s, died at Philadelphia 20 years ago today. He joined Philadelphia Phillies of the National League as a pitcher in 1883 but later became a second baseman and finally a coach.

Land For Peasants

ROME (AP)—Italy has distributed 637,000 acres of farm land to 52,000 peasant families in the three years of its land reform program, the government reported today. It also has spent 38,000,000,000 lire (60,000,000 for construction of farm homes, land improvement, irrigation and farm equipment. The program still is only about a third complete.

Poet Dies

OUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) Leonard Bacon, 66, who won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1911, died unexpectedly Friday at his home here. Bacon was the author of a number of volumes of poetry and contributed many articles to literary publications. He was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1951.

Claims Uncertainty

LONDON (Reuters)—Uncertainty about Prime Minister Churchill's political future is having an unsettling effect on Britain's affairs and on the Conservative party, the weekly magazine "The Economist" claimed Friday. It charged that too many decisions have been postponed.

Six Cars Derailed

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Northern Pacific's crack westbound passenger train, the Mainstreeter, hit a slide between Noxon and Heron, Mont., Friday night, throwing the engine and six baggage cars off the track. The engine crew was reported "shaken up," but no passengers were injured.

Tear Gas For Miners

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Ninety miners on a sit-down strike in graphite mines at Ruanwella, 40 miles from Colombo, fled the pits today after they were sprayed with tear gas. The demonstrators had been without food and water since they occupied the mines on Friday. They demanded higher pay.

New Year's Holiday Toll Reaches 22 Fatalities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The year's weekend already has brought violent or accidental death to 22 Canadians.

A Canadian Press survey today listed 10 deaths in traffic mishaps, including three in one Quebec province crash, eight from asphyxiation, two in a fire, and one from a heart attack followed by freezing, and one from drowning.

The toll by provinces: Quebec, 9; Ontario, 5; British Columbia, 5; Nova Scotia, 2; Alberta, 1. No fatalities were reported in the other provinces.

Asphyxiated by gas in a Quebec City apartment were Mr. and Mrs. J. Delphis Drolet and their granddaughter, Gervaise Chevahal, 6.

A collision between two cars near St. Felicien, Que., 60 miles west of Chicoutimi, killed Mr. and Mrs. Alma Perron of Shipshaw, Que., and Cyreas Fraser of St. Felicien and injured 10 others, including seven children.

Struck down by automobiles and fatally injured were Joseph-Raoul Pigeon, 71, of Quebec City, and Armand Decaire, 67, of Montreal.

FROZEN TO DEATH

Gerard Villeneuve, 70, was found frozen to death near Beauharnois, Que., and police said he apparently suffered a heart attack while returning home from a neighbor's Nw Year's party.

Separate motor accidents in Nova Scotia brought death to Mrs. Jean Roblee, 27, of Springville, N.S. and Harry Gilfoy, goalkeeper for the senior Stellarton Royals hockey team.

In Northern Ontario, Mrs. Theresa Vincent, an Ojibway Indian grandmohter, was burned to death in a vain attempt to rescue her three-year-old granddaughter from a flaming cabin three miles west of Blind River. Flames engulfed the 70-year-old woman as she sought to carry the child to safety. Her husband, Louis Vincent, 72, escaped with two other grandchildren.

Killed in a level-crossing crash near Kingston, was Mrs. Dorothy Warren, 31.

GAS FATALITIES

Gas fumes said to have seeped from a faulty furnace claimed the lives of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Doig of Woodstock. Mr. Doig was 57, his wife 54.

A traffic accident 40 miles northwest of Lethbridge, Alta., fatally injured Stella Yonick, 29.

Mrs. Laura Marie Doyle, 61, was killed by a car near Vancouver. In Vancouver itself, Mrs. C. Stuart, 75, died of coal gas fumes from a fireplace while baby sitting New Year's eve. Also in Vancouver, Pat Law, 53, and Ed Pillon, 38, were killed by illuminating gas. An elderly man whose name was not released was found drowned on Lulu island.

Karschner-Zealand Wedding

A New Year's Day marriage took place at the Canton parsonage, the Rev. E. Udell officiating, of Audrey Beatrice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Zealand of Campbellcroft, to Harold D. Karschner of Elyria, Ohio, son of Mr. W. E. Karschner and the late Mrs. Karschner of Watsontown, Pa.

The bride was attired in grey and wore a corsage of yellow roses. She was attended by Miss Geraldine Rouden as maid of honor, wearing blue taffeta, and her niece Miss Norma Christie, also dressed in blue, each wearing a corsage of pink roses. Both attendants are of Port Hope.

The groom was attended by the brides brother Gerald Zealand.

A reception followed at the bride's home. Later the bridal couple left for a short honeymoon trip and will continue to their home in Elyria.

Before her marriage Miss Zealand was honored by neighbors at Campbellcroft who presented her with a silver tea service and other gifts.

New Year's Eve Celebration At Officers' Mess

Happy New Year wishes and the singing of Aul Lang Syne permeated the atmosphere of comradeship and friendship characteristic of the Officers' Mess at Peterborough Armouries, when the midnight hour struck Thursday evenings.

The officers and their wives and friends were on hand to welcome 1954 and to dance for several hours of the evening and several hours of the morning in their recreation room, decorated with sprays of fragrant cedar, colorful flowers and a Christmas tree. Guests in formal attire and made noise with [illegible]

The appointment of Howard R. Harmell as Officer Commanding the Fiftieth Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment RCA (Prince of Wales' Rangers) Peterborough Regiment, and his promotion to Lieutenant-Colonel, effective January 1st, made this occasion outstanding and he was receiving congratulations of all guests. Retiring OC, Lieutenant-Colonel M. E. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke were standing with him and extending welcome to the guests.

A sumptuous early morning repast was served down in the drill hall following the dancing.

Invitations and arrangements for the dance were in charge of the mess president, Captain T. J. Frape.

Sinatra-Ava Not Settled Yet

ROME (AP) — Frank Sinatra glumly flew home to Hollywood today, his reconciliation with Ava Gardner still incomplete.

"There still are problem," he said.

Ava gave point to that observation by not showing up at the airport to say goodby. Sinatra said she still has the flu.

A friend told a different story, explaining: "Ava was busy. She had an appointment to model for a sculptor."

Sinatra said he telephoned Hollywood and asked if he could postpone his return. His studio (20th Century-Fox) replied that he must be on hand Monday.

Surprise Visit Arranged 50th Wedding Anniversary

John Henry and his wife, the former Victoria Thornton, 592 Shebrooke St., quietly celebrated their 50th golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday.

Having no children of their own, they made no effort to celebrate themselves, but a group of neighbours and a sister of Mrs. Henry, Mrs. A. E. Shepherd, who lives next door, decided to brighten the day for the couple.

A suprise visit was arranged and a huge basket of flowers presented. Another bouquet of flowers was sent to the couple by distant family relations.

Mr. Henry is a native of Peterborough and has worked as a plasterer in the area all his life. Mrs. Henry was born in Emily township. They were married at the home of the bride, by the Rev. J. G. Potter, December 30, 1903, and have lived in Peterborough ever sfnce.

They both attend Knox United Church.

Few Shrubs Retain Berries During The Winter Season

YOUR GARDEN:

BY HENRY PREE (NEA)

Some of the shrubs with bright berries are perfectly bewitching and it seems a pity that more of them are not included in our border plantings.

But sad to relate, few of these shrubs retain their berries through the winter and fewer may be used for more than a day or two for indoor decoration.

The commonest of all red-berried shrubs are barberry and honeysuckle, the former holding its berries until spring, but the birds strip the berries from the honeysuckle before winter comes.

Other berried shrubs equally enjoyed by the birds include the chokeberry, dogwoods, flowering crabapples, mulberry, plums, currants, elderberries and junipers. There are many shrubs which retain their berries throughout the winter and because of this beauty they add enjoyment and interest beyond the season of bloom.

Among the berried shrubs which will tolerate most localities and are an asset to all shrub borders, I recommend the following:

Crataegus pyracantha lalandi, commonly called firethorn, resembling the hawthorns, grows six to eight feet tall and equally broad. The leaves are semievergreen, dark, glossy and the branches are very thorny. The white, many-flowered clusters in spring are not conspicuous but are pleasing nevertheless.

Firethorn, one of the many berry plants that are available will beautify your home.

However, it is for its brilliant orange-scarlet berries and interesting habit of growth that we admire and recommend this shrub. The berries last well into January and in favorable places until early spring.

Ilex verticillata, winterberry, or as it is often called, swamp or black alder, is a deciduous holly which prefers a moist location, otherwise its foliage yellows and its berries are few and lacking in luster.

Single plants seldom bloom unless both sexes exist on the same plant, therefore two or more plants should be used.

Rosa Rugosa is the well-known Japanese rose with pink, red and white, single and double flowers, many in bloom at the same time that the fruits are reddening. The blooms are large, the fruits are handsome and, as it has few pests and tolerates adverse conditions, it is highly recommended.

A common old rose, named rosa setigera and known as the prairie rose, has been hybridized and as such is suitable for the small home grounds. The fruits are most decorative throughout the winter, following delicate pink blooms.

GARDENING QUESTIONS

Q—How does one protect chrysanthemum plants over winter? Ours seldom survive.

A—Dig them now with a good ball of earth and keep them in a protected spot, such as a cold frame or in a box of soil in the garage or a cold closet in the basement. Water once every five weeks to prevent the roots from drying.

Q—What winter treatment should be given an Easter azalea which has recently been returned to the home after a summer in the garden?

A—Indoor azaleas must have a lot of light, a rather cool room and a moist atmosphere. Meaning a sunny south window and almost daily syringing of the foliage to insure bloom. Fertilize in January with a mixture strong in phosphorus.

OUT OF HIDING

Dore Schary will receive more plaques than Darryl Zanuck.

"From Here to Eternity" will sweep the Oscar derby.

Mario Lanza will come out of hiding.

More theatres will fold because of the shortage of pictures.

More reissues will be on the market for the same reason.

Howard Hughes will continue bucking the rest of the industry by ignoring the censorship code.

Jack Webb will abandon "dragnet" for a new series called "Pete Kelly's Blues."

Only a tiny percentage of the American population will be seeing color TV.

Big-time radio programming will stage a comeback.

Alan Ladd, Gregory Peck and other exiles will come trooping home.

Wide screens will continue to get wider, but 3D will be on the wane.

Movies will be heavily concerned with spectacle; stories will continue to have the same small scope.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Important For Parents Find Satisfaction In Work

"Happy New Year!" we have wished our friends just yesterday. Perhaps we have wondered what 1954 will hold for them. We cannot help feeling that happiness is a rather rare commodity in modern life with all its uncertainty and tension. Children, fortunately, are not depressed by the world news in the headlines. The Christmas holidays have brought them a lot of fun. But gifts and entertaining have reduced the family budget to an all-time low. Childhood seems so carefree compared with adult years. Is there much point in parents longing for that elusive thing called happiness?

But it is important that mother their work. They need to relax and enjoy their leisure time. If either parent is habitually dissatisfied or irritable, the atmosphere in the home will be anything but happy. Because mother spends more time with her children than father, to a great extent, it is she who colors the outlook on life. If she is naturally cheerful and optomistic, it is likely to be a happy new year for all the family.

What are some of the paths to happy living? Instead of thinking of a whole year stretching before us, we should break the long span of a year into days. We only have to live one day at a time! This is one secret of successful living.

That great Canadian doctor, Sir William Osler, over and over again, stressed the importance of living the days one by one. Regret over past mistakes or fears of future happenings should not be allowed to darken to-day's blue sky.

A social service worker in a slum area always kept a flower in the little vase on her desk. "It reminds me that beauty can be found if I look for it—even in tangled lives and squalid surroundings," she told a friend. A teacher in his farewell talk to his pupils who were going into Collegiate, gave them three fine suggestions for daily living: "Each day learn one new thing, help someone else and have some fun yourself."

You may have your own ways of finding and maintaining serenity of spirit. Looking for beauty, being alert for new ideas or information, having a helpful attitude to other people are certainly good paths to happiness. Relaxing and enjoying life is also very important.

Many parents are so ambitious to get ahead—to give their children more "advantages" than they had, that they become tense or fatigued. They forget that some of the things which children need most, cannot be purchased with money.

Do our children look at us and conclude that being a grown up isn't much fun? Has the weight of our duties somehow destroyed our zest for living? They are missing a lot—and so are we—if in our individual daily lives there is little of the glow of happiness.

"The older children get the more things there are to worry about," one mother said rather petulantly. "If it isn't anxiety over illness, you're scared they will be in an accident or start going around with an undesirable gang."

"Dear me, you make parenthood sound like a very dreary business," her friend laughed in reply. "Whenever I see how empty a home is without children, even if it is extremely tidy, I'm thankful for my two young ragamuffins—if I get feeling sorry for myself on a day when nothing goes well, I just recall my old Granny quoting from the Bible "God setteth the solitary in families," and then adding, "I've no doubt that God knew what He was doing. He wants us to be happy. Sometimes we bungle things and start grumbling. But there's no use blaming others or saying our luck is bad or the world's against us. It's very much up to us, whether or not a New Year or a new day turns out to be a happy one."

"Happy New Year"?—For us and for our children—let us do our part to "make it come true."

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Easy, But Bit Different

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is the season when snacks are in demand. Whether for "television guests," bridge clubs, or friends who just happen to drop in, it's nice to have something that is easy to prepare but just a bit different.

The Bakery Foods Foundation of Canada offers some tasty tidbits for these occasions. Caraway cheese French bread is different and easy to make.

Use one cup grated, Canadian cheese, two teaspoons caraway seed, three tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing, one French stick or Vienna loaf and one quarter cup soft butter or margarine.

Combine cheese, caraway seed and mayonnaise. Cut bread diagonally, almost through to bottom crust, into one inch slices. Spread butter between slices. Spread cheese mixture between each slice. Wrap loaf in aluminum foil. Heat in hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 15 minutes, or until piping hot and crusty. Yields 12 servings.

RYE TOASTIES

Garlic rye toasties: One-quarter cup soft butter or margarine, one garlic clove, 24 thin slices salty rye bread.

Cut garlic clove into four pieces and cream into the butter. Let stand 30 minutes. Remove garlic pieces.

Spread one half teaspoon of the garlic butter on each slice. Place slices on cookie sheet, spread side up, and toast in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for seven minutes or until crisp. Makes 24 toasties.

Crackley bread sticks: Six wiener rolls, one quarter cup soft butter or margarine, one quarter cup finely grated parmesan cheese, one half tablespoon worcestershire sauce, poppy seeds or finely chopped peanuts.

Quarter wiener rolls lengthwise. Combine butter, cheese and worcestershire sauce and spread this mixture on sides of each bread stick. Roll each stick in poppy seeds or finely chopped peanuts.

Place sticks on a shallow, lightly buttered pan and toast in a moderate oven. (350 degrees F.) for about seven minutes, or until crisp and lightly browned. Yields 24 crackley sticks.

Parsley lemon loaf: One loaf unsliced bread, one cup chopped parsley, one half cup soft butter or margarine and two teaspoons lemon juice. Cut loaf in half lengthwise. Cut each of halves almost through to bottom crust, into 12 slices. Combine parsley, butter and lemon juice. Spread parsley mixture between each slice. Place loaf on cookie sheet and heat in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about 12 minutes, or until brown and crusty. Yields two dozen slices, or 12 servings.

DOROTHY DIX

Jilts Girl Two Weeks Before The Wedding

DEAR MISS DIX: Two weeks before we were to be married, my fiance disappeared, after a six-month engagement. I know his parents disapproved of our marriage, and I think that's why he jilted me. I haven't seen or heard from him in over a month. Should I forget him?

W. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It would be abbit impossible to completely forget a man you loved and intended to marry, but the next best thing is to shelve him as far back in your mind as possible. At the moment you are so hurt that relegating him to the past won't be too difficult. It probably would be quite useless to hope for his return, and after such a cowardly action, it wouldn't even be advantageous to have him back.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going with a man for several months and, though we are in love I know he will never consider marriage. He has a chronic nervous ailment and he claims it would be unfair for him to marry. I love him so much that it wouldn't make any difference to me. How can I convince him to see things my way?

C. A.

ANSWER: Perhaps the young man is right. The nature of his illness may be such that marriage would be, to say the least, unwise. To get the facts straight, ask him if you might talk to his doctor. A frank, professional discussion of the case will do a lot to settle your mind.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The boy I like is my age, 15, but he only telephones me occasionally and won't talk to me in school if there's anyone else around. Do you suppose he doesn't consider me good enough to talk to in the presence of his friends? My mother sympathizes with me because she had a somewhat similar problem when she was a girl.

S. L.

ANSWER: Bravo for Mom! She can still remember the problems of her own youth. Too many parents never seem to recall that they, too, were once adolescents. I'm sure your mother's conclusions are sound enough to guide you. A boy of 15 is invariably a shy creature, and perhaps the only reason this boy isn't overfriendly in public is because he's afraid of being teased. Give him time to acqquire a bit more poise.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a single girl of 21, in love with a married man. He's expecting a divorce, and in the meantime we've been living together. Lately, he seems to be changing toward me, and I wonder if he's thinking of going back to his wife. From all I've heard, she's a wonderful woman and that she left him because of me.

PUZZLED

ANSWER: If you're suffering the pangs of conscience, my dear, please heed them: There is absolutely no happiness for you in this alliance. Isn't it better to leave the man now and retain your self-respect, rather than to wait until he gets tired of you and returns to his wife? If you do marry him, you will surely find regret and resentment growing in him from day to day. He belongs to his wife and the only decent thing for you to do is to let him return to her.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 18, and have been married to a man of 35 for three years. I just discovered that he wears a toupe, and have been unhappy ever since.

ANNA MARIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You've discovered one of the penalties of marrying a man much older than yourself. Of course, your husband should have told you of his baldness before you were married, but is it so important now? If you've loved him for three years, the fact that he wears a toupe shouldn't alter your feelings.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Although I am not allowed to date I'm in love with a serviceman who comes to see me almost every weekend. The trouble is that he dates other girls, too. If he loves me, I don't think he should date anyone else, do you?

BETH M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: In the first place, Beth, you have absolutely no reason to assume that he loves you. He calls to see you, writes occasional letters, but has never mentioned love. It seems to me you're taking too much for granted. I don't think you are in love with him, either; the idea of love has you slightly befuddled, but the boy himself is only an individual about whom you fix the idea. When you have permission to date, you'll feel the same way about many another lad.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Six years ago I married for the second time. My husband is a wonderful man; he adopted the son of my first marriage, and our life together has been most happy. My difficulty is a girl friend of mine who has turned into a trouble-maker. During the first years of my marriage, I used to spend considerable time with her, usually helping to straighten her house, since she was far from being a good housekeeper. Now I have gotten a part-time job, and don't see her as much as I used to. As a consequence, she is saying some pretty nasty things about me in an effort to separate me from other friends. I'm getting very upset about the whole thing.

LUCILLE

ANSWER: I always have thought it would be a fine idea if we could have troublemakers go around with a bell, like the lepers of old. Certainly the slander they spread is as harmful as any disease.

Those who are swayed by vicious gossip are unworthy persons, so don't lament the loss of anyone who needs lies. If you can prove any of your contentions, confront your erstwhile friend with you proof, preferably in front of someone to whom she has told lies. If, however, she's too clever for that, put your case before people you like, and let them judge the merits of each story.

If the tales told about you are damaging to your reputation, you may have grounds for a legal action. A threat to bring suit for slander may put a stop to the annoyance. No half-hearted methods will ever succeed in quelling a lying tongue, especially when the slanderer feels assured of getting away with her verbal assaults.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I live with my grandmother, who has brought me up. She's very strict with me, and because of that I intend to be married next year as soon as I finish school. I have several boy friends, but the one I like best is just my age. Do you think he'd be a suitable husband?

E.V.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't, at any age, conside marriage merely as a means of escaping irritating home consider marriage merely as a thought is particularly dangerous. As for the young man, it's very doubtful if he'd be ready to marry at 17. Try to remember that grandmother is doing her best for you, though it's hard for you to realize. In time, you'll appreciate her efforts. Apparently you have dating privileges, even though they may not be as liberal as you'd like. Make the best use of the freedom you have, don't abuse it, and I'm sure you'll soon grow into the responsibilities for which grandma is training you.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Readers' Saturday Column

At last I'm nearly caught up with answering your mail. At one time last week there were 150 letters on my desk from you, waiting for answers. When I walk into our subpost office the clerk grins and groans. Once he said "What a crazy way to make a living!" But I like it.

QUESTION:... I was wondering if you have a recipe for lemon pudding. I think it is the [illegible] you make the cake batter, pour over a syrup mixture, and when it bakes the cake part comes to the top and the sauce is on the bottom. I make a chocolate one on this order but would like one made with lemon juice. I also wondered if you had a recipe for a good chocolate pudding, steamed. Happy New Year... Mrs. Howard H.

ANSWER: I think one of the two which follow may be what you want.

LEMON BISCUIT PUDDING

One and ⅞ cups sifted flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2½ tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 2-3 cup milk, 1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar, juice and finely grated rind of 1½ lemons (or 2 oranges), 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups boiling water. Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder, salt and 1 tablespoons sugar. Cut in the 2½ tablespoons butter with a pastry blender. Mix the egg and milk and stir them into the dough with a fork. Roll out on lightly floured board and cut into 2 or 2½- inch biscuits. Place these in a buttered dish about 10x6x2 inches in which you have first put the brown sugar, and lemon rind and juice, and 1 tablespoon butter in dots. After biscuits are on sugar mixture carefullly pour the boiling water overall. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes or until biscuits are done. The sugar and water and juice form the sauce for this delicious pudding.

LEMON CAKE PUDDING

Put sifter in mixing bowl and sift together ¼ cup sifted flour, 1 cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Into these stir 1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 well-beaten egg yolks, 1 cup milk. When smooth fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into 7½-inch buttered baking dish, stand dish in larger dish containing 1 inch warm water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes. Good warm or cold, but often served with whipped cream. I've mailed the chocolate pudding recipe.

LETTER: My scotch grandmother from Aberdeen used to make the best shortbread which I have ever tasted. She has been dead these many years, but I still recall her recipe for Scotch Shortbread. It was: A pound each of butter, flour and sugar and beat for an hour. When I read your recently printed recipe which was in terms of cups of the above I wondered how closely that would approximate the above recipe in actual requirements.

Your talks on food are good of course, but your facility in tying in a good philosophy of living is even better. Long may you continue.

HELEN S.

ANSWER: That's certainly sweet talk. Thank you. Thank you too for the old Scottish recipe. No, the proportions in my shortbread recipes by weight are different. They are to 1 lb. bread flour, ¾ lb. butter and only 6 ounces sugar. So you see the version we have become used to in Canada is less short and less sweet. I love the genuine Scotch type though. Won't you let me help you sometime?

LETTER: a reader enquired about Oat Cakes. I think this is authentic as it came from my Scotch grandmother: Oat Cakes: 1½ cup oatmeal (not rolled oats), 2 tablespoons drippings or butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, hot water. Mix oatmeal and salt; add the drippings to enough hot water for mixing—I usually start with 4 tablespoons. Add to oatmeal to make stiff paste. Knead well. Roll on lightly floured board very thin. Cook slowly on hot griddle until edges curl slightly.

I like an icing you gave us so well I tried it with the addition of 2 squares chocolate it is one of my best: 2-3 cup sifted icing sugar, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, 1 small egg, 3 tablespoons light cream, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons butter, 2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate. Melt chocolate over hot water with butter. Mix rest of ingredients in order given and beat until glossy and of spreading consitency.

MRS. J. A. K.

ANSWER: Thanks for Queen Elizabeth Cake and all your other contributions, and for improving on my recipe, and for your comments re your sister's experience. Scottish grandmothers came in handy today didn't they?

Is your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar-values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now—and if not, make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

HOPKINS, Daniel — Suddenly, January 1, 1954, in Brantford General Hospital, Daniel Hopkins, 17 South Street, Brantford (formerly of Peterborough), beloved husband of Laura Armson, dear father of Dorothy (Mrs. Bernard Smith), Shirley (Mrs. Elburn Clysdale), and William, brother of Mrs. Lila Dick of Brantford. Service in Brantford, 2 p.m., Monday, January 4th.

6—In Memoriam

BRADLEY — In loving memory of Mrs. Jane Bradley, who passed away January 4, 1950.
Four years have swiftly passed away,
But still we don't forget,
For in the hearts that loved you best
Your memory lingers yet.
—Lovingly remembered by her Sons and Daughters.

PURVIS —In loving memory of Annie Purvis, who passed away January 2, 1952.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
— Ever remebered by Gertrude, George, Eldon and Richard.

SYAFRANSKI—In memory of our beloved son Robert, aged seven, who passed away one year ago to-day, Jan. 1953. Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad and brother Richard.

7—Card of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. Bott and Bill wish to express their thanks to the neighbors of South Dummer and Aspodel for handing to them the proceeds taken at the door of the South Dummer School House, December 29th, at the Dance given in their behalf after the fire which destroyed their hens and chickens and the chicken house. Also to the ladies who supplied the supper and musicians who supplied the music — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bott and Bill, R.R. 1, Norwood, Ontario.

I would like to thank my neighbors and friends for their many thoughts of kindness shown me while I am in the hospital.—Billy Corrigan.

Hairy Apemen Sighted Again On Plantation

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) [illegible] south of the spot where they first frightened rubber tappers on Christmas Day.

As police said security forces in the Perak region of northern Malaya turned from hunting jungle terrorists to search for the strange creatures, a tapper reported seeing three of them—two males and a female — on his plantation at dawn.

Previously four persons had reported encounters with the animals which they described as "half man, half ape." Tall, fanged, and with a shock of unkempt hair, the creatures had a strong "animal smell," according to the accounts. Anthropologists disclaimed any knowledge of such beasts, but local folk lore contains accounts of creatures which fit the description. Scientists speculated that recent floods might have forced them out of their lair in Malaya's biggest jungle.

MISSING LINK?

As the hunt for the loin-cloth-wearing creatures continued today, anthropologists appealed against killing them in hope of finding evidence of a missing link between ape and man.

C. M. Browne, manager of the Trolak rubber estate, said today that the creatures had appeared friendly. He discounted suggestions that tney are Communist guerrillas in disguise or remnants of the Japanese army who have been in the jungle eight or nine years.

"The fang teeth is one point against either theory," said Browne who questioned all people who reported seeing the creatures.

Indian Reds Criticize Nehru's Stand

MADURA, India (AP) — An Indian Communist politburo spokesman, E. M. S. Nambudripad, said today that Prime Minister Nehru "is again proving himself the greatest wobbler in the world" in his stand toward United States-Pakistan military aid talks.

Nambudripad said in an interview after a politburo session that "we have been very disappointed" with Nehru's speech before the Indian National Trade Union Congress Thursday.

In a bid to head off Communist attempts to capitalize on anti-American sentiment resulting from Pakistan aid talks, Nehru told his governing Congress party labor front:

"India does not criticize these American talks with Pakistan out of any feeling that the United tates is a great, friendly country which has extended economic aid to us for which we are thankful."

Said Nambudripad:

"We will now have to watch to see whether he (Nehru) takes a correct stand or not . . . we have known Nehru for over 30 years and we know how he wobbles. We know his statements have no permanency. That is what (U.S. state secretary) Dulles is hoping to take advantage of."

The Indian Communist party's third congress in session here will consider a resolution on the Communist stand over the U.S.-Pakistan issue and policy toward Nehru.

First Baby Of Year In Cobourg Is A Boy

COBOURG (ENS)—First baby of the New Year was a boy born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dunn, of Cobourg, at Cobourg General Hospital. The baby arrived at 10.15 New Year's Day and weighed five pounds 13 ounces.

$1,300 Fur Coat Stolen From Car

COBOURG (ENS) — A $1,300 fur coat and $100 worth of personal effects owned by Mrs. D. W. Thompson, of Quebec City, were stolen while she and her husband were stopped for dinner at the Chateau Hotel Thursday evening. The thief got into the car after forcing a ventilator window.

Prominent Ottawa Man Dies From Injuries

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. Reginald M. Courtney, 82, a prominent Ottawa business man, died in hospital Friday night of injuries suffered three weeks ago when he was struck by a car.

A native of Ottawa and veteran of the South African War, he was the son of J. M. Courtney, deputy minister of finance for 28 years. He was head of an insurance firm in the capital.

Stirling Reeve Is Given Acclamation

STIRLING (ENS) — Citizens will go to the polls on Monday to choose four members of Council and three Public School Trustees.

Reeve R. K. West was re-elected by acclamation and H. J. Wells was elected as Public Utilities Commissioner when R. B. Bell withdrew.

The results of the nominations were as follows:

Reeve, R. K. West.

Councillors, E. G. Bailey, Harry Philp, Guy Bradshaw, C. A. Wells and Wm. Montgomery.

School Trustees, R. E. Fox, E. D. Ketcheson, Dr. E. A. Carleton, Don Rodgers and Clare West.

Girl 5, Introduces Herself To Queen

ROTORUA, N.Z. (Reuters) — A small girl, aged about five, walked past surprised officials today and introduced herself to Queen Elizabeth before more than 10,000 Maoris.

The Queen was sitting on a dais watching Maori traditional dances when the smiling girl climbed the steps of the dais, walked up to the Queen and shook her hand. Then she sat down confidently on the floor of the dais close to the Queen.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland persuaded her to sit beside him for the few remaining minutes to the end of the ceremony.

Ex-Italian Premier Has Slight Illness

ROME (AP)—Ex-premier Alcide de Gasperi was confined to his home in nearby Castel Gandolfo today with what was described as a "slight indisposition."

His illness was disclosed in a government announcement that Premier Giuseppe Pella would go to Gasperi's home to confer with the elder statesman, presumably about a cabinet reshuffle expected in the next few days.

Wants Curb On Powers Of Senate Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Guy Gillette (Dem., Ia.) today said he will ask the United States Senate to curb broad investigative powers in the field of international relations now held by the committee headed by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.).

"This is a glaring situation," Gillette said in an interview. "It is something that was never intended and I will ask the Senate to pass on it at the coming session."

McCarthy is chairman of the government operations committee and of its more widely known permanent investigations sub-committee.

Gillette said he wants the Senate to rescind authority for the government operations committee to investigate international affairs and give this solely to the foreign relations committee, of which Gillette is a member.

HAS FOUGHT McCARTHY

Although he has tangled with McCarthy in the past, Gillette made no mention of the Wisconsin senator in explaining why he sought the change.

"International relationships are delicate now and will be for unforeseen time," Gillette said. "The senate has given its foreign relations committee authority in this field."

Nova Scotia Babies First For Year 1954

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A baby girl arrived in Montreal on the stroke of midnight to become Canada's first-born of 1954 —if time zones don't count.

The seven-pound, 13-ounce girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse St. Hilaire, was born the closest to midnight local time. However, a Canadian Press survey shows two boys in Sydney, N.S., who [illegible] seven seconds past midnight, were actually the first born in Canada because Atlantic time is an hour ahead of Eastern.

One of the boys, six pounds, 10 ounces, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Levangie; the other was the seven-pound, 11-ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Rank.

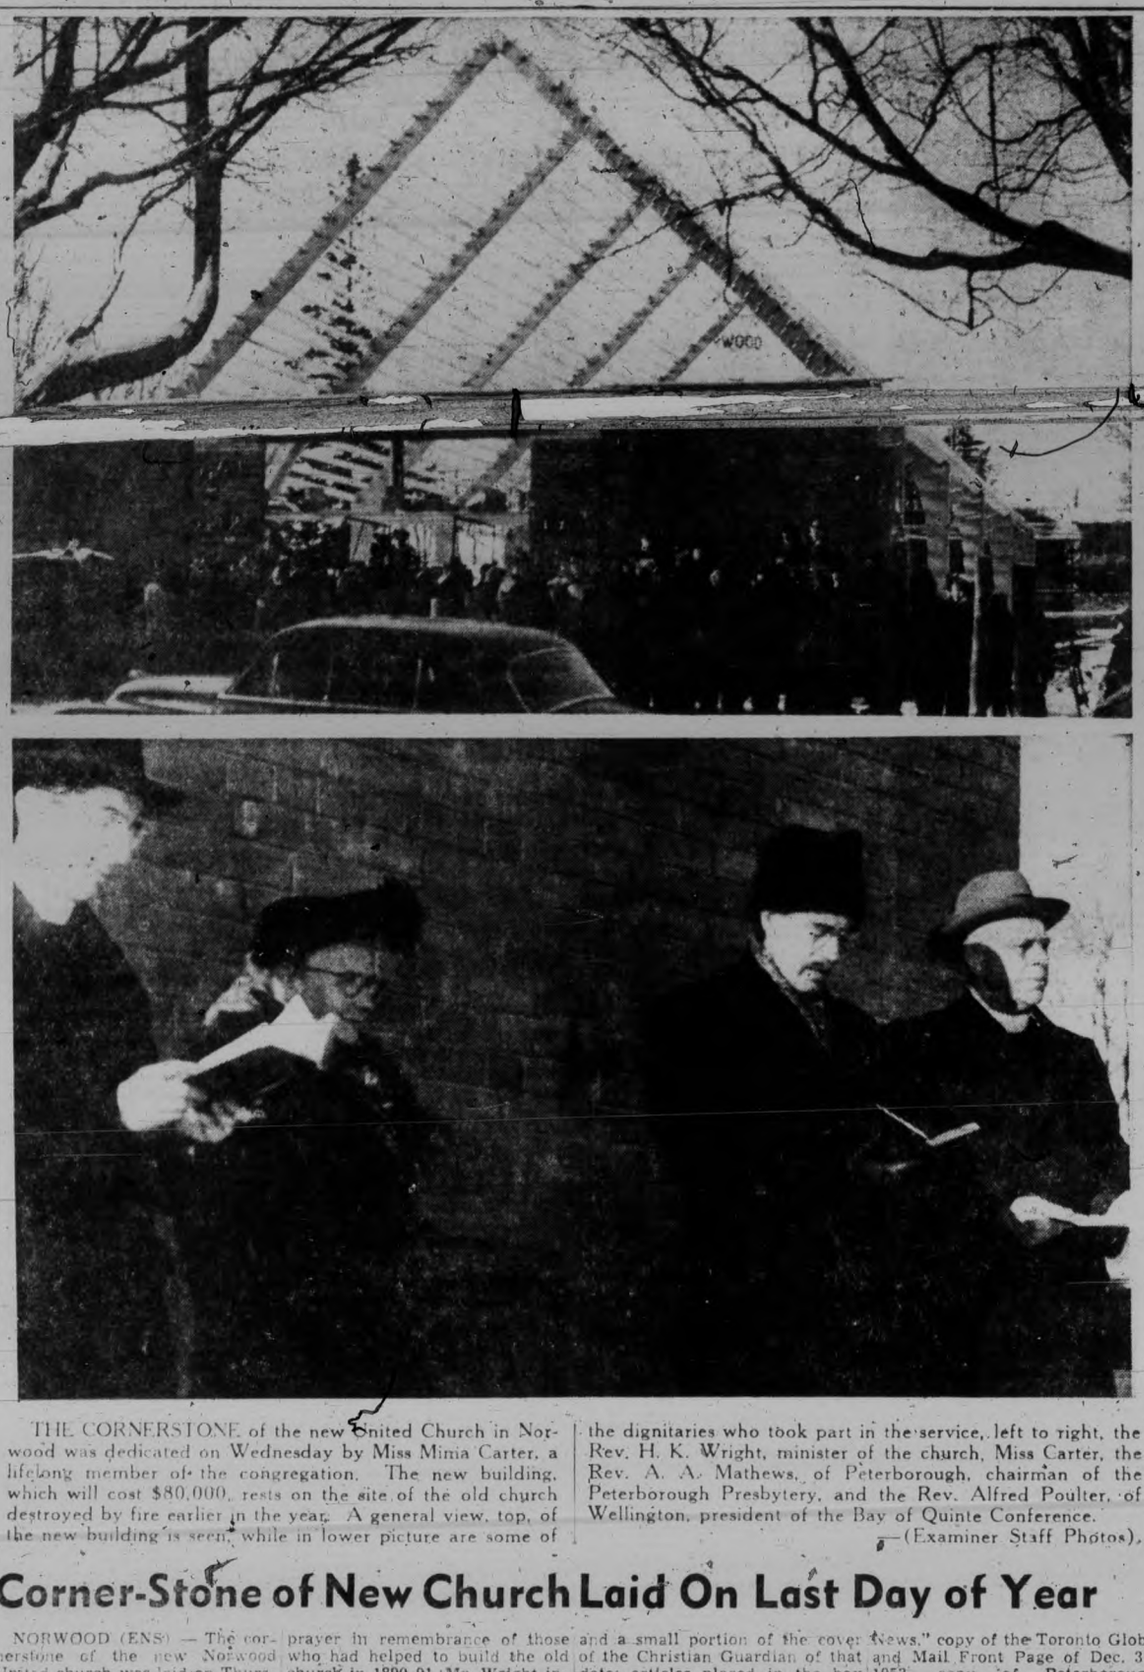
A trio from Montreal who arrived at one second past midnight were a girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Racine; a girl, born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl White; and a boy, born to Mr. and Mrs. Roger De Repentigny.

FIRST TWINS

The year's first twins were girls born to Mrs. Joyce Bacon, 24, at 4:15 a. m. and 4:27 a. m. EST. She is the wife of a Toronto warehouseman.

There were a couple of "two-second babies" in Ottawa and Quebec, both boys. Gilbert Roy, born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roy was Ottawa's first-born, while Ronald Gagnon was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Gagnon in Quebec.

Barbara Koch, born to Mr. and Mrs. Marion Koch, Harrow, Ont., arrived at three seconds past midnight and the start of Windsor's centennial year. The honor of being the city's centennial baby also brought a bronze cup and 100 diapers, one for each year of Windsor's history.



THE CORNERSTONE of the new United Church in Norwood was dedicated on Wednesday by Miss Mima Carter, a lifelong member of the congregation. The new building, which will cost $80,000, rests on the site of the old church destroyed by fire earlier in the year. A general view, top, of the new building is seen, while in lower picture are some of the dignitaries who took part in the service, left to right, the Rev. H. K. Wright, minister of the church, Miss Carter, the Rev. A. A. Mathews, of Peterborough, chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery, and the Rev. Alfred Poulter, of Wellington, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Corner-Stone of New Church Laid On Last Day of Year

NORWOOD (ENS) — The cornerstone of the new Norwood United church was laid on Thursday, the last day of 1953. There were two stones, one commemorating the opening of the old building in 1891 and the other bearing the date 1953. The stones were donated in the name of the Garden family in Norwood. Guest ministers were the Rev. Arnold A. Mathews of George Street United church in Peterborough, the chairman of the Presbytery of Peterborough and the Rev. Alfred Poulter of Wellington, the president of the Bay of Quinte Conference and the Rev. R. D. Duncanson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in Norwood.

At the opening of the ceremony the Rev. H. K. Wright gave a prayer in remembrance of those who had helped to build the old church in 1890-91. Mr. Wright introduced Miss Mima Carter, who was to lay the stone, Mr. Mathews and Mr. Poulter. This was followed by readings of the ceremony from the Book of Common Order of the United Church of Canada.

OLDEST MEMBER

Miss Carter, oldest member of the Norwood United church, joining 63 years ago. A prayer was offered by the Rev. H. K. Wright and he then read a list of the contents of the copper box placed behind the stone. The contents were as follows: from the old box of May 24, 1890: class book of Dr. S. Ford's class listing class leaders and members and some contributors to the building of the church at that time, small portion of The Toronto Globe of that date and a small portion of the cover of the Christian Guardian of that date; articles placed in the box having to do with the year 1953-list members of the official board, list of other church leaders, organist, choir director, caretaker, president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of each church organization, photograph of the old church taken a few years ago, list of members of the committee of building, financing and furnishing of the new church, names of the architect and builder, H. H. Roberts and Walter Mortlock respectively, special guests at the corner stone-laying ceremony, the name of the person laying the stone, Miss Mima Carter; the name of the person dedicating the stone commemorating the old church, Rev. H. K. Wright; copy of the Coronation number of the "Illustrated London News," copy of the Toronto Globe and Mail Front Page of Dec. 31, 1953, copy of Peterborough Examiner front page of Dec. 31, 1953, copy of the United Church Observer of Jan. 1, 1954, front page, copy of Norwood Register front page of March 26 after the fire, also clippings of that time regarding the fire and plans for rebuilding taken from the Peterborough Examiner and the Halifax Mail and Star, and a list of all the Sunday school teachers, officers and pupils in 1953.

Mr. Mathews brought greetings and congratulations from the Presbytery of Peterborough, Rev. Poulter greetings and well wishes from the Bay of Quinte conference and Rev. Duncanson greetings from the St. Andrew's Presbyterian church congregation. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. H. K. Wright.

16 Children Made Happy

The sixteen children at St. Vincent's Orphanage and eight at the home of the Children's Aid Society had a delightful Christmas extending through the week to New Year's.

At the Children's Home, the youngsters range from four to 11 years and at the Orphanage four to 16 years. Sister Edna, of St. Vincent's, said that most of their family were invited to private homes, sharing in the happiness that Santa Claus brings.

"People were most generous, and we received gifts of toys, clothing, fruit and sweets, apart from invitations out for Christmas Day, and in some cases for several days," Sister Edna mentioned today.

Gerald McMillan, of the Children's Home, told a similarly grateful story of interest in the happiness of the young CAS folk. They had their own Christmas dinner, some of them were also guests at private homes. "I think they were very happy," Mr. MacMillan said.

"There are many kind people who think of such things at Christmas time," he remarked.

The excitement at both little communities had just about passed today on the morrow of New Year's.

Henley E. Sorby Dies In Hospital

GORE'S LANDING (ENS) — Descendant of a pioneer family of this Rice Lake hamlet, Henley Edward Sorby died New Year's Day at Civic Hospital, Peterborough, where he had been a patient four months.

Mr. Sorby was born here 70 years ago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sorby, and resided at Gore's Landing most of his life except for occasional visits to [illegible]

He leaves four sisters in British Columbia, Mrs. G. S. Edwards (Marjorie), Mrs. W. S. Edwards (Garcie), Miss Bessie Sorby and Mrs. Hugh Rye (Millie), whose late husband was a native of Peterborough.

The Sorby family were pioneers of this place, having settled at the Landing in the early 1860's. They had come to Canada from Sheffield, England, where they had been prominent in the cutlery business.

In his youth, Henley E. Sorby had voyaged around the Cape of Good Hope in a sailing vessel, a long trip that was then regarded as quite an event in navigation. Several of the members of the family in the 1870's were baptized by the Rev. Archibald Lampman, the father of the poet, Archibald Lampman, whose literary work is esteemed by the people of Canada.

The body is resting at the McFadyen funeral home, Cobourg, until Thursday morning when the funeral service will be conducted at St. George's Anglican Church by the Rev. L. R. Pocock, of Millbrook, at 2 p.m. Burial will be in the parish cemetery beside St. George's Church.

East Germany Gets Malenkov Greetings

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov has sent East Germany's Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl his New Year's greetings expressing hope that 1954 will brush off the "danger of a rebirth of German militarism."

"The Soviet government extends the wish that the German people will be successful in 1954 in its just fight for the re-establishment of the unity of Germany on a democratic and peaceful basis and for the removal of the danger of a rebirth of German militarism, which is equally dangerous to the German people and the other nations of Europe," Malenkov cabled.

He expressed confidence that friendship between Soviet Russia and East Germany will grow closer.

Says Germans Purified Of Hitler Taint

FRIEDLAND, Germany (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today told 1,000 wildly cheering Germans—just back from Russian prison camps—that the people of West Germany now are "purified" of the taint of Adolf Hitler.

It was the 77-year-old leader's first visit to the huge camp here where 2,600 ex-prisoners have arrived since Christmas to return to their homes in post-Nazi West Germany.

He said his government would not rest until an estimated 102,958 other German prisoners were freed from captivity in Russia.

Boy's Frozen Body Found In Woods

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP)—The frozen body of 15-year-old Arthur Munro of nearby Sunnybrae was found today in woods about two miles from home.

The boy had been missing since Thursday. More than 400 men and two RCAF aircraft had been searching for him, although his chances of survival were slim because of near-freezing temperatures.

[illegible] Wed In Tower

LONDON (Reuters)—A United States marine married his English sweetheart in the Tower of London only a few feet from the bones of King Henry VIII's executed wives in the 900-year-old dungeon fortress.

The ceremony made Cpl. Raymond Schubert of Valley Stream, Long Island, the first American ever to begin married life in the gray prison by the River Thames.

The bride was Rosemary Reece, whose late father was one of the yeoman guards of the Tower. To her the Tower—last resting place of Old England's traitors, murderers and surplus Royal wives—brought back cosy childhood memories. She spent 13 years of her girlhood beneath the squat, grey Norman turrets.

As the couple said "I do" in the tiny St. Peter ad Vincula (in Chains) chapel four "Beefeaters"—Tower guards in their scarlet-and-gold 16th century garb—stood nearby at attention.

Holiday Toll Lower In United States

CHICAGO (AP) — The traffic death toll for the New Year's week-end holiday in the United States is running behind the Christmas total by at least 100.

There were 136 persons killed in highway accidents from the start [illegible] early today. In the corresponding period for the Christmas holiday the toll was 237.

Violent deaths also included 24 in fires and 20 in miscellaneous accidents. The 180 total compared to 285 in the same period during the Christmas holiday. The final Christmas traffic death total was 523.

FIRST YEAR DOWN

The Christmas total is included among the national safety council's estimated 38,000 persons killed in traffic accidents in 1953, the same as in 1952. It was the first year since 1949 that the toll did not increase.

The council earlier estimated that 360 persons would be killed in motor mishaps during the New Year's week-end ending midnight Sunday. However, Ned H. Dearborn, council president, said that if the present rate is maintained for the rest of the holiday period the toll will be under 300, the lowest New Year's traffic death toll since 1949.

Killed In Accident

SOUTH DURHAM, Que. (CP)—John Desroches, 55, of Montreal, was killed Friday in a highway accident near this town some 30 miles northwest of Sherbrooke.

Three other persons were injured but only one needed hospital attention.

Other Soldiers Involved In Cowardice Charges

LONDON (Reuters) — Headlines in British newspapers about cowardice among British forces in Korea brought an official government statement today on the touchy issue.

A war office spokesman said a second British soldier in addition to Fusilier Patrick Lydon, convicted last October, had been found guilty of cowardice in Korea. He said the man, not identified, received a five-year sentence, still subject to review.

The spokesman said there were other cases of troops in Korea which involved cowardice, such as desertion in the face of the enemy, but where cowardice was not actually mentioned on the charge. He said the trials had been open to war correspondents.

Maj.-Gen. Mike West, former commander of the Commonwealth division in Korea, provided headlines by declaring in a television interview Friday night that there had been several courts-martial for cowardice.

West had been asked whether Lydon's trial, which took place in England after his return from a Korean prisoner-of-war camp, was a "unique" case. Lydon, convicted of cowardice, was given a dishonorable discharge from the army and a year's suspended prison term.

West said he felt it is a crime to show fear in battle and thus run the risk of infecting others with it.

Man Found Dead At Foot Of Stairs

QUEBEC (CP)—J. A. Nolin, 60-year-old Quebec contractor, was found dead at the foot of a stairway leading to a cellar in one of his apartment buildings, seven hours after he left his home New Year's Eve.

Police said Nolin apparently fell down the stairs, suffering a fractured skull.

Wrote St. Louis Blues Composer 80, Weds

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP)—Composer William C. Handy, 80, who wrote the "St. Louis Blues," Friday wed his secretary of 16 years, Mrs. Irma L. Logan, 51.

The ceremony was performed in the Chapel of Christ Lutheran church.

Handy, a widower, is a great-grandfather. His home is in Yonkers. His bride is a divorcee and had been living in New York City.

No Motor Accident Injuries No Drunken Drivers Held

No injuries in motor accidents and no drunken drivers. Just a few bent fenders on small collisions on icy roads. That's Peterborough's score over the New Year's holiday.

The intensive campaign waged by city police and the Peterborough Traffic Safety Council paid off. Party-goers apparently heeded the 1954 slogan "Arrive Alive, Don't Drink and Drive."

"Pretty good," was the way Deputy Chief John Naples, a man of few words, summed it up.

ON ITS GOOD BEHAVIOUR

In fact, the city was on its best behaviour. There were no serious accidents, no drunken drivers, and no crime. Only two were lodged in the cells and they were locked up because of domestic brawls.

A list of the motor accident cases investigated by police:

A hit-and-run driver is reported to have caused $50 damage at 12:05 a.m. today when he struck the parked car of Harold Newnham, 24, of 570 Sherbrooke St. The Newnham car was parked on the north side of the street outside 272 London St.

The left rear fender and door were damaged.

ACCIDENTS REPORTED

At 9:45 p.m. New Year's Eve, Wilfred J. Hawkins, 212 Aylmer St., hit a parked car owned by Vern L. King, 457 Gordon Ave., when his auto skidded out of control at Wolfe and Rutherford Sts. About $400 damage was done to front of Hawkins' own car and about $150 rear of the King car. Constable Robert Muldoon investigated.

Two cars collided at McDonnel and Stewart Sts. about 10:55 New Year's Day on snow covered, icy streets. A car driven by Everett G. Hayes 27, 329 Mark St., travelling west on McDonnel St. and a car driven by Graham Horton 19, RR 3, Peterborough, going west and making a left turn, met in collision. The Hayes car suffered about $200 to the left front corner and the Horton car about $300 to the front. Constable William G. Scott investigated.

Thursday evening two cars met at King and Stewart Sts. They crashed when they couldn't stop in time on the slippery streets. Douglas J. Wilson 30, 927 Donegal St., travelling west on King St. had about $35 damage done to his car. About $400 damage was done to the car driven by James C. Maloney 27, 672 Stewart St., travelling north on Stewart. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

At McDonnel and Park Sts. on Thursday an out-of-town driver, Lloyd Bangs 35, RR 3, London St., and Martin Robbins 19, 535 Armour Rd., collided. Bangs, going west on McDonnel St., had about $250 damage done to his car and the Robbins car suffered about $200 damage. Constable Eldon McDonald investigated.

Turning into Dublin St. from Union St., Stanley Elliott 44, 204 George St., met in collision about 12:45 Thursday with Fred E. Hooper 51, 166 Dublin St. travelling east on Dublin. About $175 damage was done to each car. Constable William G. Scott investigated.

A truck and a car were unable to stop in time on slippery roads about noon Thursday and collided at Barnardo and Dumble Sts. Harry Blewett 36, Lakefield, was driving a truck west on Dumble St. John G. Buller 24, 45 Sophia St., was travelling north on Barnardo. Both vehicles suffered some damage. Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

A parked car and two other vehicles were involved in an accident on Park St. where cars were parked on both sides of the street. A truck was being driven north on Park St. by Jack R. Billingsley 23, 188 Reid St., and a car south by Francis William Hueston 21, 478 Murray St. When he saw the truck approaching, Hueston tried to stop but slid into a parked car owned by Aubrey R. Wilson 44, 248 O'Carroll St. About $150 damage was done to the Hueston car and about $100 to the Wilson car. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Turning out to avoid a car pulling out from the curb on Hunter St. east, Arthur Taylor 40, 514 Hamilton St., Thursday morning met in collision with a car travelling west toward him. About $350 damage was done to the Taylor car and about $100 damage to a car driven by Wesley Wakeford 30, 50 Ware St. Constable Victor McConnel investigated.

Coast Guard Aids 3 Ships

BOSTON (AP) — The United States coast guard started the new year by going to the assistance of three New Bedford fishing vessels which reported trouble.

The 86-foot Sea Ranger was towed into the Massachusetts port at 5:30 a.m. today from Quick's Hole in Buzzards bay off Cape Cod.

The vessel, with 11 men aboard, went aground Friday. She was refloated and towed to port.

The cutter Evergreen, meanwhile, was proceeding to New Bedford with the disabled fishing vessel Jerry and Jimmy.

The cutter Acushnet left Portland, Me., early today to assist the fishing vessel Rosalie S, which reported her steering gear disabled, also some 200 miles east of Boston.

Identify Slayer Of Trotsky As Spaniard

OTTAWA— The man who used a Canadian passport to exter Mexico to assassinate Leon Trotsky finally has been positively identified, the RCMP said Friday.

On Aug. 20, 1940, in a suburb of Mexico City, a man known as Jacques Mornard but who carried a Canadian passport with the name Frank Jacson, buried a mountain ice-pick [illegible] Russian revolution.

Mornard survived a severe beating by Trotsky's bodyguard and on April 16, 1943, was sentenced to 20 years in prison, maximum penalty for murder in Mexico. But the killer refused to reveal his real identy and it remained a mystery for years.

In an article in the RCMP quarterly entitled Passport to Murder, William Rodney, research specialist in the RCMP special branch, gives credit for the murderer's identification to Dr. Alfonso Quiroz, now Chief of Investigations for the Bank of Mexico.

Dr. Quiroz, Rodney wrote, pursued the case for years until he was able to prove conclusively through fingerprints found at Barcelona, Spain, that Mornard is really Ramon Mercador del Rio, born at Barcelona, Feb. 7, 1913.

Mexican authorities told Mornard, or del Rio, that he could apply for parole after Dec. 20 this year but apparently del Rio has not yet applied, possibly fearing assisination himself.

Rodney says: "The actual planning, and the events that finally resulted in Trotsky's death, show the nature and the extent of the international Communist underground."

The story began March 22, 1937, when Canadian passport 1377 was issued to Tony Babich, a naturalized Canadian citizen born at Lovinac, Yugoslavia.

Babich served with the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion, a Comunnist-organized Canadian unit of the International Brigade in the Spanish Civil War. Babich was killed in action and his passport fell into the hands of the Russian secret police.

Babich received his naturalization certificate, No. 77226-A, at Princeton, B.C., March 27, 1931. But the certificate found in the passport used by the assassin was No. 18506-E.

The certificate found in the passport used by Del Rio had been issued fraudulently at Montreal Nov. 26, 1929, to Frank Jackson. It bore the number 18586-H. Who Jackson was or what became of the person that received the certificate was never determined.

The system or illegal certifcate was later discovered and the naturalization certifciate issued to Jackson was revoked.

"During the preparations for the assassination," Rodney wrote, "the Russian secret police, realizing that Jackson's certificate had been officially nullified, altered the number from 18586-H to 18506-E."

"This certificate was inserted in the passport originally issued to Babich and the name on the passport was suitably altered to agree with the one on the certificate. There is no evidence available to indicate why the name was spelled Jacson — without the 'K'—on documents."

The article made these conclusions:

"The murderer's use of a Canadian passport, illegally acquired and deliberately altered to give false information, made the slaying possible, for it enabled del Rio to travel unmolested from Europe through the United States to Mexico.

"In the actual planning of the assassination, the role played by the Communist Party of Canada was probably negligible. Actually, at the time of the murder it was officially banned.

"However, the party's position within the framework of world communism was, and still is, highly important. The method by which the passport and false naturalization certificate were obtained show that conspiracy was then, as it is now, a permanent condition governing the actions of the party."

Soviet Needs 10 Years Of Peaceful Life For Internal Development

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The Soviet Union needs at least 10 years to get its "two to three years" internal development program on a firm foundation. In this fact lies perhaps the world's greatest hope for peace that will last.

In that 10 years, there is reason to expect, Moscow will avoid any risk of involvement in a major world conflict, even while attempting to hold its gains outside its borders. But with the many dilemmas and contradictions facing the Soviet Union, with its present trend of development, anything can happen.

Much of the Soviet Union today is like the America of the turn of the century, flexing its muscle. In today's world its development is likely to be swifter. The greatest obstacle in its way is the bureaucracy built up by the Communist party under Stalin. In order to approach successes promised, the government of premier Georgi Malenkov will have to yield a willing knife against the red rape.

There is no end of confidence being expressed, high and low—real confidence that the job can be done. Soviet people are looking anxiously but demandingly to Moscow and the "new government."

RELEASE MATERIAL

Some diplomats think it possible this government feels it can drain off some of the vast expenditures for army and armaments energy and new powerful weapons. Such a course would release much needed material and manpower for the consumer program. But the attitude of the Soviet army, more and more a power in today's Moscow, is a big question mark.

At any rate, the turning inward for which many in the West had hoped seems to be taking place. Along with this development comes a series of contradictions and dilemmas. Here are some:

1. While avoiding a major war, the Moscow regime cannot afford peace in the non-Communist sense of the word. It has experimented and found it still needed the ferocious enemy at the door.

2. But, while telling the people on the one hand that they are threatened by an outside enemy armed to the teeth and ready to strike, the regime also tells them to make more refrigerators and vacuum cleaners, household goods and clothing, passenger automobiles and radios. Such propaganda could produce skepticism. People might logically expect to be told they must tighten their belts and make weapons if an enemy is at the gates.

MUST DELIVER GOODS

3. Having promised the better life and advertised it so broadly and constantly, the new regime will be obliged to make some semblance of a delivery. It no longer has the absolute central power of the Stalin dictatorship, and its police arm has been weakened by the furious blood purge of Lavrenty Beria and the MVD. For the program to succeed, something must give way. Does the U.S.S.R. dare decrease its heavy industry production, its munitions or its armed forces?

4. The Moscow regime seems to have no intention of giving up its hold on that part of the world it now dominates. But this continues to drain manpower and resources needed on the home front. Already there is a severe manpower shortage.

5. The regime seems to have no intention of veering away from its policy of supporting Communist activities abroad, of encouraging chaos and rebellion. Yet, in so doing, it increases the danger of open conflict which it cannot afford.

6. While promising Communism, the regime actually is moving away from the Leninist path, even as its big neighbor, China, is struggling toward the Leninist goals. Already there is a vast sector of the Soviet population which can be considered middle class, with private property instincts and the determination to pass on to following generations what it has accumulated.

LITTLE IN COMMON

The middle class has little in common with revolutionary Bolshevism and the little taste for throwing away its gains for the glory of the world revolution.

There is still another factor. Although there is vast ignorance on the part of the Soviet people about the western world, the barriers already have been pierced. In order to take advantage of western methods, it has been necessary for the Soviet Union to expose a large number of educated persons to western influences. Evidences that the Soviet Union copies western ways can be seen on the streets of any Soviet city.

Sweeping Series Of Tax Cuts Aid U.S. Business

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — Business rang down the curtain on the 1953 boom this week and took the first cautious strides into a new economic era.

Calculated to get U.S. business off to a good start in 1954 was a sweeping series of tax cuts, the biggest reductions in federal taxes in [illegible] some 50,000,000 individual income taxpayers and 50,000 corporations.

Year-end layoffs in some industries, notably the railroads, pointed up the gradual decline that has been going on in many lines of business for the last six months or so. Behind the curtailments were filled consumer pipelines and a slowdown in defense procurement.

SCATTERED LAYOFFS

While some local areas were hurt, the scattered layoffs seemed less significant when measured against the country's total working force of nearly 62,000,000.

The last week of 1953 was also one of the slowest. The traditional year-end rally in stock prices was somewhat frayed. The New Year's holiday held industrial activity at a low ebb; steel and auto output showed little recovery from the depressed levels of Christmas week.

But the big auto makers were getting set for an all-out production war in January.

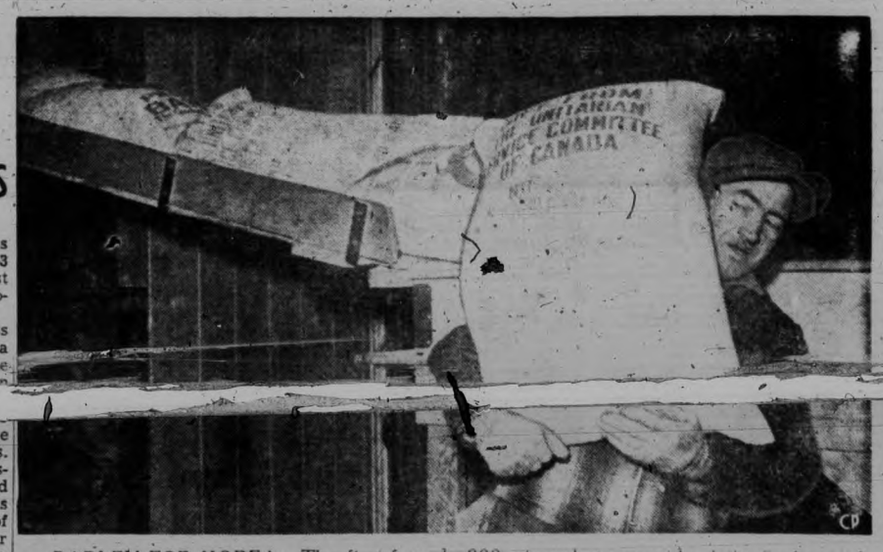
Retail trade, after a pickup in the last four shopping days before Christmas, slipped into the customary post-Christmas lull.

SHOPPING RECORD

The first official figures on Christmas shopping activity confirmed earlier estimates that 1953 Yule buying set a record.

The developing production race in the auto industry is expected to make this month Detroit's biggest January on record.

Between now and Feb. 1, the auto builders figure to turn out 527,800 cars. That would be a hefty gain over December's 409,800—nearly 30 per cent—but there's a big "if" in the picture. If dealers can't get rid of their present heavy stocks of unsold cars, the January production schedules could still be revised downward.



BARLEY FOR KOREA—The first four carloads of a 750-ton shipment of pressed barley for the hungry children of Korea is loaded at Saskatoon, Sask. The shipment resulted from a financial appeal launched by the Unitarian Service Committee for $100,000, enough to provide daily feedings of barley gruel for 125,000 Korean children for three months. A Canadian dollar provides a month's supply for five children. A second shipment will be sent from Peterborough, Ont.

Churchill Now Wears Smart Carpet Slippers

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill is sporting a new line in outdoor footwear—carpet slippers bearing his initials.

The 79-year-old prime minister brought the slippers out for the first time Thursday as he left his Downing street residence to drive to his country home at Chartwell.

He wore them with a gray stovepipe hat and a tweed coat with a fur collar.

Bus Service Ends

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP)—This Lake Ontario city was without bus service for the first time in 30 years as Frank L. Gould pulled his buses out of operation. Gould said Thursday that operating losses forced him to end the service.

MP Dies In England

EASTBOURNE, Eng. (AP)—Sir Frederick Mills, 88, Conservative Party member of Parliament from 1931 until 1943, died Thursday night.

Kremlin Festivity

LONDON (Reuters) — Grandfather Frost, the Russian Santa Claus, penetrated the Kremlin fastnesses Friday, in company with Little Red Riding Hood and other fairytale characters. They all helped entertain some 2,500 Moscow schoolchildren—the first ever to be invited to celebrate the New Year within the Kremlin.

Rose Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two international beauties — Miss France and Miss United States—and a magnificent floral display won the 65th annual Tournament of Roses Friday for nearby Long Beach. A crowd estimated at 1,200,000 gasped and applauded in admiration during the two-hour procession of colorful floats.

Fire Controlled

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A forest fire that menaced Mt. Wilson's observatory and television transmitters appeared virtually controlled today. More than 15,000 acres of watershed brush and pine forest had been destroyed with estimated damage of nearly $7,000,000.

Church Holds Annual Supper

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — St. John the Baptist Anglican Church held their annual congregational supper and Christmas concert Tuesday evening in Memorial Hall.

Supper araringements were in charge of Mrs. Stanley Goodall, Mrs. Charles King and Mrs. Murray Paterson and their assistants.

After supper, Mrs. N. Hinds led the childen in games until the program began.

The Rev. L. J. Delaney was chairman for the following program: Short play "A Typical Sunday School Class," by the children of Mrs. R. Connors' class; rhythm band, Mrs. R. J. Burgess' and Miss Barbara Chittick's class; a holiday acrostic, Miss Victor Griffin's and Miss Jean Wilson's class.

The children of the junior division of the Sunday School sang three songs, accompanied by Mrs. H. E. Gastle and carol stories were told, illustrated by the singing of the carols in their original language, Latin, German and English, by the pupils of Miss Helen Spannis, Mrs. Earl Robinson and Mrs. A. R. Gariepy. "Susy Snowflake" was sung by Cheryl Graham and Gail Hampton and a dialogue and chorus was contributed by Mrs. J. Twist, Sr., and her class.

A feature of the varied program was the play, "No Room At the Inn," written by Mrs. Gariepy, who was assisted in directing by Miss Spannis and Mrs. Robinson. The following were the members of the cast: Christopher Cooper, Anne Gariepy, Isobel Coons, Laurene Edwards, Eugene Stockdale, Brent Graham, Sheila Wickett, Teddy Witherstone, Sandra Spargo, Janet Twist; children, Barbara Crapp, Dorothy Hewett, Mary Myers, Anne Junkin, Marilyn Peacock, Marion Webster, John Delaney, Peter Graham, Fred Gariepy, Anne Witherstone, Paul Delaney, Gordon Coons.

During the tableau which concluded the play, "O Holy Night" was sung by Mrs. John Cocks.

Christmas treats were then distributed to the children from a gay Christmas tree, which was in charge of Mrs. Harold Deeth.

Canada Rediscovers Its Pioneering Spirit

LONDON (CP) — Lord Tweedsmuir said Friday he thinks booming Canada has rediscovered the pioneering spirit.

In a special new year article published in Canada Review, a London publication devoted to Canadian news and activities, the 42-year-old ex-Canadian army infantry officer and son of a former governor-general of Canada says Canadians have changed their attitude to the north and. It was once regarded as a desolate place which yielded only an occasional bonanza. Now the Canadian Shield, the rock crust of the north, "is known to be the lid of the greatest treasure house the world has ever seen."

During the Second World War Lord Tweedsmuir commanded the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Sicily and Italy.

All Gains Lost On Cattle During Week

TORONTO (CP)—Prices opened 50 cents higher on heifers, steers and cows but all gains lost to heavier receipts at the market's close at the Ontario stockyards this week. Hogs moved 50 cents higher and calves, sheep and lambs were steady.

A heavy cattle run of 5,405 head closed trading at about last week's levels with a clearance hard to opened at $20-20.50, a few $20.50 with a few selling about $20 for the rest of the week; good steers $19-19.50; mediums $17.50-18.50; plain steers and heifers downwards to $13. Good heifers opened at $18-18.50 and closed at $17-18; good cows $11-11.50; a few early $12-13; plain downward to $9; good heavy bulls $12-13. Good to choice fed yearlings $19-22; mediums downward to $17. Few plain to medium stockers $13-16.

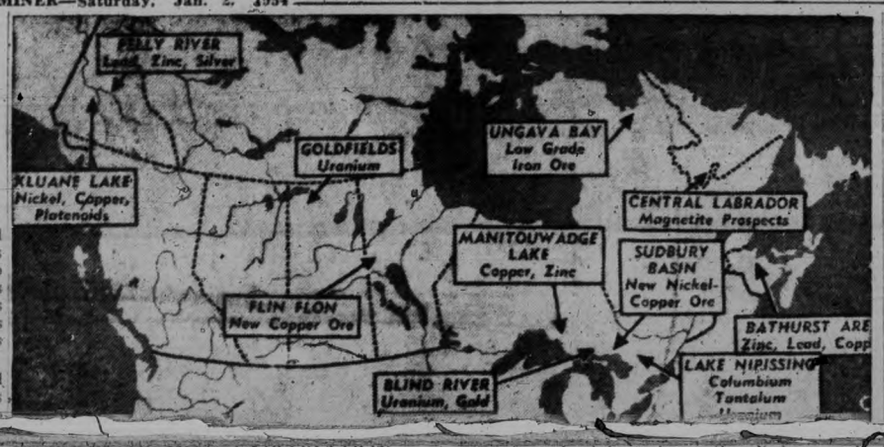
Calves totalled 808 with prices firm at $25-27 for choice vealers; medium to good $18-24; plain downward to $13.

Hogs were 2,106 head; prices rose 50 cents at $34 for grade A; dressed sows unchanged at $23.

Sheep and lambs totalled 253 head; good lambs $22.50-23; few choice up to $23.50; culls and mediums $14-20; good light sheep $8-10; culls $4-6.



BOOM IN MINE EXPLORATION — Canadian mining exploration had a busy year in 1953. From Newfoundland to the Yukon prospecting and developing parties reported important finds. In New Brunswick zinc, lead and copper ore bodies were being studied. Uranium in Saskatchewan, nickel, copper and platenoids in the Yukon and magnetite and low-grade iron ore in Labrador were among the fields being opened. In the Sudbury basin existing ore bodies were extended and new ones found in nickel-copper ore. At Lake Nipissing a large deposit of columbium-tantalum ore was found.

Massey Holds Annual Levee At New Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Massey Friday kept up a custom started by the king of France by holding the annual New Year's levee.

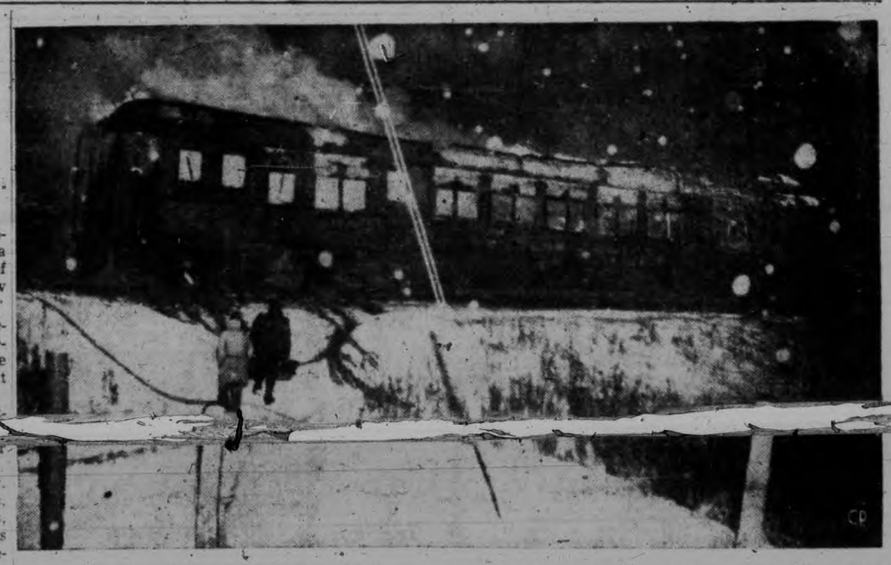
About 1,000 persons were presented to the governor-general between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the Senate chamber of the Parliament buildings.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ot- to preside at her own levee for civic employees and the public.

First to be presented to Mr. Massey were cabinet ministers, followed by the diplomatic corps, clergy, general public and officers of the armed forces, defence research board and RCMP.

OLD CONQUERORS

A 300-year occupation of Britain began when the Roman emperor Claudius defeated the ancient Britons in 43 AD.



ONE KILLED, 18 ESCAPE—One man was killed and 18 other passengers escaped into the sub-zero cold when fire broke out in a Pullman on Canadian National Railways' westbound trans-continental flyer near Pembroke. Police held Charles Faucault, of Noranda, for mental examination after he told them he fell asleep in his compartment with a lighted cigarette in his hand. All but one of the trapped passengers jumped through a window smashed with a travelling bag.

Freedom Of Worship In Russia

Number Of Churches Small But People Are Free To Go

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—Those who want to go to church in Moscow seem free to do so, but the number of churches is small for a city of approximately 6,000,000.

There are said to be 37 churches here of the permitted denominations—Russian Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Baptist, Jewish and Mohammedan.

I have attended Sunday services at Elihovsky Russian Orthodox cathedral and at the Roman Catholic church of St. Louis des Francais on little Lubianka street. I expect soon to go to the Baptist church, Jewish Central synagogue and to the Mosque.

PACKED CATHEDRAL

The cathedral service was packed. There are no pews and it took more than 10 minutes to work my way through the standing congregation to a point from which I could follow the picturesque rites.

The service was followed by communion for which most waited.

The congregation was mostly women but there were a good number of men, including officers and soldiers in uniform, and children from infancy to eight or nine years. There were not many of high school or university age.

By Canadian standards, St. Louis des Francais would be the church of a small parish. Its 16 rows of pews, crossed by two aisles, seat about 50 persons each. People stood in the aisles and almost filled the back of the church. I estimated the congregation at between 900 and 1,000.

PREACHED IN RUSSIAN

After the Latin-rite high mass, the celebrant went to the pulpit, read the gospel in Russian, preached a sermon and announced next Sunday's service. Almost everyone waited for a benediction service and an exchange of beautiful, melancholy, Slavic verses and responses between priest and congregation.

Again, most were women and old men, but there were younger men and women, too, a couple in uniform, and a sprinkling of school-age children, their heads shaved Russian style. The style and cut of the people's clothing seemed better than in the cathedral. I was told later a number in the congregation were Polish.

There was no questioning the devotion of the people.

The parish priest whose acolytes were two white-haired men with surplices over lay clothes, comes under the Archbishop of Riga.

St. Louis is the only one of four former Roman Catholic churches still functioning in Moscow. Friends who have travelled in Russia say catholic churches are open in Tiflis and Tashkent.

JEWISH POPULATION

Moscow is said to have nearly 500,000 Jews. One qualified observer told me that the usual Sabbath congregation at the Central synagogue is 200. He had no information about the smaller synagogues.

On important religious occasions, he said, the Central synagogue is packed, the congregation overflowing in the street where the service is relayed by loudspeaker.

Under Soviet law, classes may be conducted only by the state. Churches may give no instruction to children, so there are no Sunday schools. Once the age of 18 is reached those wanting to may study privately with a clergyman. Young men begin military service at 18.

There is a seminary for Orthodox priests at Zagorsk, 50 miles north of Moscow.

Two Canadians Included In New Year's Honors List

LONDON (CP) — A peerage to Richard Law, son of the late Canadian-born prime minister Andrew Bonar Law, and a knighthood to 84-year-old George Robey, grand old man of the British music hall, were announced today in the Queen's New Year's honors list.

Main honors in the 930-name civilian list included one viscount, five barons, five baronets and 59 knights. Once again the Queen, now in New Zealand on her Commonwealth tour, showed that her interests stretch far beyond official life by honoring men well known in the theatre, the arts and sport.

A knighthood went to 73-year-old sculptor Jacob Epstein, long a controversial figure in British art. Born on New York's lower east side, the shaggyhaired Epstein now is a British subject. In the field of sport, membership in the Order of the British Empire was awarded Arthur Wint, the Jamaican sprinter who hopes to run in the half mile in the British Empire and Commonwealth games at Vancouver next July.

A WEDDING GIFT

John Christie, founder of the Glyndebourne Opera, became a Companion of Honor, one of the most exclusive civil orders. Christie built an opera house in the grounds of his country home south of London and spent a fortune building it up to international fame. The project originaly was conceived as a wedding gift to his wife, the former Grace Mildmay of Vancouver, herself a singer.

Lt.Gen. Sir Charles Loewen, son of Charles J. Loewen of Vancouver, was made a Knight Commander of the Bath. The 53-year-old general is commander-in-chief of Britain's Far East land forces. His military schooling was at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

Best known of the 100 women honored were Countess Alexander, former chatelaine at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, whose husband, Field Marshal Earl Alexander—now British minister of defence—and Mrs. Pattie Menzies, wife of Australia's prime minister. They became Dames Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

POLITICAL HONORS

In the political honors, Law, 52, wartime minister of state whose New Brunswick-born father was Britain's prime minister 30 years ago, was one of two Conservative members of the House of Commons raised to the peerage. Sir Stanley Holmes, 75, was the other. Their transfer to the House of Lords will mean by-elections.

The list made a viscount of Lord Leathers, 70, who recently resigned from his cabinet post as coordinator of fuel, power and transport.

Apart from Law and Holmes, the new barons in the list are: Leslie Hore Belisha, secrtary of war from 1937 to 1940; Sir William Strang, 60, who has just retired as permanent undersecretary at the foreign office; The Earl of Drogheda, 69, one of the few remaining Irish representative peers who were elected to sit in the House of Lords before creation of the Irish Free State in 1922.

This last award is something of an oddity because nominally an earldom is of higher rank than a barony. But the five remaining Irish peers in the House of Lords are only life members, while the earl's new British title gives his descendants the right to sit in the upper chamber of Parliament.

PRIVY COUNCILLORS

In the fourth honors list of her reign, Elizabeth also appointed three new members to the Privy Council, highest constitutional advisory body. They are Sir Lionel Heald, attorney-general; John Boyd Carpenter, financial secretary to the treasury; and Keith Holyoake, deputy prime minister of New Zealand.

The five baronets are all Conservative M.P.s except Dallas Bernard, deputy governor of the Bank of England.

On the industrial side, knighthoods went to Leonard Lord, boss of the giant Morris-Austin motor combine, and to Ernest Lever, chief executive of the Steel Company of Wales.

Other new knights included S. S. Chrishton Mitchell, the government's controller of guided weapons and electronics; Amos Brook Hirst, chairman of the English Football Association, and William Ridsdale, retiring chief of the foreign office news department.

Glen Byam Shaw, director of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon, became a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

To the public the two best known in the list are Robey and Epstein.

Robey's stage properties are a clerical collarless frock-coat, a comic bowler hat—and two huge black eyebrows.

He made several English music-hall songs famous—including "Another Little Drink Won't do us Any Harm" and "If You Were the Only Girl in the World."

Epstein's sitters in recent years have included Sir Winston Churchill, Dr. Albert Einstein and Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru.

Born of Russian-Polish parents, he created sensation after sensation in the 1920s and 30s with his massive conceptions in stone. Religious bodies and newspapers attacked him for such works as his "Genesis."

Papers Criticize Honors List

LONDON (Reuters)—Several national newspapers Friday heaped criticism on the Queen's annual New Year's honors list, which announced the awards of titles and decorations to 930 of her subjects ranging from leading politicians to a humble bricklayer.

Among those knighted are Jacob Epstein, 73-year-old sculptor, and a comedian of 84, George Robey. The mass-circulation Daily Mirror devoted its whole front page to adverse comment on the "curious honors list."

It said the list "honors the past and gives no recognition for some of those whose names mean something to the public for what they are doing now."

U.K. Expansion In Canada Welcomed By Papers

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — British newspapers welcomed Friday news of further British expansion in Canada.

One item was the announcement Thursday by the £77,000,000 British Motor Corporation, controlling the Austin and Morris automobile companies, that a new company has been formed with head offices in Toronto. It will be called Morris Motors (Canada). The Austin company already has a Canadian branch, at Hamilton.

The second was a report that the British-owned Pyrene Company, producers of fire extinguishers, automobile accessories and anti-corrosion chemicals, have received Bank of England permission to raise some $600,000 to buy the Pyrene interests in Canada.

The Pyrene Company, said the Daily Mail, considers Canada offers big scope for expansion. "Apparently the treasury shares that view."

Thursday, it was reported that a British asbestos Company, Turner and Newall, Ltd., plans to spend £1,640,000 increasing output of asbestos ore from its mines in Quebec.

Body Identified

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police said Friday the sole victim of last Wednesday's train fire near here, Dr. H. A. Collins, 51, of Ottawa, has been identified by relatives. He was on his way to visit a niece, Mrs. W. G. Gartshire, in Haileybury, Ont., when the fire swept through the train.

Appeal Ends

LONDON (Reuters)—The Coronation Year appeal for funds to restore Westminster Abbey ended Thursday night still £173,000 (about $484,000) short of its target. But Very Rev. Alan C. Don, dean of Westminster, still held out hope that continuing campaigns abroad would boost the fund to its £1,000,000 goal.

Strikers Sign New Agreement

HAMILTON (CP)—Management of the Wallace Barnes plant in Hamilton Thursday signed an agreement with a union representing employees who went back to work during a strike called by the leftist United Electrical Workers (Ind.).

The agreement was signed while pickets of Local 520, UEW, still walked the picket lines. They called the strike last June 24.

The new union which signed Thursday's agreement is the Independent Canadian Springmakers Union, formed about the middle of October by men who wanted to go back to work. Their return to their jobs led to picket-line disturbances in mid-October.

The new contract provides for increases ranging from 11 to 13 cents an hour. New base rate is $1.47 an hour and top rate is $2.11. The work week is reduced to 42½ hours from 42½.

PM Cancels Visit To Australia

Finds Plans Conflict With Royal Tour, May Go At Later Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today the Australia-New Zealand visits of his round-the-world tour have been cancelled.

The prime minister said his proposed stops in the Antipodes have been called off because they would conflict with the royal tour in those countries. He is to leave Ottawa Feb. 4.

Mr. St. Laurent told reporters, on returning to Ottawa from a Christmas holiday at his summer home near Quebec, that he hopes to make arrangements later for a special trip to the two countries.

He said it has been arranged that he will not make the projected visit to Australia and New Zealand now "because it would clash with the organization for the royal visit."

ITINERARY SOON

The external affairs department is expected to issue Mr. St. Laurent's final itinerary within the next few days.

His tentative air route includes London, Paris, Bonn, Germany; Rome, Bahrein, Persian gulf; Karachi, Pakistan; New Delhi, India; Colombo, Ceylon; Jakarta, Indonesia; Manila, Seoul, and Tokyo, returning across the Pacific.

The prime minister's trip will take about six weeks.

15 Die, 45 Hurt In Rail Wreck

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Fifteen persons were killed today when a passenger train jumped the rails near Bhatinda Punjab, and plunged into a canal.

The nationalized Indian railways said another 45 were injured, 17 seriously.

ONE OF A SERIES

The Bhatinda wreck was the most serious in a series of railway mishaps in India during the New Year's period.

Eight persons were killed and six injured near Raxaul on the Nepal-Indian border when passenger and freight trains collided.

Earlier a number of railway workers were hurt in the collision of passenger and freight trains near Howrah station, Calcutta.

Choose Berlin For Atom Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department said today Secretary Dulles and Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov probably will meet and discuss President Eisenhower's proposal for a peacetime pool of atomic energy when they are in Berlin for the four-power conference opening Jan. 25.

Press officer Henry Suydam disclosed this at a press conference. He said American ambassador Charles E. Bohlen discussed the president's proposal with Molotov in Moscow last Wednesday.

"This first conversation," said Suydam, "was to discuss the best method of procedure as to how the substantive talks should be conducted."

Suydam said Molotov took Bohlen's remarks "under consideration" and promised to get in touch with him later.

External Affairs Dept. Announces Transfers

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert A. MacKay, 60, today was named deputy under-secretary of the external affairs department. He succeeds Charles Ritchie, who will accompany Prime Minister St. Laurent on his world tour next month.

Two others were appointed assistant under-secretaries: J. W. Holmes, 43, and Jean Chapdelaine, 39. They succeed Jules Leger, recently appointed ambassador to Mexico, and Mr. MacKay.

Mr. MacKay is a native of Woodville, Ont.

Mr. Holmes, born in London, Ont., has been acting as assistant under-secretary since his return last October from a two-year term on the directing staff of the National Defence College at Kingston.

Abbott Denies Canada Has Business Setback

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Canadian Finance Minister Douglast Abbott scoffed at rumors that Canada is suffering a business recession, when he arrived here today to attend the Commonwealth finance ministers conference opening Friday.

"We just closed a year of all-time high production," he told a press conference.

"Anybody who assumes we are headed for a serious recession is falling into a very grave error. There is no sign of any change in the business climate in Canada or the United States.

"Of course, like all countries we are affected by whatever happens outside our country."

Mr. Abbott also put in Canada's bid to play host to the next finance ministers conference.

"We would be very glad to have the next conference in Canada," he said. "It is not correct to descibe us as observers. We have a very great interest in the sterling area. . . . I think it would be a very good idea to have these conferences in different countries."

SUFFERS COLD

Mr. Abbott looked natty in a new lightweight suit he bought in winter-bound Canada before leaving. But the 107-degree heat wave which hit Sydney recently has now passed, and Abbott found the unseasonable cold and drizzle a "let down."

He was also suffering from an infected throat and cold he picked up on his flight from Canada.

Despite the weather, he said he is looking forward to his visit to Australia and the return trip through the Middle East and Italy.

Killed Wife, Daughter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said today construction worker Lee Prestwich shot and killed his wife Christmas Day and hid her body in a shed. Five days later he killed his 15-year-old daughter and then himself.

The bodies were found Saturday in their home in suburban Burnaby by Sandra Prestwich, 14, when she returned from a holiday visit to Calgary.

Will Divide Province Into Five Planning Areas

HAMILTON (CP)—A proposal to divide the province into five planning areas was announced today at the inaugural meeting of the 1954 city council by W. K. Warrender, minister of planning and development.

His department's concern at the growing encroachment of industry and housing developments on agricultural lands was one of the reasons for the new plan, said the minister, a former member of the Hamilton board of control.

The minister said he plans a series of regional conferences to divide Ontario's 412,000 square miles into five "economical logical areas."

Department officials would meet local government officials, zoning and planning man and industrial commissioners.

The department would set up a central authority from among area representatives, to be responsible for channelling future growth within its area along orderly lines, after zoning the entire area. There would probably be an overall central authority to give unity and coherence.

Mr. Warrender designated tentatively the five areas as follows:

1. The Lake Ontario, Niagara region, from Oshawa to Niagara Falls, heavily industrialized and heavily populated.
2. Southwestern Ontario bordered by the Great Lakes, Yonge street to North Bay and by area No. 1.
3. Southeastern Ontario bordered by Yonge street to North Bay, area No. 1, the Great Lakes system and Quebec.
4. Northern Ontario, a line from Sault Ste. Marie through North Bay to Mattawa north.
5. Northwestern Ontario from Sault Ste. Marie north and west to Manitoba.

Ask President Explain Reason For Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats will ask President Eisenhower at a White House briefing Tuesday to tell them why he thinks they should support his decision to withdraw two American divisions from Korea.

Senator Richard Russell of Georgia, senior Democrat on the Senate armed services committee, said he is anxious to learn the background for this military shift. Earlier, Russell said that the move seemed at first glance to "smack of appeasement."

Order Apemen Caught Alive

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) Bring-'em-back-alive orders went out to Malayan police today for three apelike creatures who have been reported terrorizing rubber estate workers.

At the same time Malaya's director of museums, G. T. Seiveking, said he is planning an expedition to the Scottish - owned Trollak rubber estated in Perak state to try and track down the trio.

Since their first appearance on Christmas Eve the three have been sighted by at least half-a-dozen people who have given a clear picture of what the creatures look like. All agree that they are tall —around six feet—and well built, chests and arms.

Seiveking said the apparent female of the trio—clad, like the others, only in a yellow loin cloth made of bark or skin—had a mustache. They all "ran like human beings and did not use their arms to propel themselves," he reported.

Seiveking added their bushy, pronounced eyebrows, along with sharply receding foreheads, suggested a "taurus ridge"—a physical characteristic of primitive man.

$300,000 Fire At Supermarket

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Fire ripped through a Loblaw supermarket here Sunday, doing $300,000 damage.

Firemen early today continued to pour water on the smouldering ruins of the store that was opened just three months ago. Canned goods exploded from time to time throughout the night, sending up bursts of ashes and sparks.

The blaze tore through the building in little more than an hour, collapsed the roof, knocked down two walls and part of another. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

The store is located about 1½ miles east of here on No. 2 highway, a main route between Toronto and Windsor.

77 School Teachers Strike In Alberta

JASPER PLACE, Alta. (CP)—Seventy-seven public school teachers went on strike today in a wage dispute with the town school board, closing six public schools and leaving some 2,300 students without classes.

It was Alberta's first teachers' strike in 13 years and the fourth in the province's history.

School officials in this town of 12,000 on Edmonton's western outskirts said only maintenance men reported for work today at the struck schools.

The teachers are members of the Jasper place local of the Alberta Teachers Association. They struck when they were unable to agree with the school board on the date a government arbitration board award should go into effect.

5 Aldermen Sworn-In At Inaugural

Mayor's Address Follows Pattern Of Past Inaugurals

Norman G. Graham was installed into office as Peterborough's 38th mayor this afternoon at a ceremony in the council chambers of the city hall. The chambers were filled long before the ceremony of swearing-in the new mayor and the five aldermen, elected at the municipal election on December 7, commenced.

City clerk Outram administered first the oath to Mr. Graham and then to the aldermen: Mrs. Alene Holt, the first woman to occupy a seat on the city council; John A. Dewart, Stanley A. McBride, Patrick J. Anglesey and Gordon F. Powell.

The opening prayer and invocation of divine guidance for the council for 1954 was offered by the Rev. Maurice P. Poole, rector of All Saints' Anglican church. Mayor Graham then delivered his inaugural address.

WELCOMES MEMBERS

The address followed the style of many of those given during the past 104 years of Peterborough's municipal history. It opened with welcoming the new members and congratulating Aldermen Dewart and Anglesey on being returned.

The need of new industries was stressed and mention was made of the progressive expansion of the present industries in Peterborough during the past few years.

Mayor Graham advocated a study being made "of establishing in Peterborough a certain type of home or homes for our older citizens."

In an endeavor to keep the tax rate to a minimum the new mayor favored a study "of the different departments to assure ourselves that they are being operated economically and in the best interests of the citizens."

The memorial centre and the providing of a suitable site was mentioned as one of the first items the council should deal with.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Following is the text of the Mayor's address.

"It is a pleasure to see so many of our citizens here this afternoon, at this Inaugural Meeting of the 1954 council.

"Your attendance shows that as citizens of Peterborough you are interested in the affairs of the city.

"May I take this opportunity to welcome the new members of the Council, Mrs. Holt, Stanley McBride and Gordon Powell, and I am sure they will make a real contribuation in solving the problems which will arise during the year. I also desire to welcome the return to Council of Aldermen Dewart and Anglesey.

"Peterborough is investing large sums of money in new schools and other services necessary to a growing city, and new industries will be helpful in sharing the costs of these improvements."

INTEREST NEW INDUSTRIES

"Industrial expansion during the past few years has been chiefly through the progressive enlargement of some of our long-

Police Trap 3 Safecrackers

TORONTO (CP)—There was a cops-and-robbers thriller at the Odean-Danforth theatre Sunday. But the two score police and their 10 police cruisers were real. So was the $7,000 in cash in the theatre safe.

As three men, whom police describe as members of a well-organized gang, pounded sledgehammers into the wall near the safe, police covered all roof tops around the theatre.

One of the men opened an exit door and saw a policeman. He slammed the door to warn his pals.

Attempting to escape, the trio tried to turn on lights to a tunnel under the theatre but flashed on he marquee lights instead.

Then they tried to leave by various exits and roof doors but were cut off. They hid finally in a projection room and were flushed out at gunpoint.

Charged with breaking and entering and having burglar tools and explosives in their possession are Stan Edwards, 34; William Ferguson, 30, and Thomas Cavotti, 27.

Police said they had ingredients for "enough nitro-glycerine to blow up downtown Toronto."

Will Not Resign

OTTAWA —(CP)— Hon. George Drew said today he has "no intention of resigning" as leader of the Progressive Conservative party. Mr. Drew was commenting on a report, not carried by The Canadian Press, that he would resign his post this year. "I have no intention of resigning nor have I at any time indicated such an intention," he said in a statement issued from his office.

Europe's Dikes Holding Against Storm

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe's dikes and sea walls, age-old bastions against the raging oceans, stood strong and firm today after 24 hours of battering by gale-churned seas.

Anxious watchers, remembering when flood waters burst through the dykes and wrecked vast areas of the Low Countries and eastern England last February, signed with relief as they watched the seas die down.

In England, police and the coast guard kept an all-night vigil in low coastal areas, then left their watch as weathermen reported soon after 10 a. m. that high tide had passed safely.

In The Netherlands, where overnight water levels were the highest since last winter's floods in which 1,795 persons died, the situation was reported nearly back to normal.

STORM STILL RAGES

But the storm which smashed the calm of Europe's winter with sudden force Sunday still raged in many places. Blizzards and heavy snow falls were reported from Scandinavia to Italy.

In Denmark, the little Jutland town of Randers was flooded during the night by the worst gale in several years. Townsfolk rowed today through water-logged streets to salvage their belongings.

In Odense, salvage workers toiled with sandbags to patch up dikes protecting the town from a nearby canal, which threatened to burst its banks.

TRANSPORT SNARLED

Swedish road, rail and air transport was snarled after an 80-mile-an-hour blizzard swept the country. Stockholm airport was snow-bound, roads in northern Sweden were completely blocked by deep snowdrifts, and some rail services were cancelled.

In Italy, too, heavy snowfalls—

Fail To Find Mercy Plane

WINNIPEG (CP) — An RCAF search plane which today flew to the reported location of a mercy plane, forced down in the barren lands near Baker Lake, N. W. T., has been unable to locate the ski-equipped Norseman and its three-man crew.

A plane from Churchill, Man., Sunday night was unable to spot any flares or fires during a four-hour search. Today another plane sent into the search area reported visibility was good, and its crew said they had high hopes of sighting the missing Norseman.

Since Saturday the RCAF crew members have been huddling in weather as cold as 50 below on a frozen lake 30 miles short of their destination, the Northwest Territories outpost of Baker Lake.

In darkness Sunday they fired a flare which was spotted by an RCAF Dakota flown in from Namao, near Edmonton.

Later, they made radio contact with another Dakota, telling the pilot their only need was for more fuel.

2 Toronto Students Barred From U.S., Freed In Florida

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP)—Two University of Toronto students, both members of the Young Progressive Conservative Club at the university, have been refused admission to the United States pending a hearing. Edward S. Rogers, 20, and William M. Boultbee, 21, both of Toronto, were stopped from entering the U.S. on their way home from a New Year's holiday in Nassau, The Bahamas. They said they were detained after they refused to sign under oath a statement they were not allowed to read. An immigration official told them they are suspected of having Communist sympathies.

The youths are scheduled to appear Tuesday before a U.S. immigration board.

They were held incommunicado for nearly three hours Saturday at Palm Beach international airport while they made up their minds about signing the statement.

Later they were released on bail of $1,000 to Mackey Airlines Inc., until the hearing. The airline flew them to Palm Beach Saturday from Nassau.

They originally planned to fly as far as Fort Lauderdale and drive from there to Toronto.

In their hotel room Sunday night they said they intend to study and rest until they go before the immigration board.

Boultbee is a great-nephew of the late Sir William Mulock, one-time chief justice of Ontario, who was chancellor of the University of Toronto and a self-avowed foe of communism which he once described as "hell on earth."

Rogers is a son of the late Ted Rogers, founder of the Rogers-Majestic Company and Toronto radio station CFRB.

TELLS HIS STORY

Rogers, vice-president of the Young Progressive Conservative Club at the university, said in an interview:

"We went through customs at Palm Beach and were sitting in the waiting room when I heard my name called.

"I was questioned briefly by a man I later found out was Louis F. Daboll, an immigration officer. He told us we were being detained for further investigation under the McCarran Act for suspected Communist sympathies.

"We thought for a minute he was joking, but we had heard of enough other incidents to make us realize he was serious."

Daboll refused to discuss details of the case before the hearing. He said the students were held up because he was "not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt" that they should be admitted.

Plan Trip To Moon

LONDON (AP)—Scientists are now planning to send an unmanned rocket to the moon to take photos and bring them back, a British astronomer said today.

Dr. John G. Porter, an official of the Royal Greenwich Observatory, told a student audience here that space trips by humans also may be possible in the future. He said the planet Mars as well as the moon might be "well worth visiting."

Three Children Die In Attic Home Ablaze

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Fire snuffed out the lives of three of the six children of a Saint John family Sunday morning.

Masked firemen were beaten back by searing flames as they sought to enter the crowded attic apartment by the only staircase. The mother, one son and a nephew, all suffering burns, were rescued by firemen and neighbors. The father, at work, and two older boys had left before the outbreak.

Dead are Gail, 2, Paul, 4, and Gary, 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Winchester.

In the general hospital are Mrs. Winchester, 28, with a severe head cut and burns suffered while attempting to reach the children in their bedroom; her son, John, 12, and Donald Ingersoll, 14.

Thirteen others were left homeless.

TWIN PREVIOUS VICTIM

It was the second time tragedy had visited the three attic rooms occupied by the Winchesters. Paulette, twin sister of Paul who died Sunday, died of suffocation in her bed at eight months. It was the third fire in the building in recent years and the second time the family had been driven from the apartment by flames.

Cause of Sunday's blaze is not known, but it started in the kitchen.

Fire chief K. S. Knight and a representative of the provincial fire marshal's office will start an investigation today. Dr. R. M. Pendrigh, coroner, has ordered autopsies on the bodies of the three victims but has not decided about an inquest.

Injured was a fireman—Lieut. Arthur Morris, treated at hospital for cuts.

Coolie Supply Lines Bombed

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French fighters and bombers resorted to moonlight attacks early today to hit coolie supply lines to the Communist-led Vietminh forces threatening an assault on the French-fortified plain of Dien Bien Phu.

The enemy-surrounded position just north of Laos is the last French stronghold in the mountainous Thai country of northwestern Indo-China.

By night and by day, French fighters heavily strafed the rebel troop columns and thousands of peasants packing in war supplies on their backs. The Vietminh have been moving their coolie convoys mostly at night in an effort to escape air attacks.

The Vietminh "Iron" Division 316 has spread out in a wide encircling movement around Dien Bien Phu and been reinforced by units from two other divisions. The Communist command has not yet attempted to launch its long-expected major assault.

French patrols reported only clashes, and one foray netted only one Vietminh killed.

Is Something Wrong?

Four Top Detectives Resign From Scotland Yard

LONDON (AP) — Is something wrong with Scotland Yard?

Britons asked themselves that question today at the news that four of the country's top detectives in the last fortnight have resigned from "the Yard," nerve centre for crime detection throughout Britain.

The four are Cmdr. Hugh Young, boss of the Yard's criminal investigation department; Chief Superintendent Arthur Thorp, head of the Yard's anti-fraud squad; finger print expert George Dunn, and Superintendent Jack Black, second in command of the "big five"—the quintet of sleuths called out to lead the country's big murder hunts.

Britons are uneasy at newspaper suggestions that the resignations may be due to disagreement among CID officers with new regulations brought in by Commissioner Sir John Nott-Bower, recently appointed boss of the Yard.

Poor pay—after 22 years' service a constable's maximum wage is only around £10 a week—and slow promotion are the main reasons leading more than 200 policemen to hand in their resignations within the last six months.

But the alleged headquarters revolt is thought due to a new directive from Nott-Bower giving ordinary uniformed policemen the power to do their own detective work. Hitherto, uniformed police have had to turn over to plain clothes detectives the investigation of any crime they are called to.

Nott-Bower is believed to have ordered the change to stimulate recruiting by giving the man who pounds the sidewalks a more interesting job.

Uncover Secret Plans

Reds To Build Guerrilla Bands In India

MADURA, India (AP)—Government intelligence officers say India's Communist party has drawn up secret plans to build a Red guerrilla force along the country's northern borders while publicly pledging itself to seek parliamentary power without bloodshed.

The officers said Sunday night they had "definite evidence" such a scheme was part of the unpublished portion of a program adopted by the third Indian Communist Congress before its adjournment here Sunday.

These sources reported that the Reds planned to organize "militant units" in states bordering east and West Pakistan under the guise of a defence force against that country. This would take advantage of Indian antipathy toward the Islamic neighboor and recent bitterness over reports the United States might furnish Pakistan arms aid.

The Madura committee of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party met in emergency session and put through a resolution warning: "The Communists have been in session in Madura for one reason alone—to hatch a plot to create civil war in our country beginning in the north."

On the surface, the Red congress charted its course along moderate lines by returning to power secretary-general Ajoy K. Ghosh and electing a predominant bloc of his followers to the 39-member central committee and nine-man politburo. Ghosh has promoted the party's "peaceful action" program and held down terrorist elements since he took over as party boss two years ago.

Openly taking advantage of strong feeling over the reported U. S.-Pakistani military aid discussions, the Reds approved a resolution calling on all Indians to form a "united campaign against attempts of U. S. imperialists to blackmail India to line up behind their war policy."

MAY CONTROL BORDER

By forming guerrilla units and massing arms at key points in the border areas—many of them near Communist Chinese territory—the Reds might count on bringing tribal regions remote from New Delhi under their control.

Nehru's government already is facing unrest in the northeastern frontier area of Assam.

Indian intelligence sources said the Communist plan also calls for closer ties with Burmese Reds as a possible supply line for smuggling arms to the Communist-led Vietminh forces in Indo-China.

U.S. Senators Meet Gouzenko

Secret Conference Believed Held In Montreal Area

MONTREAL —(CP)— Two United States senators were believed today to be meeting [illegible] Gouzenko, but elaborate security precautions were taken to guard the secrecy of the meetings.

The precautions were taken to protect the anonimity of Gouzenko, under close police protection since he disclosed operations of a Russian-directed spy ring in Canada in 1945. The former cipher clerk has been living in an Ontario community under an assumed name.

There was speculation that Gouzenko was in or near Montreal terms. The government said it William Jenner, Republican chairman, and Pat McCarran, former Democrat chairman of the U. S. Senate subcommittee on internal security.

HAD SIX-HOUR PARLEY

The senators arrived here Sunday from Washington. Following a brief interview with newspaper men they were whisked off to an uptown hotel for a six-hour conference. They then set out for an undisclosed destination.

The interview was requested by the U. S. government for Senator Jenner. When the request first was made, the Canadian government replied that Gouzenko had no new information to offer. The Canadian government later agreed to the meeting, but set out its own terms, the government said t alone would decide whether information obtained at the meeting could be made public.

Senator Jenner agreed to the Canadian conditions.

When the U.S. investigating team arrived, they were greeted by Douglas Stuart, U.S. ambassador to Canada, and superintendent J.R. Lemieux of the RCMP who imposed security regulations.

NO STATEMENT

Senator Jenner, asked if there would be a statement after the meeting, said:

In the first place, we don't know where we shall be. In the second, we won't release anything that is not approved by the Canadian government.

"We are only concerned about the internal security of our country. From our investigations and leads we believe Gouzenko has information which we need."

Queen, Duke Enjoy Holiday At Lake

ROTORUA, N. Z. (Reuters) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh had their first full day off today since the start of their Commonwealth tour.

They relaxed on the lakeside beach at Moose Lodge, one of the loveliest vacation spots in the country.

Police guarded the gates to keep away sightseers.

In the afternoon, when the duke went sailing, a government launch patrolled the lake nearby to prevent holidaymakers afloat from getting too close.

Tuesday is also free from engagements for the royal couple.

On Wednesday they begin again their round of official visits in the North island, with an air trip to Gisborne, and civic receptions there and at Napier.

Silverwood Men Get $9 Raise In Agreement

TORONTO—A threatened milk dispute between Silverwood Dairies Ltd. and the Retail and Wholesale Dairyworkers Union, CIO-CCL, was settled Sunday when a new contract between the union and company was signed.

An open end clause in the contract calls for re-opening negotiations on days worked by retail sales men if the Milk Control Board's order for five-day deliveries is rescinded before the contract expires on Oct. 1.

The agreement raises retail salesmen's basic pay from $48 to $57 for a five-day work week. Wholesale salesmen received a $9 per week increase from a five-day work week with six-day delivery.

Plant employees also received a $9 increase for a five-day work week on six-day operation.

Retroactive pay on the new scale will give each employee a little more than $200. The union accepted $60 per employee to cover the period from certification on June 15, 1953, to Sept. 13, and $9 per week each from Sept. 13 to Jan. 2.

The department took the action after a request from D. R. Michener, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto St. Paul's.

An official of the United States embassy here said it appears the case may be nothing more than an "overzealous" immigration official mistaking the Young Progressive Conservative Club for the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party.

The U. S. embassy asked the American state department for a report on the case from the justice department, responsible for immigration.

The storm took its toll of shipping and sent tiny coastal vessels scurrying for shelter. The German freighter Traustein and the Greek tanker Leros both ran aground off the north German coast in a heavy snowstorm. The British collier Foch Rose ran ashore at Shoreham, southern England, and partly blocked the harbor mouth.

OBITUARY

MRS W. J. PUFFER

HAVELOCK (ENS) — The funeral took place today of Mrs. Lula M. Puffer, wife of William J. Puffer, from the Curtis funeral parlours to Havelock United church where the service was held at 2 p.m. conducted by the Rev. R. G. Newman. Burial was in the Campbellford cemetery.

Mrs. Puffer died in The Toronto General Hospital, Friday, where she had been a patient for about six weeks.

Born in Napanee, Mrs. Puffer was formerly Lula M. Campney, a daughter of the late Jesse Campney and Sarah Masters. She came with her parents to Havelock in the early days of the history of the village and has resided here for many years although through the years she has lived in Lindsay and Belleville. She was living in Lindsay when she was taken to the hospital having returned there with her husband a few months ago.

Mrs. Puffer was a member of the United church and was active in the work of the women's organizations especially of the WMS in which she took a keen interest.

She is survived by her husband.

U.S. President's New Program Called Dynamic

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Eisenhower gave Republican legislative leaders a detailed review today of his program for the new session of Congress, and House Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.) hailed it as "dynamic" and "progressive."

"We all think it is a program that will be well received by all elements of the country," Martin said.

[illegible] for the president. Tonight, he will go on radio and television at 9:30 p.m. EST to discuss what his administration has done so far and to outline the philosophy of the program he will recommend in the state-of-the-union message to be delivered in person to a joint Senate-House session on Thursday.

That message will lay down the general outline of his legislative program.

WILL GIVE DETAILS

In a series of later messages, Eisenhower will deal with specific subjects.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty announced the president will submit his 1954-1955 budget to congress Jan. 21 and will follow it with the annual economic message on Jan. 28.

Hagerty said Eisenhower will send Congress speciol messages recommending farm and labor law changes Jan. 11.

Today's 2½-hour meeting with nine Republican congressional leaders and the cabinet was preliminary to a session Tuesday which will bring Democratic leaders to the White House along with Republican lieutenants.

MEET WEDNESDAY

Congress convenes at noon Wednesday.

Since the end of the first session, Democrats have gained a numerical advantage in the Senate, through the death of Senator Robbert A. Taft and the appointment of Senator Burke (Dem. Ohio) to replace him.

Although they have 48 senators to 47 Republicans and one Independent, they do not plan any move to try to seize Senate control. The House of Representatives is almost evenly divided, too, with 219 Republicans, 215 Democrats and one Independent.

established factories. It was the extension of our existing industries which was responsible for the marked increase in our population, and resulting in very extensive service programmes. I think it should be the aim of the 1954 council to do everything possible to interest new industry to locate in this city.

"With the recent annexation and extension of services, there is plenty of land available for housing and industrial development.

"For some time we have heard of the necessity of a certain type of home or homes for our older citizens, many of whom are pensioners and all of limited means, and I feel a thorough study should be made to find an answer to the situation.

"The city also owns several properties such as the old Isolation hospital and the Turner house; these, I feel, should be put to some worth while use, as it is a waste and a shame to let such buildings continue to be unoccupied.

"Parking continues to be a problem, and every effort should be made to alleviate that trouble, and in some way make it easier for the shopper and the business man in the down-town area."

"One of the first items facing the 1954 council is to provide a suitable site for the Memorial Centre, so that the Building Committee can make the necessary plans to start work at the earliest possible date, after provision has been made for the extra money neded to complete this project.

"Our tax rate should be kept at a minimum this year, and in order to do so, I think a thorough study should be made of the different departments to assure ourselves that they are being operated economically and in the best interests of our citizens.

"Peterborough is in a very fine financial position, and it should be the aim of the 1954 council to maintain that position by practicing economy and living within its budget.

"I wish to thank the citizens of Peterborough for their confidence and the honor bestowed upon me, in electing me the 38th mayor since incorporation, and I assure you that with your help, the advice and cooperation of all those in our civic departments, and the members of the council, I will do my very best to warrant that confidence and honour.

"Ladis and Gentlemeen, may I at this time wish you a very happy and prosperous New Year."

3 People Overcome By Illuminating Gas

TORONTO (CP) — Two women and a five-year-old girl were overcome by illuminating gas today when fumes believed to have come from a broken street main seeped into a house in west-central Toronto. The three were revived by firemen.

Firemen worked over Tobi Gelber, 5, for 15 minutes before she revived. Her mother, Mrs. Mac Gelber, and her grandmother, Mrs. B. Jacobs, each required five minutes' inhalator treatment.

Mrs. Jacobs, who awoke and smelled the gas, called firemen before collapsing.

Nude Man Wanders Along Highway 2

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A mentally-disturbed young man, found wandering nude along Highway 2 early today, was taken to Victoria Hospital with frost-bitten feet.

Police were called when a truck driver saw the man about three miles west of Thamesford at 4 a. m.

Police said that despite the bitter cold the man apparently disrobed as he walked along the highway. His clothing was recovered.

U.S. Seeks Agreements

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is reported discussing military aid agreements with Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Pakistan as well as a step-up in the flow of American weapons to Iran. These moves are part of a co-ordinated American effort to erect a defensive shield against possible Russian attack in the oil-rich Middle East and south Asia.

Trans-Canada Highway Building Rushed

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction on the 5,000-mile trans-Canada highway was speeded up during 1953, the public works minister announced today.

Contracts authorized for the highway's construction totalled $137,825,000 by the end of the year, a statement said.

"Nearly every one of the nine participating provinces has added [illegible] during the past year.

"Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Manitoba, in that order, have the longest stretches of completed trans-Canada highway but Prince Edward Island, with better than 44 per cent of its total proposed mileage completed, leads the field in this respect."

CONDUCTED SURVEYS

Nova Scotia, the latest province to sign the trans-Canada highway agreement, conducted surveys last year and construction is expected to begin early this year.

Under the agreement with nine provinces—all but Quebec—the federal and provincial governments share construction costs and the federal government pays half the cost of sections of previously-built highway incorporated in the trans-Canada road.

During 1953, a total of $46,343,500 in contracts were approved, more than $12,000,000 above the 1952 figure.

The statement noted that much of the construction work, especially in British Columbia, Ontario, New Brunswick and Newfoundland, has been through more difficult stretches of country.

"It is reasonable to assume that the miles of new highway completed, in relation to dollars spent, will become greater in the future."

A department spokesman said that work done to the end of 1953 is the equivalent of 815 miles of paved highway and a further 380 miles of graded highway.

Equivalent mileages of completed highway by provinces, with mileage of the proposed route in brackets: Newfoundland 32.6 (610); Prince Edward Island 32.6 (74); Nova Scotia ; (310); New Brunswick 45.6 (388); Ontario 240.5 (1-412); Manitoba 95.6 (305); Saskatchewan 163.1 (414); Alberta 105.7 (292); British Columbia 99.5 (692).

Equivalent mileages of graded highway, some of which is paved: Newfoundland 137.5; Prince Edward Island 36.8; Nova Scotia 0; News Brunswick 196.4; British Columbia 117.7.

2 Die As Car Goes Into River

ST. DANIEL DE FRONTENAC, Que. (CP)—Two women died and four other persons escaped Friday when their automobile plunged into a river near this Eastern Townships town, about 75 miles northeast of Sherbrooke.

The victims were Mrs. Antoine Latour, 30, and Mrs. Napoleon Duguay, 39, both of Valleyfield. Mrs. Duguay was drowned when trapped under the vehicle. Mrs. Latour, rescued after spending 45 minutes inside the car, died on her way to hospital.

Driver of the car was Mrs. Latour's husband. He escaped with Mrs. Duguay's husband and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Shank, all of valleyfield.

Mr. Latour said he lost control of the car when he struck a patch of ice while driving across a small bridge.

Thousands Of East German Rebels Shipped On Trains To Soviet Union Report Says

WASHINGTON—(AP) — A state department official said Sunday that thousands who took part in the East German uprising last June—including women and children are reported to "have been seen loaded aboard trains headed for the Soviet Union."

Geoffrey W. Lewis, head of the office of German affairs, wrote in the State Department Bulletin that unrest continues in East Germany and that the Communist [illegible] favored leniency toward the rebels.

"Arrests continue," Lewis wrote. "So, reportedly, do sit-down strikes and work stoppages in mines and factories of greatest value to the Soviet Union."

Lewis' article, entitled Soviet Germany: The Unruly Satellite, said the story of the East Germans' barehanded revolt against their Communist leaders last June 17 has become a familiar one.

"We know that hundreds were killed or wounded in the course of the day's action," he said.

"Thousands of East Germans have been arrested, tried, and [illegible] part in the uprisings.

"According to recent reports from the east zone, several thousand participants, including women and mere children, have been seen loaded aboard trains headed for the Soviet Union."

Red Regime Threatened Return Of King Zog Planned

TRIESTE (OFNS)—Albania entered the New Year with yet another political purge in progress.

According to Radio Tirana and the country's official news service, the Government authorities unearthed a plot during the last days of 1953 allegedly designed to overthrow Prime Minister Enver Hoxa's Communist regime and reinstate the exiled King Zog. The American secret service was accused of having organized the plot. Reliable information received here from within Albania suggests, however, that this 'plot' is a mere pretext for action by the Albanian Minister of the Interior, Mehmed Shehu, a Soviet "stooge", against some high-ranking army officers who have objected to his building up a "second army in the State" by means of militarizing the country's internal security forces. These forces already equal half the strength of the regular army in man-power.

Shehu, it is reported, believes that the regular army's general staff is backing Prime Minister Hoxa whom Shehu wants to replace in a bid for supreme power. He is attempting to discredit several high staff officers by alleging that they were instruments of the American secret service.

The regular Albanian army now numbers 38,000 men; consisting of four infantry divisions and several independent regiments,' including a small air force, motorized, tank and artillery units. Shehu's security forces or "private army", which also undergoes full military training and is by far better fed, clad and equipped than the regular army, numbers eighteen thousand specially picked and reliable young Communists.

SECURITY FORCES ARMED

The crisis between Shehu and the army officers came to a head when the Army Chief of Staff, Major General Petrich Douma, went to see Prime Minister Hoxa just before Christmas and accused Shehu of giving all of the war material sent by Russia to his security forces instead of to the army—which, in fact, is true. The security forces today even have their own bomber and fighter aircraft as well as artillery and tanks. They also control the whole of Albania's long border with Greece and Yugoslavia (in the latter country almost a million Albanians live as a national minority).

No army ofifcer is ever allowed into the frontier districts without special permission by the security forces command, a fact which the army officers take as an insult.

The Russians, meanwhile, are watching these developments without taking sides, for they profit greatly by this rift. Both parties vie for their favour by going out of their way to please the Russians who are continuing to take from Albania whatever they can get hold of in the way of agricultural and mineral wealth. It is, therefore, considered unlikely that the Russians will soon step in and decide the issue between the generals, Hoxa and Shehu.

Building Holds Up Well

TORONTO (CP) — Construction contract awards in Canada in 1953 totalled $2,017,060,700, up $204,883,100 over 1952, says MacLean Building Reports, Ltd. This was second only to the $2,295,000,000 of 1951.

UN Commander Blames Reds For Breakdown

MUSAN, Korea (AP) — The United Nations commander, Gen. John E. Hull, today blamed the Communists for the breakdown of prisoner explanations and said all anti-Red prisoners will be freed at midnight Jan. 22.

To drive home the UNC demand that the captives be released "as [illegible] engineers began stringing miles of barbed wire fences to channel the prisoners from neutral zone compounds to rail heads.

Hull reiterated the UN command's position in a letter to Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

The UN commander termed one-sided and slanted a report by Indian, Polish and Czech members of the repatriation commission that accused the UNC of maintaining control over the anti-Red prisoners.

HITS RED TACTICS

He said the Communist high command caused the collapse of the explanation program by:

1. Unreasonable and changing demands for explanation facilities.
2. Refusal to accept reasonable numbers of willing prisoners for explanations each day.
3. The Reds' rejection of available explanation time unless the NNRC and Indian custodial troops approve all their demands—including the use of force to make PoWs listen to explanations.

Hull told Thimayya the UNC is prepared to handle the 20,000 North Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to return to their Red-ruled homelands.

UN officers said rail, car and truck convoys will be waiting south of the demilitarized zone for freed anti communist prisoners and that ships at Inchon will be required to carry any of the 14,000 Chinese who may wish to go to Formosa.

Neither the Indian command nor the NNRC apparently has made a firm decision regarding the Jan. 22 release date.

The Communists oppose freeing the prisoners when the Jan. 22 deadline rolls around, demanding that a yet-to-be convened Korean peace conference decide their fate.

One Briton, 21 Americans and 327 South Korean prisoners who have embraced communism presumably would also be freed as civilians the same day the anti-red PoWs are released.

Canadian Soldier Charged With Murder

SOEST, Germany (CP) — A Canadian soldier, Pte. George Mitchell, has been formally charged with the murder of Frau Elisabeth Sieling, 56-year-old resident of nearby Iserlohn, a Canadian Army spokesman announced today.

Mitchell will be tried by a general court martial as soon as a synopsis of evidence is complete, the spokesman said. Court proceedings will be held publicly in accordance with Canadian military law.

Details of the slaying and the soldier's Canadian hometown were not announced.

The announcement came in the third month of the Canadian Army's occupation of new headquarters in the Soest area.

General Motors Sets Record For Production

OSHAWA (CP)—General Motors of Canada produced a record 219,967 automotive units in 1953 compared with 200,310 in 1952, it was announced today.

The company employs 17,173 persons in Canada whose 1953 payroll totalled $65,334,229, up $6,500,000 from 1952. Of the total number of persons employed, 10,850 are in Oshawa where the 1953 total payroll was $40,917,563.

Form Research Committee

NEW YORK (AP)—Cigarette makers announced Sunday formation of a tobacco industry research committee to do their own research on "the theory that cigarette smoking is in some way linked with lung cancer." The committee's first move was a display advertisement for today's editions of major newspapers through the United States, with the heading "a frank statement to cigarette smokers." The advertisement says the industry believes "the products we make are not injurious to health," but adds that medical research should not be lightly dismissed "even though its results are inconclusive."

The announcement said the united industry members have pledged "aid and assistance to the research effort into all phases of tobacco use and health," including financial aid in addition to funds already being contributed by individual companies for medical research.

"For more than 300 years," the advertisement declared, "tobacco has given solace, relaxation and enjoyment to mankind. At one time or another during those years critics have held it responsible for practically every disease of the human body. One by one these charges have been abandoned for lack of evidence.

"Regardless of the record of the past, the fact that cigarette smoking today should even be suspected as a cause of a serious disease is a matter of deep concern to us."

IT'S WELL APPRECIATED—This Korean waif finds it hard to believe his eyes as he receives a man-size drumstick from Cpl. Joseph Gallipoli, of Cleveland, Ohio. The boy was among thousands of children who were guests of GI's stationed with the U.S. 7th Infantry Division in Korea.

Office Boy Now Gets $1,000 Week

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters)—From office boy to $1,000-a-week boss in 42 years—that is the story of John Percival Savage.

Next month he takes over the chairmanship of Boots Pure Drug Company, a £29,000,000 concern which operates 1,313 drugstores in Britain from its headquarters here.

Boots pioneered the American-style drugstore in Britain. The chain operates stores in main cities [illegible] the country where [illegible] soda, soda jerks, hockey and a host of other things common in American drug stores but completely foreign to the sedate British idea of the "chemist's shop".

Savage left school at 16 and started at six shillings a week as an office boy, working a 60-hour week. That was in 1911.

Savage, neat and dapper, is a family man with three children. Away from the world of patent medicines, he plays golf and watches rugby football.

WHAT KEPT YOU?—Better late than never is the motto of this truck driver as he makes his way through Montreal city streets with a load of Christmas trees after New Year's, which he hopes to sell, or which, more than likely, will wind up on the St. Lawrence as ice-cutting markers when the harvest is reaped. Ah, well—only 355 days until Christmas.

Knew Of No Reds In Department While He Headed It-Wallace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former vice-president Henry A. Wallace says he knew of no Communists in the U. S. department of agriculture while he headed it, but that he did fire some members of an "extremist city group" who now appear suspect.

Wallace, who was agriculture secretary from 1933 to 1940 under Franklin D. Roosevelt, said in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report made public today that he heard "nothing that I can remember" about Reds in the department [illegible] self . . . never heard of him while I was in the department," Wallace said, referring to a man named frequently in testimony before congressional committees as head of a Communist cell in the agriculture department. Wallace continued:

"He came into the department as a consultant when either Hoover was president or Coolidge was president and never was a consultant while I was secretary. As a consultant under Hoover he probably—and I'm just assuming now—had the chance to cultivate people in the various bureaus of the department."

Ware's connection with the department, Wallace said, had ended about two months before he took office.

"The idea that there might be Communists in the department of agriculture never was borne in on my mind until Lee Pressman's testimony, which was '49 or '50," the former vice-president said.

There were differences of opinion in the department, Wallace said, and [illegible] to split into two groups [illegible] us who had had an agricultural background . . . and those who had had a city background."

"It happened that some of the leaders in the city group were later proved to be Communists—that is, on the basis of Lee Pressman's sworn testimony," Wallace said.

Because of the differences over policy, Wallace said, "I reached the conclusion that the only thing to do was fire the extremist leaders."

Official Team Sent For Guiana Inquiry

LONDON (Reuters)—A team of government-appointed officials left London airport today for an on-the-spot inquiry into the situation in British Guiana where the constitution was suspended and the colonial government ousted last October on grounds that it was Communistic.

The investigators will spend two to three months studying the problem of constitutional changes.

They are Sir James Robertson, former civil secretary of the Sudan, George Woodcock, assistant general secretary of the Trades Union Congress and R. W. Radford, of the colonial office. A fourth member of the commission, Sir Donald Jackson, will travel direct to British Guiana from the Windward and Leeward islands where he is chief justice.

Claims Brewing Head

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Anheuser-Busch, Inc., today termed itself the world's leading brewer of beer with almost 6,750,000 barrels sold during 1953. August A. Busch, Jr., brewery president, said the firm produced and marketed 6,734,302 barrels of Budweiser and Michelob during the last year. That's roughly equivalent to about 2,200,000,000 bottles and cans.

Drilling Hole In Human Hair

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Howard P. Adam, Milwaukee jeweller, can drill a hole in a human hair and thread another hair through it.

He does it to impress students in clock and watch repairing at the Milwaukee Vocational School with the necessity for careful work and patience. Adam teaches at the school.

Adam made the drill he used himself, starting with a piece of tool steel about the size of a darning needle. He hardened and tempered it and then put a drill point on one end. The point, with cutting threads, is much finer than a normal needle point. The threads are necessary, he explains, because you can't puncture a hair without splitting it; the hole actually must be drilled.

His drill complete, Adam jerked a hair from his head and started to work. It took hours, the first time, before he found out how. Now he can do it, usually, in less than a minute.

Cobourg New Year's Quiet For Policemen

COBOURG (ENS) — Police relieved several New Year's Eve celebrants of their liquor and keys were taken from a number of drivers also. Border-line cases of drinking were advised to leave their cars and walk or hire a taxi.

On the whole it was a quiet New Year's Eve and no town accidents were reported. There were a few minor accidents investigated by provincial police out on the highway but the general situation was very satisfactory, police said.

Enough Snow On Trails But Skiing Only Fair

COBOURG — Light fall of snow over the holiday was welcomed at the Ski Club but there was not enough to make the big hill suitable for skiing, although there were six inches of snow on the trails.

The Ski Club got off to a good start about two weeks ago but moderating temperatures made the hill patchy and until there is a good fall of snow with temperature low enough to hold it, skiing conditions will only be fair.

John Armstrong

Funeral services for John Armstrong, RR 1, Indian River, who died Wednesday at the home of his son, Lorne, RR 2, Peterborough were held Saturday at 3:30 p.m., from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. A. A. Mathews officiated. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were: William Godfrey, Jack Thirnbeck, George Walker, Harold McCall, Roy McCall and Art Beebe.

Pallbearers were: Melville Deyell, Harry Irwin, Wallace Darling, Wilfred Moncrief, George Moncrief and Norman Harris.

Post War Boom Swamps Antwerp

ANTWERP, Belgium (Reuters) The port of Antwerp, bustling with more trade than ever before, has become too small to accommodate the post-war boom in shipping.

Along the port's 32 miles of docks, not one wharf is open to take new ships. All berths are permanently reserved by shipping companies which have regular services.

More than 230 lines use the port, with its strategic position in the Scheldt estuary, to trade with every part of the world.

Antwerp had to undertake a big reconstruction program after the heavy flying bomb raids at the end of the war. Now, snowed under with orders from additional lines wanting to use the port, the city is in the paradoxical position of having to turn away part of the trade on which it depends.

Aged Receive Baskets From Salvation Army

COBOURG (ENS) — The local Salvation Army distributed 250 bags of candy and fruit to inmates at the Counties home for the aged, jail and hospital.

Forty families in the district received Christmas baskets from the Army, said the commandant, Major H. Corbett. Several cases of real need were found by Major Corbett, some of them among old age pensioners.

Envoy To Moscow Home For Talks

CAIRO (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Aziz el Masri, Egypt's minister to Moscow, arrived in Cairo today for consultation with his government.

Government sources said the envoy was bringing a detailed report on the Soviet Union's views on the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez and other Middle East problems.

Egypt's ambassadors to Washington and London already had returned home for consultations.

Mrs. D. H. Maconomy

Services for Mrs. Lily Geraldine Maconomy, widow of Daniel Henry Maconomy, of 18 Anne St., were held from All Saints' Anglican church, Saturday at 2:00 p.m., for burial in Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. M. P. Poole, assisted by Canon J. D. Patterson, of Toronto officiated.

Pallbearers were: George E. Chandler, Reginald J. Chandler, Norman E. Crowe, George H. Macdonald, Oscar J. Jamieson and Victor Hamilton.

Unique in North America

When on January 1st, the powers and duties of the recently incorporated Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto became fully effective, there came into being the only Plan of its kind on this continent. The closest comparison to it is the London, England, County Council.

Because of the Plan's municipal importance and because of the attention being paid to it in Canada and United States, a brief description of the new system is given in our January "Review and Securities List". Householders in all parts of Canada should find it interesting.

The January "Review" also contains information regarding six of our special services. Investors find all of these services helpful. There is no charge for them and no obligation is involved. Your inquiries will be welcome.

For The Good Of Peterborough

Since the municipal elections in December many rumours have been circulating in the city about the new Mayor and the new Council who have been established in office today. Rumour was inevitable, for while there was nothing extraordinary about the election of a new Mayor in place of a man who had already held that office for two years, the very large majority which the voters gave to Mr. Graham was unexpected; this very large majority is attributable, certainly, to Mr. Graham's promise of a house-cleaning in city affairs, and it must be taken as evidence that most Peterborough people want such a house-cleaning and believe it to be necessary. And so rumours have arisen which suggest that there will be disagreement in the 1954 City Council.

* * *

We do not see any reason why these rumours should be borne out in fact. Neither the new Mayor nor the Councillors, we are certain, want a year of wrangling and ill-feeling. Neither the new Mayor nor the Councillors, we are convinced, want anything except what is for the good of this city and its people. As they are all men of experience, and as they are all personally known to one another, we are sure that they will find ways of carrying on the city's business without fireworks.

* * *

We say this because a lot of people seem to expect fireworks, and we think that they are going to be disappointed. Certainly they are not going to get any fireworks from The Examiner. We begin the New Year by putting our support unreservedly behind the new Mayor and the new Council in everything that is for the good of Peterborough, pledging our newspaper to honest reporting and fair comment as always in the past. The rumour-spreaders and the trouble-makers will get no assistance in this quarter.

Is This A Land Of The Blind?

It is complimentary to Canada that writers in other lands now refer to us with some bitterness, some occasional contempt — even some jealousy. When we really did not make much difference to the world they were always heartily, shallowly complimentary—'this strong new land', 'this glorious young giant', 'this land of the future' was what they called us. But now that we are no longer the land of the future, but unmistakenly a land of the present, they are sometimes sharp with us. Good.

In Punch of December 16 Bruce Hutchison's life of Mackenzie King is reviewed, and well reviewed; as we said when the book first appeared Mr. Hutchison bathed his subject in colours so brilliant that we had difficulty in recognizing him. The Punch reviewer says that King's life is represented as 'hardly at all removed from lunacy'. But he also says that Canadians are "no great respecters of privacy or eccentricity". We challenge this statement; we think that Canadians permit far more real privacy to their public men than do, for instance, the English. Is there a statesman living whose private life has been more intimately examined by his countrymen than Sir Winston Churchill? And what about the ceaseless British prying into the lives of the Royal Family? Canada, let it be said to our credit, has never produced books of the vulgarly patronizing quality of those written by 'Crawfie'.

But it is the conclusion of the review which interests us. We quote: "The mystery is . . . how he lasted so long and achieved so much, for his misjudgements were enormous; but the explanation of that is that the judgements of those who opposed him were even worse; among the blind the one-eyed man was King". Now this makes a neat wise-crack, good enough for English readers who know nothing about Canadian politics. But is it true? Is it, to use a phrase which we have grown weary of hearing from English lips, "good enough for Punch"? Is the man who nailed this difficult, bi-lingual country together so firmly that it survived the last war as a unity, to be dismissed so contemptuously? And we must recall that King drew French Canada to British Canada not by means of the brush-off combined with coercion (as England has done with Wales) or by soapy and insincere flattery (as England has done with Scotland) but by compromise, and the kind of understanding which begets trust. Political comprehension, rather than verbal glibness, is what a reviewer needs who tackles even such a gaudy life of King as that written by Mr. Hutchison.

Still, we are always rather pleased when Englishmen are nasty about us. It shows that they respect us. And in Bouverie Street it is clear that Canada can no longer be dismissed as one of those big-bosomed, vacant-faced girls who lolled gracefully at the feet of Britannia in the Imperial pipe-dreams of Bernard Partridge.

Charity Out Of Pocket

A New York State legislative commission has been examining some "charitable" organizations which are more concerned with pocket-lining than charitable use of donors' money. One man who makes a profession of soliciting funds admitted that he and his family had an income of $75,000 a year from direct contributions. An organization called the National Kids Day Foundation raised four million dollars over the last five years but spent only three hundred thousand for its announced purpose.

The racket is raging, in many tones and many modes, from a direct chiseller, a parasite on public generosity, to good organizations promoting worthy causes but spending so much on organizing the appeal and collecting the funds that there is little left for the intended charitable purpose.

It is estimated that the American public spends four thousand million dollars a year on personal contributions to charity. The Commission investigating now in New York State considers that of this sum about 120 million dollars goes entirely to fake organizations. One promoter was shown to have raised $600,000 for a non-existent cancer hospital, out of which $453,000 went for expenses. Another outfit raising charitable funds got 85 cents of every dollar raised.

We believe that this racket is neither as pervasive nor as loud in Canada as in the States, yet there have been instances which our news pages have reported in the past of large charitable funds being solicited and obtained, and a pitable amount of them being turned over to the uses for which the donated money was intended; the rest went for the expense of organizing the appeal and getting the money.

Solicitors of funds in Ontario for charitable organizations are now under scrutiny of the Attorney-General's department, and an organized charity must have its approval. It has become a practice among some of the more reputable charitable organizations to publish their costs of operating along with the total of monies collected so that the public can know what fraction of their charitable givings went toward expenses. A person who gives a dollar or ten dollars for a worthy cause has a right to the assurance that his money was not eaten away by administrative expenses, but went indeed to aid the poor, the suffering, the homeless, the illiterate or the helpless, or to advance a social or cultural movement.

Irreverent Criminology

There has been a great deal of discussion in the papers of Eastern Canada during the past two months about the proper treatment of criminals. The argument lies between those who think that criminals are victims of society, and those who think that society is the victim of the criminal; the tone of both camps tends to be extreme, for the former write as if the world at large should apologize to the criminal for making him as he is, while the latter insist that savage punishment is the only means of preventing a wave of crime from engulfing the world.

In this welter of immoderate argument the following irreverent verse from the pen of E. V. Knox comes as a refreshing whiff of nonsense, which is not without its own kind of wisdom:

Tom, Tom the piper's son
Stole a pig and away he run,
The pig was missed, and Tom was hissed
And sent to a psychiatrist . . .
The moral of this tale is plain:
He never stole a pig again;
And if he had not found some lead
And coshed a bank clerk on the head
When he returned refreshed and gay
From his delightful time of play,
He would not be in jug today.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A canned editorial in the Guelph Mercury begins: "It is good to have the children back from college for Christmas." Why? To see if they have remained children?

A writer on usage says we should say "he is ill of bronchitis" rather than "he is ill with bronchitis". Why not say "he is sick of bronchitis", and be sure you report him correctly?

A man charged with shooting and killing a bank manager says that he did not intend to fire his gun. Precisely why would a man carry a gun if he never meant to fire it?

Every day there are 190,000,000 telephone conversations in the U.S.A. And we bet that at least 150,000,000 people are called either from the bathroom or the dinner table to take part in them.

The Sign Of The Sickness

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
(Writing From Panmunjom)

IT IS customary at this time of year for broadcasters and journalists publicly to display a little optimism and a great deal of good will. Just for a little there settles a mood that is a pale reflection of the sweetest—and most prostituted—feast in all religion. But somehow this year it does not seem to settle so easily, particularly in the Far East. One's allies have sometimes been irritating and one feels no real desire to forgive one's [illegible]. situation that is already twisted enough, almost all things that I shall remember of this year were terrible. True, the Coronation made a distant rumble of splendour; but it were better that the things that stick in the memory here should never have happened.

THE FRAGMENTS of the picture are not easy to forget. There was that single file of United States Marines struggling upwards to take the crown of a minor hill. I watched them all one morning, staring safely through a concrete embrasure with a cup of coffee in my hand. They moved very slowly in a majestic uproar of explosions. They often lay pressed against the ground. The dirt leapt upwards and around them like great waves against a sea groyne. They went up and lay for a little close to the dreadful summit. They came down and tried once more and then withdrew, slowly, as if they were struggling through a storm. And the whole shape of the hill had been changed and the file was smaller when it got back.

And then, perhaps illogically, the Turkish soldier seemed to matter. He was a small anonymous man whose padded coat trailed on the ground. On the first day of the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners he threw himself out of an ambulance and into the arms of an American major, embraced him as if he had come to a brother he had despaired of ever seeing again, held him and wept. He refused to let go, though General Mark Clark was plucking at his elbow to welcome him. No one smiled and it was not embarrassing.

LATER there were three American soldiers, just back from prison, sitting in a row looking shaken and subdued, their hair still powdered with insecticide. They were talking to a crowd of journalists, and one of them asked the sergeant if he personally knew of anyone who had "betrayed his buddies." The sergeant said. "Do you really want to know?" and the reporter said "Yes." The sergeant said, "There's one sitting right next to me," and the wretched boy went white and scrambled off the bench and hurried through the silence out of the tent.

There were the children. (This is, after all, the conventional time for remembering them.) It was at the beginning of this year. The place was Seoul, and the icy wind was like a continuing physical pain. The building had been a Japanese temple and was little more than a shell. It housed some deliquent little orphans who ran wild through the broken city. The director led the way upstairs and pulled back a sliding screen to show a room that must have been as dark as any cupboard when the screen was closed.

AT FIRST the place seemed empty. Then you saw that five small boys had "swarmed" in a corner. They were standing clustered against one another facing the wall. They did not look around. They wore thin trailing rags. They were unimaginably dirty and their black hair was pale with dirt. They were pressed against a lukewarm radiator. Two of them were weeping without making any noise. God knows how long during the day they stood there, and when I brought out some chocolate they fought one another to get the largest share.

It was the most terrible place for children I have ever seen, wherever a pipe ran from ceiling to floor, there would be a frightened, silent, incurious child just standing. In another room they sat in rows on the floor, huddled in blankets, and they refused to uncover their faces. The kitchen was a stone basement lit by candle light, and there was ice on the floor. In another room, twelve boys were filling match boxes by hand. The place stank nauseously of drains and boiled barley.

DESPITE a guard of bigger, better-dressed boys, a high proportion of the boys ran away back to their ruins until the police rounded them up again. The director was unpaid and you could not blame him because he sometimes sold things that soldiers gave for the children.

When I revisited the place, a few days ago, the director had gone and the place was run by a relief organization. Windows were mended and rice replaced the barley. The guards at the gate had gone and the children no longer ran away. When we walked into their yard, someone blew a bugle out of a window and all the children came running out laughing, dressed approximately as Boy Scouts, to salute the flags of South Korea and America. They do it several times a day for visitors.

AND then there was the hatred. Curiously, this was never so apparent during the fighting. You had to go to the wide valley behind the Chinese lines to see it naked. Here at Panmunjom for fourteen months and almost ritually, was celebrated that new and very articulate hatred that a large part of the East now feels for the West. It was certainly disturbing. The Communists delegates would sweep past in armoured cars. Their journalists would wait with us on the same road and, with the exception of the two English-speaking ones who had their mission to perform, they would speak to no one. Each man stood alone, took no notes, almost as if wrapped in some private sorrow. The conference concerned peace, but there was no trace of the behaviour that visitors to youth festivals report.

I can think of no parallel to Panmunjom in history—so long drawn out, so rigid, so insincere. They had all come here, not with any real desire for a settlement, but because each of the two sides could no longer hurt itself. There was no longer any prospect of profit in acutal fighting. So they carried on the conflict in words and propaganda, and they arranged this demonstration of hatred, at which the Communists proved more wholehearted and adept than ourselves.

NOTHING of supreme importance was decided here. The delegates merely registered and administered the calculated moves that had been made elsewhere. But if anyone still believes that things are not terribly changed in this part of the world, a few visits to this village that no longer exists would be enough to convince him.

Of course, one could certainly find something more appropriate to the season in the quiet beauty of Christmas time, or in the shining good intentions of the Indians who came to help. But these things happened in Korea, and Korea was the outward and visible sign of the world's deep sickness. And to write of anything else from this part of the world would seem a little insincere and silly.

An American View: A SHARP BREAK IN THE COLD WAR

The Ignorant Men

(BRUCE HUTCHISON IN THE VICTORIA TIMES)

THE educationists of Canada are constantly telling uneducated persons, like the present writer, that the nation needs more progressive education. No doubt it does, but how much progress has education actually made in recent times? Not much, to judge by a document now before me. By this and other exhibits the ignorant man must conclude that in North America we are rapidly becoming more ignorant than ever, for all the taxpayers' money spent on schooling.

The document which prompts these heresies is a speech by Mr. Elmo Roper, one of the first and certainly one of the best public opinion poll practitioners. On the basis of his poll, which has generally proved accurate in the past, Mr. Roper judges, among other things:

That 100 million adult Americans—or most of the nation—has never heard anything about the present debate on tariffs.

That 65 per cent of the American people have no idea what NATO is.

That 81 per cent have never heard of the Bricker Amendment, now before the Congress, a plan to alter the whole relationship between the President and Congress in the conduct of foreign affairs.

That 71 per cent have never heard of UNESCO.

That 36 per cent have never heard of Senator McCarthy.

The list goes on endlessly to indicate that a large part of the American people simply know nothing of the most urgent business which they must settle at the polls. The Canadian may argue that things are different here, as I hope they are. But if similar tests were taken in Canada does anyone doubt that the figures would be vary little from those in the United States?

While no similar study, so far as I know, has been made in Canada, an interesting little test hole was recently sunk in the mind of the Canadian Parliament. Some Ottawa correspondents interviewed Mr. J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit M.P. for Lethbridge. One hastens to add that Mr. Blackmore fortunately is not typical of Parliament or of Canada, for otherwise we might as well wind up the nation altogether and hand it over to Mr. Blackmore's idol, Senator McCarthy.

Nevertheless, it is surely significant and appalling when a member of the Canadian Parliament, even a Social Crediter, denounces Dean Atcheson as being under communist influence though everybody knows that the free world's entire plan of defence against communist sprang originally from Mr. Acheson's mind.

That however, is not the full measure of Mr. Blackmore's education. He also listed a man named Stevenson as a "top-notcher" in "the Communist organization." But he didn't know who Stevenson was, by his own statement. Thus Adlai Stevenson, one of the most respectable statesmen in the current world, can be smeared in the Canadian Parliament, and on the air, in a fashion worthy of Mr. McCarthy, the smearer-in-chief, by a member of Parliament who confesses that he doesn't know who Mr. Stevenson is. Before we attack the ignorance and the witch-hunting of Washington maybe we should consider what can happen in Ottawa.

The interesting point is that a gentleman like Mr. Blackmore could ever be elected to Parliament. His ignorance, perhaps, is not his own fault. Many men cannot help being ignorant even of the most obvious facts. But what is one to say about the electors who send him to Parliament? What is one to say about a democratic system at the mercy of such electors?

Well, happily very few Blackmores get into Parliament and very few McCarthys into Congress. The electors are wiser than they sometimes look. They know by instinct much more than they know by education. If they didn't, democracy would have collapsed long since.

The American electors, to take a specific example, may not know much about NATO but they elect governments that have built NATO because they trust leaders better educated than themselves. The wisdom of democracy does not depend primarily on factual knowledge. It depends on instinct, the ability of most men to know whether a candidate is phony or not. The elected phonies are the exception to the rule, even if they usually make the most noise.

Mr. Blackmore, the apostle of Mr. McCarthy, makes more noise at the moment than most of the other members of Parliament combined, and this is a very good thing. The more noise he makes the better for democracy, because the electors have an uncanny way of judging noise of that sort once they hear it. The Blackmores would be dangerous only if they were silent and unreported.

We can safely leave Blackmorism and McCarthyism to an electorate which can hear about them. Still there is no reason to be complacent about the public's ignorance. The hard fact remains that, after generations of education, after billions in expenditure on fine new schools, after agonies of thought by the unhappy and ill-paid educationists, we are more ignorant in America than ever.

Oh, yes, we know more than our grandfathers, to be sure, but that measures only half the problem. The other half is the growing complexity of society, its constant need of more knowledge if it is to survive. And taking our grandfather's knowledge in relation to their relatively simple society, and then taking ours in relation to our present complex society, no man can doubt for a moment that there has been a net decline in public knowledge, a mighty growth of ignorance. Men like Mr. Blackmore are important only as proof of that fact.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitude, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest. (Matt. 9:35-38.)

Letter To The Editor

RE-TESTING

SIR: Approximately two months ago I was involved in a minor motor vehicle collision, following which, circumstances considered, no charge on either party were laid. The police department was non-committal, the insurance agency even more so.

However the Motor Vehicle Branch at Toronto has other views. Considering that I happen to be in the group of drivers having less than one years' driving experience and unfortunately involved in a motor vehicle accident, I have exactly twenty days to submit to the inconvenience and expenditure of another driving test and another examination.

I compliment the department for their humanitarian determination to get incompetent and dangerous licensed drivers off the road. But could I humbly make the suggestion that they study the facts more thoroughly, weigh the case more closely — and then perhaps might they not have the highly competent, highly experienced driver (all of five and ten years!) one hand on the wheel, one foot heavy on the gas, flying around the corner, submit to a bit of refresher course? Maybe then they would be more considerate and more watchful for the patient driver waiting for his opportunity to pull into the line of traffic.

Sincerly yours,
"DANGEROUS"

Toward 40 Millions

(Le Soleil, Quebec)

Canada has attained a population of 15 million inhabitants. It contains 10 million more than at the beginning of the century and 12 million more than a century ago. Population progress was not clearly emphasized until the last 30 years and, if the country had been able to keep the four million immigrants who came in floods in the three years preceding the First World War, during the prosperous years of 1927-1930 and since the Second World War, it would contain easily 20 million people. A good proportion of these people went to the United States . . . All movements contribute powerfully to swell our population which is climbing toward 40 millions between now and the end of the century, provided the doors are not closed again. The industrial development of Canada which sustains the exploitation of its immense natural resources and its mineral wealth carries with it an economic progress which the increased population can maintain at a high level, thanks to a productive manpower.

Half Bomber Fleet Now Jet Planes

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force, racing against the growth of Russian airpower, now has at least half its fleet of strategic medium bombers made up of swift, high altitude jet craft.

And by the end of this year the last of the Second World War design conventional engined B-29 and B-50 bombers may be gone from the medium wings, replaced by the

These developments apparently figured in the recent decision to rely less on manpower and more on airpower to maintain the U.S. military position in the Far East.

In 1953, deliveries of all types of military planes from the aircraft industry totalled about 12,000.

Accelerated deliveries coupled with crew training during recent months, it was learned today, have enabled the strategic air command to raise to between eight and 10 the number of medium bomber wings equipped with B-47s. A wing of that type normally contains 45 planes.

RAPID RED INCREASE

The rapid increase in the Soviet Union's operating air fleet of jet and rocket-powered interceptors has made more urgent the conversion of the U.S. strategic fleet from the slow (400 miles an hour) piston-engined bombers to the high speed (over 600 miles an hour) jet planes.

For long range heavy bombardment the air force at present has about four wings (30 planes each) of Convair B-36 bombers. These huge planes can carry 40 tons of bombs of any kind, including hydrogen weapons, at moderate ranges and operate over a radius of more than 5,000 miles with lesser loads. Their speed has been stepped up to above 435 miles by adding four jet engines to the six piston engines.

Delivery of the first production items of the Boeing B-52 heavy, all-jet bomber is expected to start next fall. That plane, while lacking the range of the piston-engined B-36, flies faster than the medium B-47. To compensate for the high fuel consumption of the jet engines, the B-52 is being equipped for mid-air refuelling from tanker planes.

Old Year Ends On Note Of Miscalculation

NEW YORK (AP)—The old year ended on a note of staggering miscalculations.

Five Children Die In Flames

OLD ORCHARD EACH, Me. (AP)—Five young children perished early today in their flaming two-storey home in this ocean resort town. Their mother leaped from a second floor window after a futile attempt to save them.

The youngsters, children of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Whitcomb, apparently all were trapped in upstairs bedrooms. However, a physician who treated the distraught mother said she told him she believed she heard one of the children downstairs and went to investigate. She then discovered the fire, but couldn't find any of the children.

Three bodies were recovered soon after firemen extinguished the blaze which destroyed most of the dwelling's interior. The fire broke out shortly after Whitcomb, a carpenter, departed for work.

100,000 Names Disappear From S.A. Lists

By JOHN WORRALL

CAPE TOWN — (OFNS) — Electoral offices and political parties here are baffled by the fact that since South Africa's last general election on April 15 last year one hundred thousand names have disappeared from the voters' rolls through out the Union.

Large numbers may be accounted for by the mass removal of "disqualifieid" voters from the rolls —immigrants who have been disfranchised over the past few months because they cannot provide documentary evidence that they have been naturalized South African subjects. These names account for many thousands of persons.

But where have the rest got to? As fresh figures become available from the reregistration of voters that has been going on for sometime, the mystery deepens. The question being asked is: were these people who have disappeared from the rolls entitled to vote at the last election? Were some of them fake registered? A new "battle of the vote" is going on in the Union as a result, with both the chief parties, the Nationalist party and the United party, accusing the other of "faking" voters for the purpose of the election.

Some of the facts are as follows, according to reports from various parts of the Union collated by the Johannesburg Sunday Times. On the Rand alone, there are fifty-five thousand fewer voters on the rolls than at the general election and the Transvaal total as a whole will probably exceed eighty-eight thousand. In the Orange Free State there are four thousand fewer, in Natal eleven thousand, in the Cape Peninsula and Dasei twelve thousand. The electoral roll at Brakpan, in the Transvaal, showed 11,454 names on April 15—now there are only 9,587—a reduction of 1,867. The Nationalists won Brakpan with a bare majority of forty-seven.

VOTERS FOR YEARS

Few centres can account for any loss of voters as a result of migration. As far as the Government's mass removal from the rolls of disqualified persons is concerned, many of these people have been voters for a great many years. Cases have been reported of people who were naturalised and registered as voters thirty-five years ago being removed from the rolls because they have not been able to produce documentary evidence of citizenship. According to a United Party M.P., Mr. L. C. Gay, Chairman of the United Party in the Cape, one was a man who had been a Cape Town city councillor for thirty-five years.

In the cases of persons of foreign origin, removal from the status of citizen has made them stateless persons without the right to have a passport. Having been on the voters' rolls for many years is not accepted by the government as proof of citizenship. The United Party is handling hundreds of cases of this nature and is making efforts to get the persons concerned reinstated.

POSITION OF IMMIGRANTS

The position of Commonwealth immigrants is a little different. They are automatically South African nationals if they arrived in the Union before September 2nd, 1947. Immigrants from Commonwealth countries who arrived after that date must have five years' residence in South Africa before they can apply for registration. Women immigrants married to South African citizens must have two years' residence in the country before they can apply. Immigrants from other countries must live here for six years before they can apply for naturalization. It is at the discretion of the Minister of the Interior to refuse citizenship if he thinks the applicant is not a "fit and proper person" to be a South African national.

Applicants wishing to register as voters must inform the electoral officer of their date of arrival in the Union, their port of entry and naturalization certificate number. It is complained that many people have been struck off the rolls or refused registration because all the information asked for was not supplied.

The present reduced electoral roll will be used for the vital provincial elections to be held next year. In these elections one important issue is likely to be the right of parents to send their children to Afrikaans-speaking or English-speaking schools as they think fit. In the Transvaal, the provincial government already has the right of deciding, based on its conception of what language is spoken in the child's home. The exercise of this right has led to considerable anger and frustration in many homes.

Charge Poor Reporting On Bermuda

LONDON (CP) — Ford Baxter, general manager of the Royal Gazette, Bermuda, has taken issue with a British newspaper article criticizing aspects of life in Bermuda.

Baxter, formerly of Saint John, N.B., said in a letter to the Sun-

Bermuda, he was shocked by the loose reporting about the colony in British newspapers.

He commented specifically on a report by a Sunday Times columnist Dec. 6. The columnist, who writes under the name Atticus, contended that "rich and narrow-minded merchants have acquired too much power . . . and their preoccupation with the dollars of American honeymoon couples has blinded them to other aspects of the island's welfare."

Baxter said "Thinking people" in Bermuda are trying to throw some light on the dark corners there, but added their efforts are not appreciated by journalists in the United Kingdom.

Baxter also denied the columnist's claim that Bermuda had done nothing to arrest oyster-shell scale and juniper scale, diseases which had destroyed Bermuda's "exquisite" cedar trees. In rebuttal the Canadian writer said almost £1,000,000 has been spent in the last six years trying to curb the infestation.

RETAIN SCHEDULE

HAMILTON (CP)—The council of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League decided Saturday to extend by one week the league's interlocking schedule with the Quebec Junior League.

The action was taken after Ken Soble, owner of Hamilton Cubs, suggested the league scrap the interlocking schedule because it was too expensive.

The council later gave Soble a vote of confidence when he suggested the loop might be better off without the Cubs.

Later he said he had no intention of withdrawing his club but he hoped "some" people would "come to their senses."

"I am definitely not withdrawing," he said, "but I did complain about the interlocking schedule.

"I asked the other clubs whatever possessed them to put it in. When you've been losing money all along and then somebody does something that costs you $3,000, you naturally wonder why. That's what it will cost to go to Quebec."

The council decided on the schedule extension so each Ontario team could have five more home games. Soble said he doubted that the additional home games would be of much help to his club.

SAILORS DISTRIBUTED

TORONTO (CP)—Nine players from the defunct Sarnia Sailors hockey club were allocated Sunday to other clubs.

The distribution was at a meeting of Ontario Hockey Association senior A clubs and an OHA subcommittee.

Forward Don Savage will play for Chatham Maroons. Forwards Ron Castelane and Jerry Horton go to Niagara Falls Cataracts. Chuck O'Connor was declared a free agent and probably will try out with Chatham.

Vern Gardiner moves to Owen Sound Mercurys, Marty Zorica to Chatham and Clarence Jaster to Windsor Bulldogs. Tom Jamison and Les Douglas must play for Niagara Falls or not play at all.

The meeting approved most of the constitution and bylaws of the newly-formed senior A council.

OSHAWA VOTED OUT

BRANTFORD (CP) — Oshawa Merchants have been voted out of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League for 1954.

The other seven clubs were polled Saturday by wire on the question of whether to admit Oshawa on a permanent franchise.

The Merchants were granted a one-year franchise last year and fielded a contending team in their league debut. However, under the league's constitution, they needed the unanimous approval of the other clubs to get permanent status.

St. Thomas Elgins and London Majors voted against, Oshawa, while Brantford, Galt, Guelph and Kitchener favored admitting the Merchants.

Oshawa missed the playoffs in the final week of the 1953 campaign.

Representatives of the seven senior teams will be in St. Thomas Jan. 31.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Attended a Toronto Maple Leaf workout the other day and worked this bulk of flesh into a sweat just watching Clancy putting the boys through their paces.

With contemporary, Gord Pepper, Tely sports staff, we bruised our way through the Gardens' lobby (people were picking up tickets for that evening's game), ducked down a corridor and into the cavern, home of the Leafs.

As we walked around the south end where Lumley was catching and booting out shots, our eyes wandered throughout the vast auditorium, catching the 14,000 empty seats, the TV and radio broadcasting booths, the huge time clock and the score boards.

As our eyes wandered, we wondered. Just when will Peterborough have its arena? This question brought a quiet disgusted laugh and memories of a far-off dream, the dream of a high school student who thought he might some day play in [illegible]

Oh well, we thought, our five-month-old son might play in it some day. There's some consulation in that thought.

Hap Day Was Perched in a Rink-side

By this time we reached the east side, a few feet away from Hap Day who was perched in a rink-side red watching the Leafs, grouped in threes, racing in on genial Harry and racing back up the ice to test Ed Chadwick, former St. Mike's goalie.

Nearby on the ice King Clancy, an over-sized cap flopped on his head and a thin skin-tight jacket hugging him, was attempting to direct traffic.

The Leafs weren't wasting any time. Quickly they formed into trios down the ice, made their play at the blueline and then tried to beat Lumley. The current contender for the Vezina trophy took this part seriously and often with a little fun, catching the puck and flipping it back quickly at the Leaf who shot.

Day apparently satisfied with this close-in work, moved further up the ice to the blueline, there to watch the passing networks.

Meanwhile we moved up to centre and there we were joined by Jim Hunt of the Star and Al Nicholson of the Globe and Mail.

In spite of the fact they were there for a hockey story, the trend of the conversation swayed around the professional football game between the Browns and the Lions. Then it went on to the effect of a television on sports and then to a comparison of Canadian and American football.

Out on the ice the leafs were taking long shots at Lumley and Chadwick. First the goalies went stickless, practising their catching and kicking, then they worked in a little stick work.

Right in the middle of a Otto Graham forward, a voice jokingly was was heard to say, "just in case you fellows didn't know that was shooting practice." Hap then moved up into the reds for a better view.

Similar to Bean Bag, But Real Exercise

At this point Clancy gathered his flock at the south end, divided them into two groups and started to play a game, stolen from under Miss Boombah's nose. It was very similar to the bean bag game.

In two teams, the players were to take the puck from the face off circle, up the ice to the opposite end circle, stop and race away, carrying the puck all the way.

It started well; the first players conformed to regulations laid down by Clancy. Then slowly the puck was being "dropped" halfway to the blueline, then it was at the blueline and then over it. They were actually carrying it then for about 40 feet, about one-third the required distance.

One or two players stopped in the end circle but most were making a wide circle before coming back.

"That's an exercise?" laughed Hap from his lofty perch. "Only Clancy could have thought that one up."

Clancy ended that rather hurriedly and switched to more shooting at Lumley.

Score and Out You Go to Showers

Placing a puck in the centre of the blueline, he bellowed, "Those who score go out (meaning to the dressingroom); those who don't stay out. Okay Teeder, let's go."

Kennedy roared in, scooped the puck up and whipped it passed Lumley with a chuckle. Slowly he skated to the side and out, prespiration in small beads covering his head.

Bob Bailey, who's supposed to be a future star, short-stepped his way to the puck, went in on Lumley and scored. Just as he started out, Clancy again bellowed,, "Stay in, Bailey."

"Ho Ho Ho" boomed Santa Claus Day from the dark recess of the arena, "Playing favorites, Eh Clance?"

After Sid Smith and several others hit the showers, Clancy sent the remaining Leafs around the ice a few times as a practice windup.

Although they didn't seem to be "working" too hard, the Leafs were sweat-laden and tired as they dragged themselves to the dressingrooms.

Just as they started to disappear Clancy added a final note, "See you fellows at two this aft."

The Fourth Estate lads then sank into seats or on railings about Hap, popping e few questions about player conditions, trying for an angle for the day's story.

This question-and-answer period was cut short when a westerner, introduced as the founder of Doug and Max Bentley arrived. Conversation then switched to the prosperity in the west, the hockey situation in Saskatchewan and finally the return of Doug Bentley to the NHL.

As we five were figuring a good price for an acre, someone noticed a dark figure sneaking along, obviously trying to make a quick getaway.

"Hey, Clance!" yelled Nicholson. "Come her a minute."

Rather sorrowfully, Clancy turned back. His face revealed an important engagement, one with a dentist.

After a few more questions the gab session broke up, Clancy wandering away, holding his face and mumbling "Be back this aft."

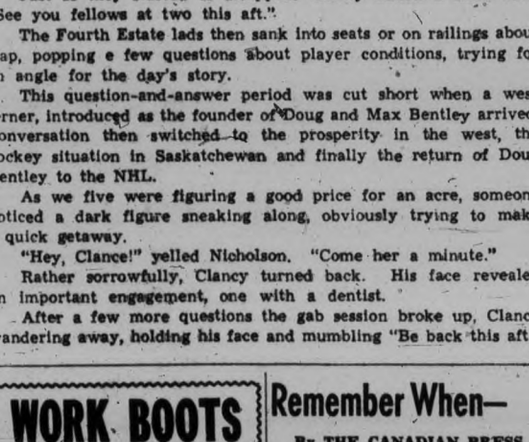
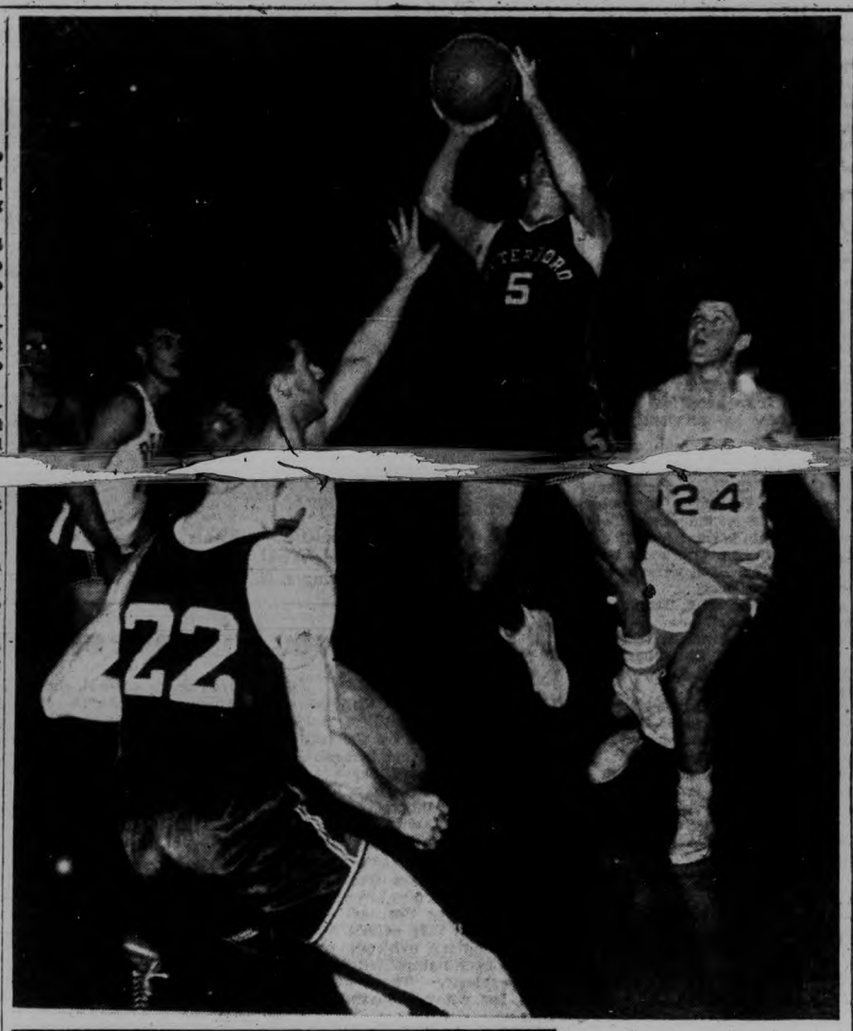
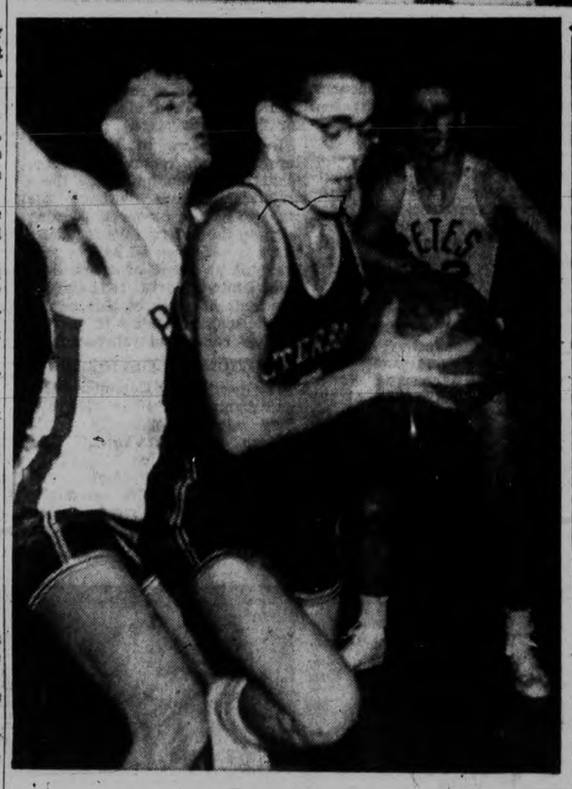
Eddie Bruneteau, rightwinger of Detroit Red Wings, fired two goals within 10 seconds at Detroit eight years ago tonight to help the Wings to a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers. But the fastest two goals in NHL history was by Nels Stewart, twice in four seconds of playing time, for Montreal Maroons against Boston Jan. 3, 1931, at Montreal.



HOMBRE MONTANA, above, who teams up with Ilio DiPaulo against Fred Atkins and Lord Athol Layton in the main event at the Brock Arena Wednesday night. There is sure to be fireworks when this foursome hook up. Johnny Barend, the bobby-soxers' favorite, takes on tough Firpo Szybsko in the semi-final, while popular Johnny Harmon meets Tony Martinelli in the opener.





ANOTHER FOR THE REGENTS—Paced by Don Ash, former Collegiate star, Doug MacPherson's Regents romped to an easy 70-40 victory over the PCVS seniors Saturday night at the Collegiate gym. The Collegians matched the Regents at times but experience and height were too much in favor of the intermediates. Regents Outclass Collegians With Breaks, Passing, 70-40

Fast breaks, neat passing plays, and accurate shooting by Doug MacPherson's intermediate Regents was too much for Zolton Temesy's PCVS Garnet and Grey seniors Saturday night at PCVS. The collegians absorbed their second defeat at the hands of the Regents 70-40. In both games the collegians showed well considering they were out of their class.

Bob Smith and Hugh Dibben paced the Regents to a 21-9 first quarter. The Collegians came back in the second to keep pace with the Regents but were still well off the mark at the half when the Regents still led 37-21.

Ab Stewart, Don Ash, Smith, and Dibben broke out in a scoring spree in the third quarter and again piled up a healthy quarter lead over the PCVS quintet. Before the quarter ended the Regents were up 52-28. Both teams played rather listless basketball in the fourth, letting time run out.

Building his team about veterans and young former Collegiate stars, MacPherson has developed one of the best intermediate teams to represent Peterborough in years. Meanwhile, Temesy's Garnet and Greys, mostly from last year's junior team which went to the COSSA junior semi-finals, are quickly reaching senior calibre play.

BROTHERS LEAD

Two brothers, Don and Doug Ash, led the scoring for both teams. With a brilliant display of set shots from the key and beyond, Don Ash sank 18 points to pace the Regents. Meanwhile, his smaller, younger brother, working from close in about the basket, led the Collegians with 13 points.

The Regents' big Ed Nicholls played with the Collegians during the second half, attempting a few of his old trick shots. From the pivot he slipped in some 14 points to place second in the Regents' scoring. Hugh Dibben, who was moved back to guard this year, figured largely in the Regents' scoring with 10 points.

Neil Cournyea hit his stride in this game for the Collegians. Working his hardest and best in the first half, Cournyea dropped in nine points, closely followed by Terry Roberts with seven.

The Regents emphasized the fast break throughout and used their height to advantage. The Collegians had trouble throwing up a defence to stop the break and when they did, they had trouble with height as the Regents placed their height in the pivot and under the basket. The Regents' height played hob with the PCVS defence as the intermediates grabbed off passes, beaking up the Collegians' passing plays.

The Collegians will open their 1954 basketball season officially this Friday night when senior, junior and bantam teams will play St. Peter's High Saints. The Regents will wait until the Ontario playdowns begin, playing exhibition games until then.

Lineups:

PCVS (40)—D. Ash 13, J. Boorman 4, Roberts 7, Cournеya 9, Kingston 4, Smythe, Carleton, F. Ash 1.

Regents (70)—D. Ash 18, Dibben 10, Nicholls 14, Smith 9, Griffin 5, Stewart 6, Langhorne 6, Grafstein 3.

Barons Tied For Top Place With Buffalo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons have moved into a first-place tie with Buffalo Bisons for the American Hockey League leadership.

The Bisons lost 3-2 Sunday to the Pittsburgh Hornets while the Barons were disposing of the Syracuse Hornets 5-1. In the other Sunday game, Hershey Bears defeated Providence Reds 2-1.

At Buffalo, Carl Balfour scored for Pittsburgh late in overtime to break a 2-2 tie. Pete Wright, a defenceman, scored both Buffalo goals. Bob Hassard and Bob Sabourin got the other Hornet tallies.

Playing at home, Cleveland rapped in five goals before Syracuse replied late in the third. Ray Ross scored twice for the victors, Jack Gordon, Andy Bathgate and Fred Glover netting singles. Bronco Horvath picked up the lone Warrior goal.

Hershey had to come from behind to tame Providence in Red territory. Zellio Toppazzini scored first for the Reds but two goals by Arnie Kullman and one by Dunc Fisher overcame the early edge.

Saturday, Buffalo defeated Hershey 6-4, Cleveland blanked Syracuse 3-0 and Pittsburgh routed Providence 9-2.

Harry Lumley, Toronto, who shut out Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 Saturday, then held Detroit Red Wings back Sunday as they drew 0-0 with the Leafs.

Jack Evans, New York, who scored two goals Sunday in Rangers 4-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

Terry Sawchuk, Detroit, who kept Toronto scoreless Sunday in the 0-0 deadlock.

Doug Mohns, Boston, whose second-period goal Saturday gave Bruins a 1-1 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

UP THEY GO—Niagara and LaSalle players scramble for a rebound under the basket at Madison Square Garden. In front are Charlie Hoxie (3) and Johnny Donohue of the Niagara Falls squad. Think Russians Will Win Hockey Crown

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP)—Russia probably will win the world hockey championships at Stockholm Feb. 26 to March 7 unless Canada sends a tip-top team to the meet, warns Rudolf (Putte) Kock, manager of the Swedish AIK.

"The Russians appear to have mastered the game at last," Kock says. "And the day has passed when Canada could send a scrub team to Europe [illegible]

He says there will be real competition in 1954 and if Canada hopes to regain the championship, now held by Sweden, she must have a strong entry.

The Russian team scheduled to go to Stockholm included the best players the country has to offer.

Kock observed that Canada has entered Toronto's Lyndhurst Motors senior B team, but says "they'd better send a strong senior A team if they want to win."

He says the Russians have shown extreme interest in Canadian tactics and asked many questions.

SOUGHT A TEST

Kock's AIK, which lost all three of its recent Moscow engagements, is from the Swedish Hockey League's second vision. The AIK was specifically invited to the Russian capital and it is Kock's theory that the Russians wanted to find out how good their own team was without risking a severe setback on their home ice.

Kock says the Russians play a clean, fast game, have excellent teamwork and a smooth three-way passing technique. "Even as the losers' manager," he said, "I must say it was fine nonetheless to watch their game."

He added that he believes the Russians' main championship opponents would be the Czechs, the Swedish national team or a good Canadian entry.

West All-Stars Score Big Upset

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Brilliant passing by Stanford's Bob Garrett and lightning touchdown runs by Kansas State's Veryl Switzer sparked the West All-Stars to a stunning 31-7 upset victory over the East Saturday in the 29th annual shrine charity football game.

Garrett, voted the most valuable player on the field by the sports writers, turned in a dazzling display of passing before a sellout crowd of 62,000, scored a touchdown and twice converted.

Switzer sprinted 20 yards to the first touchdown in the opening quarter and went the same distance for another score in the third.

The East, sorely missing the full running power of Notre Dame's All-America Johnny Lattner who had a shoulder injury suffered in practice, was never in the game.

It was the most one-sided victory ever registered by a western team in the history of the charity classic, founded Dec. 26, 1925.

Church Hockey Teams Play Low-Scoring Games

Low-scoring, close games were recorded Saturday morning in the Peterborough Church Hockey League at the Civic arena. In the midget games Mark St. United slipped past St. George's Anglican 4-1, while Park St. Baptist clipped George St. United 5-2. St. James United edged St. John's Anglican 3-2 and George St. United blanked Park St. Baptist 4-0 in the peewee games.

Moffit scored twice in the first period to give Mark St. a 2-0 lead in their midget game with St. George's. English, assisted by Paul, added the final goal for Mark St. in the third.

Grant and Kent started Park St. off with two goals in the first period of their game with George St. Casey scored for George St. keeping the United church boys down only one. But Scarfe and Davis added two more for Park St. in the second, making the score 4-2, Hawthorne scoring for George St. Walling, assisted by Scarfe finished the scoring for Park St. in the third.

An early first period lead gave St. James' peewees their victory over St. John's. Baldry and J. Armour gave St. James a 2-0 lead which was whittled to 2-1 in the second when Cunningham scored for St. John's. The teams battled to a one-all in the third period, Currie scoring the winning goal for St. James' and Dalladay St. John's second goal.

After a scoreless first period, George St. took a 1-0 lead on a goal by Delahaye over Park St. peewees in the second period. G. Rowley, Milburn and Delahaye added three more in the first third period for the 4-0 victory.

MOST SATISFYING

EAST LANSING, Mich. (NEA) —Biggie Munn says the 21-15 victory over Marquette was the most satisfying victory for his Michigan State football team.

TROPHY WINNER — Maj. Sammy Lee of Pasadena, Calif., now on army duty in Korea, has been named the winner of the 1953 James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy. The award is presented annually by the AAU to the amateur athlete who, by performance, example and good influence, did most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year. Believe Zatopek Breaks Record In Brazil Race

LONDON (AP)—Emil Zatopek's New Year's Eve feat in Brazil of running 7,300 metres—about five miles—in 20 minutes and 30.4 seconds has track and field statisticians rechecking their slide rules.

They proclaimed today that Zatopek's clocking indicates the Czech probably passed the 5,000 and three miles in faster time than the world records of 13:58.2 and 13:32.4 set in 1942 by Gunder Haegg of Sweden.

No official intermediate clockings were announced for the Brazil race.

But Zatopek in Brazil ran another 2,300 metres, or almost 1½ miles farther, after sweeping by the standard metric and linear distances.

FEAT UNDERSTANDABLE

Norris McWhirter, official collector of figures for publication of the documents of the International Association of Track and Field Statisticians, said: "Zatopek's time is electric but understandable."

First, track experts have long ago decided Zatopek, triple Olympic winner in 1952, can do almost anything.

Second, there's something which drives a runner on in a road race wherein spectacular times have been recorded. Roadways seem to give the runnner more bounce.

Reports indicate Zatopek ran in 71-degree temperature and at night with great crowds cheering him on. While there may have been gradients (hills), a road race lacks the slowdown of running circles on a track.

Also, in a road race there's an spot passed monotonously on a end to be reached which isn't a quarter-mile track.

TEST WAS STIFF

Nevertheless, Zatopek ran against some of the world's best distance men and the Sao Silvestre race has been run 28 times before —yet no one had run within a minute and eight seconds of Zatopek's time.

Further, Zatopek had a milling crowd of 2,140 other runners in the race.

The best recorded time for 7,000 metres is Gordon Pirie's 20.21 Sept. 3, 1953, in Stockholm. Zatopek apparently passed the 7,000 metres some 40 seconds faster.

Leafs, Wings Tie 0-0 In Detroit, Second Deadlock

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When are Toronto Maple Leafs going to score in Detroit? The third-place Leafs have been stymied at Detroit's Olympia for 272 minutes and 58 seconds. In games, that goes back to March 8, 1953, when centre Tod Sloan beat goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk in the first period. The Leafs lost 3-1. Al the 24-year-old Sawchuk with any of their 26 shots Sunday night, they didn't lose the game. It was a scoreless tie, the second 0-0 deadlock in the National Hockey League this year.

In the only other game Sunday night, the fifth-place New York Rangers pulled a surprising 4-3 upset on the second-place Montreal Canadiens before 15,183 fans in Madison Square Garden.

In Saturday games, the Leafs blanked the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 in Toronto and the Canadiens battled to a 1-1 tie against the fourth-place Boston Bruins at Montreal.

In two seasons the Leafs in Detroit have managed only five points with one victory and three ties. They haven't won in four games at Detroit this season.

The single point enabled the Red Wings to nudge into first place with 48 points, one ahead of Canadiens and four up on the Leafs.

It was the second shutout in two nights for Harry Lumley of the Leafs and lengthened his lead in the race for the Vezina trophy, top award for goaltenders. Despite the absence of goals, the 12,959 fans got plenty of thrills.

Lumley has allowed only 56 goals in 36 games for an average of 1.55 goals a game. It was his seventh shutout of the season. Sawchuk, with an average of 1.88 goals a game, has six shutouts.

At New York the Rangers staved off Montreal's strong offensive in the third period for their 12th win in 37 games.

Defenceman Jack Evans scored two New York goals. Wally Hergesheimer and Paul Ronty tallied the others. Maurice Richard, Floyd Curry and Bert Olmstead scored for Montreal.

The contest marked he new York debut of centre Jean Beliveau Montreal's high-priced rookie.

It was a wide-open game in which Montreal goaltender Gerry McNeil made 37 stops and goalie Johnny Bower of the Rangers 33.

Beliveau, who didn't figure in the scoring Sunday night, put Canadiens ahead 1-0 against the Bruins Saturday when he beat netminder Sugar Jim Henry at 18:35 of the first period. Boston was shorthanded when Beliveau took Dick Gamble's pass and slapped it into the nets.

The lead stood up until 9:08 of the second period when rookie Doug Mohns grabbed centre Cal Gardner's pass and blasted a 35-footer that caromed into the nets off McNeil's arm.

There was one flare-up. Defenceman Tom Johnson of Montreal and Leo Labine of the Bruins tangled in the first period and drew majors for fighting.

The Leafs had a soft time against the Black Hawks. In registering their seventh victory over the Hawks in eight meetings, they scored three goals in the first period and added another in the final.

Centre Ted Kennedy, defenceman Jim Morrison, rightwinger George Armstrong and rookie Bob Bailey accounted for the scoring.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday night, when the Hawks travel to New York.

Passing Expert Charles Dorais Dies In Michigan

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, 62, whose "revolutionary" forward passing changed the game of football and started Notre Dame on the path to gridiron greatness, died Sunday.

He had been ailing with a circulatory disorder.

It was Dorais and Knute Rockne who discovered in 1913 that the forward pass could be used as a lethal weapon in football.

They came east in 1913 with Notre Dame, a comparatively unknown midwestern school, to engage powerful Army.

When the sun had settled behind the plains of West Point, Army was a soundly beaten team by the score of 35-13—and the entire football world was talking about Dorais and Rockne.

THREW OVERHAND

Dorais, a small, quick-thinking quarterback, threw the ball overhand to Rockne, who played end, and other Notre Dame teammates who ran past befuddled Army players and caught the ball.

The forward pass had been used before this game—but the ball was thrown in an underhand method. Nobody had ever seen the likes of Dorais' long, arching overhand tosses.

Dorais completed 12 straight passes to Rockne, who later gained fame as Notre Dame coach, and other teammates.

New Outboard Motor Has Electric Starter

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A new outboard motor with a built-in electric starter was announced Sunday by Evinrude Motors, oldest and one of the largest outboard manufacturers.

The new motor, a 25-horsepower unit, no longer depends on the starter cord. An auto-type starter driven by an electric motor and operated by a push button in a small panel on the dash starts the motor at the touch of a finger.

Power for the starter motor is supplied by a standard six-volt automobile battery.

Pakistan Player Downed

NEW YORK (CP)—Henri R. Salaun, a 27-year-old amateur from Boston, upset Hashim Khan of Pakistan Sunday to win the first U.S. open squash racquets championship 15-7, 15-12, 15-14. Khan, at 37 the holder of every other major squash title in the world, suffered his first setback in a competitive match.

Marlboros Edge Frontenacs 2-1 As Irish Bow To Trois-Rivieres

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weekend action in the controversial Ontario-Quebec Junior A interlocking hockey schedule was hot on and off the ice.

Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec League were edged 2-1 in Toronto Sunday by Marlboros after suffering a 7-0 defeat in Quebec Saturday at the hands of Toronto St. Michael's, leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association loop.

St. Michael's met their first defeat in their swing through Quebec when they fell 5-1 Sunday to Trois-Rivieres Reds.

In the fourth interlocking schedule battle, Galt Black Hawks, cellar dwellers of the OHA, scored a 5-3 win over Jonquiere Marquis.

Frontenac defenceman Moe Mantha, in a game bristling with charging, high-sticking and other illegalities, was tagged with a match misconduct penalty for "spearing" Marlboros' Wally Maxwell. There were 16 other penalties handed out.

TO PROTEST PENALTY

Coach Phil Watson said he will protest the penalty which automatically suspends Mantha until the OHA reviews the sentence.

Star of the game was defenceman Jack Bionda who scored with slap-shots in the first and third periods to give Marlboros their two goals. Ray Cyr tallied Quebec's goal.

St. Michael's seven goals Saturday against Quebec were scored by Ken Gribbons; with three, and Brian Anderson, Bill Colvin, Dick Duff and Noel Price.

Gilles Matteau, with two goals, led the scoring in Trois-Rivieres' victory over St. Michael's. Other scorers were Jean-Guy Gendron, Herve Lalonde and Roger Houle. Les Duff got St. Michael's tally.

In the Galt-Jonquiere game, Neil McDonald, Red Crawford, Kowalchuck, Halstead and Bettioll scored for the winners. St. Jean with two goals and Jean Rousseau with a single tallied for Jonquiere.

There were two regular OHA league games Saturday.

DOWN TEEPEES

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts defeated St. Catharines TeePees 5-3 while Guelph Biltmores downed Hamilton Tigers 8-4.

Four last-period goals, two by winger Graham Joyce, gave the Greenshirts their victory after trailing 3-1 at the start of the third. Other Kitchener - Waterloo counters were scored by Gary Collins, Howie Glover and Glen Copoll.

TeePee scorers were Hugh Bartow, with two, and Barry Cullen.

Scorers for Biltmores, who took their fifth win in a row, were Bill McCreary, with three counters, Bob Attersley, Hillary Menard, Bob Forham, Ron Howell and Wally Para. Hamilton marksmen were Bill Stewart and Joe Zorica.

The heavy scherule of weekend activity left the standings unchanged. Marlboros edged to within one point of second place St. Catharines.

Next games scheduled, all in interlocking play, Wednesday are: Jonquiere at Marlboros; Quebec at Hamilton; St. Michael's at Canadiens and Barrie at Trois-Rivieres.

Y STAGS WIN

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford Y Stags defeated St. Catharines Queensways 82-77 in an intermediate basketball game here Saturday night.

Leading scorer for Brantford was Bill Butterworth with 22 points. Ken Cameron scored 21 points for St. Catharines.

The win was Brantford's third in four starts. The Queensways have lost their first four games.

PORT HOPE WINS HOCKEY

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Trinity College School of Port Hope, Ont., captured its second straight Lawrenceville invitation hockey championship Saturday by defeating Deerfield Academy 5-3.

The flashy Canadians fired a three-goal salvo past Deerfield goalie Brady Coleman in the last six minutes of the final stanza to break a 2-2 tie and dump the scrappy Deerfield outfit.

Dutchmen Chalk Up 4-1 Win Over Windsor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

None of the nine players from the defunct Sarnia Sailors will be assigned to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen. But, judging from Kitchener's weekend performance when they slid into a four-point lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, the Dutchmen can get along without outside help.

The Dutchmen scored a 3-1 win over the fifth-place Chatham Maroons at home Saturday and chalked up at 4-1 victory over Windsor Bulldogs in Windsor Sunday.

Prior to the two games they were tied with Owen Sound Mercurys, idle during the week-end, with 39 points each.

In the third game, Stratford Indians defeated Hamilton Tigers 7-4 at Stratford. Indians' victory brought them into a fifth-place tie with Chatham. Hamilton is in fourth spot, two points behind Windsor.

Distribution of the Sarnia Sailors was announced by an OHA subcommittee Sunday. Don Savage and Marty Zorica will go to Chatham. Ron Castelane, Jerry Horton, Tom Jamison and Les Douglas were assigned to Niagara Falls Cataracts.

Vern Gardiner moves to Owen Sound and Clarence Jaster to Windsor. Chuck O'Connor was declared a free agent.

In the Kitchener-Chatham game, Gerry Theberge scored in the first period, Don Oberholzer in the second and Don Rope in the third for Kitchener.

Jim Connelly tipped in a long shot by Joe Carveth for the Chatham goal.

The Dutchmen ran into more opposition at Windsor where the Bulldogs held a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period. Then Jack McKenzie tallied in the second and again in the third when Harry Psutka and Bob Schnurr also scored. Windsor's goal was scored by Wally Kullman.

PACES INDIANS

At Stratford, Bill Flick paced the Indians with three goals. John Muretich scored twice and Keith Tolton and Apples Finkbeiner one each. Jack Taylor and Kemp each got two goals for Tigers.

In a Northern Ontario Hockey Association game at North Bay, Pembroke Lumber Kings won a 5-3 victory over the Trappers as they played their third game in as many nights.

Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds widened their first-place margin to seven points in the NOHA Southern Group Senior League with a 3-2 victory Sunday over Sault (Mich.) Indians. Saturday the Greyhounds defeated the Indians 5-4.

Games Tuesday are Chatham at Windsor and Hamilton at Niagara Falls.

Not Interested In 2 Amateurs Kramer Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Kramer ex-tennis star, current promoter and future tycoon of the professional game, is interested in no amateur at the moment and that goes for Lewis Hoad and Tony Trabert.

"This whole thing is silly," the former U.S. Davis Cup ace said [illegible] before sending his troupe [illegible] opening 1954 "tournament."

"Neither Hoad nor Trabert could hold a racket to my players," Kramer said. "Right now I don't want them and have not sent out any feelers. I'm satisfied with Pancho Gonzales, Pancho Segura, Don Budge and Frank Sedgman."

Kramer, who thinks about as fast as he used to serve when he was the world's leading amateur, is varying the script on his tour this year. Tonight, for instance, Gonzales will play Segura for the $4,000 jackpot of the two-day stand. Budge and Sedgman will play for the consolation prize of $1,500.

In Sunday's opening round Gonzales, making a comeback at the tender age of 25, upset Sedgman 3-6, 11-9, 13-11 and Segura chopped down Budge, the undisputed ruler of the game in the middle 30's, 6-4, 6-2.

"By running the show like a tournament every night, we'll give the boys more incentive," said Kramer. "Last year everyone collected his guarantee whether he won or lost. Now the winner each night will collect the major share of the purse."

Kramer is going to confine his own action to doubles this year.

A NEW COMMAND has been announced for the RCAF's most decorated fighter ace, 34-year-old W/C John Braham, DSO, DFC, AFC, who takes over three all-weather OTU at North Bay, where CF-100 pilots are trained. He is at present at St. Hubert, and in his new post will replace W/C E. D. Crew.

Explains Blood From Statue

NICE, France (AP)—The newspaper Nice-Matin published Sunday what it described as a plausible explanation of the "bleeding statute" which has drawn thousands to Entrevaux, north of here.

The blood which has been dripping from the statue's broken finger may have been inserted in the statue when it was made some 200 years ago, the paper said.

The newspaper published a letter quoting a Mrs. J. Duval of Radio Innsbruck, Austria, to the effect that such statues were made in the Austrian tyrol some 200 years ago. In piety and as a gesture of sacrifice—according to the letter—the faithful sometimes inserted a small portion of their own blood into a tiny tube within some part, usually an arm, of a statue as it was being made.

The statue depicts St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, with the child Mary at her feet. Last weke its owner, Jean Salvage hotelkeeper at Entrevaux, accidentally broke off the tip of the statue's index finger. The next day he and others in the region were astounded to see what appeared to be blood dripping from the finger.

Drought Cuts Tobacco Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drought in the United States brought the world tobacco crop just below a record this year, the U.S. agriculture department reported Sunday.

Production over the globe—except Red Manchuria—was estimated at 7,324,000,000 pounds, slightly above 1952 and well beyond the post-war average. The record was set in 1951 with 7,435,000,000 pounds.

There were increases in Mexico, Central America and throughout the Caribbean, and a high of 435,800,000 pounds was reaped in South America.

The United States remained the world's biggest producer, with an estimated 2,046,000,000 pounds — compared with 2,255,000,000 in 1952.

Car Plunges 30 Feet To Avoid Children

TORONTO (CP)—Leonard Flood, 33, of nearby Malton, applied his car brakes early Saturday to avoid hitting two children.

His auto went off the Burnhamthorpe road at the Etobicoke bridge, smashed through a guard rail, plunged 30 feet, glanced off two trees, flipped over on its top and then skidded 60 feet on ice-covered Etobicoke creek.

Flood smashed a window with his feet and crawled out. Leg cuts were his only injuries.

Disguised Labor MP Helps Find Crooks

LONDON (Reuters) — A crusading 50-year-old Labor member of Parliament told Saturday how he has roamed London streets in a variety of disguises in his efforts to root out the perpetrators of "phony auctions."

False nose, heavy black moustache and a sinister-looking scar on his cheek are only a few of the aides used by Norman Dodds in his campaign against he mock-auction racket. His investigations have already resulted in police action against a number of operators accused of fleecing the public at pseudo-bargain sales.

Expects High Sales Volume

CLEVELAND (AP) — More than 5,000 steel industry executives polled by Steel magazine look for a 1954 sales volume only about two per cent below the record $126,600,000,000 of 1953, an all-time high.

The metal-working journal says the steel industry, starting the year with an annual production capacity of about 120,000,000 net tons, compared with 117,500,000 tons a year ago, is in a better position than ever before to fulfill demands.

Increased in production capacity this year and next probably will [illegible] facilities that have operated since the outbreak of the Korean war created demand that outran supply, Steel says in its weekly review.

AHEAD OF 1952

The 1953 steel production for the United States was about 112,300,000 net tons for ingots and castings—far ahead of last year when an eight-week steel strike cut output, Steel reported. The previous tonnage record was 93,168,039 in 1951.

The world's steel production for the year was a record-breaking 256,385,000 net tons, with Russia, second to the United States, contributing about 41,800,000 tons, the magazine says.

Jeweler Robbed

LITTLE CURRENT (CP)—Little [illegible] Manitoulin shore [illegible] for robberies during the holiday when an estimated $8,000 was stolen from Larry Franks' jewelry store and a mail order office. Police said the thieves showed unusual daring since only one road leads to the mainland and that can be closed within minutes when a crime is discovered.

Heavy Legislation Faces House January 12

OTTAWA (CP) — Much of the heavy legislation in the government's sessional program remains to be dealt with after Parliament resumes Jan. 12 from its Christmas-New Year recess.

Several major enactments, either introduced or forecast in the speech from the throne, are still to be grappled with in House debate.

Some other measures, not officially announced, may be in the offing.

One issue believed to be troubling the cabinet is whether or not the government should seek extension for another [illegible] cabinet virtually unlimited authority to direct moves affecting the Canadian economy. Normally, it would expire next May 31.

MAY DEFER DECISION

The last word in the Commons from Prime Minister St. Laurent —on Nov. 18—was that the House would be informed about this "in due time."

It is understood the government may defer a decision until the prime minister gets back from his globe-girdling tour in late March.

Two other major measures will take a lot of time. Among the bulkiest bills ever brought before Parliament, they are the decennial revision of banking legislation — expected to contain some major changes — and the overhaul of the Criminal Code that has been hanging fire before Parliament for two years.

Each will require long study, though the code bill has been before [illegible] of sessions. It is planned, too, that part of the code work — dealing with the questions of capital punishment, corporal punishment and the lottery law — be referred to a joint Senate-Commons committee.

POSTAL DEBATE COMING

Still pending before the Commons is legislation to boost the postage rate by one cent on first-class mail. The House likely will deal with this without a committee study.

A measure still to be brought in will ease mortgage terms on housing. This will go to a committee for study and is expected to evoke a general debate on the housing question.

Another bill to be presented will extend the government's emergency gold mining assistance program, due to expire at the end of this year, through 1954.

PARIS (AP) — A 28-year-old Italian shot himself Sunday in Paris's Notre Dame Cathedral. The man, Lionel Natoli of Rome, shot himself in the chest shortly after the last mass while standing in front of a statue of Ste. Therese, police said. Hospital attendants said he has a chance to recover.

Hitchhiking To Nova Scotia

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) Margaret and Joe Bell are going home to Lunenberg, N. S. They weren't happy in British Columbia.

The couple, with Wayne, 3, and Jay, 2, started hitchhiking across Canada Sunday to their home town.

Joe, 39, is a jack of all trades—including diesel operator, motor mechanic, interior decorator and guitarist. He brought his family here last year but failed to find steady employment. His wife sold her wrist watch for a sack of potatoes.

Joe finally sold everything the family had left to raise $90 which [illegible] They still have the trees.

LOSE TRUCK

Joe and Margaret packed up Wayne and Jay last week and climbed into their old panel truck for the 3,000-mile trip to Lunenberg.

The truck was involved in an accident and impounded for lack of insurance under B.C. motor vehicle laws.

Margaret, Joe, Wayne and Jay left Sunday anyway. They were carrying two suitcases and travelling on their thumbs.

COAT ON WINDOWS

That one degree below zero this morning was reflected in the frost on the bus windows—But not in the interior atmosphere.

FIRE LOSS DOWN

Tentative figures compiled by Fire Chief William Sorrie indicate that the fire loss this December was $61,000 [illegible] in this December was estimated at $11,038.50, and loss on contents $2,502. For the same month a year ago, damage was $749,720.

SMOKE BUT NO FIRE

Firemen on Saturday afternoon investigated a call from Albert Laton's home, 161 Antrim St., where the occupants smelled smoke in the house and were unable to locate its source. There was no fire but a defective furnace is suspected.

MINOR MISHAPS

Three persons were admitted to the Civic Hospital at the weekend after suffering leg injuries. Calvin Ratz, 12, of Cedarview Drive, fractured his right leg when his toboggan hit a tree. His condition is reported satisfactory, as is 29-year-old Clark Armstrong, RR 1, Ida, who fractured his right leg when he slipped on ice. Frank Wheeler, 22, of 533 Downie St., was admitted to the hospital suffering lacerations to the right knee.

RESCUE KITTEN FROM TREE

City firemen lent an extension ladder Sunday night so people in the Bolivar-William Sts. district could get a frightened kitten down out of a tree. The kitten, owned by Mrs. William Cross, of 477½ Bolivar St., was let out Saturday night and next morning was found up a nearby tree, some 40 feet from the ground. It was apparently too cold or frightened to come down and stayed there all day. Arthur Nokes, of 299 Caddy St., Mr. Cross's brother-in-law, mounted the borrowed ladder about 9.30 p.m. and brought the kitten down.

Hit And Run Among Crashes

A total of $475 damage was sustained by vehicles involved in five minor accidents in the city Saturday night and Sunday.

No injuries were reported, although police are investigating a hit-and-run accident in which a parked car belonging to Wallace A. Davidson, 243 Murray St. was very slightly damaged.

Howard Moebus, 9 Engleburn Place, and Lloyd Moiden, 137 King St., were drivers of cars which collided at Hunter and Reid Streets. At High Bridge and MacFarlane St., a collision occurred between cars driven by George S. Willshaw, RR 7, Peterborough, and Robert Cressman, 199 Reid St.

Cars driven by John Harwood McDonald, 277 Glendenan Ave., and Gerald D. Tully, 544 Water St., collided at Clonsilla and Sherbrooke streets. Raymond Jean, 12 Mill St. and John Nelson, Keene, were driving cars which collided in Western Ave.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A young transient walked into a service station at Dundas and Clarke sideroad to get warm this morning and when he left an hour later manager Gar Kay discovered $600 cash missing.

London township police are combing the area for the man, described as 20 to 22 years old.

The manager said the stranger indicated he wanted to get a couple of days' work cleaning up the ruins of Loblaw's fire-gutted supermarket across the road before returning to his father's farm at Peterborough.

Police are holding a shopping bag containing clothes which the transient is said to have left at the station.

Boy, Sister Find Safe In Otonabee

Money Taken, Records Left, May Get Reward

An Otonabee township family appear to be in [illegible] $200 taken from a safe [illegible] Wednesday night from the Canadian Tire Corporation store, 344 Water St.

Late Saturday afternoon, seven-year-old Alan Beaith and his eight-year-old sister, Eleanor, found the rifled safe in a field near their home in Otonabee, five miles east of Peterborough. The money, amounting to $442, was gone; but the record books—of even more value to the company — were all there, though scattered about.

Two brothers have been charged with breaking, entry and theft as a result of the breakin. They are Walter McCaskie, 26, of 117 Aylmer St., and Raymond McCaskie, 27, of 218 Wolfe St. They have already pleaded not guilty, elected summary trial, and are out on $1,000 bail until Wednesday.

The thieves narrowly missed being shot as they were making their getaway. PC Arthur Beardmore fired once in the direction of their speeding truck as it came out of a dark laneway behind the Water St. store. He missed.

However he did get the truck's number, and the two men were arrested that night.

Since then city and provincial police have been alerted to be on the lookout for the apparently abandoned safe.

The tipoff came late Saturday afternoon from the Beaith family. They reported to the OPP that they had found a safe in a field about two miles north of Highway 7, just off the 6th line of Otonabee.

Eleanor and Alan had been sent to mail a letter in a rural mail box, some distance north of their home, by their mother, Mrs. Iva Beaith. On the way home they saw what looked to be a box with some "school books" scattered around it.

They told their mother and she and her 12-year-old son, William, investigated. Mrs. Beaith recognized it was a safe and she called the OPP who relayed the message to city police.

OPP Constable Harold Armstrong and Inspector of Detectives W. A. (Bud) Clarke and Detective Douglas Farthing drove out and identified the safe as belonging to Canadian Tire. Later I. H. Keefer, store manager, his secretary and his accountant arrived. Though the 400-pound safe had been pried open and the money was missing, the records seemed to be all there.

Paying of the reward money will depend on a report to be received by Mr. Keefer from the police and his accountant.

Quebec Has 9 Inches Snow

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec City and region today was digging itself out of the biggest snow fall of the season.

Nine inches of snow, accompanied by sub-zero temperatures and 24-mile-an-hour winds, blanketed the region during the week-end.

Traffic in the city was almost at a standstill Sunday and train and buses operating out of the city were reported running late. Planes at nearby l'Ancienne-Lorette airport were grounded.

More than 700 workers were called out to remove the snow.

Icy Steps Can Lead To Big Medical Bills

A word of warning to homeowners: When someone slips and breaks a leg on your icy steps, you might as well start saving to pay a healthy hospital bill.

With the advent of continuing cold weather sidewalks and steps will remain treacherous for the unwary pedestrian. To avoid trouble, a homeowner would be well advised to spread ashes or salt around his premises.

All the work shouldn't be left to the homeowner, either. Danger would be reduced to a minimum if the pedestrian does his part when icy weather comes. He can make his own walking safer by wearing rubbers or galoshes whenever venturing outside.

Peterborough's building permits amounted last year to $4,853,892, a drop of $324,631 from the 1952 total of $5,178,523. December permits were nearly twice the estimated value of the last month in 1952, but that month's improvement failed to make up the decline for the twelve months of 1953. Permits last month were: one garage $500, six houses $56,500; 21 miscellaneous $188,390; total $245,390. And, permits for December, 1952, were: four garages $1,007; nine dwellings $78,100, 22 miscellaneous permits $42,490; total $121,697.

The miscellaneous permits issued through the office of City Engineer A. E. Chalmers last month included: foundation at Simpsons-Sears, $30,000; Imperial Bank, $57,000, for the renovation of the former Hamilton grocery store on Simcoe St.; an apartment building in the Cordach subdivision issued to Earl Minor at $25,000; Supertest service station at Monaghan Road and Frank St., $17,000.

It is understood that the work on the service station is not likely to be begun for another month or more.

SUMMARIES

Summaries of the new building values represented in the permits for the last two years were: In 1952
124 garages, $36,329;
196 houses, $1,661,750.
764 miscellaneous, $3,480,444.
Total for 1,084 permits was $5,178,523.
And for 1953:
151 garages, $51,626.
271 houses, $2,351,000.
726 miscellaneous, $2,451,266.
Total for 1,158 permits, $4,853,892.

The permit figures for those two years presents the interesting fact of the building of 467 houses at a total estimated value of $4,012,750.

CGE Begins 40-Hour Week

The whistle at Canadian General Electric Company blew at 8 a. m. today the beginning of the 40-hour week in Peterborough's biggest industry.

The working week has been for some years from 7.24 a.m. Monday until 5 p.m. Friday. Negotiations last summer between the company and union representatives agreed to the 40 hour week beginning at the new year.

Time caught up with the shortened work week this morning. Employees probably advanced Sunday night the alarm time of their Little Bens.

The new week at CGE applies to both office and production staffs.

Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company adopted the 40-hour week November 30, and it was recalled this morning that other local plants working that time last year were: Canada Packers Ltd., Canadian Nashua Paper Co., A. Wander Ltd. for its female employees producing Ovaltine, Quaker Oats Co. and Peterborough Lock Co.

Present employees at CGE are approximately 4,890.

Former City Minister Conducting Mission

Canon J. D. Paterson, who for 17 years was rector of All Saints' Church, is conducting a week of prayer in St. Thomas, beginning today. It takes the form of a mission Jan. 4-10.

Much of his work today is as leader of training schools for clergy in the work of evangelism. To this end he wrote last summer a text book that has been adopted as the official one for the Canadian Anglican Church by the General Synod. It is being sent to every diocese in the nation.

Custom Receipts Increase $260,000

An increase of $260,000 was recorded in Peterborough custom house year-end totals compared with 1952's figure of $8,113,605.76. Total receipts were $8,373,587.73.

December 1953 totals were well above those of December 1952. They were $801,289.88 compared with $677,929.96.

Years Spent With Prisoners

Jails Do Little Good For Prisoners Says Major Everitt

His name is Harry Everitt and he's a major in the Salvation Army. To those who frequently visit magistrate's court he is almost as permanent a fixture as the magistrate, always to be seen in his chair beside the prisoners' box.

Last week the major completed his fourth year as court officer appointed by the Army and although he is 69 years old, he is not yet contemplating retirement.

After nearly a lifetime as field officer, prison chaplain and court officer, Major Everitt has a strong slogan. It is "Keep them away from prison" and he gave the Examiner some very good arguments to back it up.

LEARN CRIME

He admits that a reformatory will give a prisoner ample opportunity to learn a trade, but unfortunately there is the undeniable aspect that he will learn much more about the finer arts of crime.

"What they don't know when they go in, they'll know when they come out", is his opinion.

The major gave the instance of a 20-year-old whom he happened to meet just leaving the reformatory after serving a two-year sentence for arson. The youth had said to him: "Major when I came here I couldn't make a key to unlock any door. Now there's not one door in the prison I can't unlock".

While this may have been somewhat of an idle boast, the major felt it was probably more fact than fiction.

Another reason for his wanting to keep people, especially the young, away from prison was that after a term in a reformatory they actually began to like the life. Going back for a second term was not approached with such foreboding as might be expected.

Major Everitt usuall, turns up at the police station about half an hour before court begins in the morning. His first visit is to the cells where he has a chat with prisoners whom he finds will talk quite readily to him.

After they have told him their story quite often he can advise them as to the more suitable plea and on occasions he will arrange to speak on their behalf in court. At the end of each day he files records of cases for future reference.

He told of many cases where prisoners had been put under his charge. Almost without exception, there had been no recurrences of the offences.

Asked for his opinion of the majority of criminals who had come under his notice, the major said that after dealing with thousands of cases, he was of the opinion that most hardened criminals and first offenders were generally just unfortunate people, perhaps a little weak of will.

However, he adamantly blamed intoxicating drink as the main cause behind 90 per cent of the criminal cases which appeared in court every year. If only people would learn to take liquor in moderation, that is if they must take it, then much trouble and suffering would be averted.

It was also disturbing to note that a large number of convicted people were not genuinely sorry for their mistakes and ready to begin afresh, said the major. Rather they affected a hardened, bitter attitude to the world at large and regarded magistrates policemen, courts and reformatories as instruments purely designed for penalising the unfortunate.

Major Harry Everett

Grocery And Fruit Stores Petition City Council To Close All Day Monday

Five-Day Week Asked By City's Meat, Fruit, Grocery and Vegetable Trade; Stores Would Stay Open On Wednesday

[illegible] will, if officially verified, result in a five-day week bylaw for grocery, butcher and fruit and vegetable stores. They will close all day Monday and remain open Wednesday afternoons. This petition, signed by approximately 85 percent of proprietors in the three classifications, has been in the making for the past three months. The idea of a five-day week for all retailers in the city has been in existence for the past four years, and stems basically from wage and salary competition between industry and retail proprietors.

UNABLE TO COMPETE

It is the general opinion of these particular store operators that they cannot acquire or retain the necessary class of help they desire, and compete with industrial hours and wages.

"We cannot expect help to work longer hours for less money than they could get elsewhere," said Don Lewis, chairman of the retail section of the Chamber of Commerce and a local grocer, "nor can we (proprietors) compete with industry on the present basis."

In regard to the Monday closing it is thought by the group to be the most satisfactory for all concerned.

BUSINESS LOST WEDNESDAY

"We feel that more business is lost Wednesday afternoons than would be all day Monday," said Mr. Lewis. This is especially so in meat and fruit products, he pointed out, where Monday is generally considered clean-up day. "The real buying rush following a weekend begins on a Tuesday morning."

The petition has the following approximate signed percentage in each classification: fruit store proprietors, 80 per cent; butcher shop proprietors, 88 per cent; grocery proprietors, 80 per cent.

To have a bylaw passed by city council at least 75 per cent in a certain classification must authorize a legal petition.

CHAINS NOT OPPOSED

James Fraser, of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Lewis contacted the headquarters of various chain stores with divisions in Peterborough asking their opinion on the five-day week petition, which, if passed, would affect them as well. In each case the head officials stated they would not sign the petition, but would not in any way interfere should the bylaw go through.

It remains now for the petition to be checked and approved as to requirements named, and if found to be sound, presented to city council for passing. Once witnessed by council, a bylaw would be forthcoming within a month.

PIONEERING MOVEMENT

"We are pioneering this movement," said Mr. Lewis, "and feel that once something concrete is established, other retail classifications will join."

Eventually, it is thought, most retailers will close on Saturdays as does industry. At present Saturday afternoon sales are relatively low and if Friday evening shopping were possible, Saturday would become a low market day. Some basis for this conjecture on the part of local merchants is the existing conditions in Newfoundland where all stores close on Saturday. In the Maritimes the closing hour is Saturday noon.

City Aldermen Advised Consult Paid Officials

Congratulating members of Peterborough's 1954 council, a municipal government expert advised them to consult their paid officials for advice. Speaking before the Rotary club at noon today, Eric Hardy, a director of the national Citizens' Research Institute, described various forms of municipal government, and gave timely tips to the newer members of Peterborough's council.

The speaker said that under a city manager scheme of government councillors are not expected to become experts. He didn't think an elected representative should have to apologize for going to a paid official for advice.

DECIDE POLICY

The elected representative's main worry is policy; let the experts think about the details, he said. And as far as Peterborough's own paid officials go, they are regarded by the province and the municipal association as being of high calibre.

E. A. Outram for example, Mr. Hardy pointed out, is a past president of the municipal association and an alternate member of a committee of nine studying municipal-government relations.

"If he's good enough to study on a committee like that he's good enough to give advice to a new municipal government."

The speaker described what he called "a technological revolution" in local government responsible for the sharp increase in the cost of running a city. In Peterborough's case, for instance, it costs each person $60 a year to look after the city.

Main upkeep items are the large services run by the community, and the speaker felt it was the duty of the elected men to keep those running smoothly.

After describing various forms of municipal government in Canada and the United States, the speaker dwelt on differences found in councils in Ontario. Some municipalities Mr. Hardy said have one-year terms for their officials; in others, everyone is elected every two years, and in still others, like Peterborough, they have the alternate two-year offices.

BETTER SYSTEM

He felt Peterborough's system was preferable to either of the other two because it realizes the complexity of local government and assures continuity by retaining some veteran councillors all the time.

The speaker's advice to the taxpayer in a municipality was this: Keep in touch with the elected representative.

If you want to bother somebody though, bother the paid official until you receive satisfaction.

If that doesn't work, then take it up with the elected representative.

He emphasized the fact that people are living under a representative form of government. Elected officials can only represent, however, when they keep in touch with the people.

And it's the duty of the people to see that happens.

Find Textiles Stolen Valued At $15,000

GALT (CP)—Police today investigated the weekend theft of some $15,000 worth of textiles from the Fromm Brothers plant, the third major textile theft in the area in less than a month.

Plant officials wondered what the thieves would do with their loot because of the depressed market for textiles.

Socks valued at $7,000 and textile materials worth $3,000 were taken earlier from other district plants.

Police said they thought the Fromm robbery and the theft of $7,000 from the Beaumont Textile Company near Milton were committed by the same gang.

DOROTHY DIX

After Girl Plans Wedding Her Beau Reneges On Her

DEAR MISS DIX: Last September I became engaged to a man who was about to enter an officer's school. Our wedding was to take place in two months, when he got his first furlough, and in the meanwhile I was to make all preparations.

Well, the preparations went along all right and, two weeks before the wedding date, I had a letter from him telling me to hold up all arrangements until we had a chance for a talk. When he came home he said he was afraid of marriage, and needed more time to think it over. He left and I haven't heard from him since. The situation was, of course, very embarrassing to me; my friends had given me many presents, and two showers. What is hardest for me, however, is the fact that I still love him and would take him back at once. The only explanation I can think of is that he had an unhappy love affair, sometime before he met me. Should I write him, or just wait?

JILTED

ANSWER: From my vantage point, I'd say the young man just changed his mind for reasons best known to himself, and he no longer wants to marry you. Perhaps the other girl came back into the picture, or perhaps there is a new one. There is also the possibility that separation brought about a change of heart, or a new perspective simply made him decide you weren't the girl for him. Whether any one of these suppositions is the reason for his silence, is for you to decide.

The first step in readjustment, for a girl who has been disappointed in love, is to face the situation squarely and make up her mind to conquer it. The young man is no mere boy, subject to the whims of adolescence. At 25 he's surely well able to make up his own mind. Writing to him now would only be openin the wound wider. You'd be on constant watch for a reply, hoping for that which will not materialize. Since he appeared quite definite in his decisions to call everything off, you'd better proceed on that assumption. The time-honored cures for fractured hearts are prayer and new interests, but the first step is your own submission to circumstances. While there's always the possibility that your sweetheart wil lreturn, penitent and ready for the altar, it would be well for you not to count on the happy ending.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last week I met a very nice boy at a dance and he was quite attentive to me. When we parted, he said he would phone me, but he hasn't. I'll meet him again soon at the same place. Should I ignore him, or give him a chance to explain.

FANNY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't ignore him, and don't expect him to explain. Apparently his promise to phone was a mere formality, and has already been forgotten by him. Be pleasant at the next meeting, and perhaps on a future occasion he'll make good his promise to call you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I separated recently after ten years of marriage. I have our three small children. I work hard to care for them, but am getting tired of the same routine. I can't go out evenings, and the only people I meet are other mothers of small children. How can I get started again in social life?

L. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A carefree social life isn't possible for the mother of small children. But isn't the sacrifice worthwhile? Your little children will be soon ready for school. Later you'll have time to make the new contacts, and do some of the interesting things you yearn for now. Be grateful for the opportunities of meeting other women. Some mothers don't even have that comfort.

Jessup-Thompson

The marriage took place quietly at the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday afternoon, Major Horace Roberts officiating, of Lois Bernice, daughter of Mrs. Violet Thompson, of Peterborough, to Delbert Edward Jessup, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Jessup, of Lakefield.

The bride was wearing a navy suit and pink blouse with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Eleanor Jessup, who was similarly attired.

The groom's attendant was the bride's brother, Lawrenee Thompson.

A reception was held at the bride's home, following which the couple left for Kingston and points east. After a honeymoon they will live at Camp Borden where the groom is stationed with the army.

Duchess Of Windsor Barely Makes Best Dressed List

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor not only relinquished her title of best-dressed woman in the world today—she almost slipped off the list.

The 1953 champion is Mrs. William Paley of New York, wife of the head of Columbia Broadcasting System.

For several years it has been a see-saw battle between the two famous fashion leaders, with Mrs. Paley nosing out the duchess for first place in 1948 and 1949.

This time the duchess barely made the list, tying for 10th place with Mary Martin, Broadway star currently co-starring with Charles Boyer in the comedy, "Kind Sir." Actually, the list has 12 names, since there also was a tie for ninth place.

1,000 CAST VOTES

The international poll, which has been conducted by the New York Dress Institute since 1940, tallied votes from more than 1,000 fashion authorities over the world in arriving at the new list.

Mrs. Paley, a daughter of the late Harvey Cushing, famed Boston brain surgeon, was a New York fashion editor before her marriage to Paley in 1947.

Compared with many others on the "best-dressed" list, Mrs. Paley's wardrobe usually is not lavish, but is notable for its simplicity and perfect taste.

Others on the current list:

2. Mrs. Winston Guest, of New York and Palm Beach.

3. Mrs. Byron Foy, of New York, daughter of the founder of the Chrysler Motor Co., and wife of one of its chief executives.

4. Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French ambassador to the United States.

5. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., wife of the publisher of the New York Journal-American.

6. Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston and Washington, only woman member of the Eisenhower cabinet.

7. Mme. Louis Arpels, of Paris and New York, whose husband is in the jewel firm of Van Cleef and Arpels.

8. Princess Margaret.

9. A tie between Mrs. Henry Ford II, of Detroit, and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, of New York.

10. The Duchess of Windsor and Marty Martin.

Hochner-Cooke

HAVELOCK (ENS)—A public health nurse of St. Catharines, formerly of the staff of Wellesley Hospital, Miss Laura Elizabeth Hamel Cooke was married to Mr. Sydney Victor Hochner, of Toronto, in St. Jude's Church, Toronto, on New Year's Day. She is the only daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. L. Hamel Cooke, of Havelock, and the ceremony was performed by her father. She was given in marriage by her brother, Cadet William Bruce Hamel Cooke, of the Royal Military College, Kingston. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Rutter, of Toronto.

The bride wore a white gown with full skirt of tulle, fitted lace bodice and matching jacket with long pointed sleeves, and Juliet cap with pearls and fingertip veil of tulle. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Rutter wore a gown of cocoa taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and bronze chrysanthemums.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. David Moyer near Port Credit.

Mr. and Mrs. Hochner will make their home in Toronto.

Oddfellows Hold Invitation Dance

A New Year's Eve invitation dance was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, Water Street. Messrs. John Pirie, Herb Youngs and Clifford Pirie convened the affair. Introductions took place, followed by receiving of hats, horns and nose-makers for a traditional welcome to 1954.

Prizes were won by Victor Brown, Mrs. John Houghton, Pete Collins, Mrs. Beatrice Gurney, Bruce Scott, Miss Joan Youngs and Mrs. Lily Pirie.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Lobster Rolls, Hot Tamale Answer Readers' Needs

PERSONAL NOTE: Glowing from the warmth of greetings and gifts sent by readers, I have to take time and space to say a big hearty and public thanks in addition to the thank you notes I have mailed.

Any little thing I am able to do for you is all in the line of duty of course, but it is also a pleasure every day. Your thoughtful gifts and greetings heap up my measure to overflowing and make me wish I could do more—better. I shall resolve to try.

QUESTION: I would like to serve lobster rolls but do not have a good recipe. I have substituted lobster on a hot crabmeat puffs recipe but it was not too satisfactory. In this the lobster was combined with whipped egg whites and mayonnaise piled on rolls and broiled. Have you a better suggestion? With these I would also like to serve cheese and bacon rolls. What in the way of pickles and relishes, etc? — E. S. A.

ANSWER: Buy or make very small rolls, about 2-inch diameter, or use tiny toast rounds or tea biscuits. Split rolls or tea biscuits in half and spread each half with filling: Melt 1 tablespoon butter, stir in 1 tablespoon flour and when smooth, stir in ½ cup hot milk until thick. Add 1 tablespoon very finely chopped green onion or chives. Spread on roll or biscuit halves, or toasted or sauteed bread rounds or fill cases. Sprinkle top with Parmesan cheese and broil under very hot broiler just before serving. Another lobster spread which may be used for this purpose is: 1 cup finely cut lobster tail meat, 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish, 2 tablespoons ripe olives cut finely, ½ teaspoon salt and barely enough mayonnaise to bind. To this latter you may add 1 tablespoon chopped chives and ¼ cup finely chopped celery if desired. Individual tomato jelly moulds sharply flavored with lemon are a good accompaniment and are pretty, too. Ripe olives, heated in the liquor from the tin, are extremely popular and novel.

QUESTION: . . . Also, could you tell me what is wrong with a cake box I have? I received a Christmas cake in it last year as a gift and everything that is put into it has a funny taste. Could you give me any ideas what to do with goose fat?

ANSWER: I have answered this letter to the best of my ability telling this reader to wash, air and paint the box, and to make laundry soap with the fat. I would be grateful if other folk have ideas on this subject if they would write to me.

QUESTION: Have just returned from a holiday in Mexico and was going to have a party and show some colored film . . . would like to serve a Mexican dish for a late supper and was wondering if you have any suggestions. — J. F.

ANSWER: I would prefer to give you the recipe for Hot Tamales but you have to have fresh corn husks for them. They may be cooked in squares of parchment though. If you want the recipe write to me again. Mexican Mole is another good dish but I cannot find the mole powder in our stores. You could serve Hot Chili Con Carne but I think you want something that is not so well-known. Would you like to try

MEXICAN TAMALE PIE

One lb. ground beef (or finely chopped raw chicken), 1 cup seedless white raisins, ½ cup green olives, sliced, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each black pepper and red pepper (reduce this if you think you should), 1½ cups cornmeal, 1 tablespoon butter. Mix meat, raisins, olives, salt, peppers. Put in saucepan. Cover with cold water and bring to boil, then simmer until tender—about ½ hour. Stir in 1 tablespoon cornmeal. In another dish boil about 4 cups salted water and stir in remaining cornmeal until very thick, then add the butter to it and stir in. Line a greased baking dish with slightly more than half of this batter. Pour in meat mixture then cover with remaining cornmeal batter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes. Serve hot.

Canadian Women Given New Year's Resolutions

Keep Our Heads And Use Our Brains To Understand What Is Happening

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mrs. Irene Parlby, one of the first women in the Commonwealth to hold cabinet rank, was one of eight Canadian women who gave The Canadian press their new Year's resolutions.

Mrs. Porlby, now 85, was minister without portfolio in the United Farmers of Alberta government from 1921 to 1935. She now lives on a farm near Alix, 125 miles south of Edmonton.

She said:

"An excellent resolution for us all might be to keep our heads and use our brains to understand what is happening across the globe and by sympathetic understanding, basic Christian principles and wise statesmanship, endeavor to channel the revolutionary processes disturbing the world into beneficial courses."

Gladys Porter, Kentville, N.S., Maritimes: "It is my resolution to do my duty to humanity and to the utmost of my strength and ability to ever strive for the welfare of our town, province and nation."

Mrs. H. E. Vautelet, National president of the Canadian Association of Consumers: "I resolve to judge no one till I have stood in imagination in his shoes; to remember the price of my freedom is administration of that freedom; that a hungry world watches my laden table and that sharing is the price of peace; to try to be part of the answer to 1954's problems and not part of those problems."

Charlotte Whitton, mayor of Ottawa: "As for New Year's resolutions, I still believe with Robert Browning's Rabbi Ben Ezra." She quoted:

"Our times are in His hand,
Who saith, 'a whole I planned,
Youth shows but half; trust God:
See all, nor be afraid.'"

Mrs. Fred Draka, Regina, national president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada: "I'll pray and work for an increase in charity, tolerance and understanding among racial and religious groups throughout the world and especially in Canada. My best efforts will be devoted to helping newcomers to Canada to understand and find their true place in our Canadian way of life."

Senator Nancy Hodges, Victoria: "I resolve to do all I can to translate the Christmas spirit into terms of everyday living and thus help bring about tha tmuch-hoped-for goal of peace on earth and goodwill to men."

Mrs. Garnet Coulter, wife of Winnipeg's mayor:

"What is this life if, full of care, We have no time to stand and stare.'

"I think I'll take a little time to stand and stare and try to get a better perspective that way so I can keep my values straight."

Senator Muriel Fergusson, Fredericton: "I resolve to serve Canada, my own province and my own sex as faithfully as my ability will permit, trusting that I will not let fear, lethargy or vanity in any way interfere with such service."

MARLENE DIETRICH tells you "HOW TO BE LOVED"

"When the Journal editors asked me to write an article, I was astonished and honored. I had never written anything, or even authorized a by-line, but the subject intrigued me. I wrote it to remind you of your own feelings when you started to love—your own richness of heart . . . which you still have, but may have neglected in this hectic, rushing life of ours. You will read my sincere beliefs on love and how to be loved in the Ladies' Home Journal."

Fabian Society Celebrates 70th Birthday

LONDON (Reuters)—The Fabian Society — Britain's oldest socialist organization and intellectual father of the Labor party—celebrates its 70th birthday today.

The group of young British intellectuals — including playwright George Bernard Shaw, novelist-historian H. G. Wells, and economist Sidney Webb—who banded together late in the 19th century to form the society were probably [illegible] from militant communism.

They opposed the Marxist theory of working-class revolution, and preached instead a policy of socialism through education and gradual change by constitutional means.

HELPED FORM PARTY

The society's influence, and the growing political awareness of the trade unions, helped form the British Labor party in 1906.

World-famous figures outside politics who have been Fabian lecturers include philosopher Bertrand Russell; Dr. Marie Stopes, fighter for birth control; historian Arnold Toynbee; and theosophist Annie Besant.

Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor party, and the late Harold Laski, noted left-wing political thinker, were on its executive committee.

At present, 118 members of the House of Commons belong to the Fabian Society.

DELTA WING PLANES TO BE BUILT IN CANADA—C. D. Howe, Minister of Defence, has announced that the government is to order Canadian-built delta wing fighter planes. The plane, which will be built by the A. V. Roe Company at Malton, has been designated the CF105 and the designers claim that the speed of the new aircraft will exceed 1,200 miles per hour. Shown here is the Gloucester GA5 Javelin Delta plane upon which the design of the new CF105 will be based.—(Federal Newsphotos).

Small Booklet Tells Canadians How Much They Pay For Bread

OTTAWA (CP)—The bureau of statistics has put out a little booklet showing how much bread Canadians eat and what they pay for it.

Bread-baking, one of the oldest human arts, dates back to the Stone Age. Ancient Egypt produced white bread from wheat.

For many many years, bread-making in Canada was mostly a domestic art. But with development of towns and cities, this individual household art gradually passed to a central family baker.

In this century, the family baker gave way to industrial baking following the development of electrical power, more efficient auto-transportation.

RECORD OUTPUT

In 1952, output of bread and bakery products in Canada reached the record value of $260,181,410, a six-per-cent increase over the previous year.

The industry ranked 15th in gross value of production. Nearly 2,600 establishments turning out bread, buns, pies, cakes and pastries employed 33,000 persons who were paid $74,244,786.

Canadians purchased 1,521,196,406 pounds of bread in 1952 for $161,343,196. In 1933, average selling price of bread at the factory was 4½ cents a pound. In 1952, it was 10.6 cents. Quantity of bread made in 1952 was 7.4 per cent greater than in 1951 and the value increased 8.1 per cent.

In 1952, per capita consumption of bread was 105.6 pounds, the highest since 1948 when it was 106.9 pounds. Highest rate as 111.9 recorded in 1946.

Thomson Purchases 3 Florida Newspapers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (CP)—Roy H. Thomson, Canadian owner of the daily St. Petersburg Independent, today announced he has acquired three south Florida weekly newspapers. They are the Punta Gorda Herald, the Clewiston News and the Hendry County News.

"They are small papers," he said, "but that country is growing so fast they have a good chance of becoming dailies. All southern Florida is still a comparative frontier but it is going to be one of the richest and most diversified areas in the south."

Lord Ismay Enters U.K. Nursing Home

PARIS (AP)—Lord Ismay, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has entered an Oxford, England, nursing home for treatment of acute fibrositis.

A NATO headquarters announcement said he has cancelled all engagements for the next 10 days.

Obituary

WILLIAM JOHN McAULIFFE

The death occurred Sunday, at his residence, 208 Parkhill Rd. E., of William John McAuliffe, Phm.B. Mr. McAuliffe had been ill for some time.

Born in Peterborough, son of the late Redmond McAuliffe and Mrs. Ellen McAuliffe, who is still living, he was educated at St. Peter's School before graduating from the Ontario College of Pharmacy in 1923. Following graduation, he worked as a druggist in Detroit and Toronto until returning to Peterborough eight years ago.

Because of failing health, he worked only periodically during these last years.

He is survived by one sister, Miss Florence McAuliffe, RN.

Funeral will take place Thursday from his home to the Immaculate Conception Church, of which he was a member, for requiem mass at 9.00 a.m. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

100 Attend Celebration Of Anniversary

GORE'S LANDING—(ENS)—More than 100 guests signed the register at the Golden Jubilee At Home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ames of Gore's Landing, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Monday afternoon with an At Home to their many friends.

Guests were present from Toronto, Trenton, Noranda, Cobourg, Warkworth, Port Hope, Brighton, Coldsprings and Plainville as well as neighbors in this village. Also present were their three children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Washburn and son John from Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio (Enid Ames), Mr. and Mrs. Lyall Ames with Lorne and Catharine, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Halstead with Anne and Lynda Lou, all from Noranda, Miss Joan Halstead, nurse in training in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

More than 100 golden wedding anniversary cards were received as well as messages of congratulation from Windsor, Toronto, Noranda and other places. Several beautiful gifts were given Mr. and Mrs. Ames. This included a certificate from the Provincial Secretary Hon. Arthur Walsh, a colleague of Hon. A. W. Goodfellow, a cousin of Mr. Ames and the member for Northumberland county, and who also sent his good wishes to the happy couple.

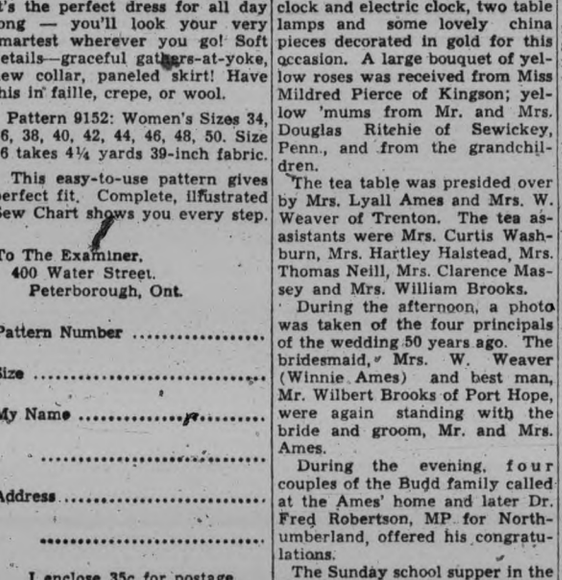
Other gifts were a 400-day clock and electric clock, two table lamps and some lovely china pieces decorated in gold for this occasion. A large bouquet of yellow roses was received from Miss Mildred Pierce of Kingson; yellow 'mums from Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ritchie of Sewickey, Penn., and from the grandchildren.

The tea table was presided over by Mrs. Lyall Ames and Mrs. W. Weaver of Trenton. The tea asasistants were Mrs. Curtis Washburn, Mrs. Hartley Halstead, Mrs. Thomas Neill, Mrs. Clarence Massey and Mrs. William Brooks.

During the afternoon, a photo was taken of the four principals of the wedding 50 years ago. The bridesmaid, Mrs. W. Weaver (Winnie Ames) and best man, Mr. Wilbert Brooks of Port Hope, were again standing with the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ames.

During the evening, four couples of the Budd family called at the Ames' home and later Dr. Fred Robertson, MP for Northumberland, offered his congratulations.

The Sunday school supper in the United Church hall was also the occasion for members of the church to present Mr. and Mrs. Ames with an end table and an address while Mrs. Ames' class of girls presented her with an address and a bouquet of golden 'mums.



WELCOME TO CANADA was not as Italian immigrant Giovanni D'Aquilla, of Montreal, expected. Giovanni arrived 10 days ago and started work last Monday. Wednesday when he was working with fellow employees, a taxi came over the hill and struck him. Giovanni has one consolation—the cab was going only 15 miles an hour, and fellow workers say he would have been killed if the cab had been going much faster.

Burma Observes 6th Birthday Of Independence

RANGOON (Reuters) — Burma today celebrates the sixth anniversary of her independence with the hope that internal peace will be achieved in 1954 to help the country carry out her ambitious program for recovery and development.

Though Burma has made strides towards building up agriculture and industry, dislocated by four years of war and [illegible] ence, full implementation of the carefully-laid recovery plans is still held up by the unsettled state of the country.

In addition to the problem of the insurgents, Burma seems threatened with a major economic crisis in her one great export industry of rice growing.

HAS RICE SURPLUS

By maintaining high prices when world markets were dropping, Burma has more than 7,000 tons of last year's surplus rice in store and, with a new harvest just beginning, another 1,500,000 tons seems likely to be added.

Trade agreements with Ceylon and Japan will take 6,000 tons of this, but there are no readily apparent buyers for the remainder if, as seems likely, Burma maintains high prices.

In the last year the government forces have had great success against the Communist and Karen rebels and the Chinese Nationalist guerrillas, whose depredations and constant harrying attacks have made the tasks facing the country even harder.

IN SMALL GROUPS

The Communists have been dispersed into small groups and the Karens, who six weeks ago looked as though they would take possession of the whole rich rubber and tin producing belt in Tenasserim, southeast Burma, have been defeated in two major and probably decisive battles at Mawchi and north of Moulmein.

After many months of discussion, evacuation of Chinese Nationalist soldiers from Burma began, and 2,000 have been withdrawn to Formosa.

But at least 12,000 well-armed Chinese remain in Burma. They are raiding villages in Kentung state and have also joined hands with the Karens in Tenasserim.

Shelley Walks Out On Husband In Rome

ROME (AP)—Film star Shelley Winters has walked out on her matinee-idol husband, Vittorio Gassman, after a quarrel which began when she thought there was too much ham in his Hamlet.

"We had quite an argument," the blonde dramatic actress said in a Rome hotel this morning after confirming that she left Gassman—at least temporarily—at Genoa Saturday night. His interpretation of Shakespeare's Dane displeased her and they quarreled, Shelley reported.

Asked whether it was "only a matter of artistic disagreement, or something deeper," Miss Winters replied: "An artistic disagreement would be deep enough."

Is the rift serious?

"I'm afraid it's serious enough. I'm doing some deep thinking. Honestly, I can't say just now how it may come out."

Fugitive Overpowered

WEWAHITCHKA, Fla. (AP) — Jesse James Roberts, widely sought fugitive, was captured without resistance Sunday, but grabbed a gun hidden between his legs and began firing when an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a jailer searched him at the county jail. No one was hit by the shots and he was immediately overpowered, the agent said. Two shots were fired.

Held In Son's Beating

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A 45-year-old farmhand was held in jail today, accused of beating his two-year-old son black and blue because the child spilled mercurochrome on a clean sheet. Little Jimmie Dee Newell was in good condition at hospital but a nurse said "he really got a good licking, and I mean good. He's black and blue all over." The father, Hoke Newell, was booked on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Radio Singer Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Evan Evans, 53, a voice teacher at the Juillard Graduate School of Music and singer on radio broadcasts, died Sunday of a heart ailment in hospital. Evans, a baritone, had sung for CBS on the "Cathedral Hour of the Air" and the "Columbia Opera Hour." He also broadcast with orchestras conducted by Andre Kostelanetz, Eugene Ormandy and Howard Barlow. He was born in Birkenhead, England.

WARM BUT LIGHTWEIGHT snowsuit is completely washable. The suit can be hand-washed in lukewarm suds, rinsed and hung to dry overnight. It will be ready to wear, without pressing, next morning.

Trigger-Happy Driver Fires Wildly From Car

EDMONTON (CP) — Police scoured the city Sunday night for a gunman who fired a revolver indiscriminately from an automobile.

The man's antics first came to the attention of police when three householders reported bullets were fired through their windows. Then a motorist said he was fired upon while crossing a bridge in the centre of the city.

The last report came from the night desk clerk of a south Edmonton hotel who said he was narrowly missed by a bullet fired into the hotel lobby.

Mine Talks Said Adjourned

TIMMINS (CP) — Negotiations between officials of the McIntyre Porcupine Gold Mine and United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), aimed at settling a strike at the mine, have been adjourned until Tuesday.

Neither company nor union officials had any comment on the progress of talks held Saturday and Sunday.

McIntyre's 1,400 miners struck Sept. 21 to back the union's drive for higher wages and a checkoff of union dues in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec mines.

Eight gold mines in the Timmins area were struck along with four base metal producers in the Rouyn-Noranda area. So far settlement has been reached only at the Hollinger gold mine, where the men now are going back at work.

It was hoped the Hollinger settlement would provide a pattern for settlement of disputes at the seven other Timmins area mines. The 18-month agreement provided an hourly increase of five cents for Hollinger's 1,500 miners but did not include the checkoff.

Gold mines still struck are: Preston East Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Broulan Reef, Aunor, Hallnor, Coniaurum and Delnite.

London Grain Market Opens After 14 Years

LONDON (Reuters)—The London grain market opened today for the first time in 14 years since it was closed at the outbreak of war when the government took over grain bying.

Its re-opening marks a further stage in the transition from state bulk-buying back to private trading in Britain.

Today's trading was slow. It took traders half an hour to bid or offer on the corn market after it opened. Eventually £26 10s, was bid and £27 5s, was asked for March shipment.

First bids were for March shipment barley and after hesitant manoeuvring, business was finally done at £18 a ton.

This was the first trading ever in barley futures. Trading before the war in London market was confined to corn and wheat.

Not Alcohol On Breath Just Medicine Taken

Percy Crumey, of Lindsay, who told the court that police had mistaken the alcoholic odor of a particular medicine for an alcoholic beverage smell, failed to gain a dismissal from an intoxication charge brought against him in the magistrate's court today.

He was fined $50, costs $2.50, it being a second offence. Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, told Crumey that he considered Detective Farthing had had enough experience to enable him to decide upon the smell of alcoholic beverage.

New $4,000 Trailer Burns On Highway

BOLTON, Ont. (CP) — Traffic was tied up for an hour on Highway 50 near here Sunday when an almost-new $4,000 trailer caught fire and burned in the middle of the roadway. The owner, Harold Varcoe, 42, a Toronto sulky-racer, was towing it to a winter storeplace when a passing driver warned him that flames were coming from inside the trailer. Firemen from Bolton arrived too late to save the vehicle.

India Resents Military Aid For Pakistan

By RAWLE KNOX

NEW DELHI (OFNS)—The Indian Government has asked the governments of Australia and of several Asian countries to indicate to Washington the resentment felt here against possible American military aid to Pakistan. It is reliably learned that such countries as Indonesia, [illegible] views on the subject, have passed on the Indian message, but that Australia, after consultation with Britain, has decided temporarily to be noncommittal.

Although Britain is known to be nervous of any move that might increase tension between India and Pakistan, no official British view of the reported military aid to Pakistan has yet been expressed here. The entire diplomatic corps in Delhi, however, is amazed at India's tactics in this new Indo-Pakistan controversy, for the statements of Mr. Nehru, the Indian Premier, and of other Indian political leaders, plus demonstrations arranged by the ruling Congress Party, have now driven Pakistan more closely into the arms of the United States than she would ever have got on her own feet.

RALLY TO NEHRU

Indian propagandists and newspapermen answer, however, that it was urgently important that the whole world should know how India felt about a strengthened Pakistan and the possibility of new Muslim domination. They point out wit htruth that a whole coherent public which has previously been only politely interested in Mr. Nehru's policy of "non-involvement" is now solidly behind the Premier. In fact, every shade of political party has rallied to the support of Mr. Nehru's foreign policy as outlined in the recent Parliamentary debate.

What has interested diplomatic observers here is the reference in recent speeches, both of Mr. Nehru and of his sister, Vijayalaxmi Pandit, to "change in the balance of power" that would follow American military aid to Pakistan. In the past "power" has been a taboo word in Asian discussions of Asian countries. When the British Labor leader, visited India a year ago, and began blithely talking about a "Third Force" outside the American and Russian blocs, he was firmly corrected by Mr. Nehru who spoke of a "third area." A change in the balance of power can only mean that India might lose her military superiority over Pakistan and therefore be unable in the last resort to threaten Pakistan as she has done in the past from a position of strength.

FEAR UNWARRANTED

In fact it would seem that the much-maligned Americans, in their sincere desire to build a defensive barrier against the Soviet Union, might well balance rather than un-balance the power system of this sub-continent by giving military aid to Pakistan. One must assume, for the United States does not want an Indo-Pakistan war, that such aid would be accompanied by sufficient guarantees to Indian against Pakistani aggression. (Personally I am convinced that any fear of such aggression is unwarranted. Pakistani policy towards India, far more than vice-versa, is based on fear.) if neither country were able to bully the other, it might be possible to carry on to a successful conclusion the official talks on Kashmir, the first series of which has just concluded here with unexpectedly good progress made.

However, such responsible Indians as Mr. Durga Das, editor of the Hindustan Times, the newspaper owned by the leading industrialist, Mr. G. D. Birla, maintain that the only thing which could drive India Communist is the conviction that nothing but Communism could save the country from Pakistan. Delhi, peopled by refugees, conqueured so often by Muslim invaders, on the edge of the Punjab, that lost almost everything by the 1947 Partition, is an impossible city in which to consider Pakistan rationally. And the current controversy shows with regrettable clarity how few in India's capital honestly regard Pakistan as a permanently independent State.

4 People Injured In Store Explosion

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Four persons received minor injuries today when an explosion, followed by a one-hour fire, destroyed the F. W. Woolworth Company store in the heart of downtown Pottstown, causing an estimated $350,000 damage.

The blast occurred just half an hour before the store was scheduled to open for business. Fire officials said the explosion was caused by illuminating gas.

Woodcutter, 100 Dies In Holyoke

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP)—Alexander Beaupre, Canadian-born retired woodcutter, who celebrated his 100th birthday last month with a chopping demonstration, died Sunday at Holyoke Hospital after a five-day illness.

Beaupre was 100 last Dec. 18, but put off the celebration until Dec. 20, when he was host to 131 decendants, including seven great, great grandchildren.

He grew up in the woods near Hudson bay in northern Ontario and came here in 1882.

Beaupre attributed his long life to no smoking and "an occasional nip of whisky."

Tin Magnate Seeks To Halt Eloping Daughter, 18

EDINBURGH (AP)—Wealthy Bolivian tin magnate Antenor Patino pressed a search today for his eloping 18-year-old daughter, Maria Isabella, in the hope he may talk her out of marrying the 20-year-old son of a London hotelman. Patino's dark-eyed, beautiful daughter came here with her Eton-educated suitor, James Goldsmith, after eluding previous attempts by her parents to head off a wedding.

The South American multi-millionaire and Mrs. Patino, who came along with him on the search, think the elopers are too young to wed. Mr. and Mrs. Patino came here Sunday from Paris.

PAIR IN HIDING

Maria Isabella and James filed a wedding notice with Tom Cockburn, registrar of Edinburgh's Morningside district, last Tuesday. Under Scotland's marriage laws, parental consent is not required of anyone over 16. A spokesman for the registrar general said the Bolivian would have a hard time finding any legal grounds on which to stop the nuptials.

Under the law, the lovers can be wed any time after next Wednesday by any of Scotland's 200-odd registrars. Apparently they have gone into hiding until they are married.

When they first came here, Maria Isabella stayed at the home of Edinburgh lawyer James L. Mounsey. Goldsmith stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sinclair. But both families said their young guests had disappeared — they didn't know where.

A DETERMINED COUPLE

The London Daily Mirror said Patino had sent his determined young daughther to Casablanca last month in an effort to break up the romance. The paper said young Goldsmith chartered a plane and flew to the North African city at the same time Maria Isabella managed to slip away from her chaperone and fly to England. The couple were finally reunited in London, the paper said, and headed for Scotland.

Patino is the son of the late Simon Patino, who headed one of Bolivia's biggest tin mining concerns and who left a $200,000,000 fortune.

Maria isabella's elder sister, Christina, was married in Paris last year to Prince de Beauveau Craon.

CANNES, France (AP)—Frank Goldsmith, wealthy hotel man, said today he is not enchanted by the idea of the marriage of his 20-year-old son James to Maria Isabella Patino but that he planned to do nothing to stop the elopement to Scotland.

"To tell the truth, this marriage is not exactly according to my taste," Goldsmith told a reporter. "I think Jimmy is much too young to marry. She is a girl of good family, certainly. But she is only 18 years old."

As to whether the marriage might actually take place, Goldsmith would say only "in our family the son doesn't ask the father for permission to marry."

The elder Goldsmith is one of the principal stockholders in the ultra-fashionable Hotel Carleton at Cannes and is vacationing there now.

Woman Disappears On New Year's Eve

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Mrs. Doris McLean, 44, disappeared New Year's Eve when she was believed to have been on her way to join her husband at Port Colborne, 25 miles southwest of here.

She was last seen that afternoon in a local hotel. Police found her packed suitcase in the front room of her nearby home after it was reported she had not arrived in Port Colborne.

Cardinal Leaves Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman left Tokyo today after relaying to the servicemen of the Far East a cabled message of blessing just received from the Pope. Cardinal Spellman received the cable from the Pope just prior to his departure for Honolulu, ending his third consecutive Christmas visit to Korea and the Far East.

Driving Affected Man Fined $75

Pleading not guilty to a charge of being impaired while driving a motor vehicle, 26-year-old Earl J. Twomey, 206 Stewart St., was convicted today in court by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC.

Patrol Sergeant Reg McMillan and Constable Arthur Beardsmore testified to having observed Twomey on Brock St. driving erratically, very close behind a truck, at about 4 a.m. December 24.

A fairly long chase ended with Twomey being stopped. He had smelt of alcohol, slurred his speech and staggered when walking. However, his condition had not been serious enough to warrant an intoxication charge being laid.

Twomey, and Victor Maloney who was a passenger in his car, both denied having driven on Brock St. They had spent the evening at the home of Twomey's father and had consumed only three pints of beer, they said.

Magistrate Philp imposed a fine of $75, costs $2.50.

10 Flee Flames

TORONTO (CP)—Ten persons, including four children, escaped in night attire from a dawn fire which almost gutted a three-storey home on Maitland place Sunday. A faulty electric heating pad is blamed for the fire which caused an estimated $3,600 damage.

Mercy Flight May Save Life

TORONTO (CP) — A mercy flight from a slush-covered pond on Christian island in Georgian bay may save the life of a young Indian woman, stricken with an epidemic-type of dysentery. The island is 40 miles northwest of Orillia.

Catherine Montague, 23, had a "fair night," hospital officials here said today.

Dr. I. T. Weldon, doctor for the Christian island Indians, found her near death Saturday when he was called to her home.

Pilot Albert Dinnin landed a two-seater Aeronca plane on the slushy ice of a pond, took Miss Montague aboard and then to nearby Midland where she was kept alive during the night at Midland hospital with blood transfusions and oxygen.

She was brought to hospital here by ambulance Sunday.

Fire Destroys Farm Home

PORT HOPE — A farm home near Campbellcroft was burned to the ground in a fire Saturday, but a nearby barn with a $35,000 crop of tobacco was saved by the Port Hope fire department.

The house, owned by Dr. Robert McDermitt, of Port Hope, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tony Adraiczyk. They were working on a neighboring farm. Cause of the $5,000 fire was not known.

A passing motorist spotted the blaze in the six-room frame house. Adraiczyk tried to enter the building by smashing a window but flames forced him back.

Tobacco kilns were untouched.

Little Unity Of Purpose Among Indonesian Leaders

By ROBERT FRANKLIN

DJAKARTA—(OFN)—The Indonesian Republic, four years after achieving independence, is still without law and order, a circumstance that at first suggests that this young nation of 3,000 islands might be vulnerable to Communist encroachment.

Sizeable and important areas of the Republic are beyond the reach of governmental authority; in North Sumatra, West Java, East [illegible] the economy of Indonesia, one of the world's richest nations in natural resources, is in steady decline. And there is little unity of purpose among its leaders, most of whom dissipate their energy in petty politics.

Yet the young republic is not sliding to the Left at any great rate, even though the temper of an awakened Asia and domestic conditions combine in Indonesia to provide conditions favourable to the spread of Communism.

Certainly the Communists have been granted their greatest opportunity for action on the government level during he brief life of the present cabinet, which, although led by a moderate, Dr. Ali Satroamidjojo, has been clearly influenced by the Indonesian Communist Party in its decisions and indecisions. The cabinet, although dominated by the Indonesian Nationalist Party, is made up of a motley representation of ten parties or factions, and although the Communists are not officially represented, the Nationalists must depend on the Communists' 25 votes in any challenge in Parliament. In addition several cabinet members have shown themselves to be pro-Communist.

CABINET NOT POPULAR

But the Ali cabinet is neither popular nor strongly entrenched, and the degree of influence the Communists have been able to bring to bear is in part responsible for its weakness and unpopularity. In addition, there is evidence that the Communist party has been losing ground in the rural areas of this predominantly agricultural nation, and there is reason to believe that their present flurry of activity on the government level is an attempt to compensate for this.

In any case the Communists will almost certainly soon lose their support in the government, for there is little prospect that the Ali cabinet will remain in office for very much longer. When it goes it will be replaced by a cabinet based upon a coalition of the Masjumi, or Muslim Party and the Socialist Party, whose leaders are now co-operating closely to that end.

These are moderate and for the most part enlightened men who may be expected to press for early elections, so that Indonesia can at last get down to work; at the moment both Parliament and the constitution are provisional.

But until there are elections—in which, from all recent indications, the Masjumi Party would score heavily—any new cabinet will be weakened by the necessity to give cabinet seats to representatives of eight or ten of the country's eighteen political parties in order to assure a working majority.

AWAIT REGISTRATION

A law providing for direct and secret election of members of a constituent assembly and parliament was passed last April, but the registration of voters is far from complete, and cannot be completed until dissident areas have been brought under control. In any case the timing of the elections will almost certainly be decided by political manoeuvring.

Meanwhile Masjumi and Socialist leaders say that they are now prepared to face up to the big issues confronting Indonesia—issues that most cabinets have sidestepped. These are the establishment of law and order, early elections, a realistic policy on foreign investment so that [illegible] Indonesian technicians can be trained, and action to curb Communist influence on labour, which has been greatly strengthened during the present cabinet's term in office.

This reflects a growing awareness of the urgent need for concerted action to get Indonesia on its feet, but it remains to be seen whether agreement on policy will be — or, indeed, can be carried over into government at this time.

Western Powers Have 3-Point Peace Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western powers plan to confront Russia with a three-point German peace program at the Berlin conference, if it appears that the Soviets intend to negotiate.

One effect of the program worked out by the United States, British and French governments in a series of meetings recently concluded at Paris would be, in the view of Western officials, to wipe out the Communist East German government.

It therefore appears to be unacceptable to the Soviets. Authorities here doubt that even a start can be made at Berlin toward developing a real compromise between the Russian and Western attitudes toward Germany's future.

There is now ample evidence, however, that the discussions between Western leaders and Soviet foreign minister Molotov in the German capital will range far beyond the immediate problem of German peacemaking to embrace:

ATOMIC POOL PROPOSAL

1. Some talk between State Secretary Dulles and Molotov on President Eisenhower's proposal for a pool of atomic materials for peaceful uses and Russia's renewed call for a ban on atomic weapons.

2. Discussion among all the ministers, Molotov, Dulles, British foreign secretary Eden and the French foreign minister then in office, of relations with Red China. That seems almost certain to lead into some talk of a Korean settlement and the war in Indo-China.

3. Exploration by the West of the attitudes and intentions of Russia's government.

The Berlin conference, originally proposed by the Western powers to begin today, was delayed at Moscow's request until Jan. 25.

U.S., British and French diplomats completed the Western strategy for the conference at Paris meetings about two weeks ago.

Europe Plans Union Of TV Networks

ROME (AP) — West Europe's television screens may unite long before the continent's governments get together politically.

The prospects of a European television network were unfolded today in the wake of Italy's first regular TV programs.

Aldo Passante, director of the Italian government-operated television organization, said eight non-Communist countries are working to[illegible]

They hope to have the system working in five months.

As now planned, England could contribute a comedy by Bernard Shaw or drama by William Shakespeare, Italy could telecast the opera from La Scala and other countries their national specialties.

Passante said the idea is being explored by Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Britain, The Netherlands, Switzerland and Italy.

Sweden is expected to join the group soon.

The countries hope to get "European program" going by June 1, in time to televise the world soccer championship game in Switzerland.

Judge Turns Down Demand For Increase

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Rene Lippe turned down Sunday demands for a 10-cent hourly wage increase for workers at mills of Dominion Textile Co. Ltd., and the Montreal Cottons Ltd., because of the "precarious" condition of the textile industry.

Judge Lippe's decision was announced by Dominion Textile officials. It also turned down a company request that wages be lowered by five cents an hour.

Locals 100, 102 and 192 of the United Textile Workers of America had asked for the boost. Judge Lippe was named to head an arbitration board when the union failed to reach an agreement with the companies.

St. Peter's Church To Be Torn Down

LONDON (AP)—Crumbling St. Peter's church near Piccadilly Circus, where actors worshipped for 94 years, is to be demolished.

The office of the Bishop of London, Dr. J. W. C. Wand, said Saturday its site on crowded Great Windmill street, in the heart of the theatre district, has become unsuitable for a church.

Many have pleaded that it be preserved. One unnamed man offered to pay £150,000 ($420,000) for its restoration.

Car Drivers Ignore Accident Victims

TORONTO (CP)—A young father injured in a head-on collision in suburban East York township, stood for 20 minutes in the middle of the road with his bleeding infant son in his arms before a motorist stopped to help New Year's Day.

Joseph Kirk, 36, and his son Garry escaped serious injury but Kirk's wife, Alice, 33, was taken to hospital where her condition was reported as fair.

Driver of the car which collided with Kirk's automobile fled. Police learned later the car was stolen.

Freight Train Wrecked

EDMUNDSTON, N. B. (CP)—Wrecking crews cleared the Canadian National Railways line at nearby Baker Brook Sunday 18 hours after 19 cars of a 44-car freight train were derailed by a broken rail. No one was injured but damage was heavy. Two of the derailed cars contained explosives. However, there was no blast.

Laos Again Battles Red Invaders

LAOS, ONE OF the three associated states of Indo-China, remained untouched by the war that had raged for seven years in neighbouring Viet Nam until last April. Then Communist Viet Minh forces, in a surprise attack, slashed toward the capital, Luang, Prabang, drove the Laotian-French defenders out and, in a move just as surprising, suddenly withdrew back into Viet Nam. Now, with the current attack that has sliced Indo-China in half across its narrow waist, Laos again is fighting with French and Viet Nam forces against the Red invader.

CROWN PRINCE Savang Phouma, Laos' premier, has protested to the UN against invasion, saying the aggression is proof of Viet Minh imperialism.

WAR HAS changed Laotians' peaceful way of life. This woman and her neighbour carry rifles for protection against Communist attackers.

WAR MOBILIZATION has expanded Laos' peacetime army of 15,000 men to 26,000, including well - trained paratroop units. Equipment is modern.

AN AROUND-THE-CLOCK AIRLIFT with big transport planes like this is bringing tons of supplies and reinforcements to French-Laotian forces making a stand at Savannakhet after abandoning to the Viet Minh the river port of Thakhek, 50 miles to the north.

Jailed 3 Years In Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—A 44-year-old China-born American business man, lame and near-sighted from beri beri, arrived Sunday from three years in a Shanghai jail and said other Americans still are held there. He didn't know how many.

(There have been reports of as many as 30 Americans and 10 Canadians still held in Red China.

Arnold Kiehn told reporters he was released without explanation last Monday and given seven days to get out of Red China.

He said death and suffering were rampant in the jail; that prisoners died at the rate of 15 a day during one winter; and that Red firing squads are bringing in Chinese at the rate of six to eight a day and shooting them.

Kiehn said he was thrown in jail in 1950 on a trumped-up charge of failing to report ownership of firearms.

Retreats In Tie and Tails

Junkman Decides To Leave Neighbor Lt.-Governor

VICTORIA (CP) — Harry Haigh, the junkman who climbed government hill, has climbed back down.

He made the retreat Friday—with all the dignity and humor that marked his rise—in white tie and tails.

Harry became a neighbor of Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace in 1952 when he paid a reported $11,000 for the 12-room mansion "Piermont," 200 yards from Government House.

He renamed the mansion "Ching Do Foo Oc," Chinese for "garbage man's house," squabbled with neighbors and building inspectors and appeared in court for keeping junk on the premises.

A charge against Mr. and Mrs. Haigh of operating a multiple dwelling in a single-dwelling area was defeated under a wartime housing order.

Harry dressed in formal clothes Friday and drove his truck to the lieutenant governor's mansion where he joined the New Year's Day receiving line.

He went to give his neighbors something to celebrate — to tell them he was selling out and moving to the "other side of the tracks," to be near his work.

"The governor is a swell guy," he said later. "He made me feel right at home. I didn't know I had such a nice neighbor. All my other neighbors are miserable because I live among them, but Mr. Wallace treated me just dandy. I hate to leave the district."

Holiday Death Toll 35 Higher Than Year Ago

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The long New Year's week-end brought death to 35 persons across Canada.

A Canadian Press compilation today shows the count for the period from 6 p.m. New Year's Eve to midnight Sunday compares with 22 for the holiday week-end last year when the celebrations extended through five days.

The toll by provinces: Quebec, 12; Ontario, 8; British Columbia, 6; Nova Scotia, 4; New Brunswick, 4; Alberta, 1.

There were 16 traffic deaths, eight from asphyxiation, six in fires, two from drowning, two from the effect of freezing and one from a stairway fall.

A fire in Saint John, N.B., killed three young children of Mr. and Mrs. George Winchester, and severely burned their pregnant mother.

Arthur Joseph Tingley, 52, was burned to death near Halifax when fire destroyed his home. A son and a daughter suffered burns in escaping.

Andre Boissy, 13, of St. Hubert, near Montreal, was killed when struck by a car while crossing a street near his home.

Robert Frye, 17, died after a two-car collision near St. George, N.B.

Victims of Ontario traffic mishaps reported Sunday were: Mrs. Elsie Church, 51, of Leamington, at St. Thomas; William Menary, 83, at Lucknow; and Ernest H. Whittingham, 53, of St. Thomas, at London.

British Columbia's toll rose to six when a woman was drowned on Salt Spring Island, near Vancouver.

PRODIGAL SON RETURNS—Charles R. Jernigan, 17, is lovingly embraced by his mother, Mrs. D. D. Jernigan, on his return to his Helena, Ark., home after 18 months of wandering from coast to coast. He decided to return when he heard a Chicago radio broadcaster, whom his father had written to, urging him to go on home. The boy told a reporter, "I left because I wanted to see what was going on in the world, what made it tick."

402 Fatalities Across U.S. Over Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—Light by contrast with the appalling slaughter of more recent years, the toll of accidents during the New Year's weekend was still only a handful short of the record for such a three-day period.

During the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. Thursday to midnight Sunday, 293 died in traffic accidents, 39 in fires and [illegible]

The record for a three-day new year's weekend was set at 424 in 1949-50 and equalled the following year; the record of traffic deaths for such a period, set in 1949-50 is 304.

ESTIMATE TOO HIGH

There appeared little prospect that the U. S. national safety council's first estimate that 360 would die on the highways and streets during that period would be fulfilled.

New Year's accident records were set in the last two years during four-day weekends—at 611 total for 1951-52 and 407 traffic deaths in 1952-53.

The 1953 Christmas weekend saw 717 persons die in accidents, 523 in traffic mishaps.

Aim To Boost East-West Trade

SINGAPORE (AP) — Britain aims to promote an expansion of east-west trade and more freedom for currencies at he commonwealth finance talks this week in Sydney, Australia, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler, said today.

He told reporters that U. S. cooperation with such plans would mean a solution of Malaya's rubber and tin problems. The two commodities have slumped badly due to lower prices paid by the United States, this country's biggest customer.

Butler is en route to Sydney for the week-long conference of fin-Preliminary talks in the Australian metropolis started today between officials of the countries attending —Canada, Britain and her colonies, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and the Central African Federation.

Bishop Of Ottawa Resigns His Post

OTTAWA (CP)—The Rt. Rev. Robert Jefferson has announced his resignation, effective in April, as Anglican bishop of Ottawa.

The 73-year-old prelate, bishop of Ottawa for almost 15 years and connected with the Ottawa diocese for some 40 years, announced his decision during his New Year's Message at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday.

Bishop Jefferson was consecrated here Nov. 30, 1939, after serving in the Ottawa diocese since 1914. He came to Canada in 1906 from Ireland, where he was born in Newry, County Down, July 11, 1881.

Egypt's Old Regime On Trial As New Scandals Uncovered

By THOMAS R. LITTLE

CAIRO (OFNS). — The snowball of political scandal grows daily larger in Cairo's revolutionary tribunal, now trying leading figures of the "old regime" on charges of corruption and abuse of power, as politician after politician comes in to testify and leave, very often, with a stain on his own character.

The case which has transcended all others in its revelation of political chicanery, corruption and nepotism is that of Fuad Serag El-Din, former strong[illegible] of the Wafd Government's collapse in January, 1952, Minister of Finance and Interior.

But it is no longer the cigar-smoking, political boss alone who is on trial. The charges against him personally have been submerged in the greater trial of a generation of politicians. Already from the evidence given in the trial two libel suits are being filed against one of the principal witnesses, Zaki Abdel Motaal, a former Finance Minister, there look like being about five new graft cases; and a former Prime Minister is to be charged with abuse of office.

When Motaal told the court that he had been threatened with libel by a former Minister, Mahmoud Ghannam, the President of the Tribunal, Wing-Commander Latif El-Boghdadi, merely replied: "Ah, well, you are both lawyers. You should be able to settle it between you." Libel suits, after all, would only be a little more grist to the revolutionary mill.

REPUTATIONS UPSET

The situation is not new. Other trials have produced the same results and it is in the wealth of evidence produced in the courts that the dossiers are built up against other offenders. For example, a former Public Prosecutor whose reputation had stood high as the man who wanted to prosecute the Palestine arms scandal (alleged supply of defective arms to Egyptian forces in the Palestine war) to its bitter end, was revealed in the course of evidence to have been a political opportunist throughout the whole affair.

Serag-el-Din's trial, however, brought everything to a higher plane. The charges were broad enough to cover every possible offence so that the evidence in the trial has uncovered a story which ranges from the petticoat rule of Madame Mustapha Nahas, wife of Mustapha Nahas, the Wafd leader, (who is said to have had more influence over the Cabinet than her husband when he was Premier) to joint Palace-Government corruption which cost Egypt about £30 million over cotton deals.

The newspapers here devote pages every day to the evidence of the trial. The Egyptian people are edified with stories of the [illegible] at cheap rates with the balance going to relatives of Ministers, customs swindles, drug smuggling, bribery of ex-King Farouk to secure the dismissal of a Finance Minister who refused any longer to be party to rigging the cotton market, of a man who sailed in a special ship to Italy to meet Mustapha Nahas, then Prime Minister, and his wife, at an alleged cost of £70,000 merely to bring them home from their holiday in Europe and so secure by this gesture the withdrawal of a tax claim for millions of pounds.

Above all the evidence describes the collaboration between the Wafd and the Palace. If Serag-el-Din secured Palace backing for the cotton market deals, then the Palace had Serag el-Din's backing in the suppression of evidence against Palace favourites in the Palestine arms scandal. One witness recounted that when he asked Nahas why he was allowing King Farouk so much cover for his enterprises, Nahas replied: "We've been out of office long enough through opposing the King."

For the military regime, it is simply a case of the old regime damning itself. Even if some of the stories are untrue, the general picture painted is one of corruption and misgovernment, providing by implication the justification to the public for the present non-parliamentary regime.

Brodie Twin Has First Yule At Home

CHICAGO (AP)—Rodney Brodie, 27-months-old survivor of head-joined Siamese twins, returned to the hospital Sunday after his first Christmas with his parents and four brothers and sisters.

The little boy, whom surgeons are still planning to furnish with a hard protecting covering for the top of his skull, brought a 30-inch [illegible] tomobile into the University of Illinois Research Hospital. The panda is only five inches shorter than Rodney.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brodie took Rodney to their farm home near Ferris, Ill., for the holidays after surgeons decided it would be good for him.

Rodney's twin, Roger, died a month after their history-making surgical separation Dec. 17, 1952.

Cuts 5 Minutes Off Speed Record

NEW YORK (AP)—An Air National Guard commander sped his F-86 Sabre jet from coast to coast in four hours, eight minutes and five seconds Saturday, nipping five minutes off the record.

The pilot, Col. Willard W. Millikan, then landed his trim but powerless craft at Idlewild airport four minutes later.

He explained he ran out of fuel after crossing his finish line at nearby Floyd Bennett field.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

McGill Scientists Make First Successful Gas-Burning Engine Tests

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University scientists have made the first successful test runs with a coal-burning gas turbine engine that may bring about a revolution in railway operations.

Under design and construction for three years, the turbine may bring:

1. Cons[illegible] locomotive and more efficient than anything now on the tracks.

2. Use of coal-burning gas turbines to power electric generating units and to serve a variety of other functions.

3. A boom in the Canadian coal industry, a casualty in the phenomenal development of oil and uses for oil.

GOVERNMENT CONCERN

Concern over the future of vast Canadian coal reserves led the federal government to ask McGill scientists to develop a coal-burning gas turbine engine.

A team set to work under Prof. Donald Louis Mordell, a cautious young Englishman who spent the war years working on the development of aircraft jet engines.

They built an experimental 500-horsepower coal-burning gas turbine engine in McGill's gas dynamics laboratory at nearby Ste. Anne de Bellevue. A small furnace capable of burning three-quarters of a ton of pulverized coal an hour provides the power in the new engine. Air heaters pass the heat from the furnace gases to a compressor which drives the turbine, taken from a Rolls-Royce jet engine.

The engine is not a prototype for a locomotive or for other uses but it is expected to provide all the answers scientists need to know before thhe engine can be developed commercially.

TWO-YEAR TASK

Prof. Mordell believes it may take two years to compile the necessary information.

"The fundamental aim of the experiment is to find a new use for coal," Prof. Mordell said in an interview. "It would be unwise to concentrate all our attention upon the utilization of oil and natural gas reserves in view of our large known reserves of coal."

It is estimated that Canada has 55 carloads of coal per capita of population compared with one-half tank-car of oil.

The successful test runs were described in the House of Commons by Mines Minister Prudham, who said the McGill engine is one of the best in the world for research purposes.

Power has been produced before by coal-burning gas turbines in the United States and the United Kingdom but the McGill research is considered one step ahead.

The experimental engine blasts hot gases against wheels or turbines in its interior, causing them to spin at a terrific rate. A major problem was to see that no fly-ash or other products of combustion of coal fouled the turbine blades.

OVERCOME PROBLEM

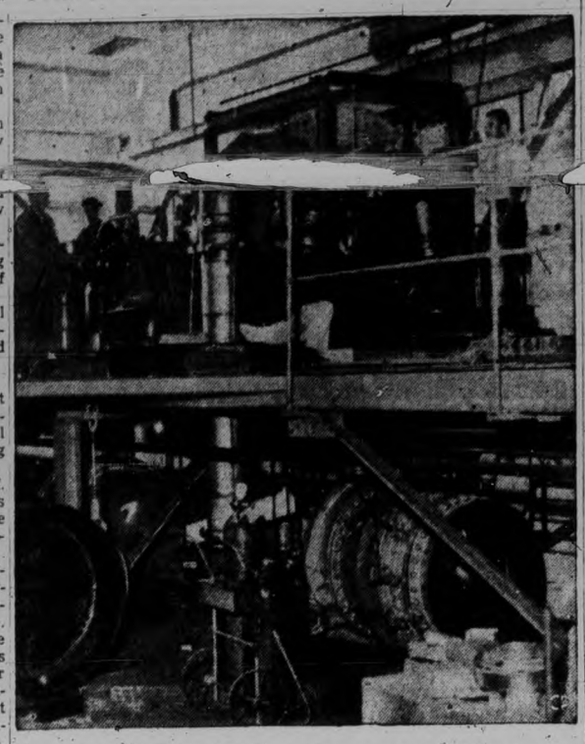
Prof. Mordell overcame the problem by inventing what he calls an "operating cycle." It ensures that only clean air comes into contact with the whirling blades of the turbine.

He worked with the knowledge that a United States locomotive manufacturing firm had developed an unsuccessful prototype gas-turbine locomotive several years ago. On trial runs ashes got mixed up with the gas and ground the turbine blades to pieces.

It has been estimated that a coal-burning gas turbine locomotive could haul passengers and freight trains four times as far as a present-day steam locomotive can with the same amount of coal. Fuel costs would be only a third as much as for present diesel locomotives.

The new locomotive could use lower grades of coal than steam engines require. Steam locomotives utilize an average of six per cent of the thermo-energy of coal, while the new ones would utilize 20 to 24 per cent. In cold winter, the efficiency of steam locomotives drops. It is believed the efficiency of the gas-turbo engines would increase in winter.

President Donald Gordon of Canadian National Railways has said that the new engines would provide heat for passenger trains as a by-product, eliminating the need for separate heating systems which diesel-powered trains require.



GAS-TURBINE POWER—Scientists at McGill University have completed successful tests with a new coal-burning gas-turbine engine which may be used to power railway locomotives and coal-operated electricity plants. Pulverized coal is burned in the large chamber at lower right. The resultant gas is led into the second tank and then passes upwards through pipes to the turbine. Built in a converted drill hall at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, near Montreal, the turbine may be developed for commercial use in two years.

Spillane Proves Disappointment, Even Wears Tie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mickey Spillane, the rugged writer of blood-and-sex novels, was a disappointment when he showed up for lunch. He was wearing a tie.

Spillane has made a reputation as a T-shirted Hemingway. I won[illegible] because he has turned actor. He is playing himself in a circus picture, "Ring of Fear."

The author scoffed at the idea. "If I think maybe a restaurant will make a big issue about my wearing a coat and tie, I wear one'", he explained. "I'm a conformist in certain respects.

"But I still hate having anything tight around my neck. They have me wearing a suit throughout this picture. It's stupid. My friends will laugh at me when they see me all dressed up. I do a fight scene tomorrow and I'm going to tell them I skip the suit or I'll walk out."

JUST A "LARK"

Spillane refuses to conform in other respects. He cast aside his napkin with the explanation: "Never use 'em. They're always in the wrong place to catch food, anyway."

We talked about his acting career, and he said he did the job as a lark. He doesn't intend to continue as an actor. For one thing, he hates Hollywood. And he had few kind words for Hollywood movies.

"Most of them are terrible. I went to that one called 'Come Back, Little Sheba' expecting to see a picture about the Queen of Sheba. It was nothing like that. I tried to walk out of it, but my wife wouldn't go. So I joined the rest of the husbands in the lobby until the picture was over.

"Most of the film writers here are hacks, pure hacks. The plotting of the pictures is ridiculous. I could write better stories without half trying."

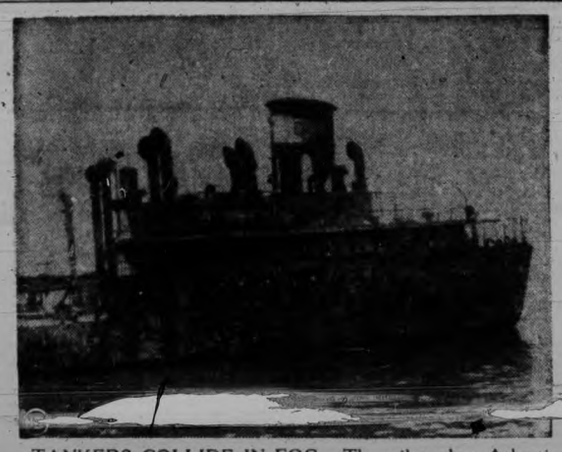
Spillane was bitterest about the filming of his own story, "I, the Jury."

WALKED OUT

"I went to the picture and walked out after the first 15 minutes," he said. "It was putrid. I went back to see the picture five different times, trying to figure out the plot. I never was able to. They loused up my story but good." His personal comments about the makers of the film could never be printed, even in his own books.

"Why work all the time?" he philosophized. "I made some money, now I'm going to spend it and enjoy life with my wife and kids. Most people wait all their lives to enjoy their money, then it's too late. Not me. Money was made to spend.

"I haven't written a book in two years. I've only written seven in my life, although people think I've done more. Sure, my publishers would love to have me grind them out and make a fast buck off me. I can't see it that way. I see no reason to burn myself out."



TANKERS COLLIDE IN FOG—The oil tanker Atlantic Dealer floats in the Delaware river near New Castle after having collided with another tanker during a heavy fog. Fires broke out on both ships and 11 crew members on the Dealer fell or jumped into the water. Five of the crew are known to be dead and four others are missing.

Life Insurance Companies Put $350,000,000 Into Housing

TORONTO (CP)—Life insurance companies operating in Canada put some $350,000,000 into housing in 1953, George L. Holmes, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, said Saturday in a year-end statement.

The amount represents an increase of nearly 18 per cent over 1952 and brings the total mortgage investments of the companies to nearly 25 per cent of their assets in Canada.

Mr. Holmes added:

"It is too early to foresee the effect of the government's new insured mortgage legislation. The companies desire to co-operate with the federal government as they have done in past years to provide additional housing, but the volume of funds available for this purpose will depend to some extent on whether the interest return on the insured mortgage, having regard to safety and administration costs, is competitive with other avenues of investment for their policyholders' funds."

Mr. Holmes said that in 1953 Canadians put in for some $2,500,000,000 additional insurance on their lives. After making allowance for death claims and other policy terminations, this brought the total life insurance owned by Canadians to some $20,500,000,000, or more than double the amount in force at the end of the war.

Father Saves Boy 3 In Smoke-Filled Room

TORONTO (CP) — A father rescued his three-year-old son Saturday from a smoke-filled bedroom where the boy lay asleep.

Tom Ashley, 33, fought his way through the smoke to carry his son, Bertram, to safety after a blaze, believed caused by a cigarette butt, gutted two rooms on the ground floor of his home. Damage to the house and the adjoining building was estimated at $2,500.

TV Starts In Italy

ROME (CP)—Not a pistol shot was heard and no horse neighed as regular television broadcasts began Sunday in Italy. The accent was heavy on art and music. Inaugural programs from the Milan, Rome and Turin television stations were followed by music, sports and news. An estimated 15,000 Italian owners of television sets, on which the Italian government charges an annual tax equivalent to $24, viewed the telecasts.

Medical Watchdog Prevents Unnecessary Hospital Costs

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Do you cross your fingers and hope you won't be snared for unnecessary and expensive carving when you go to a hospital for a check-up on your aches and pains?

There's a powerful medical watchdog that stands guard against this happening to you.

The minute your name is entered on a hospital's receiving list your case is of direct concern to the joint commission on accreditation of hospitals.

[illegible]'s goal: To en[illegible] the best possible medical care to today's hospital patients and to improve this care as rapidly as knowledge and experience will permit.

It is backed by five of North America's most powerful medical groups who spend $500,000 of their own funds each year to carry the program forward.

80 PER CENT APPROVED

More than 80 per cent of the 4,000 hospitals in the United States and Canada which sought accreditation have passed the rigid requirements and been put on the approved list.

The program is entirely voluntary, however, and some 2,200 other hospitals in the two countries never have applied for approval.

Suppose you have stomach pains hinting of appendicitis and a doctor sends you to an accredited hospital for a check-up. How would the program work in your case?

There would be many safeguards in a hospital meeting all conditions recommended by the joint commission.

KEEP RECORDS

Attendants would be required to jot down on your record sheet any previous medical attention you had. And you would receive a complete physical examination before any operation.

If the physician or surgeon were uncertain of his diagnosis he would have to consult with another physician or surgeon.

In the operating room, emergency lighting would be available in the event of a power failure. Dressings and instruments would be sterile. A qualified anesthetist would administer the anesthetic. Skilled nurses would be on hand to follow up your case.

If the surgeon removed your appendix, the tissue would be sent to the hospital pathologist for examination to determine whether it was healthy or diseased. The pathologist would record his findings.

The surgeon would make a written record of his diagnosis, his technique of performing the operation and what tissue he removed and why.

Now suppose the operation wasn't necessary—that your stomach ache was brought on by too much enthusiasm at the dinner table.

The hospital's own tissue committee would find this out within 30 days.

In an effort to determine whether an operation is justified or unjustified, this group is required to report at least once a month on agreement or disagreement between the doctor's original diagnosis and the report of the pathologist on the condition of the tissue removed.

REASONABLE PERCENTAGE

The commission allows for a reasonable percentage of error in pre-operative diagnosis, but it wants convincing explanations when too high a percentage of healthy tissue is consistently removed or the original diagnosis was wrong and there was no previous consultation among the surgeons.

The joint commission's board of commissioners includes:

Three representatives of the American College of Surgeons, three representatives of the American College of Physicians, seven from the American Hospital Association, six from the American Medical Association and one from the Canadian Medical Association.

Italian Party Leaders Force Government Shuffle

By J. CAIRNCROSS

The Italian Government is expected to be reshuffled early in January. The changes are anticipated as a result of a provisional agreement now reached between Signor Pella, the Prime Minister, and Signor De Gasperi, the former Prime Minister, and leader of the Christian Democrat Party, on the relations between the Government and the Party. The new Government is expected to be constructed on lines more agreeable to the Christian Democrat Party caucus.

The struggle between the present and the past heads of the Italian administration goes back to the immediate aftermath of the general election of June 7 last year, when Signor De Gasperi and his soalition of his own Party, the Christian Democrats and the three other (non-Catholic) centre Parties lost its parliamentary majority. These centre Parties, who regarded their electorial rout as due to their association with the Christian Democrats, then went into opposition and De Gasperi was in consequence unable to form a Government. What was worse was that the Christian Democrats torpedoed an attempt by Signor Piccioni to form a Cabinet by insisting on the inclusion in it of certain Right-wingers unacceptable to other Centre Parties.

NOT A PARTY MAN

To break the impasse, the President of the Republic, Signor Einaudi, called on his protege, Signor Pella, to form a Government. Pella is also a Christian Democrat, but he is not really a Party man and he committed the heinous sin of presenting his list of Ministers to Parliament without having first carried the Party caucus with him.

Signor Pella is first and foremost a technician, an able administrator, and his choice fell on men eminent in that respect rather than in their fidelity to the Party line. Since the Right wing in Italy has always had a weakness for "administrative" Cabinets and since Signor Pella was not identified with the De Gasperi policy of the Centre block, he was able to rally the Monarchists to his support and even to secure the neutrality of the neo-fascists.

This Tacit alliance was reflected in a more "forward" Italian policy over Trieste. But after the riots in Trieste on November 6, Signor Pella, partly under pressure from the Christian Democrat Party, returned to the less nationalist line of the previous administration which had professed a policy of complete support of the Atlantic Treaty nations and European Federation.

In internal matters, the Pella Government has not followed a very coherent policy, nor is it easy to see how it could have done so without a stable Parliamentary majority. It has certainly not put itself out to consult the Party headquarters. The Christian Democrats themselves, however, have been far from offering a spectacle of perfect unity. The recent token strike carried out jointly with the Communist Trade Unions by the Christian Democrats Unions has split the Party from top to bottom. The higher clergy in particular are alarmed at the Communists' progress. Signor De Gasperi himself has admitted that the Communists have wrested the initiative from his party. The internal feuds between Piccioni, the Taviani and Fanfani factions, and De Gasperi's own adherents have not made things easier.

REFUSE TO CO-OPERATE

This situation led the Party, in order not to lose its Left wing, to underline its independence from the Rightish Government, and to try to arrange a revival of the former coalition with the centre parties. But the Centre Parties refuse to co-operate with the "clericals." The Christian Democrats cannot turn left without leaning on the Marxists, nor Right without co-operating with the Monarchists, neither of which alliances is possible. Signor Pella is the only man who can form a Parliamentary majority, however precarious, and he knows it. His willingness to reform his Cabinet, is, therefore, unlikely to constitute a submission to the Party machine, particularly as he is assured of popular support.

In the meantime, as Signor De Gasperi admits, the Christian Democrat Party is disintegrating, and, as it is the only Centre force n Italy to have stood up to the attack from the extremes, the present debacle and absence of any clear policy to deal with Italy's social evils can only profit these extreme Parties, but more especially the Left, who are making hay while the storms are gathering.

Birds Set New Record According To Census

CHATHAM (CP) — A record number of species of birds was reported Saturday by the Kent Nature Club following the annual year-end bird census.

A great blue heron and four towhees were the most unexpected birds among the 58 species spotted in the census area which is the same each year, about 25 miles southeast of here.

Gulls were more plentiful than any other species with 2,500 bonapartes gulls among nearly 7,000 individual birds counted. Chickadees were reported scarce.

Japanese Bride Wins PoW Back

TOKYO (AP) — Cpl. Claude Batchelor hurried Sunday into the arms of his Japanese bride whose letters wooed him away from a pro-Red prison camp in Korea and urged her to write to others of the 21 Americans still there.

"I think you can help me get some of my friends to come back," the Kermit, Tex., soldier told Kyoko Araki after their reunion at a Tokyo army hospital where he is being given a checkup.

He told her the name of one American in particular but Kyoko, when she merged with tear-stained face from the four-hour reunion, said he had cautioned her not to make it public.

Kyoko explained that her tears were tears of joy and that her husband had renounced communism during their meeting.

Air Defence Plan Costs $4 Billion

Ottawa To Spread Cost Of Project Over Four Years

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may spend around $4,000,000,000 for air defence in the next four years—about $1,000,000,000 for each year it is in office.

Of this amount, possibly $1,600,000,000 would go for aircraft and aircraft engines.

However, government sources said today, the amount to be budgetted each year would depend on the world situation. If cold war tension eased appreciably, it might be possible to reduce defence needs and consequently cut taxes.

BUILDUP CONTINUES

The government has made it plain that for the moment there can be no let-up in the defence buildup.

That means an outlay of some $2,100,000,000 for defence in the next fiscal year—roughly the same amount as being spent in the current year ending March 31, 1954.

With the increased emphasis on air defence, officials have predicted that the RCAF will get as much as 50 per cent of the defence appropriations in the coming year—that is, about $1,000,000,000.

No drastic changes are expected in production of aircraft and aircraft engines, now costing about $400,000,000 a year.

However, occasional soft spots are likely to develop in the aircraft industry as production is switched to different planes.

NAVY GETS NEW PLANES

At the moment, emphasis is being placed on new planes for the navy and RCAF maritime squadrons.

The navy is to get Canadian-produced twin-engined Grumman S2F's to replace Avengers. The navy also has ordered Banshee jet fighters for the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, expected to replace the Magnificent about the end of 1956.

Defence officials have said they do not plan to remain content with present-type planes. As far as the budget will allow, they want better planes to defend Canada from air attack.

Student Interest Necessary Minister Says In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—"Discipline is necessary in our schools. If you think not, look at the papers any time. We have to have it if these young people are going to be what they ought to be when they grow up" stated the Hon. W. J. Dunlop, minister of Education for Ontario, as he addressed the audience which filled the auditorium of Lakefield District High School at its official opening Monday night. "The essential point in education is that the young people should be interested. Then learning presents no problem. Pupils of Grade nine should have a general idea of what they are going to be when they grow up and go into the world. It doesn't matter if they change their original ideas, so long as they have an objective. Then they know why they study. Teachers are interested and doing their best. Few have the destructive idea of only doing that for which they are paid, and I am looking for an earnestness and response from pupils," continued Dr. Dunlop.

"We have to settle down to the instructions that are fundamental. In elementary school the old basic subjects, reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic, can't be let go and must have their full time. I've called music and art frills, and I still do and we must not let them encroach on our basic subjects. Too many people have been attracted from the straight path by what they call progressive education.

"In the secondary school we have English, literature, composition, maths, science, history, geography and another language besides our own. These really prepare our young people to make their way in life," the minister pointed out.

"Our youth must also be taught how to resist communism, how to argue against it, and what a real democracy is. Then we will have young citizens who know what a privilege it is to live as free people in a free country."

"The great purpose of our educational system today is to produce young people who realize their responsibilities as the citizens of tomorrow, who can think independently and are loyal citizens of Canada, and to that end the teachers of today are doing their work," concluded Dr. Dunlop.

Police Have Recovered Bulk Of Stolen $160,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—Virginia state police today reported they had recovered "the bulk" of the $160,000 stolen from the government's bureau of engraving in Washington. They said it was located in a metal tool box on a farm near Centreville, Va. State troopers there said they did not know exactly how much of the money was recovered or whether any arrests have been made. They said the secret service in Washington would report further developments.

Secret service headquarters here declined for the moment to discuss the case. It was learned that several agents were in Centreville.

Virginia officers said a treasury employee is suspected of the unprecedented theft from the tightly-guarded engraving building.

They said this employee has spent several thousand dollars of the money.

The bureau of printing and engraving comes under the jurisdiction of the treasury department.

The officers said an associate of the suspect, who knew of the theft, gave information to a state police officer which led to recovery of most of the money.

The huge sum, in stacks of 20-dollar bills, was found on a farm in Loudon county and was whisked by secret service agents to Washington early today, they said.

Among other things Virginia police reported, the suspects had bought a new oldsmobile with the missing money.

Officials suggested that the thief may have walked out with the bundles of money, disguised as Christmas presents. At that time, officials said, it was impractical to search every package carried away, as is the practice during the rest of the year.

The biggest previous theft from the bureau, officials said, was in 1943 of 4,000 $1 bills by three workers who were caught before they had time to spend them.

Board Set Up In Rail Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation board has been set up to deal with the contract dispute between the railways and their non-operating employees.

Government officials said today Labor Minister Gregg signed the order during the weekend and that the disputants have been advised of it and asked to nominate representatives to the three-man board.

The unions asked for establishment of the board early in December, after negotiations became deadlocked, but it took almost a month to iron out several points in connection with the terms of reference.

A major one, decided by the government, is that the board will deal with the claims only of employees on the railways. Water transport workers of the companies will not be included, as sought by the unions.

The labor organizations represent about 150,000 employees.

Prime Minister Resigns

ROME (AP) — Prime Minister Giuseppe Pella went to President Luigi Einaudi's office today to hand in his resignation. Two cabinet ministers said Pella announced his decision to esign at an emergency meeing following a deep rift in his own Christian Democrat party over new cabinet appointments.

UN Troops Set For Any Trouble

SEOUL (AP) — United Nations forces are getting set for "any eventuality" at midnight Jan. 22 when more than 20,000 anti-Communist prisoners are scheduled to be freed from neutral custody, it was learned tonight.

These eventualities are said to include an attack by South Korean Army forces if anti-Red Chinese and North Korean prisoners are not freed according to the Korean armistice time-table.

Even as the UN command prepared for the prisoner release, South Korea and the Communists, bitter foes, joined in criticism of a "head count" of anti-Communist war prisoners by Indian troops. The UN command has endorsed the count.

United States troops waiting south of the demilitarized zone are reported ready to handle a disorganized rush southward of thousands of prisoners if they should break out or become unruly after being released from the 55 compounds in which they are held.

It also was learned that present plans call for the anti-Red prisoners to start moving southward out of the neutral zone just after midnight Jan. 22. The PoWs will not be asked to wait until dawn.

Paris Mail Strike Ends After 15 Days

PARIS (Reuters) — The mail strike which has paralyzed deliveries in Paris for 15 days ended Monday night after the Communist and independent unions ordered their members to return to work.

Workers began trickling back to their jobs on the mail-packed rail stations after voting at local meetings to agree to the union order.

The leaders of the striking unions issued the back-to-work call after a stormy session at union headquarters Monday afternoon.

The strikers who drive mail trucks and sort mail at the capital's rail stations, were demanding wage raises, better working conditions and doubling of the $56 Christmas bonus.

The government agreed to increase the bonus to $65, but refused to negotiate on the other issues while the strike continued.

Trotsky Killer Asks Judge To Help Him Get Parole

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Judge Ignacio Calderon Alvarez said Monday that Jacques Mornard, the killer of Leon Trotsky, told him he had asked for a parole and had been refused.

The social welfare department of the city government, which acts as a parole board, said however a parole petition had not actually been filed with it yet.

Prison officials said they believed Mornard intended to petition for a parole soon and took advantage of a chance meeting with the judge to ask a good word from him.

Mornard, serving a 20-year sentence for killing the aged Bolshevik who turned against Stalin, became eligible for parole Dec. 20. His statement was the first indication he had asked for his release.

Mornard told Judge Ignacio Calderon Alvarez during a visit to the penitentiary Monday, of his parole petition.

"I'm glad to see you, because you can solve my problem," Mornard said to the judge. "I have asked the social work department (which serves as parole board in Mexico) for my release on parole and they refused it.

"I want you, as the presiding judge in the court which sentenced me when Judge Manuel Rivera was on the bench, to give a good report on me."

Judge Calderon said he would take action on the oral petition. Later, however, he told reporters it is not up to him to make the report since another judge now is presiding over the court in which Mornard was sentenced to 19½ years for homicide and six months for carrying a concealed weapon.

Despite Mornard's plea to the judge, the social welfare department of the city government said no parole petition had been filed.

Plane On Way To Aid Fliers In Sub-Arctic

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three fliers and their downed RCAF mercy plane, a pinpoint on the face of the cold, cold northland since Saturday, appeared near rescue today as a ski-equipped aircraft headed for the frozen lake where they are stranded.

As an Otter plane flew toward the lake with a load of fuel, two RCAF Dakotas circles over the downed Norseman to make sure its position would not be lost.

The rescue plane, carrying gasoline and engine-heating gear, left the Hudson bay port of Churchill at 10:12 a.m. EST on the more-than-300-mile flight.

WILL FINISH MISSION

If the Norseman can be got airborne after three days in 50-below-zero weather, it will continue on to its original destination, the Northwest Territories outpost of Baker Lake.

The grounded airmen were spotted by an Edmonton crew about 10:45 p.m. Monday when flares were seen. After that the Norsemen crew of pilot FO. O. J. Fisher of Duparquet, Que., Lac. G. M. Dawe of Vernon, B.C., and Lac. J. W. Bradley of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., turned on their flickering land lights and then made radio contact.

The rescuers then told the base at Churchill and they were relieved by another Dakota which patrolled the area all night. All the Dakotas in the search were equipped with additional gasoline tanks to fly 11½ non-stop hours.

The missing craft had been located Sunday and then lost due to the difficulty of fixing the location of the flares.

The lost trio reported no frostbite, despite constant temperatures of close to 50 below, and all were in good spirits with no injury.

Canada Gives India 120 Steam Locomotives

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will provide India with 120 steam locomotives under the Colombo Plan, the trade department announced today.

The locomotives, to help rehabilitate India's railway system, will be constructed by the Canadian Locomotive Co. at Kingston, Ont., at a total cost of some $20,000,000.

The money will come out of Canada's $25,000,000-a-year Colombo Plan contribution to build up the economy of south and southeast Asia as a bulwark against the Communist menace.

A government contract with the Canadian Locomotive Co. is being negotiated and officials said the first locomotive will come off the assembly line about one year after the contract is signed.

Patino Delays Wedding Plans

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Bolivian tin millionaire Antenor Patino today succeeded in delaying the wedding plans of his beautiful runaway daughter whom he is chasing in Scotland.

The Scottish court of session granted him a temporary injunction against the issue of a marriage certificate Wednesday to his daughter Maria Isabella Patino y Bourbon, 18, and her sweetheart, 20-year-old James Goldsmith.

At the same time private detectives hired by Patino told him his daughter was in Dundee today, but they were unable to catch up with her.

Patino, one of the world's richest men, had less than a day to find his dark-eyed daughter and persuade her not to go through with her elopement plans before the court order came through.

Any time after 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) Wednesday, Maria and James could have picked up their marriage licence—or get it picked up for them—and wed in any tiny Scottish village church. Now, the injunction bars them.

Children Help Fight Blaze In School

STOUFFVILLE (CP) — Thirty-six public school children formed a bucket brigade in sub-freezing temperatures today to extinguish a fire in the basement of their one-room school three miles west of here.

A pupil noticed smoke swirling from a hot air register in Melville public school and warned his teacher, Louis Swain, who got the children outside and formed the bucket brigade.

However, firemen soon arrived from Stouffville 20 miles north of Toronto, to put out the blaze they said had spread from Christmas decorations piled close to the furnace. Damage was undetermined.

Delegates Clash With Britain

Use Of Gold Reserves To Meet Slump Brings Firm Protests

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Britain clashed today with almost all other delegations at a Commonwealth finance conference here in an argument over how to meet an American economic recession.

Delegate after delegate from outside the United Kingdom rose contest use of the Commonwealth's dollar and gold reserves to meet problems arising from any American slump. This course was proposed earlier in the day by Sir Leslie Rowan, the British delegate.

Rowan said he was introducing the idea of spending the hard-earned dollar reserve only as "a talking point." He was met by virtually unanimous opposition.

Delegates from India, Pakistan, South Africa and Ceylon claimed it was the first suggestion that the sterling area should dissipate its dollar balances to meet anything but a totally unexpected and grave crisis.

NO BIG SLUMP SEEN

Rowan said any use of the gold and dollar hoard would be strictly short-term, as he did not anticipate a serious slump in the United States economy.

Australian officials said the conference proper of Commonwealth finance ministers, due to start Friday, will reject Rowan's suggestion. Today's meeting was a "pave-the-way" session by the ministers' experts.

Canadian delegates gave assurances that there is no prospect of a slump in North America. They were quoted as telling a private meeting that the economy in North America is "levelling off" after a series of boom years.

The only symptom of a considerable upset in economic activity is in the field of agriculture: they said.

Urge Greater Trade With Asia

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuters) A group of United Nations agencies trade with Asia as a major step towards a stable world economy.

In a 146-page study, they suggested these "desirable adjustments":

1. Asia and the Far East should sell more good to the United States, and buy less. The resulting dollar surplus could be used to buy goods from Europe, easing that continent's dollar shortage.

2. Europe should also sell more goods to dollar countries, and purchase raw materials from non-dollar countries.

3. In addition to increased trade, there should be a "substantially" greater flow of capital.

Quebec Family Has Sixth Set Of Twins

ST. JOSEPH D'ALMA, Que. (CP)—The Tremblays have done it again.

Their sixth set of twins in eight years were born Monday. The mother and children today were reported doing well. The father, out of work, was appealing for help.

Paul Emile Tremblay, 31, and his 29-year-old wife Rosa, live at nearby St. Georges d'Alma, a small community about 150 miles northeast of Quebec City. They were married in 1946.

After three sets of twins, the Tremblays were surprised in 1950 when Clement was born without a mate. Three more sets of twins have followed. Each pair has been a boy and a girl.

Information Useful To United States, Trip 'Satisfactory'

NEW YORK — (AP)—Two senators said today Igor Gouzenko, who helped smash a Russian spy ring in Canada, has given them names and information useable for the internal security of the United States. Senators William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.) and Pat McCarran (Dem. Nev.) told reporters on returning from a trip to Canada that they questioned Gouzenko for more than five hours Monday. Gouzenko formerly was a code clerk for the Russians in Canada. The senators declined to reveal where they had seen Gouzenko at what they described as a hearing. They said their mission "was accomplished and it was satisfactory."

NAMES GIVEN

Jenner, chairman of the Senate sub-committee on internal security, said he will study the transcript of the hearing and probably make a formal request to the Canadian government to release the information.

Asked if Gouzenko had mentioned names, Jenner said:

"Yes, names were mentioned, but under our agreement we cannot discuss it."

To a question as to whether he had "learned anything" from the interview, Jenner said:

"Yes, we did."

"What are you going to do with it?" he was asked.

"Use it for the internal protection of the United States," said Jenner.

GOOD SPIRITS

"Mr. Gouzenko has a very good mind and appeared in good spirits," Jenner commented.

He described the Canadian government and Gouzenko as co-operative.

Asked whether Gouzenko had been sworn in, as witnesses generally are before senate committees, Jenner replied:

"Under Canadian law, you don't swear them in, but they testify and are asked when they complete their testimony to certify to the testimony, which Mr. Gouzenko did."

Both Jenner and McCarran said they will make a fuller announcement concerning their Canadian trip after they study the transcript.

The meeting was presided over by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the High Court of Ontario, and it was attended by D. W. Mundell of the justice department, representing the Attorney-General of Canada, and representatives of the external affairs department and the RCMP. The U.S. was represented by R. Douglas Stuart, ambassador to Canada, who met the two senators on their arrival, and J. G. Sourwine, an official of the investigating committee.

Senator William Jenner, Republican chairman of the U.S. Senate sub-committee on internal security, and Senator Pat McCarran, former Democrat chairman of the committee, had dropped out of sight after their arrival here early Sunday.

The visit of the senators was quiet, in marked contrast to the uproar when the questioning of Gouzenko was first proposed two

Royal Train Conductor May Cause Walkout

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—A dispute over the appointment of a conductor for the royal train threatens to halt all trains to and from Sydney Feb. 3, the day Queen Elizabeth arrives here.

The conductors' branch of the Australian Railways Union has called a meeting for next Sunday to protest against the appointment of A. E. Goldthorpe as royal train conductor in New South Wales state.

The branch claims men senior to Goldthorpe were not considered.

Union Secretary Lloyd Ross said, "We are determined to defend our seniority rights which will be seriously encroached on if this appointment is allowed to go through."

Living Costs Dropped In November

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs dropped during November for the second consecutive month, paring two-fifths of a point from the consumer index which declined to 115.8 from 116.2.

The November decline was slightly smaller than the October drop of one-half point. In both months lower food prices—mainly for meats and eggs—provided the main cutting power.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, now is 2.4 points below the record high of 118.2 reached in December, 1951.

RENTS UP AGAIN

Food and some clothing prices dropped during November while rents increased to a new high.

The food sub-group declined to 112.1 from 113.4, as lower prices for eggs, beef, pork, potatoes, lettuce, sugar, grapefruit and some canned vegetables outweighed price rises for most fresh vegetables, lamb, bread, butter, cheese, shortening and coffee.

In the clothing group, scattered price drops for men's, women's and children's apparel and footwear cut one-tenth of a point from the sub-index which declined to 110.2 from 110.3.

The shelter column rose to a new high of 125.2 from 125, reflecting another rise in rents.

TWO GROUPS STATIONARY

The other two columns that help make up the index, household operations and a catch-all group called "other commodities and services," were unchanged. The household operations group stood at 117.4, a tenth of a point below the record 117.5 reached last September.

With November's index drop, living costs now are back where they were a year ago. The index in November, 1952, also stood at 115.8.

Free Woman Trapped In Car

TRENTON (CP) — Ten persons worked furiously Monday night to free a woman trapped in a car which hit a gas pump near here and started a fire which threatened a $100,000 motel.

Police said a car driven by Jim Dennie of nearby Smithfield turned in at a gas station in front of the motel and hit the pump. A passenger, Mrs. Ross Valyear, 25, was knocked unconscious. Fifteen feet away were underground storage tanks holding 3,000 gallons of gasoline.

Don Freeman, proprietor, aided by sons Donald, 16, Fred 14, John 10, two transport drivers and a neighbor, Bart Boers, dragged the burning pump to a safe distance. Then they helped Mrs. Valyear's husband, his brother Dave and Dennie to free her. She suffered a knee injury and shock.

Car Theft Charges

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Two Ottawa youths, Henry Daly, 19, and Lucien Larabie, 18, face charges of car thefts at Madoc and Toronto, plus a charge of theft at Port Hope, following their arrest by provincial police at Brighton early today.

More Trouble On Way

Floods Batter Europe, Damage Heavy

LONDON (AP)—Shivering western Europe, battered by three days of storms, mobilized its defences today against new winter onslaughts.

While salvage and rescue teams from Scandinavia to Italy took advantage of a momentary lull to dig out snowbound autos and trains and strengthen flood-weakened dikes, forecasters warned that more trouble is on the way.

In the Ajaccio area of semi-tropical Corsica in the Mediterranean, snow fell overnight. Around Sondrio, a little town on the Italian-Swiss border which normally gets the first snowfall of the Italian winter, violets and daisies bloomed in the fields while nearby roads and mountain passes were blocked by snowdrifts.

Along Germany's Baltic coast the worst floods for almost a century slackened, but damage may hit the million-dollar mark.

REFUGEES EVACUATED

At the height of the floods, the Kiel harbor area was a foot under water, a refugee camp in Luebeck was evacuated, electricity and telephone poles were uprooted and road and rail communications were cut.

The howling northeast blizzard, which churned seas over the low coastland unprotected by dikes, gave way today to a gentle breeze from the south. Flood-alarm warnings were lifted.

In Italy, the country worst hit by sudden snow storms, mountain villages were isolated and many rail lines blocked by drifts as deep as 13 feet.

The Danes and Swedes, buffeted by floods and blizzards, estimated damage at the million-dollar mark. Along the flat Danish coast line, flood waters burst through the sea defences of several small towns. At one point on the island of Funen, 1,000 acres of rich arable land were flooded when seas breached the dike for 25 yards.

President Intends To Solve U.S. Farm Price Riddle

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower was represented today by close associates as determined to solve the United States farm price problem in one of his first steps toward carrying out a pledge at "constantly increasing prosperity for all". In a radio-television report to the people [illegible] the president [illegible] using "every legitimate means available to the federal government" to maintain prosperity, and will continue to do so as long as is necessary. He made no specific mention of tariffs.

Asserting that his administration does not believe in a "boom-and-bust America" in which prosperity hinges on war or threats of war, he said the program he will lay before Congress in his State of the Union message Thursday will be "keyed to federal help."

"It is a program that does not deal in pie-in-the-sky promises to all, nor bribes to a few, nor in threats to any. It is a program inspired by zeal for the common good, dedicated to the welfare of every American family—whatever it means of livelihood may be or its social position or its ancestral strain or its religious affiliations."

SUSTAIN PROSPERITY

In outlining the year's accomplishments, Eisenhower said the groundwork has been laid to sustain basic prosperity" in the strong belief that the federal government should be prepared at all times—ready at a moment's notice—to use every proper means "toward that end."

He said a program of sound planning and aggressive enterprise must be accompanied by "a faith which cannot be shaken by self-appointed pedlars of gloom and doom" in U.S. growth and progress.

THRUST AT DEMOCRATS

This was an obvious thrust at some Democrats who have said the country already is in a recession and may be headed for a real depression.

Eisenhower claimed a halt in sliding farm prices as one of the accomplishments of his administration in its first year. Presumably he referred to an agriculture department report last week which said that after months of decline, average United States farm prices were up slightly in mid-December.

Bond Dealer Committed To Stand Trial

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — Walter McKinnon, 71-year-old bankrupt Toronto bond dealer, was committed today for trial on 33 charges of fraud and theft involving some $44,000.

Magistrate D. C. Smith, who heard evidence during McKinnon's preliminary hearing last month, ruled today that the former Perth school teacher must stand trial at the next criminal assizes.

McKinnon was allowed to remain free on $10,000 bail.

The savings of 63 persons were wiped out when his firm went bankrupt in 1952. At that time the monetary loss was estimated at $281,000.

33 CHARGES LAID

Seven Perth district residents laid 33 charges of fraud and theft, involving 11 transactions over a period beginning in July, 1951.

The crown charged that McKinnon converted bonds held for clients to his own use. His defence counsel argued that McKinnon's bankruptcy was the only thing which prevented him from returning the bonds to his customers.

Canadian Cruiser To Salute Queen

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian cruiser Ontario will participate in ceremonies marking Queen Elizabeth's visit to Tasmania next month.

The RCN announced today the 10,000-ton warship will sail from her Esquimalt base Jan. 12 on a training cruise to Australia and New Zealand. She is commanded by Capt. Duncan L. Raymond of Ottawa.

Following a visit to Melbourne from Feb. 6 to 12, the Ontario will proceed to Hobart for a 12-day stay where her crew will participate in festivities marking the Tasmanian visit of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

From Hobart the ship will sail to New Zealand for visits to Milford Sound, Dunedin and Wellington.

Chance In Million Crossed Thief Up

TORONTO (CP)—A one-in-a-million coincidence brought John Kostinchuk, 38, into police court today.

A detective testified that Kostinchuk tendered a cheque for $225 in a Toronto bank Monday. Just as the teller handed the cheque to the accountant to check the signature, Paul Phillips, the man on whose account it was drawn, walked into the bank.

The accountant asked him to verify the signature. Phillips said he had not issued the cheque.

Kostinchuk was remanded a week on three charges, two of forgery and one of uttering a forged document. One of the forgery charges relates to a $220 cheque cashed last month.

Don't squeeze blackheads — dissolve them. Get two ounces of PEROXINE POWDER from any drug store and apply gently with wet, hot cloth over blackheads. They dissolve and disappear by this safe simple method.

Firemen Have Narrow Escape

TORONTO (CP) — Three firemen, their coats covered with blazing oil, fought their way up a flaming stairway Monday night after an explosion in a partly - constructed building in downtown Toronto.

Firemen Bill Smith, James Sinner and acting captain Cecil McCarrell entered the basement to fight a fire started by an oil stove used to dry fresh plaster.

"There was an explosion that blew blazing oil all over," said McCarrel.

Fireman Skinner said that Smith, who was later taken to hospital with tendons of his right hand severed, "could not have come much closer to death."

Skinner and McCarrell were treated for minor cuts.

Damage to the building was estimated at $2,000.

Stop Polio Insurance Losses Too Heavy

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two insurance companies which wrote thousands of polio insurance policies in the Manitoba epidemic last year have stopped because of "extremely heavy losses."

A Winnipeg official of the London and Lancashire Guaranty and Accident Company, said Monday his firm and the Law Union and Rock Insurance Company, a subsidiary, sent their agents orders to stop writing new polio policies. However, policies already written will be effective until expiration.

It was understood several other companies have continued writing polio insurance but rates have been nearly doubled in some cases.

Queen, Duke Enjoy Last Day At Lodge

ROTORUA, N. Z. (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh today enjoyed the last day in Moose Lodge, their luxurious holiday home, before resuming their round of official engagements.

Wednesday they will leave the lodge's pine woods, sunny beaches and cool waters where they have been swimming, sailing and fishing. They will fly to Gisborne, on the north island's east coast, for a civic reception.

In the afternoon the royal couple will fly to Napier, further down the coast, where they will spend the night.

Gemmell Expects Be At Work Soon

SUDBURY (CP) — Lands Minister Gemmell of Ontario said today he expects to be back at work within a few weeks but until then he will "take it easy."

He suffered a heart attack Oct. 4 but now is up and about at his home here.

New Reserve Army Category Now Created

OTTAWA (CP)—Creation of a new reserve army category was announced by national defence headquarters. It will be called the Canadian Army Regular Reserve.

The new classification was created specifically to "encourage Korean veterans and other trained troops to [illegible] [illegible] purpose: to make available immediately additional trained men should mobilization or partial mobilization be ordered."

The headquarters announcement added:

"Former serving soldiers of the active force who were released prior to the formation of the new force may enroll providing they are acceptable and not more than two years have elapsed since their release from the active force."

ANNUAL TRAINING

The new regular reserve subjects its members to compulsory annual training and makes them liable to call-out "whenever required by the governor-in-council."

Members of the new force will be enrolled for three-year periods and will be given the rank and trade qualification they held on release from the active force.

In addition to what the announcement called an annual "retaining grant" of $100, members of the new reserve group will receive pay and allowances of their rank and trade during their annual training period.

The period of annual training will not exceed 21 days, and efforts will be made to select a training period convenient to the man concerned and to the army.

Fail To Determine Cause Of CNR Fire

LINDSAY (ENS)—Officials of the CNR have so far failed to discover the cause of the fire which destroyed the old freight shed building on New Year's day. Officials have been on the scene for the past two days with Chief Alex Wylie of the Lindsay Fire Department.

The estimate of the damage originally set at between $50,000 and $75,000 has been revised downward after inspection according to Chief Wylie. A fair estimate now he says would be about $25,000.

Damage was heavy to the building it was learned but the contents were much lighter than was thought at first and little was lost in shipments awaiting delivery.

Hit Side Of Train In 50% Of Accidents

MONTREAL (CP)—Nearly half of all crossing accidents during the Christmas-New Year's period were caused by vehicles running into the side of the train, J. P. Wadsworth, superintendent of safety for Canadian National Railways, said in a report today.

Eighteen vehicles ran into the sides of trains and five others stalled or stopped on the tracks in 40 crossing accidents. Four persons were killed and 24 injured.

During the first 11 months of last year 269 vehicles struck the sides of trains at crossings. In more than 600 other accidents the vehicles stalled, stopped on the tracks or tried to beat the trains to the crossings.

The railway filed claims against car owners in 705 cases and collected a total of $150,855 for damage to trains and railway property.

At the conclusion of his address, Dr. Dunlop cut the orange and black ribbon—the school colors—which were across the front of the auditorium, and declared the school officially opened. He was introduced by the Hon. Harold R. Scott, MPP.

Chairman of the board, E. P. H. Everett presided for the meeting and after welcoming those present, introduced the present board members and spoke of others who had served when the school was being planned.

The teaching staff was then introduced by principal J. E. Stephens.

Present on the platform besides Dr. Dunlop and Mr. Scott were the Rev. L. J. Delaney who gave the prayer of dedication, the Rev. H. C. Wolfraim who pronounced the benediction and K. O. Birkin, public school inspector, who spoke briefly. Erie Pearson, county representative to the board, also spoke.

Other items on the program were a square dance by a group of girls, a violin duet by Eric and David Drain and a piano duet by Betty Jane Rath and Pauline Fitzgerald.

Ad Men Told To Put Zip In Their Copy

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Russian ad men have been told to put some zip and inspiration for a change into their advertising copy for Soviet food products.

Copies of the Moscow paper Trud reaching here say that if Soviet [illegible] really going to sell [illegible] the other "delicious" foodstuffs they are going to have to streamline their chatter.

One of the ways to do it, the Soviet paper declares, taking a leaf out of the book of American advertising agencies, is to write clever jingles praising the products.

Trud demanded that the best talents among Soviet pacts be mobilized.

HOW NOT TO DO IT

Here is a piece of advertising which shows, says Trud, how to bore the potential customer. It's now current on Soviet billboards, the paper revealed:

"Parents! canned vegetables for child feeding offer the opportunity throughout the entire year of organizing correctly the nourishment of children and porviding them with tasty foods which contain the food substances and vitamins necessary for the child's organism."

Over his inspiring text, the paper adds, there is posted the equally inspiring legend: "Glavkonserv" (the chief administration for canned foods).

HOW TO DO IT

Now here's the way to go about the selling job, says Trud, citing a rhyme by the poet Sergei Kirsanov.

"Here's your borscht,
"The tastiest of all borscht.
"Buy it,
"Open it,
"Turn up the gas,
"Let is simmer, and pour it in the soupbowl."

In Russian this rhymes. Borscht is a favorite Russian soup made from beets and other vegetables.

Mercy Flight Ends In Failure

TORONTO (CP)—A young Indian woman died in hospital here today of dysentery after a pilot and a doctor risked their lives to fly her from her home on Christian island in Georgian bay to the outside world for treatment.

Dr. I. T. Weldon of Midland and pilot Albert Dinnin of Georgian Bay Airways used a slush-covered pond on the island as a landing-field Saturday to pick up Catharine Monague, 23. She was suffering from an epidemic-type of dysentery.

The pilot, with room for only one passenger in his two-seater plane, flew Miss Monague to Midland 20 miles away. He returned for the doctor.

The woman was brought to Toronto Sunday for further treatment.

months ago. At that time, the proposal became the subject of formal notes between the two governments and fear was expressed in Canada that Gouzenko's anonymity, guarded by the RCMP for seven years, might be lost.

LITTLE COMMENT

The senators had little comment before being whisked out of sight by the RCMP Sunday, following a mysterious six-hour conference in a hotel here.

Nothing official was learned until the external affairs department announced in a statement at Ottawa Monday night that the questioning had been completed.

The department's announcement said the meeting conformed with arrangements made by the two governments before Christmas. Under this arrangement, Canada stipulated that it alone would decide whether any information obtained by the Americans could be made public.

Habs Won't Appeal Decision On Fracas

MONTREAL (CP) — General Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens announced today that no appeal will be made in the decision resulting from a stick-swinging fracas in New York involving Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Canadiens and Ron Murphy of New York Rangers.

At the same time Selke, in a statement, said the decision was unfair to Canadiens.

Canada Upset At Publicity

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Canadian officials were reported today to be distressed at wide publicity given a statement attributed to Finance Minister Abbott, in which he said Canada favors abolition of preferential tariffs.

The minister was quoted as saying Monday on his arrival for the Commonwealth finance ministers' conference, beginning Friday, that Canada feels "imperial preferences did good work for many years, but it is now time to lift them, together with other barriers on exchange, currency and trade."

Today, Canadian officials said neither Abbott nor Canada wants imperial preferences abolished. However, Canada does feel that imperial preferences are no good to her as long as dollar restrictions are enforced by sterling countries.

The officials said that Abbott will tell the conference that Canada is still vitally concerned with the problems of the Commonwealth and sterling-area trade.

Most Price Groups Stronger On Market

TORONTO (CP) — Most price groups were stronger in active early afternoon stock market trading today.

Papers, steels, refining oils, liquors and manufactures were the strong industrials. Banks and utilities were steady. Foods were weak.

Golds were steady. Base metals seniors showed a few more slight losses than gains. Juniors were mostly steady.

Uraniums were stronger with a wide majority of small gains. Bathurst-area issues were the strongest. New Highridge led with a 16¼-cent gain from an opening price of 19¾ cents. Keyboycon jumped 100 per cent with an eight-cent rise.

Western oils continued strong.

Students Picket U.S. Consulate

TORONTO (CP)—Detention by United States immigration officials of two University of Toronto students provoked student picketing of the U. S. consulate here and an emergency meeting of the Toronto chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity.

The students, Edward Rogers and William Boultbee, were both released Monday nearly 48 hours after they were held for investigation.

His fraternity issued a statement Monday night terming the incident "another example of the hysteria so prevalent in certain quarters."

"The chapter was proud to see how quickly the Canadian government acted," the statement added.

Eight placard-bearers made a half-hour march from the Varsity campus to the U. S. consulate but failed in their efforts to rally more supporters. They picketed the consulate less than an hour.

Three Hunters Fined On Wildlife Breaches

Three hunters were convicted of offences under the conservation and wildlife act when they pleaded before Magistrate W. R. Philp QC, in court today. Charges were laid by conservation officer R. H. Trotter.

For being in possession of shells loaded with ball during the open season for deer and moose, Douglas Allan, Concord, was fined $20, costs $2.50. Edward R. Lee, 36 Leahy's Lane, was fined $25, costs $2.50, for violating the terms of a hunting license. A fine of $50, costs $2.50, was imposed on Max Coones, Young's Point, for carrying a firearm in a Crown game preserve.

War On Wolves

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The biggest winter wolf control program ever attempted by the Saskatchewan game branch will be in full swing by Jan. 1. Around 200 poison bait stations will be set up in the northern part of the province.

CALGARY (CP)—The Calgary Chamber of Commerce decided this autumn to admit women members for the first time. First woman member is Mrs. Marion Purdy, business woman and widow of R.D. Purdy, a former chairman of the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Name Mix-up Blamed For Detention

Wrong Identification Kept 2 Students [illegible] Florida

OTTAWA—(CP)—A mix-up in identifications caused the detention of two Toronto students entering the United States, an American embassy official here explained Monday.

Before the two were released Monday, the Canadian external affairs department, Canadian embassy in Washington, U.S. state department and U.S. justice department all became involved.

The U.S. official here said Edward Rogers, 20, and William Boultbee, 21, were held up by immigration men at West Palm Beach, Fla., because the name of one of them—he didn't say which—"resembled" a name on the U.S. immigration department's "suspect list."

TAKEN OFF PLANE

Rogers and Boultbee were taken off a plane at the Florida entry point Saturday. Because many government offices are closed during the weekend, it has been impossible to clear up the misunderstanding before Monday, the official said.

Rogers and Boultbee were released and presumably continued their journey home. They had spent a Christmas vacation at Nassau, The Bahamas, and had planned to motor to Toronto from Florida.

Earlier, the U.S. embassy official said it appeared an "overzealous" immigration man had confused two Canadian political parties—the Progressive Conservative party and the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party. Rogers and Boultbee are members of the Progressive Conservative Club at the University of Toronto.

Later information received here, however, showed that a mix-up in identifications caused detention of the pair, he said.

Teachers Wait Board's Move

JASPER PLACE, Alta. (CP)—The next development in the strike of 77 teachers in this suburb of Edmonton is expected to come from tonight's school board meeting.

The teachers at six schools in Jasper Place, Alberta's fifth largest community, did not return to classrooms Monday morning after the Christmas vacation.

They were unable to agree with the school board on the date a government arbitration board award should go into effect.

The arbitration board recommended November last that the minimum annual salary should be increased to $2,000 from $1,800 and be retroactive to Sept. 1 last.

The teachers accepted the award but the board, after first rejecting it, agreed to the salary boost but approveed it coming into effect Jan. 1.

Some 2,300 students in the six schools were without teachers. Only four turned up for classes Monday morning. Unaffected were two classrooms of grade one for Roman Catholic pupils. Roman Catholics in higher grades attend the public schools.

Hard Times Ahead For Education—Forecast

CHATHAM (CP) — There are hard times ahead for education in Ontario, according to F. L. Barrett, Kent public schools inspector.

It will be "one of our greatest problems in 1954," he told a Home here Monday night.

There will be a continuing increase in the number of children entering school; the teacher shortage will grow more acute and the controversy between traditionalist and progressive views on education will become more heated, he said.

In addition, "the cost of education is bound to surpass the limits of its present sources of revenue."

Danish Farmers Worry About British Sales

By GUY BETTANY

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Although there is nothing much wrong with Danish agriculture, a profitable industry with markets for its products in most of the western world, Danish farmers often worry about how long Britain, by far their best customer, will continue to buy at high prices.

In 1952, Britain imported from Denmark 87,794 tons of butter, 15,472 tons of cheese, 183,599 tons of bacon and 61,731 tons of eggs out of total Danish exports of 116,656 tons of butter, 53,841 tons of cheese 214,480 tons of bacon and 88,696 tons of eggs.

A revolution in methods is going on in Danish farming. One innovation has been the extensive cultivation of fodder beets, which has saved Denmark the necessity of importing large quantities of feed grains.

On the processing side, one of the most important developments was the decision to build superdairies for the production of butter and cheese. Butter now is packaged by the pound instead of in large casks, the traditional way.

IMPROVEMENTS SOUGHT

Breeds of animals are being reviewed. While there seems no reason to change the king of Danish farm animals, the landrace pig, there is not so much certainty about the dairy herds.

Sixty per cent of Danish herds are Danish reds. Jutland black and whites and shorthorns account for only 15 per cent and 11 per cent of the total, while holsteins, which give more milk, represent only one per cent of Danish herds.

Although Danish cereal yields are the highest in the world, Danes are still dissatisfied. Latest comparative figures show wheat yields in Denmark are about 54 bushels an acre. Britain gets only about 39 bushels to an acre, the United States 18, and Canada about 16.

The only main produce in which Denmark occupies second place is potatoes. Holland leads with 396 bushels an acre while Denmark produces 346.

Canonize Late Pope Pius X In May 29 Ceremony First Elevated In 241 Years

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican announced today that the late Pope Pius X will be elevated to sainthood at a great outdoor ceremony May 29 in St. Peter's square.

He will be the first pope canonized in 241 years. The Roman Catholic Church's highest honor will come to him less than 40 years after his death Aug. 20, 1914.

The ceremony will be the second outdoor canonization in the long history of the church. The first elevated 13-year-old Maria Goretti, an Italian girl who died defending her honor.

Hundreds of thousands are expected to throng St. Peter's giant square for the May rites at which Pope Pius XII will officiate. The crowd will include bishops and priests from many lands and pilgrims here for the Marian Year now in progress.

CALLED "POPE SAINT"

Long known as "Papa Santo"—the Pope Saint—Pius X was elected to succeed Pope Leo XIII in 1903. At that time he was Giuseppe Cardinal Sarto, archbishop of Venice. Known for his humility, he protested he was not worthy of the church's highest office.

Both his beatification June 3, 1951, and his canonization have been unusually rapid. Both processes normally take many years. The last pope so elevated, Pius V, was canonized May 22, 1712, 140 years after his death.

On June 13, feast day of the Holy Trinity, six other persons will be canonized simultaneously inside St. Peter's basilica. They are a French priest, Pierre Louis Maria Chanel; an Italian nun, Maria Crocifissa di Rosa; Domenico Savio, a young disciple of St. Giovanni Bosco; Vincenzo Pallotti, founder of the Society of Catholic Apostolate; the Jesuit priest, Giuseppe Maria Pignatelli, and the Roman priest, Gaspare Del Bufalo.

Says President's Weakness That He Wants To Be Liked

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his talk to the American people Monday night President Eisenhower stepped across the line dividing his first and second years in office and two periods in his life.

By the calendar his first year doesn't end until Jan. 20. But his second year actually began with his broadcast report which is preliminary to the return of Congress Wednesday.

For Eisenhower 1953 was a period of [illegible] patient expectation, waited while he postponed action on some major issues and got ready the 1954 program.

Because of the wide differences in Congress on almost any major issue, Eisenhower will have to fight for his program.

FINDS 'WEAKNESS'

Allan Nevins, a historian, in a recent appraisal of the administration, in "Nation's Business," a magazine published by the United States chamber of Commerce, made this remark:

"Every true national leader has to take for his motto: 'I do not want to be liked; I want to be esteemed.' Our best administrations have been desperately unpopular in wide circles."

"If President Eisenhower thus far has shown a salient weakness, it is that he wishes too much to be liked. In the long run, the mass of the people admire a president most for the enemies he has made."

So far Eisenhower seems to have made few, if any, enemies. But the truth of Nevins' opinion—that Eisenhower wants too much to be liked—will get more of a test in 1954 than in the year just ended.

KICKED

[illegible] kicked rubber - toed shoes designed to cause a minimum of pain and anger. In calling no names, he took out insurance, deliberately or not, against being called names in turn. And he still wore the armor of his immense popularity.

He had some practical reasons for sticking to his policy of patience, restraint and mildness, with Congress so evenly divided between both parties he'd need help from men on both sides to put his program across.

It's possible he can pursue that policy through the four years of his administration, get his program through as he wants it, make no enemies, and have to endure no personal attacks. But it isn't likely.

Highlights Of Royal Tour

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP)—Not the big state occasions but the unrehearsed incidents have chiefly delighted New Zealanders during the tour by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Incidents like the time the Queen had to assure a little girl she was really the Queen—and like the time the duke walked unexpectedly into a hospital kitchen.

Here are some of them:

As the Queen drove at slow pace between lanes of children in Auckland domain, she overheard two little girls arguing whether she was the Queen or Princess Margaret.

"I tell you it's Princess Margaret," declared one.

The Queen told a dinner guest later: "I couldn't resist the impulse. I leaned over and said 'No, it's me.'"

A kitchenmaid at Auckland hospital, shut in the kitchen while great events were taking place outside, washed dishes with might and main, hoping to get through in time to take a peep later. Suddenly the door opened. She looked around casually . . . then gave a strangled cry, "Ooo-o-o, Philip!"

In a quiet suburban street in Auckland were three survivors of the Tangiwai railway disaster which took 136 lives. Mr. and Mrs. John Falloon were wearing borrowed clothes. Their 16-year-old daughter Glenis had a black eye. A big black car drew up outside the house where they were staying. Neighbors in shorts and curling pins rushed across the street in bare feet to see who was calling. A neighbor's child stood in the middle of the drive with her back to the visiting couple. The tall blonde man perched his hat playfully on her curls. A moment later the Falloon family were being introduced to the Queen and the duke who had called to congratulate them on their escape.

Leaving a Royal Air Force station outside Auckland, the duke missed an officer's salute. Discreetly the Queen drew his attention to it. Hastily the duke corrected his omission. Then as he entered his car, he gave the officer a broad grin and, almost surreptitiously, the "thumbs up" sign.

An old Maori chief caused consternation shortly before the Queen was due at Waitangi, in northern New Zealand, by refusing to lay a sacred mat made of kiwi feathers for the Queen to walk over as she alighted. He recalled that custom said such a precious cloak must be used only for the shoulders. To walk on it would degrade it.

A hurried conference was called and several other elders of the tribe also refused to emulate Sir Walter Raleigh. At last a chief volunteered. He laid the cloak at the Queen's feet with a sweeping gesture. But the Maoris need not have feared that the Queen would harm the cloak. She put one foot delicately on it and then stepped aside.

A dozen sightseers on the summit of 600-foot Mount Eden in the heart of Auckland were surprised to see a car draw up, and the Queen and duke get out of the front seat. Sitting in lonely state behind was the chauffeur.

But this incident was not known to a small boy who waited for hours in an Auckland street to see the royal procession pass next day. As the car swept by, the boy's voice came shrilly above the cheers, "Dad, can't the duke drive?"

In the hour the royal yacht Gothic berthed at Auckland, two babies were born at St. Helen's Maternity Hospital—a boy and a girl. There was never any doubt what their names would be.

Toronto Man Given Reformatory Terms

COBOURG (ENS) — Concurrent reformatory terms were handed out to 24-year-old Harry Higson of Toronto when he appeared for sentence before Magistrate R. B. Baxter yesterday. He was charged with car theft December 16, the offense taking place in Brighton; breaking and entering the premises of W. Ackerman on December 16; retaining stolen goods, a bicycle owned by William English of Brighton and theft of a tire owned by W. Ackerman.

He received 12 months determinate and six months indeterminate on all except the theft of a tire charge, on which the sentence was six months. Previous offense was theft in March of last year.

China Offered Rubber

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Informed sources reported today that Ceylon has offered to sell Communist China 5,000 tons more sheet rubber. The sources said Peiping is studying the offer. Ceylon sells rubber to the Reds in exchange for rice.

Vatican Bans Belgian Book

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Roman Catholics have been forbidden to read "Encyclique Humanis Generis et Problems Scientifiques," by Camille Muller, professor of the Catholic University of Louvain, Belgium.

A decree by the Vatican's congregation of the holy office, of which Pope Pius is prefect, placed the volume on the church's index of forbidden books.

The volume, published at Louvain in 1951, discusses the encyclical issued by the Pope during the 1950 Holy Year, entitled from its first Latin words "Humanis Generis," or "of mankind."

Generally, the encyclical reaffirmed the church's stand on matters of doctrine and warned Roman Catholics not to deviate from the dogma of their church.

L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican's newspaper, described Prof. Muller as a "Catholic scientist of value" who, however, had erred in certain of his judgments of the encyclical, generally considered by Vatican sources as one of the most important issued by Pope Pius.

2 Aspiring For Warden In United Counties

COBOURG— (ENS) — Two are mentioned as being in the running for warden when counties council meets on Jan. 19. Council assembles at 7.30 that evening to elect their warden and at least two men are said to be in the race, Reeve Reg. McCann of Brighton Township and Reeve Gordon Honey of Cramahe Township.

Both the contestants are experienced county councillors and both come from the same section of Northumberland. Last warden from that part of the county was Frank George of Smithfield in 1938.

Five-Round Draw For Cobourg Fighter

TORONTO (CP)—Tommy Hendrix, London Athletic Club, Monday night scored a decision over Harold King, Toronto Athletic Club, in a five-round feature event of the weekly amateur boxing show here.

In the semi-final bout, George Charles, Cobourg, and Roger Blake, Toronto, fought to a five-round draw.

Danny Daninco, Toronto, won a decision over Jim Hurley, Brantford, and Wilf Cavanaugh, Cobourg, decisioned Jimmy Maloney, Hamilton.

Lois Margaret Andrus

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at two o'clock for Lois Margaret Andrus, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Andrus, who died Friday.

Officiating at services at the Kaye funeral home was the Rev. B. G. Evans. Pallbearers were Keith Parks, Garry Atkin, Ronald Hill and Paul Pomroy.

Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Put Metal Seals On Fur Pelts

Serially-numbered metal seals, formerly placed on beaver skins by officers of the department of lands and forests, have now been extended to fisher, marten, lynx and otter. Muskrats pelts will not be tagged. From the data compiled by the department when pelts are sealed it enables officers to know where the animal was taken, size, whether prime or not and whether it was damaged.

The following hours and dates of presentation of pelts and officers responsible, are:

Peterborough: C. S. Windsor at his home each Saturday from 9 to 7 p.m.

Lindsay: Fred Walton, each Saturday morning, and, during regular office hours, Gordon D. Buie, both at Lindsay department office.

Gore's Landing: Victor E. Harris, at his home on the second Tuesday of January, February, and April and on March 9 and 23, from 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Havelock: Robert Trotter and Reginald McCulloch at the Police Station from 3 to 6 p.m. on Jan. 29, Feb. 26, March 26, April 20 and May 8.

Campbellford: Mr. McCulloch at Lloyd's Sport Shop on the first and third Saturday of each month from 3 to 6 p.m.

Apsley: Mr. Trotter at the Lands and Forests office from 1 to 6 p.m. on Jan. 28, Feb. 25, March 25, April 29 and May 10.

Bobcaygeon: Ray Simpson at the Township Hall from 7 to 9 p.m. on January 16, Feb. 29, March 13 and 27 and April 10 and 24.

Wallace Scott will officiate at Minden and Gooderham Forestry headquarters, Jesse Bradshaw at Wilberforce, D. L. McEachern at Haliburton.

Seek Reds' Release

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Counsel for 29 Communists who claim to have been in Argentina jails without trial for more than four years have asked the courts to free them under President Peron's new general amnesty law. All of the prisoners are of slavic origin. An appeal was signed by the prisoners and by lawyers for the Committee for Defence of Liberty and Political Prisoners.

MASON NICHOLSON

A retired farmer of South Monaghan township, Manson Nicholson, 366 Mark St., died suddenly Monday at his home.

A son of the late Lancelot Nicholson and the former Isabella Stinson, Mr. Nicholson lived and farmed in South Monaghan until six years ago when he moved into the city.

He was a member of Mark St. United Church.

Mr. Nicholson did not marry. He is survived by two sisters, Miss Mary Nicholson and Mrs. R. J. Bullock and a brother Harry J. Nicholson.

The funeral service will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. from the Comstock, funeral home, the Rev. N. D. Patterson of Mark St. United Church officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. ELIZABETH MARY STRONG

A resident of this city for 17 years, Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Strong died in hospital on Monday after a short illness. Born in Asphodel township, she was the daughter of John Nelson and Elizabeth Moore, both deceased. She was educated in the public school in Asphodel and the Whitby Ladies' College.

She married Alexander Strong in Portland Oregon and lived there for a number of years. In 1922 Mr. Strong died and 17 years years ago she came to Peterborough. For a number of years she lived at 112 McDonnel St. but more recently with the Misses Ferguson at 476 Bonacord St.

A member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the funeral service will be held at the Kaye funeral home on Wednesday at 2.00 p.m. with the Rev. C. J. Boyd officiating. Burial will be in Rose City cemtery, Portland, Oregon.

Many Rabbits, Foxes Gracing Hunters' Bags

COBOURG (ENS) — Rabbits and foxes are plentiful in the areas north and east of Cobourg and the weekly Wednesday afternoon hunters have been doing well. Foxes are quite numerous down around Colborne but in spite of this, the rabbit population is holding up well.

Local hunters would welcome the old days when the Northumberland Fish and Game Club was functioning because the Club sponsored periodic rabbit hunts and even had a wolf hunt, although the results produced plenty of rabbits but nary a wolf.

However, in spite of the fact that there are no organized rabbit and fox hunts, individual hunters are getting good bags.

Remand Cobourg Man On Joyriding Charge

COBOURG (ENS) — Kenneth R. Clarke, Cobourg, was remanded for sentence on a charge of taking a car without the owner's permission. The car was owned by his grandfather. Defence counsel Harvey Brent submitted that it was a family matter and that the accused had not realized the seriousness of the offense.

Previous offenses of the accused were attempted false pretenses; breaking and entering at Peterborough in 1951 for which he received four months; car theft at Regina in 1951 and breaking and entering at the same place and false pretenses at Cobourg in 1953.

George Tapscott of Hamilton township pleaded not guilty to a drunk charge and the case was adjourned in order to bring witnesses.

Shorter Working Week In Peterborough

Now that the Canadian General Electric Company's plant, with its five thousand workers, has a forty-hour week schedule, most of Peterborough's employed people have a short working day and a short working week. Other chief Peterborough industries are also on the forty-hour week. Retail stores, which usually have longer hours than factories, are likely to have a five-day week instead of the present five days and a half. Grocery, meat and fruit dealers are petitioning for a by-law to require stores in their category to close Mondays. Canada is a rich country, and eisure is one of the possible fruits of riches. It cannot be said that Canadians are slow in demanding the leisure so quickly on the heels of their new-found wealth.

• • •

What is a forty hour week? It is precisely one and two-thirds days. Thus, out of seven days in the week, many Peterborough people are working only one and two-thirds days. The rest of the time is their own, to do with as they wish. We have no quarrel with short hours, if production remains sufficient to provide the goods and services—the economic means—which have made short working time feasible. What happens if so many people are idle so much of the week and the year that production is not enough to maintain them on the high material plane to which they have grown accustomed? If this were to occur, perhaps more and better machines could be invented and put to work in place of men. Would the Canadian millenium be reached when machines did all the work and humans merely played or sat their lives away—lotus-eaters in the snow?

• • •

Apart from the economic consequences of short working weeks there are two risks. The first is that when people work less than a quarter of a week, in actual hours, they may become so unaccustomed to work as to be incapable of it; that is, they may be conditioned to idleness, both inside and outside the plant. The second risk is that with three-quarters of their time free to dispose of as they wish, some people, ill-equipped to use their leisure well or happily, may become bored with life. Certainly, governments which formerly have devoted a great deal of time and thought to the problems of production and working, are now feeling pressure on them to deal with the problems which the new and extensive leisure time of the people has created. The weight of government responsibility is being shifted, from production to social problems. Is this a healthy sign in a young, expanding country?

Trade With China

Senator McCafthy of the United States talks of "blood trade" with China—referring specifically to Britain's trade with China. It is silly talk. Britain, like Canada and other countries party to the U.N. war in Korea, stopped all trade with China in strategic goods in 1950, and the interpretation of what is "strategic" has been stringent. Britain's total direct trade with China, imports and exports, last year amounted to less than twenty million dollars. Most of this was in fertilizers, wool tops, medicines and dyes. In the same year the U.S. imported from China a total of $27,806,000 worth of goods—bristles, feathers and tung oil (used in the manufacture of paint). There were no U.S. exports to China, therefore these goods bought from China must have been paid for in American dollars—which have some "strategic" value.

There is a kind of nationalistic fever over the question both of trade with China and of diplomatic recognition of China, which is preventing Americans from seeing the situation clearly. The war in Korea has been stopped. Mao government is in as full control of China as any government there has been in this century. China, one of the largest and most populous countries in the world, is being virtually ignored except militarily, by the Western world. This does not make for good international relations nor foster the self-interest of the countries which reject China and its present government out of hand.

Whether one likes the government of a country should have nothing to do with its diplomatic recognition. The Mao government rules China, and is doing so with astonishing capability. To deny this China recognition and the U.N. seat is to deny reality. Further, to ignore the trade possibilities which China offers is to throw China increasingly under Russia's hegemony.

The West Germans have cannily seen the advantages of trade with China. German manufacturers this year have exported steel sheet, precision instruments, optics, electro-technical equipment and pharmaceuticals—and done so with the direct approval of U.S. officials. All these come close to being within the definition of "strategic material". In the first three months of this year West German shipments to China are said to have amounted to more than forty million dollars. British car manufacturers have lately been given permission to ship [illegible] cars to China. [illegible] to be big business—few Chinese now can afford to own, or can afford to be seen driving cars of any kind.

Canadian trade with China has dried to a small trickle. It was never very large, but it was profitable. In 1946, the peak post-war year of the trade, exports to China amounted to about forty-three million dollars, imports to less than two-and-a-half, leaving a pretty balance in Canada's favour. Now that the Korean war has ended, Canadian recognition of China's Mao regime should follow, and subsequent upon that a resumption of trade relations. What is to stop it? Not, surely, angry empty blasts from Senator McCarthy?

No Luther For Quebec

We have received from the office of the executive secretary of Lutheran Church Productions in New York, a press release complaining that the film Martin Luther has been banned in the Province of Quebec. This surprises and annoys Mr. Endress, the gentleman in question, much more than it surprises and annoys us. We should have been very much surprised if the film had been licensed for Quebec showing; Luther is more terrible to many Quebec people than Mahomet—perhaps even more terrible than Marx—and what is the point of starting a row by showing a film that they do not like?

We cannot regard the banning of the film as a very important infringement of anybody's rights. Undoubtedly there are people in Quebec who would like to see the film, which we hear is a very good one, and which we hope to see in Peterborough. We presume that private groups and film societies will be able to see Luther if they choose. But to show the film and run the risk of angry rioting and an outbreak of religious intolerance would be foolish.

The film Martin Luther is, we understand, a very fine piece of Protestant propaganda, deeply moving and persuasive in its effect. We have not the slightest objection to Protestant propaganda; in fact, we think well of it. But we are not so foolish as to expect that Roman Catholics will like it, nor so intolerant as to want to shove it down their throats, under a banner of free speech. The Roman Church has made clever use of films for propaganda purposes of its own, and in Bing Crosby it possesses an agent at least as persuasive as a thousand missionary priests. We do not see why the Protestant churches should not do as well—if they can. It appears that the Lutheran Church has made a great film about its great leader, and that it is causing a sensation wherever it goes. But there is reason in everything and we do not see why it should go to Quebec if the Quebec censors think it would cause serious trouble there.

A movie is not likely to convert anybody, but it can make a great many people angry, and from anger all kinds of illiberal action and vengeful reprisal can spring. The banning of the Luther film in Quebec is not a thing which should be turned into a major issue.

Hot Pavement In N.B.

A civil engineer in New Brunswick contracted at his own expense to pave one-sixth of a mile of the Trans-Canada highway in that province. He spent $40,000 doing it—laying down a chemically-treated pavement supposed to melt itself clear of ice and a normal amount of snow. The chemical concoction in the paving is the secret of a German inventor; the New Brunswick engineer is taking a calculated risk in investing his money in the formula—and the stretch of road so paved is merely experimental. If it works—if the snow really melts and no ice forms—if will be a boon to car owners, winter drivers and Departments of Highways from one end of Canada to the other.

No more slippery highways? No sandings? No salting? No eaten undercarriage? Is this too much to hope for? Well, after an inch of fresh snow had fallen on the special pavement last month, it melted to slush and was running off as water. The remainder of the road—ordinary asphalt, not impregnated with the secret chemicals—was still white with snow, we are told. What will the results be in sub-zero weather, after three inches of snow-fall?

New-Born In The New Year

Following the usual news of births at the New Year and pictures of the first babies to arrive in the district, it was pleasant to hear of lusty new arrivals in the country near Havelock. Two sets of twin Holstein calves were born within a week on one farm at Rush Point. Nature perpetuates herself, even in the dead of winter. We are happy to print the paragraphs of multiple birth at Rush Point on our chief local news page. It is news, and good, hearty news, too.

PARIS LETTER

How France Spent Christmas

By DONALD BLOODWORTH

THE ALIEN Anglo-Saxon feels more and more at home in Paris as Christmas succeeds Christmas, for the French, who formerly treated Noel as a simple Christian feast, are rapidly adopting all the cosy heathen customs with which their northern neighbours surround it.

This year Paris doorbells [illegible] telegraph boys demanding Christmas boxes for their somewhat intermittent services during the past 12 months. Outrageously expensive Christmas cards flocked in from Gallic friends, to whom, of course, one had sent nothing. Hordes of smart operators descended on the forests of France at dead of night, to hack down young firs with unexampled vandalism and sell them as Christmas trees at 250 francs a foot in the city streets. Mistletoe, which grows unchecked and common as kisses, even in the well-groomed Bois De Boulogne, suddenly fetched hot-house prices, while festive fowl and similar seasonal delicacies soared beyond the reach of most honest pockets.

"YOU cannot complain," the local poultry-monger told me truculently, "geese and goose liver have a venerable history. Hieroglyphics show that in 2,500 BC birds were force-fed to provide the Pharaohs with their pate de foie-gras, and French geese were so famous that they walked them all the way from Artois to Rome to give the Senate a treat. You ought to read your Pliny."

I escaped paying his prices by throwing some doubt on the desirability of such qualities in poultry as antiquity and athleticism, but other citizens have devised their own means for preserving their pocket books.

✧ ✧ ✧

CHRISTMAS and New Year celebrations have led, in fact, to curious outbreaks of crime. Two armed women sacked a dress shop a few days ago, shooting a saleswoman in the shoulder, simply in order to make away with something suitable to wear on New Year's Eev witout paying; burglaries of dealers in Christmas fare and presents, from cake shops to cosmeticians, suddenly became commonplace, and last week two hopefuls held up a confectioner at pistol point in order to grab some boxes of chocolates which were beyond their means but suitably packed as seasonal gifts for their girl-friends.

IT IS STILL normal for Parisians to celebrate Christmas Eve, like New Year's Eve, with public feasting and dancing rather than with excessive eating in the home. But at least one sprightly septuagenarian got down to a solid Christmas dinner surrounded by the better part of a family that includes nine grand-daughters. For M. Rene Coty, the new President of the Republic, is very much a family man, and Mme. Coty is above all an exemplary housewife. On first hearing that her husband had been elected President, she ran down to her concierge and excidedly kissed her on both cheeks. But when the First Magistrate of France got home he found his wife in a more passive mood. "Why?" he asked. "Well, now that we have to move into the Elysee Palace, what on earth am I going to do about all the coal we have just had delivered here?"

M. Coty quickly showed his own sense of informality by breaking two traditions within an hour of becoming President. Custom demands that the new President should not witness the ceremony at which his election is announced to the assembled Senators and Deputies at Versailles. He is privately told in advance that he has been elected and warned to stay outside. M. Coty obediently remained in an anteroom—but with his eyes glued to a television set which was broadcasting the whole scene. He was then invited to sleep at the Palace in the famous bed of Thiers, in which every President is supposed to pass his first night. M. Coty replied firmly that he had had quite enough of Versailles for the time being, and hurried home to his wife in Paris.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE PRESIDENT and his wife may move with reluctance from their comfortable town house to the intimidating Elysee Palace, but M. Coty's real troubles will start when he has to throw Presidential shooting parties at Rambouillet, his official country residence. The newspaper "Paris Presse" recounts that he has made one determined effort to take up blood sports, but put his gun aside for ever after shooting his first bird. Enormously pleased with his initial success, he had ordered the kill to be served up for dinner. His family unaccountably refused to eat the thing, so M. Coty set to with a will himself; assuring everyone that it was excellent game. After a short and sharp engagement, however, the future President laid down his knife, exhausted. The bird had proved exceptionally tough—even for a well-grown crow.

✧ ✧ ✧

VERSAILLES and M. Coty's future home are not the only palaces in the news here. The Louvre has also been the centre of considerable excitement, for a short time ago a number of priceless exhibits were found to be missing and presumed stolen. Just after Christmas, however, most of them were discovered, misleadingly labelled and packed away among the museum's vast reserves.

It has nevertheless been proved recently that, despite complicated bureaucratic control, it is as easy to smuggle the Mona Lisa out of France as the picture on top of a chocolate box.

✧ ✧ ✧

AN AMERICAN here who does a little amateur painting (narrates a confrere) wished to send one of his efforts to a friend in New York. He packed it up carefully and, then set out with it to complete the necessary export formalities. He first went to the Galerie de France where he filled in two forms, had them officially stamped, paid 200 francs and received a clearance from the Fine Arts authorities to send his picture out of the country.

From there he hurried to the Treasury Exchange Office for a second permit and thence to the Customs Office where he filled in two more forms, each of about one hundred questions. These were examined by one official, stamped by a second for 80 francs, copied out laboriously into a register by a third, and re-examined by a fourth who asked the artist for a Chamber of Commerce certificate.

The unfortunate painter rushed off to get this certificate, queued to pay 92 francs for it in another Government office, returned to the Customs building and was finally told his picture could be sealed for forwarding to the United States. He went to the sealing room where a fifth official put more string round it and passed it to a sixth, who sealed it.

Armed with his pocketful of authorisations the painter then took the packet to Orly Airport, where it was accepted for despatch and flown off to New York in its original packing. Ten public servants employed by three separate Ministries had taken all the prescribed measures to ensure that this export represented no financial or cultural loss to France. But not one of them had asked the sender to undo the parcel and show what was inside it.

The American Future

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

A YEAR ago President Eisenhower took office on the crest of a wave of national popularity and international respect. During his first ten months in office, however, respect turned slowly to bewilderment and dismay as it became apparent that he envisaged the Presidency not as the spring-board for strong leadership which every remembered President since Lincoln has made of it, but more as the throne of a constitutional monarchy and himself as the [illegible] rather than [illegible] and the National Commission of [illegible] to the hope [illegible] sterling, it might very well put an end for [illegible] ing to the hope [illegible] Korean war [illegible] the Soviet and non-Soviet worlds are sufficiently near balance to enable the defence programme to be reorganized on a permanent and bearable basis about three-fourths of its present level of expenditure.

This attitude involved reference to Congress, whose Republican leadership represents for the most part a much more obscurantist and old-fashioned form of conservatism than his own, with the result that the legislative record of last year's Congress was abysmal—many hard decisions were postponed by, being relegated to special commissions, and the arrogant pretensions of Senator McCarthy went virtually unchallenged by the White House. But before 1953 had ended it was clear that the President's attitude was changing.

During December he made several positive assertions of leadership. He supported Mr. Foster Dulles, his Secretary of State in publicly denying the right of Senator McCarthy to lay down the terms on which allies of the United States should trade with China; he threw the whole weight of his prestige behind the United Nations in deciding to use its forum to make an imaginative proposal for a new approach to the problem of disarmament and international control of atomic energy; he decided that some information on atomic energy must be shared with Britain and the Nato allies; and finally he has insisted in a calm and forceful way that it will be on the Administration's programme and achievements that Republicans will fight this year's Congressional elections, and not on the villainies of the Democrats or the stale issue of Communism in Government.

Too much could easily be read into these signs; they do not necessarily connote a "new" Eisenhower. One reason for this assertion of Presidenial leadership is his alarm that unless the President proposes, and Congress disposes, some record of positive Republican achievement, the Republicans are certain to lose their minuscule majorities in both Houses of Congress in the elections next November, which would confront him with a Congress under Democratic control. What he has decided is not that he will stand above politics (for instance, there are no signs that he intends to rule through a coalition of like-minded Republicans and Democrats, although he may still have to), but that politics are too serious a matter to be left to professional politicians, and that he himself must shoulder the leadership of the party.

IN THE SECOND PLACE, the President's "dynamic, forward-looking programme" really amounts to little more than a political readjustment of the status quo. It seeks to allay the fears of the large uncommitted section of the voting public that the Republican Administration might dismantle the welfare legislation embodied in two decades of Democratic rule in favour of powerful private interests, while at the same time reducing federal expenditure on defence and foreign aid to a point where the Budget could be partially balanced on a lower level of taxation.

In this connection the possibility of an American recession in 1954 has been widely discussed. The signs of a falling off in consumer demand, especially for the larger items of personal expenditure such as houses and cars, were unmistakable and disturbing during the summer and autumn. At the moment the signs are more encouraging, but it will not be possible to judge with any certainty until later in the winter, when it becomes clear whether nervousness about the future on the part of the business community has led to any marked reduction in investment or to a deceleration in the rate of plant and capital expansion. The general consensus is that there will probably be a shallow trough lasting throughout the year, but that the deflationary forces at work are not of a strength seriously to impair the level of activity and prosperity.

While it is generally conceded that the effect of a minor recession would not be nearly so strongly felt in Britain and the Commonwealth as it was when the same thing happened in 1949, because the level of raw material prices is lower and there is no uncertainty about a possible revaluation of sterling, it might very well put an end for [illegible] legislation this year to liberalise American tariff and import policy.

In any event, hard questions of foreign and strategic policies, of McCarthyism and personal rights, or of measures to ward off a recession, have little to do with legislation. Only two major issues of international concern, the amendment of the McMahon Act to permit the sharing of information on atomic weapons, and the lowering of the American tarif, will be fought out on Capitol Hill. The other questions are within the executive authority of the President, and his freedom to act depends on the extent to which the Administration is prepared to resist attempts by Congress to encroach on those prerogatives.

IN VIEW of the President's series of surrenders to Congress last year the assertion of his independence will be difficult. Much depends on the consistency with which he maintains his new-found sense of authority. He now seems convinced of the truth that comes home eventually to every President— that his real strength with Congress lies in his right to appeal directly to the people, or, in Walter Lippman's phrase, that "Eisenhower is strong in his party only when he is stronger than his party." Hence the temper of the country is now a very important clue to the President's freedom of action.

It would be pleasant to be able to report that the native good sense and democratic spirit of the American public are slowly asserting themselves agains' 'he "witch-hunting" of Senator McCarthy and other obnoxious forms of Congressional investigation, but there is little sign of it. The truth is that outside Washington and New York, where most of its victims live, McCarthyism is far less discussed than in most foreign cities and newspapers. The President has already delivered with some success a major snub to McCarthy, but no power save death can remove the Senator from office until 1958, and in the meanwhile the diabolical momentum of his position forces him to play on every fear and prejudice in the American mind. In a sense McCarthy is only a particularly unscrupulous and evil manifestation of the American sense of frustration with the intractability of world affairs.

The President's immediate intention seems to be to place himself so firmly in the centre of the spotlight that there is no room for McCarthy. If Mr. Eisenhower can really do this it is probably a better method than a knockdown fight with McCarthy, for the swiftness with which his United Nations speech in December drove McCarthy and his accomplices from the headlines and raised the sense of national unity from the low level to which it had sunk during the unhappy interchanges of the previous month between Attorney-General Brownell and ex-President Truman was very striking.

The President's temperate language about relations with Russia struck another chord in the public mind. With the end of the fighting in Korea, American anger against Russia has been partially dissipated. At the same time, the knowledge that Russia could launch an attack with the hydrogen-bomb which could wipe out the American heart-land, and against which no defensive system, however elaborate and expensive, would be completely fool-proof, has led to a greater willingness to contemplate the possibility of "co-existence," of de facto settlement with Russia, and even of some system of non-aggression or security guarantees, although there is probably more insistence in Washington than in London that such a move must depend on a permanent settlement of the German question. Although Administration officials do not accept the implication that they have committed themselves to a policy of "co-existence," certainly nothing more is to be heard of the cruel delusion of "liberating" the Soviet satellites.

IT IS a sign of President Eisenhower's closer alignment with public feeling, rather than with Republican Congressional opinion, that after all the infamy that has been heaped on Yalta, Potsdam, and "secret" agreements, he felt free to suggest to Congress that future conversations with Russia on the possibilities of disarmament must be undertaken in the strictest secrecy. Moreover, the military programme, which contemplates a substantial reduction both in manpower and in expenditure during the coming year, reflects (as does the similar revision of Nato planning) the end of that sense of crisis which has gripped Washington [illegible] Korean war [illegible]

In other fields, the main American preoccupation in this new year is with the sorting out of problems for which they are partly responsible— an end to America's insupportable relationship with France, in which the interdependence of the needs of E.D.C. and the importance of Indo-China is breeding the seeds of isolation in America and neutralism in France; the reorientation of American policy towards Japan, in order to make Japan a viable Pacific nation capable of her own defence; and, above all, a resolution of the current animosity between India and the United States, without which neither a consistent Middle Eastern nor an effective South-east Asian policy is conceivable.

The fact that 1954 is a Congressional election year makes it inevitable that this will be a noisy one, in which many things will be said for internal consumption without consideration of their international effect. A foreign observer can take comfort in two things. There has rarely been in the history of any democratic country a head of any Opposition party who has shown as much restraint and statesmanship as has Mr. Adlai Stevenson, the leader of the Democratic Party. And the brilliant but naive soldier who went to the White House last year is beginning to realize the truth of Woodrow Wilson's dictum that "the President is at liberty both in law and in fact to be as big a man as he can."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the Lord:

And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known unto them. (Ex. 6:2, 3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Is not God in the height of heaven? and behold the height of the stars, how high they are! . . .

Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace: thereby good shall come unto thee. (Job 22:12, 21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I will mention the loving kindnesses of the Lord, and the praises of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses . . .

Doubtless thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not thou, O Lord, art our father, our redeemer; thy name is from everlasting. (Isa. 63:7, 16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee. (Jer. 31:3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. (Isa. 66:13.)

The Queen's Role

(New York Times)

Of course the Queen does not really govern at all. She would not have uttered a single word of the Auckland speech if her responsible minister had asked her not to.

If there were traces of a definite personality in the speech they suggest that she is being encouraged to develop an oratorical style of her own, and these words and phrases are sometimes very touching. They mean, in the words she used, that "the Crown is not merely an abstract symbol" but "a personal and living" bond among the peoples of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The role is important and arduous, and perhaps this estimable and beloved young woman is glad enough that she cannot decide the fate of nations or send unsuccessful politicians to the Tower of London.

Repatriated Man Says Reds Wrecked PoW Explanations

By SAM SUMMERLIN

TOKYO (AP)—A United States soldier who returned to his countrymen after once rejecting them for communism said today the Red high command ordered him and 21 other Americans to break up Allied efforts to win them back.

Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor of Kermit, Tex., said the Reds slipped instructions through a Communist-staffed hospital near the neutral-zone camp where the 22 pro-Red American PoWs were held.

He said the Reds [illegible] Americans not to [illegible] reveal the negative lied explanations. The Americans never did show for the interviews.

Batchelor spoke at a crowded press conference in Tokyo army hospital. The 22-year-old corporal, who left the camp early New Year's Day, said "I made a mistake" in once believing the United States was the aggressor in Korea.

NEVER INFORMER

However, he denied he had ever been an informer on fellow prisoners, and said he hoped he had not influenced anyone.

"To prove myself," he said, "I'd like to get some of the other prisoners back." He said that several weeks before he left "I wanted to try to get some other men out"—but would not say why he failed.

Meanwhile, his Japanese wife, Kyoko, worked on letters to three Americans still in the stockade near Panmunjom.

"Claude says my letters decided him to come back," Kyoko said, "and maybe would help him to get his friends to come back, too."

She said one of the three has a wife in the U. S., one a mother [illegible] has no family. Batchelor

TWO WEEKS AT HOSPITAL

The army said Batchelor probably will remain at the hospital as a patient for about 15 days, but will be allowed to leave on pass.

While in PoW camp 5 at Pyoktong, Batchelor said, he was vice-president of a "daily-life club set up to better our life there." He said he got "no special privileges."

"I had no power. I didn't exercise any leadership."

But the pro - Red Americans elected him as their leader and, until the day he left, "I still held the job as chief representative."

Man Threatened Whole Family, Charge Fails

24-year-old Cecil Crumb, who told his mother and brothers that he would "kill the whole works of us," and later became so violent that his mother was obliged to have him taken into custody, appeared in court before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, Monday.

[illegible] with his mother at 561 Patterson St., conducted his own defence. Magistrate Philp dismissed the charge after reminding Crumb that he was being very foolish and that his mother had the right to make him live elsewhere if he did not behave himself.

Mrs. Rose Crumb said that Cecil had warned her the night before New Year's Eve that he would cause trouble if she allowed certain people (later disclosed as his brothers) in the house the next night. Also, against her wishes he intended bringing wine into the house. The police had advised her to contact them immediately if Cecil made any trouble.

DEFIED POLICE

Acquainted with this fact next evening, Crump had phoned the police and defied them to "come and get him," and following an argument with one of his brothers had taken a large knife and gouged a six-inch piece out of the kitchen door.

Mrs. Crumb, who testified her son "certainly wasn't sober," asked the police to come down and straighten things out.

Crumb had refused a police request to keep the peace so he had been taken to the station and later Mrs. Crumb charged him with assault because she was afraid something might happen.

In defence, Crumb admitted to having had a few glasses of beer.

"But as I told my mother, I'd rather be put here (police cells) than be in the house and have to argue with my brothers," he said.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw: "If you meant no bodily harm to anyone, why did you pick up the knife and jab it in the door?"

Crumb: "Better to do that than jab it into somebody."

SECRET CONFERENCE—United States Senators William Jenner (left), Republican chairman of the Senate internal security sub-committee, and Pat McCarran, former Democrat chairman of the committee, arrived in Montreal to question Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet cipher clerk at Ottawa, now living in Canada. Elaborate precautions were taken to guard the secrecy of the meetings arranged after a long diplomatic wrangle between the Canadian and United States goverments. No news of what Gouzenko told them was released.

Studio Suspends Marilyn Monroe, Fails To Appear

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe's studio says she has been suspended because she failed to show up for the start of her new picture.

Coincident with this announcement was a report that the shapely [illegible], former baseball star, were en route from San Francisco to Las Vegas or Reno, Nev., to be married.

A check of all hotels, night spots and the Las Vegas airport disclosed that Marilyn and her baseball here weren't there.

RUMORS BEGIN TO FLY

The next bit of rumor in Hollywood was that perhaps Marilyn is holding out, inasmuch as her present contract is about to expire and she hasn't signed a new one at 20th Century-Fox. The word is that La Monroe wants more money.

But Marilyn's agent, Jack Gordeen, said there aren't any wedding plans. Miss Monroe wasn't at her studio, he explained, because she doesn't like the script for the picture "Pink Tights," and she won't show up for rehearsals until she can approve a new script.

Report Canada Geese Killed Near Game Reserve Senator Asks Investigation

OTTAWA—(CP)—Senator Norman Paterson said Monday he has asked officials of Ducks Unlimited, an organization devoted to protection of wild fowl, to investigate claims made that Canada geese are being killed in large numbers near a game reserve at Cairo, Ill. The Liberal senator for Ontario, a director of the organization, said in an interview he has asked fellow-director [illegible] to investigate the claims in an article in the January issue of Argosy magazine. The article says thousands of Canada geese are being slaughtered adjacent to the Horseshoe lake state game reserve at Cairo.

The article also says that the Illinois state department of conservation has recommended that 65 per cent of the game sanctuary be thrown open to hunters.

30,000 GEESE KILLED

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)—An Illinois conservation official Monday estimated that 30,000 Canada geese were killed by hunters in the Horseshoe lake area during a 55-day water fowl season which ended last month.

Lew Martin, assistant director of conservation for Illinois, said unofficial figures show that another 5,000 Canadian geese were crippled during the season.

He said it was not an excessive kill. The season ended Dec. 16.

Present estimates, he said, are that between 30,000 and 40,000 Canada geese remained in a game refuge here where they are being fed corn and grain by the state during the winter.

The geese were killed by an estimated 50,000 hunters who were attracted to the commercial hunting clubs which surround the game preserve.

Before the season started, conservation officials informed hunters in the area that they wanted 40,000 geese harvested out of the flock for game management measures.

Children Help Hospital Fund

KINGSTON (CP)—Children are doing their bit to raise the $270,000 needed to finish paying for a new, five-story children's hospital opened here recently.

More than half the cost of the $658,000 hospital, which serves a population of about 400,000 in eastern Ontario, has been raised by annual fund-raising drives.

School children collected $1,000 in hospital penny banks. They also have made decorated screens for halls and rooms in school art classes.

Now they are working on a project to provide one painting for each room.

Besides caring for usual children illnesses, the hospital does plastic surgery, has a speech therapy department and cares for children recovering from polio.

Approve Consulate

TORONTO (CP)—The Yugoslav consulate has finally found a home here and board of control, after receiving a note from the external affairs department, has decided to withdraw its earlier decision to tax it. The board granted the consulate permission to move into a building in north Toronto after refusing it a number of other sites because they required amendment of residential bylaws.

Trustees, Ratepayers Hold Annual Meeting

BETHANY (ENS) — Annual meeting of trustees and ratepayers of Bethany public school was held in the school room Wednesday night with Mr. H. Rayson as chairman.

Repairs to the school were discussed and it was also decided to contact the Department of Highways regarding erecting signs designating the approach to school property and also requesting them to complete building the fence made necessary when a part of the school grounds had been taken over during the remodelling of 7A highway.

New trees are to be planted on the school grounds and in this connection the secretary was to write for information to the government reforestration nursery at Orono. During the past year a new well had been drilled on the property and the most recent test of the water received from the Department of Health showed it to grade A1.

Due to ill health, Mr. F. W. Reynolds tendered his resignation as secretary-treasurer and it was accepted with regret. Mr. Rayson voiced the thanks of the board to Mr. Reynolds for his efficient service in this office which he has held for a period of thirty-four years.

Due to the resignation of Mrs. Velma Morton, a new teacher has been hired for the junior room and Miss Muriel Flett of Fenelon Falls begins her duties as of January 4th.

The personnel of the trustee board remain the same with Mr. Emory Smith beginning this term as Chairman; and Mr. Carl Smith and Mr. H. F. Rayson as the other members.

The Trustee Board met later and appointed Mr. Charles Reynolds as the new secretary-treasurer.

Robinson Resigns As N.Y. Publisher

NEW YORK (AP)—The resignation of William E. Robinson as executive vice-president and publisher of the New York Herald Tribune was announced Monday. It takes effect Jan. 15.

He will become board chairman and chief executive officer of the public relations firm of Steve Hannagan Associates, Inc. Hannagan, head of the firm, died last Feb. 5 in Kenya, during a trip to Africa.

Robinson, 53, an advertising executive on New York newspapers since 1930, joined The Herald Tribune in 1936 and became publisher last year.

The newspaper said his duties will be taken over by Whitelaw Reid, president, Warner Moore, business manager, and A. V. Miller, treasurer.

Youth Sentenced

KITCHENER (CP)—Three youths were sentenced Monday to reformatory terms for smashing a plate glass window at a jewelry store New Year's Eve. William Hornburg, 19, was sentenced to six months determinate and Gordon Douglas, 17, and Virgil Ginrich, 19, each received three-month terms.

Tories Plan Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Association will hold its annual three-day meeting here March 15-17, George Nowlan, association president, announced. General meetings will be held during the last two days. On the opening day the Progressive Conservative Women and the Young Progressive Conservatives will hold their annual meetings, with the party executive meeting that evening.

Nuns Keep Crucifix Concealed Under Habit

HAWKESBURY (CP)—Two Roman Catholic nuns teaching French in a Hawkesbury high school appeared in class Monday with their crucifixes concealed under their habit.

This conforms with an order from the Ontario Department of education after protests from parents of non-Catholic students that the nuns were not following religious emblems in non-denominations of the Ontario High Schools Act.

The act forbids display of religtional schools covered by the act.

The nuns, members of the Grey Sisters of the Cross, were hired by the Hawkesbury school board last September following merger of Roman Catholic and non-denominational high schools into a new district high school.

Appeal Decision To Supreme Court

SASKATOON (CP)—A Saskatchewan Court of Appeal decision which set aside a libel judgment of $7,000 against the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons is to be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Announcement that a brief is being prepared was made Saturday by legal counsel for Dr. David Arnott of London, Ont., who charged the college libelled him in debunking a cancer treatment in its quarterly publication last winter.

The treatment, known as the Koch treatment for cancer, involves application of a chemical solution, of which Dr. Arnott is Canadian manufacturer.

The case originally was heard in Court of Queen's Bench here. The court's award was appealed to Saskatchewan Court of Appeals which ruled the medical organization did not link Dr. Arnott personally with the alleged libel.

Pipe Line Opens Soon

SARNIA (CP)—T. S. Johnston, president of Interprovincial Pipeline Company, said Monday night that the first oil piped directly from Alberta to here will start to flow from the pipe line Wednesday. He said in a telephone interview from Toronto the oil last week was about 200 miles away from Sarnia and travelling about one mile an hour. A 365-mile pipe line link between Sarnia and Superior, Mich., was completed about two months ago.

Canada Doesn't Intend To Change Rule On Cars For U.S. Citizens

OTTAWA (CP) — Complaints by American citizens living in Canada concerning restrictions on use of the automobiles they imported duty-free from the United States have been brought to the attention of Revenue Minister McCann, it was learned.

However, an official of the department said Monday Canada is not likely to change its rule that these cars—on which no duty, excise or sales taxes have been paid—may be used to travel only between the owners' Canadian homes and the international boundary.

The complaints were made by Owners Association at Ridgetown, to W. L. Houck, Liberal member of Parliament for Niagara Falls. Association members objected to having to register as Canadian residents after living in Canada more than 183 days a year and to the travel restriction on their cars.

NOT FIRST COMPLAINTS

The official said such complaints have been made before, particularly by persons wishing to avoid paying income tax either in Canada or the U.S. They must pay income tax in one country or the other but they must register for tax purposes in Canada and indicate where they are paying their income tax.

The official said the restrictions on use of their duty-free cars are similar to those imposed on U.S. trucking firms which truck goods into Canada in vehicles on which no duty, sales or excise taxes are paid. The permits under which such vehicles may enter specify that the vehicle is travelling between specific Canadian points and points on the Canada-U.S. boundary.

"Why should they bring these cars in free of duty, excise and sales taxes unless they are going to use them only to travel to and from their jobs in the U.S.?" the official asked. "Canadians have to pay these levies on imported vehicles."

(Customs duty on imported automobiles is 17½ per cent on the factory price. An excise tax of 15 per cent and a sales tax of 10 per cent is added to the duty-paid value.)

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

OOOOhhhhh, my aching head!!!! Here it is January 5th and my eyesight is still being crowded by visions of little animals, the odd pink elephant also pushing its way around.

Since my head's still celebrating New Year's Eve, I guess there's still time for some New Year resolutions. There's some Peterborough's sporting world could make.

The first is to help develop more sports for girls, starting with the re-organization of the girls' softball league.

Apart from bits of basketball, smaller bits of track and field, some badminton, some bowling and golf, the girls don't have too many sports. The ones they do have are on too small a basis when compared with men's activities.

Girls were doing well in softball until last summer. Before that the girls were breaking into softball in the public schools and had the city league functioning. The rather hit-and-miss school league was the only league to operate last year then only until the summer holidays.

Therefore the first resolution should be to restore the girls softball league, giving the school league grads a chance to continue playing.

The weaker sex could also do with some help in the basketball league. It was pretty shaky when it began to roll early in the fall, but girls like Mabel Gillen have kept it going.

With the three high schools, Kenner, PCVS and St. Peter's sporting girls basketball teams this winter, along with district teams at Lakefield, Norwood, Port Hope, Cobourg and Lindsay, there should, in a couple of years, be enough material for a district league. Someone has to keep the young femmes interested, maybe it could be you.

There are many sporting fields open to more organization for girls. Take for instance swimming, not the synchronized type, but the competitive speed swimming variety, water skiing, skiing, track and field.

Local Talent

Here's a resolution yours truly made. Resolved to mention Peterborough's talent serving out-of-town.

So as a start today we'll take a look at Don Griffin and Ray Thomas, serving this year with the senior Toronto Tri-Bells in the International Triple A League.

It shows well for Peterborough basketball, especially the coaches, to have two former players on Canada's top team. Grif is probably better known to city fans since he earned his name as a star playing with Bev Goulding's teams, then later showing the fruit of his efforts, starring (he made the inter-collegiate all-star team four years in a row) while with Queen's University.

As far as Ray is concerned, we first rubbed elbows with him about the Y and over at George Dormer's Sugar Bowl. He didn't play too much around the city but has certainly advanced since hitting Toronto.

Grif scored five and Thomas four as Tri-Bells lost to Niagara Falls Jolleys Saturday; they picked up 10 and six on Saturday in an exhibition game with an American club.

Peterborough basketball players, especially at PCVS, will recall with a tear in their eye, the names of Larry Howse and Peter Potter. Potter potted too many against the Garnets and Grays several years ago for them to forget him too soon.

Around the collegiate gym the other night Bev introduced us to his world famous father, George Goulding. We talked for several minutes with the former world champion heel-and-toe walker.

Since this once-popular sport is practically unknown in Canada, we didn't realize just how fast these boys can move. They cover a mile in a little over six minutes.

Stating that heel-and-toe walking was a lost art, we stepped back rather quickly as Mr. Goulding majestically defended his favorite past time, pointing out that walking competitively is still popular in the world despite Canada. He even stated that walkers of today are just as good as the old timers.

Mr. Goulding recalled that he walked here at one time (around 1909) in the Brock St. arena. His competition was mostly provided by Toronto walkers.

Holds Three Records

Looking into our encyclopedia of sports (Menke) we find that Bev's dad still holds three North American records, 13:37 minutes for two miles, 20:49.8 minutes for three miles and 28:06.2 for three miles.

Mr. Goulding Sr. now takes an active interest in the Toronto Maple Leafs, the baseball variety. He follows and attends the games pretty regularly, even moving down south for a few weeks to watch the major league clubs.

While leaving the basketball game, we bumped into Hugh Outram, who was one of the best linemen ever developed at PCVS by Alex Londry and Bev. Hugh has been up north, in the Sudbury district, with the Bell Telephone and spent some time in football, intermediate brand, in the fall.

Hugh, who helped coach, specializing along the line, said the boys up there are much bigger than our Orfuns but just haven't their fundamentals down pat.

Perhaps we should have made a resolution to stop bumping into people, for just now we met Paul Irwin, an ardent supporter of the senior lacrosse team. He's leaving for Ajax to open a new car business there with Jimmy Philcox.

Just the same Paul plans to be back in Peterborough every Friday night this summer for the Trailermen's home games.

That's the type of fan a team should have.

TOURISTS LEAD MATCH

KINGSTON (Reuters)—The touring English cricket team was in a strong position in its match against Jamaica when stumps were drawn Monday night, having scored 223 runs for three wickets in reply to Jamaica's first-innings 266.

At the close, Willie Watson was 97 not out, Tom Graveney 19 not out.

Watson opened with Len Hutton for the Marylebone Cricket Club with a bright first-wicket stand of 80, after the last four Jamaican wickets fell for the addition of only 40 runs.

Marmora Loses To The C's In A TVL Game

MARMORA—(ENS)—Marmora received Campbellford as their visitors in what was the opening game of the Trent Valley Loop schedule for both teams and were defeated by the score 8-5. Play was even for the first two periods but in the third, the homesters failed to break up the aggressive play of Campbellford and also take advantage of [illegible] open-[illegible]. Jaynes and Lavender netted twice each for the homesters as did Eady and Wilson for the winners while Simpson was also effective for Campbellford with one goal and an assist.

About 400 spectators viewed the encounter. The game was inclined to be a little rough in the third.

Peterborough Rinks Victors At Oshawa

OSHAWA—Two rinks from the Peterborough Curling Club will represent Southern Ontario District in the annual Ontario Ladies' tankard playdowns at Owen Sound on the 25th of this month.

Four district clubs entered two rinks each in today's eliminations, with the Liftlock City curlers each winning out over Oshawa opponents in the second round.

Peterborough's Mrs. V. A. Selkirk had a hard time winning over Mrs. V. Wilson of nearby Keene in the first round, but Mrs. T. F. Doughty ousted Mr. K. Godfrey's Keene rink rather handily. Oshawa rinks skipped by Mrs. J. H. McDiarmid and Mrs. G. H. Campbell won over Unionville entries skipped by Mrs. J. Grant and Mrs. E. Lamoria, respectively.

Mrs. Selkirk's curlers won their second game in handy fashion, but Mrs. Doughty's rink had a closer battle. They broke a 6-6 deadlock by scoring four on the eighth end, but the Oshawa quartet came back to take three on the ninth end and were only one down "coming home," but couldn't get in for the shot needed.

Mrs. Lamoria's Unionville rink took the day's prizes for the best win in the consolation games.

Gonzales Wins First Tourney

NEW YORK (AP)—Rangy Pancho Gonzales, 1949 amateur king, started the long road back as a professional by defeating Pancho Segura 7-9, 6-4, 6-4 Monday night to win the first "tournament" of Jack Kramer's 1954 tour.

A crowd of 6,500 watched Gonzales, who was dropped from the tour last year, haul down top prize money of $4,000 for the two-day event.

Frank Sedgman, the ex-Australian Davis Cup ace, defeated Don Budge 6-4, 6-2 in the consolation round.

Gonzales not only had to overcome Segura's two-fisted drives, but midway in th second set he hurt his ankle and had to take time out to have it taped.

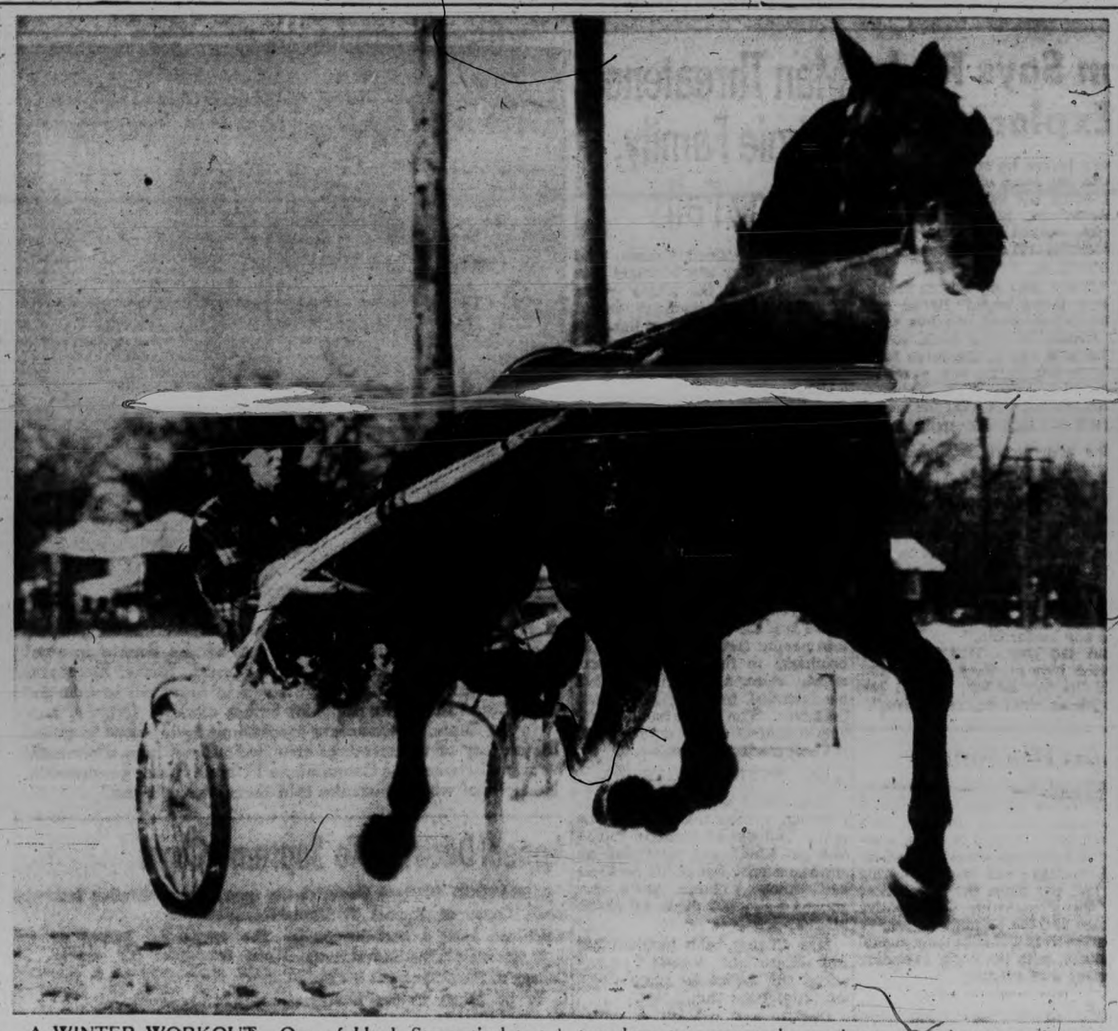
But with all his troubles he came back to overpower his bandy-legged opponent from Ecuador. Segura had the strokes but couldn't cope with Gonzales' deep blasts and powerful serve.

Scores Smashing Upset Over Vic Seixas

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Australia's unpredictable Rex Hartwig scored a smashing upset Monday over veteran Vic Seixas of the United States in the quarter-finals of the South Australian tennis championships.

Hartwig won the match 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

Tony Trabert of the U.S., probable opponent of Australia's 19-year-old winner, Lewis Hoad, in the finals, entered the semi-finals with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, conquest of Aussie lefthander Mervyn Rose.



A WINTER WORKOUT—One of Hugh Stewart's latest purchases, Race Day, driven (above) by son Jim Stewart, makes the snow fly during a workout this week on the exhibition grounds track. The light blanket of snow wasn't too deep to prevent the workout, at a slow trot about the track. The horse didn't mind the chance to run, but the ride didn't please Jim, for the snow flew back from Race Day's flying feet. Race Day has a lifetime record of 2.08. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Keep Mantha Suspended

KEMPTVILLE (CP) — W. B. (Baldy) George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Monday night Moe Mantha, Quebec Frontenacs defenceman, will remain under suspension until details of his match penalty have been examined.

Mantha received the penalty in Frontenacs' Ontario-Quebec interlocking schedule junior game here Sunday against Toronto Marlboros.

Referee Hugh McLean penalized Mantha for "deliberately injuring" Wally Maxwell, Marlboro captain, contending that the Quebec player "speared" the Toronto player with such force to put him out of the game. Maxwell was assisted to the dressing room but after the game said he felt fine.

Mantha said Maxwell's injury was an accident and claimed the Toronto player ran into him.

George said he is awaiting the referee's written report and a medical report on Maxwell's injury before making a further decision against Mantha.

Late Dr. J. C. Green Prominent Curler

Dr. J. C. Green, a member of the local Curling Club for many years passed away very suddenly, at his home, Monday evening.

Stricken early in the evening, he never rallied and passed on shortly.

Although, for some time, it has been known he was not enjoying the best of health, nevertheless his death came as quite a shock to the curling fraternity.

Night after night he would be at the rink, listening to and taking part in the good-natured ribbing. His presence around the club will be greatly missed. The sympathy of the entire club is extended to his widow, his sons, his sisters and brothers.

Dartmouth Golf Club Chosen For Tourney

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Ladies' Golf Union announced Monday night that Brightwood Golf and Country Club at Dartmouth, N.S., has been selected as the site for four Canadian ladies' golf championships next August.

The 20th annual close tournament, a 54-hole medal event, will be played Aug. 5-7 and the 41st open championship is scheduled for Aug. 9-14. The first two days of the close event also will be the dates for the two team events, the interprovincial and the junior.

Dartmouth is on the eastern shores of Halifax harbor, opposite Halifax.

CITY CARPETBALL

The schedule for the week of Jan. 11 is Legion No. 5 vs. Fire Hall No. 4; Legion No. 7 vs. Legion No. 9; Orphuns No. 8 vs. Lawn Boys No. 2; Legion No. 11 vs. Legion No. 1; Fire Hall No. 10 vs. LOL No. 12; Glens No. 6 vs. Red Patch No. 13; Legion No. 3 vs. Post Office No. 14.

There has been no games played since the holiday season and as a result none to report.

All teams have their entry fees paid. If there are any old members not on a team this season and wish to participate in the Gracie's memorial doubles tournament later on along with attendance at our banquet, please contact the president or secretary relative to taking out on honorary membership card.

It has been drawn to the attention of the secretary that skips are showing up with only two players including themselves and placing the opposing skip in an embarrassing position of asking his permission to pick up another player for that game. This is contrary to the rules as laid down in your rule book, which says a team is composed of five players, four to be used in each game. If a team shows up with only three players, the opposing skip may pick a man to play on that team but he must play in either lead or second position. Honorary members may be used for this purpose, also.

CHANGE LINEUPS

The two Fire Hall teams will have to have the executive okay changes in their teams due to fire hall personnel being changed from one shift to another January 1. Any of the other teams who are short players for any reason should get their replacements at once and have the executive okay them right away. This is necessary as the secretary will be drawing up the doubles schedule very soon and the names of the personnel of all teams are included in the draw along with the honorary members.

The President's Cup draw is also scheduled shortly but this draw will be held off until the completion of the first half of the regular schedule, which will not be completed until the week of January 25. By which time all teams should be ready for the elimination series of the President's Cup.

Dr. D. McFarlane Dies In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Donald C. McFarlane, 60, eye specialist and a professor at the University of Western Ontario school of medicine, died of a heart attack at his home Monday.

Dr. McFarlane was graduated in 1916 from UWO where he was active in football and track events. He served in the First World War and trained in New York.

In 1946 he became head of UWO's department of ophthalmology, otology, rhinology and laryngology. Dr. G. E. Hall president of the university, said:

"He was always concerned with his students' welfare and took a personal interest in each student."

He was a member of the council of three Canadian societies dealing with his special field of work.

He is survived by his widow, two sons and two brothers. Both sons were track and rugby stars at UWO and competed for Canada in the 1948 Olympic games. One, Dr. Donald C. McFarlane, now is training in New York and the other, Dr. Robert M. McFarlane, is training in surgery here.

Leafs Purchase Infielder Babe

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League Monday night announced the purchase for $15,000 of infielder Loren Babe from New York Yankees of the American League. Babe will be used at second base.

He played third base for Syracuse Chiefs of the International League in 1951 and 1952. In those seasons he hit .272 and .305 playing under manager Bruno Betzel. He was purchased by the Leafs on the recommendation of Betzel, signed recently as Toronto coach.

Babe, sold to Philadelphia Athletics last season for $25,000 after playing in five games for the Yankees, batted .230 in 103 games for the A's. The Yankees bought him back at their original selling price in order to complete the recent 11-player deal they made with the A's.

Quackenbush Hopes To See Action Soon

BOSTON (AP)—Defenceman Bill Quackenbush of Boston Bruins, who suffered a broken ankle against Toronto's Maple Leafs last Nov. 14, hopes to return to National Hockey League action soon.

The veteran took part in a 90-minute practice session Monday—his first in nearly two months. Winger Real Chevrefils, who suffered a broken leg in the same game, is out for the season.

Hastings Wins TVL Tussle Over Havelock

HAVELOCK (ENS) — In the first T.V.L. game to be held this season on Havelock ice, Hastings defeated Havelock before 350 fans by a score of 6 to 5. Havelock pulled out their goalie in the last minute of play in an effort to tie the game.

Havelock led at the end of the first period by a score of 2 to 1, and still led at the second by 4 to 3. Hastings put on the pressure in the third adding three goals to their total. Both goal tenders did good work, especially Mulholland of Hastings in the third period. The game was fast throughout with only six penalties being handed out. Referee Cousins of Marmora was injured in the first period by being struck on the knee with a puck.

Hastings—Goal, Mulholland; defence, McGillen, Berardi; centre, Morrow; wings, Kane, Allen, Alts.: Dodd, West Bacon, Oliver, Vipe Burns, Cupoli, Maloney, sub-goalie, Morrissey.

Team Match Tops Mat Card

JOHNNY BAREND

The bruising alliance of Lord Athol Layton and his partner, Fred Atkins, look to be in a dangerous spot in the team wrestling headliner at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night. For the judo-chopping Layton and elbow-smashing Atkins will face and outstanding combination of Ilio DiPaolo, the sensational Italian champion, an Hombre Montana, the 325-pound South American powerhouse.

No one, not even such experts in trickery as Atkins and Layton, figures to put anything over a pair like Montana and DiPaolo.

Firpo Szybsko of Poland will wrestle Johnny Barend of Rochester, a great favorite here, in the semi-final. First match will be Tony Martinelli of New Jersey against Johnny Harmon of Georgia.

Richmond To Join International League

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Mayor Ed Haddock has assured the International Baseball League that Richmond is ready to become a full-time member. His action also apparently cleared the way for Havana, Cuba, to join.

Parker Field, a city-owned park, was made available Monday night for a triple-A team when city council gave a 7-2 endorsement to a lase. Now it is up to Haddock to make good his promise that funds will be provided to enlarge the field's grandstand to meet league standards.

League president Frank Shaughnessy, commenting in Montreal, said he now sees nothing in the way of Richmond's entry.

"Of course, we'll have to have a league meeting and the mayor and Mr. Seibold will have to attend to iron out details," he said. "But I expect that Richmond will then get its franchise."

Harry C. Seibold, wealthy industrialist, bought the Richmond territorial rights last month for $25,000 from Eddie Mooers. Mooers had operated a Richmond team in the class-B Piedmont League since 1932.

BETTER SET-UP

"As soon as we're assured by the mayor officially that the seating capacity will be increased it should be plain sailing," Shaughnessy said. "If Richmond and Havana are accepted—and that's the way it looks now—our set-up for next season will be much better than last year."

The Parker Field stands in Richmond can accommodate 4,000. Haddock has proposed to expand them to 12,000 at a cost of $292,000. The cost would be borne by sale of tax-free bonds to local corporations and private citizens. Haddock said he is certain the job can be done.

Havana has been waiting patiently for the Richmond position to be clarified. The Cuban city had been accepted tentatively, conditional upon the acceptance of Richmond.

Admission of Havana would give the league three countries and stretch it geographically from Ottawa in the north to Cuba in the south. Two other Canadian teams—Montreal and Toronto—are in the league along with Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse in New York state. Havana and Richmond would replace Baltimore, now in the major leagues, and Springfield, Mass., which has folded.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

It wasn't a bad year in sport, 1953. We've seen a lot of years with less color, less drama, down a long trail that leads back a half century or so.

We doubt, for instance, that 1954 will produce another such throat-catching drama as did the 1953 Grey Cup final in the last few minutes, when Indian Jack Jacobs of Winnipeg Bombers threw pass after pass through the crisp, sunny November air. On the strength of his strong right arm, Bombers marched almost the entire length of the field, forcing Hamilton Ticats back to the very edge of their own line, in defence of a 12-6 lead. Four yards out, the hands of the big clock spinning in the last few seconds, four yards to go, another Jacobs pass, Tom Casey going high in the air to catch it, Casey bowled over, the ball spinning wildly away . . . a gallant effort suddenly finished. But Jacobs, the goat of Bombers' 1950 defeat, redeemed himself by one of the greatest passing displays in Grey Cup history.

And the finish of another great Canadian sports classic, the Stanley Cup . . . Canadiens of Montreal and Boston Bruins battling for a full 60 minutes without a score in what proved to the final game. Battle-scarred Elmer Lach wheeling from a face-off to whip a streaking cross-fire that sagged the far side of Sugar Jim Henry's net, and the crippled Henry, after a brilliant display, standing there for seconds, his face a study in stunned disbelief, as the wild roar of the crowd sounded its requiem to Boston's hopes for hockey triumph.

And Canadian college football may never produce a greater, more dramatic thrill, than in the last 40 seconds of the final play-off game for the intercollegiate title, when Varsity leading 8-7, Western quarterback Don Getty, 18-year-old college junior, sent a perfect pass hurtling through the air to Murray Henderson, who went racing over the Varsity line, literally snatching victory out of defeat.

Yes, 1953 was a year of color and drama on many sports fronts, and we shall do as admonished by Archilachus, the Talmud, Diogenes Laertius, and the law of Solon: "De mortuis nil nisi bonum—"Of the dead nothing but good." 1953 was a good year in sport. 1954 will do well to equal it.

No NHL Teams Able To Win 3rd of Road Games

MONTREAL—(CP)—With more than half their 35 road games played, not a team in the National Hockey League has been able to win one third of them. The best showing so far has been made by Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs. Each has five wins in 18 games. Boston Bruins [illegible] five of 19. [illegible] Canadiens, fighting with Detroit for the league leadership and trying to pull away from the third-place Leafs, have won only four of 20, the same as the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks. New York Rangers have won only three of their 18 foreign-ice games.

Even considering ties and rating the clubs on points won, no team is reasonably close to 50-per-cent winning hockey on the road. Detroit has the best percentage, 41.7, collecting 14 of a possible 36 points.

Toronto follows with 38.8 and then the fourth-place Bruins with 34.2. Montreal's point scoring percentage is 30, Chicago's 25 and New York's 22.2.

MONTREAL LEADS

On home ice, Canadiens have taken 35 of a possible 38 points, for 92 per cent, losing one game and tying one. The Leafs have also lost one home game but have had to settle for a tie four times. Their point-collection percentage is 83.3.

The Red Wings have lost two and tied three games at home and have an 82.5 percentage. Boston has 67.6, New York 55 and Chicago only 31.6.

The individual point-scoring race underwent a few changes although Gordie Howe of Detroit held his seven-point margin over Ted Lindsay, his teammate. Howe failed to get a goal but picked up three assists and leads with 44 points. Lindsay had two goals and an assist raising his total to 37.

Montreal's Maurice Richard moved from fourth to third place, collecting two goals and an assist. Richard, leading goal-scorer with 22, has 35 points, one better than Bernie Geoffrion, also of Montreal.

SANDFORD HIGH

Ed Sandford, Boston Bruins' smart left-winger, was high man for the week with two goals and two assists, moving him into fifth place ahead of Detroit's Red Kelly.

Ken Mosdell, veteran Montreal centre, moved from ninth to eighth place — the only other change among the 10 leaders. Mosdell's one goal and two assists raised his total to 29.

Harry Lumley of the Leafs, posting two shutouts in three games last week, trimmed his goals-against average from 1.64 to 1.55. Terry Sawchuk of Detroit has 1.84, and Gerry McNeil of Montreal has 2.10. Jim Henry of Boston slipped from 2.76 to 2.67.

Sullivan Holds 5-Point Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears holds a five-point lead in the American Hockey League scoring race, but is being challenged by Eddie Olson of Cleveland Barons.

Olson, last season's pace-setter, picked up seven points last week to three for Sullivan. The competition stands at 55 points for the Hershey speedster and 50 for Olson in games through Sunday.

Jackie Gordon, also of the Barons, is third with 49 points followed by rookie Don Marshall of Buffalo with 44 and Arnie Kullman of Hershey and Cal Stearns of Cleveland with 41 points each.

Harry Pidhirny of Syracuse Warriors is the circuit's top goalgetter with 26 while Sullivan leads with 41 assists.

Buffalo's Jacques Plante continues as the leading goalie with a goals-against average of 2.63 a game.

Schmidt Breaks 2 Scoring Records

BOSTON (AP) — Captain Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins has broken two all-time club scoring records and is gunning for two more.

Now in his 15th National Hockey League season, the veteran centre has bettered club career marks for points in regular season play as well as combined points for regular season plus playoff games. Both records had been set by former Bruin centre Bill Cowley.

Schmidt is after Cowley's club mark of 353 assists in regular-season play, 24 more than Schmidt has now. He also is within striking distance of Aubrey (Dit) Clapper's Boston record of 228 goals in a regular-season career. Milt has 221.

New York Yankees Voted Outstanding Team Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees, who won an unprecedented fifth straight American League pennant and followed up with their fifth consecutive world series championships were voted the outstanding team of 1953 today in the 23rd annual Associated Press year-end poll.

As they have monopolized baseball, so have the Bronx Bombers swept top honors in the AP poll, for this is the fourth consecutive year that Casey Stengel's men have been voted "best team of the year."

It was a runaway for the Yankees, who received 79 first-place votes from a total of 125 ballots cast by sports writers and sportscasters.

The Yankees, who defeated Brooklyn Dodgers in the world series four games to two, rolled up 289 points on a 3-2-1 basis.

The University of Maryland, unbeaten in 10 regular season football games and named 1953's No. 1 college team in the AP poll last month, edged the pro football Cleveland Browns for second place.

Maryland, like Cleveland, came to the end of the road as the grid season ended. The Terrapins were upset by Oklahoma 7-0 in the Orange Bowl at Miami after Detroit Lions beat Cleveland in the playoff for the National Football League title.

St. Moritz, Switzerland, was the scene of the first recorded bobsleigh race 55 years ago today. Bob-sledding became an Olympic event in 1928, and German teams won both the two-man and four-man events at the Olympic winter games in Oslo in 1952.

'Costly Mistake' To Allow Hamilton Join

BARRIE (CP) — Coach Hap Emms of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series says he thinks the OHA council made a "costly mistake" in allowing Hamilton Cubs into the group.

[illegible] commenting on the statement by [illegible] owner of the Hamilton club, who protested before the council Saturday against the present interlocking schedule between the league and the Quebec Junior league.

Soble said operation of the interlocking league was too expensive.

NEED COLOR

Emms said the five games with Quebec teams in Barrie will "attract more customers than Hamilton would if they played here all season or a lifetime."

"Sport needs color and promotion. Quebec teams are a fine attraction as proved by last season's interlocking schedule. If Hamilton wants to get customers, why don't they do something to create interest instead of remaining dormant?"

Small Vote Turns Down Community Hall

ROSENEATH (ENS) — The plebiscite vote to decide on a new community hall in Alnwick township caused little interest on Monday but the 142 voters, out a possible 600, who went to the polls voted against any move to either build a new hall or buy and improve the old Orange Hall. The result:

80 votes were cast against either new hall or improvement to the Orange Hall.

42 voted to buy and improve the Orange Hall.

20 voted to build a new hall.

Votes were cast at three subdivisions—Roseneath, SS 3, Alnwick, and SS 1, and 25, Alnwick. At the latter poll only one vote had been registered by 2 p.m.

Theodore Cooney Rawdon Reeve

BONARLAW (ENS) — Theodore Cooney was elected reeve of Rawdon township on Monday, defeating his opponent Wilfred Spencer by 232 votes; the final accounting was Cooney, 549, and spencer, 317. Deputy-Reeve James Spry was put in by acclamation.

Councillors for the new year, and votes cast for them were: Earl McAdam, 630; K. Mumby, 573; Ernest Sarles, 534; and Gordon Bailey, 447.

Voting took place at five centres in the township; Ridge Road School, Mount Pleasant, Minto, Springbrook, Herald and Bonarlaw.

Peter Perdue Re-elected Reeve

OMEMEE (ENS) — Peter Perdue was re-elected Reeve of Emily township in voting there Monday. Members of his 1954 council will be Edward Lowes and Lloyd Ashmore, members of last year's council, and Nelson McDonnell and Victor Callaghan, newcomers to the township government.

Leading the polls to return to office was Mr. Lowes who captured 418 votes, Mr. Ashmore followed with 343, Mr. McConnell next with 320 and Mr. Callaghan next with 297.

Reeve Perdue received 293 votes.

Can Appeal Film Banning

MONTREAL (CP)—Alexis Gagnon, chairman of Quebec's film censorship board said Monday the distributors of the American religious film "Martin Luther," banned in the province of Quebec, can appeal the board's decision.

Louis de Rochemont, the producer and distributor, can re-submit the film, either as it was screened originally or with alterations, Mr. Gagnon said in an interview.

(Sunday New York attorney, Ambrose Doskov, made public a letter he had written to Premier Duplessis of Quebec protesting the banning of the film biography of the Protestant church leader. Mr. Ambrose said the film is a temperate presentation of religious history and called the censors' action in banning a "shocking abridgement of religious freedom.")

Mr. Gagnon said the movie was rejected because it exhibits the Pope in a bad light.

Citizenship Award For Minister

HAMILTON (CP—The Rev. John Christie Holland, 71, a son of a runaway slave and former railway porter, Monday night was presented with the Distinguished Citizenship Award of 1953.

The award is presented annually by the Hamilton Ad and Sales Club in recognition of achievements over and above the line of duty.

Mr. Holland was born here after his father fled to Canada. He sold newspapers to put himself through school and later graduated from the theological seminary of Wilberforce University, O. However, instead of following his profession, he went to work with the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway.

When the pastor of Stewart Memorial church here died in 1937 Mr. Holland took over without salary while continuing his railway job. He has devoted his full time to the church since he retired from the railway six years ago.

Hope To Have Companies Merge On Pipeline Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will start this week to bring together two companies in a joint project on a $300,000,000 gas pipeline from Alberta to the East.

On the eve of these negotiations, Trade Minister Howe Monday said the two big competing firms will have to merge their corporate structures to fit in with plans of the federal and Alberta governments.

The companies are Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, which wants to build an all-Canadian line from Alberta as far east as Montreal, and Western Pipe Lines, Ltd., planning to pipe gas as far east as Winnipeg and then pipe it south to Minnesota.

A month ago, the Alberta government in releasing long-withheld gas for the East ruled that the two proposals should be amalgamated. The federal cabinet agreed.

Mr. Howe said in an interview he will talk to the Western concern today and to Trans-Canada later this week to try to get them to unite on the Alberta proposal. It was expected a meeting of federal representatives with the two companies would be held shortly.

While there had been some earlier expectation that the Alberta government plan could be carried out jointly by the companies without their actual corporate unification, Mr. Howe said Monday he does not see how this can be done.

"The companies will have to amalgamate," he said.

The trade minister, handling the pipeline deal for the federal government, said he has not yet sounded out the companies on the idea.

Report Record Labelled Wrong

MONTREAL (CP) — Embarrassed CBC officials said Monday an incorrectly-labelled record was the reason the United States national anthem was heard as background music to a scene of the Coronation of the Queen in the French-language television program "L'actualitie."

Jacques Guay, producer of the hour-long program, heard on Ottawa and Montreal stations New Year's Eve, and featuring a review of outstanding events during 1953, said the tune should have been "Coronation March."

Mr. Guay said he picked a record labelled "Coronation March," but "it turned out to be the Star Spangled Banner. Someone had stuck the wrong label on the record."

Mr. Guay said only a few bars of the U.S. anthem were heard.

Not Sure Drop In Costs Trend Or Slip

OTTAWA (CP)—Economists are not sure whether the October decline in living costs was a temporary slip or the beginning of a downward trend.

They, and Canadians generally, will get further evidence of how prices are going when the November survey of the [illegible] index is published today.

A yardstick of living costs, the consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, declined by one-half point during October to 116.2 from 116.7.

REVERSED RISE

That drop, caused mainly by lower meat and egg prices, reversed a five-month, 2.3-point rise that had moved the index slowly toward the all-time high of 118.2 reached in December, 1951.

October's decline was the biggest in seven months. The drop of 3.1 points in the food sub-group was the biggest in 17 months.

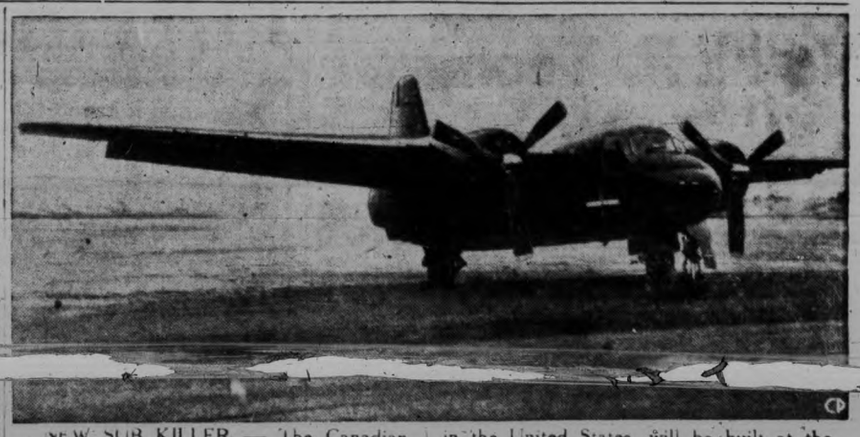
In the United states, prices stepped down slightly after reaching an all-time high. The American cost-of-living index, based on 1947-49 prices equalling 100, dropped to 115 Nov. 15 after reaching a record 115.4 Oct. 15.

Jailed Nine Months For Money Theft

STRATFORD (CP) — William Warris, 19, Monday was sentenced to nine months definite and six months indefinite for the theft of money and cigarettes from a service station early Sunday. City police recovered $21 in cash and 1,900 cigarettes.

Warris and his brother, Carl, 16, were arrested after police matched footprints leading away from the service station to those leading to the home of the accused.

Carl was refused the right to plead and his case will be heard later.



NEW SUB KILLER — The Canadian navy's anti-submarine air squadrons will be rearmed with Grumman SF2 aircraft, a twin-engined, high-wing monoplane, designed specifically for carrier-borne operations against submarines. The new plane, designed in the United States, will be built at the Toronto plant of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, Ltd. First deliveries are expected in 1955 and will replace the Grumman Avenger, a Second World War torpedo bomber converted for sub-chasing operations.

Canada Willing Trade More With Russia

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is willing to do more trade with Russia "in a limited list of commodities," Trade Minister Howe said Monday.

The minister, in an interview, observed that the Soviet Union has signed a number of trade agreements with various countries, but said the Soviet has made no direct trade approach to Canada.

Australia recently concluded a deal with Russia to import Soviet canned salmon and crabmeat. This led an Australian newspaper, the Melbourne Herald, to suggest that Canada would protest since Canada had previously supplied the Australian market.

However, Mr. Howe said the Canadian government is not planning any protest. Australia, a sterling-area country, was short of Canadian canned salmon for several years.

NO PROTEST

"There will be no protest from Canada," he said.

As for Canada's own relations with Russia, Canada is ready to open trade negotiations on shipments of non-strategic goods.

Mr. Howe observed that there are signs of Russian "goodwill" on the world economic front, but Canada would not be willing to ship any strategic item to that country or any Communist satellite.

Mr. Howe suggested that there are "quite a number" of other items in which Russians and Canadians could trade—including furs.

Rusia would have to pay for her Canadian goods either in dollars or gold, but there might be ways of working out a barter deal between a Russian trade group and Canadian private traders. The Canadian government would not be willing to undertake barter deals on a government level.

Russian-Canadian trade has been almost non-existent.

40,000 Homes Built In Ontario In 1953

TORONTO (CP)—A record number of homes were built in Ontario last year, the Ontario planning department said Monday. Forty thousand homes were constructed or started, about 10,000 more than in 1952.

The homes represent an estimated investment of $500,000,000. In 1948 30,260 homes were built; 34,000 in 1949; 33,430 in 1950; 27,349 in 1951 and 30,891 in 1952.

You can't go ALL-OUT If you feel ALL-IN

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 58

The boy wos tobogganing down the hill when he struck a tree. He sustained a skull fracture and was described as being in serious condition by hospital authorities.

New Committees Named For 154 Council

Alderman Patrick J. Anglesey, who finished fourth in the December elections, has been appointed chairman of finance for 1954.

Mr. Anglesey is beginning his fourth two-year term of office as alderman. His election followed the inaugural meeting Monday afternoon. Last year he was chairman of the board of works and he was, altogether, a member of four of the standing committees.

Dean of the 1954 council, Mr. Anglesey finished this year in the voting behind Alderman Stanley McBride, Mrs. Alene Holt and John A. Dewart. He was one of the two sitting aldermen—out of five up for election—who was returned by the voters.

PERSONNEL

Here are the standing committees for 1954:

Board of Works: Alderman Burrows, chairman; and all members of the council.

Fire, Water and Light Committee: Alderman Rehill, chairman; Aldermen Beggs, Burrows, Farquharson, Knox and McBride.

Manufacturers Committee (publicity and transportation): Alderman Dewart, chairman; Aldermen Beggs, Mrs. Holt, Powell and Rehill.

Finance Committee (printing and licences): Alderman Anglesey, chairman; and all members of the council.

Property Committee (all city properties, market and health): Alderman Farquharson, chairman; Aldermen Beggs, Burrows, Knox and McBride.

Legal and Reception Committee (legislation and franchise): Alderman Powell, chairman; Aldermen Burrows, Dewart, Farquharson and Mrs. Holt.

Parks Committee: Alderman Knox, chairman; Aldermen Burrows, McBride and Powell.

Welfare Committee: Alderman McBride, chairman; Aldermen Beggs, Mrs. Holt and Knox.

Sanitation Committee: Alderman Beggs, chairman; Aldermen McBride, Powell and Rehill.

Hair Of The Dog

Elmer Davis of Blairton made his appearance at court today to answer an OPP charge that he sold liquor illegally, but he did not get as far as the magistrate. After one brief look, city police were convinced that Davis had been digging into his secret hoard . . . he was hopelessly intoxicated. So right now Elmer is in the city cells and when he comes to, he will have another charge to answer, because as he reposed [illegible] in clink, police charged him with being intoxicated. And where? At the police station!

Nelson Routly City Grocer Dies In Hospital

Retired from the grocery business 10 years, a business which was a part of him almost all his life, Nelson Routly, 76, of 452 Park St., died today in Civic Hospital. He was born in Brooklin, Ontario, son of the late Thomas Routly and Elizabeth Bond, but came to Peterborough at the age of 17 and began his apprenticeship in the grocery trade with a cousin, R. C. Braund.

Three other brothers, Will, Robert and Walton also started out in this manner and eventually set up their individual stores throughout the city. The only store now in existence is the grocery store at the corner of Brock and Park streets which was founded by Mr. Routly, some 55 years ago. After his retirement, another brother, Norman T., took over, and upon his death last year, management passed to the hands of Lloyd Routly, a son of NormanT. Routly. Nelson Routly was the last member of the original family of five boys, all of whom came from Brooklin and established themselves here.

ENJOYED BOWLING

Mr. Routly's one particular interest, other than his family and business, was bowling. In the summer, it was lawn-bowling, in the winter, indoor bowling. His daughter, Mrs. F. Thirnbeck can remember him bowling on the old green at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets, more than 30 years ago.

There are numerous prizes, trophies and tokens of his skill at this game about the home, won at tournaments throughout the country.

Mr. Routly is survived by his wife, the former Florence May. Elizabeth J. Ward, his first wife, died some years ago. Other surviving members of his family are daughters; Mrs. L. Gibson (Lilian) Mrs. F. Thirnbeck (Mildred), Mrs. F. Hickey (Muriel), Mrs. J. Dorrington (Helen), all of Peterborough, and Mrs. T. Croft, of Rochester, and one sister; Mrs. E. Lines.

Mr. Routly was a steady member of George United church, had been an elder for some years, and very active in earlier life, in church programs.

Details of the funeral arrangements, from the Kaye funeral home will be announced later.

Starts $26,000 Suit Result Of Accident

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Struck by a car but unable to determine who was responsible, Mrs. Ethel Brown of London has started a $26,000 suit against Stanley Gerber of Brantford and John Sward of Toronto.

Mrs. Brown claims she was struck while crossing a street in Brantford Feb. 22 last.

The plaintiff maintained she was unable to say what car struck her and said that Gerber and Sward blamed one another.

She is asking general damages of $25,000 and special damages of $1,369.

Dr. John R. Green Dies Served In Two World Wars

Dr. John R. Green, 528 Gilmour St., prominent in the dental profession of Peterborough for seventeen years, died suddenly at his home Monday evening. Illness of a heart condition advised his retirement from active practice in October 1951. Born in Peterborough 54 years ago, Dr. Green was a son of the late G. Walter Green and his wife, Sarah Carruthers. He served in the Canadian Army Dental Corps in both World Wars. He was a sergeant in the First World War, and in 1920 he was graduated from University of Toronto Faculty of Dentistry. After practicing two years in Norwood, he returned to Peterborough.

His office work was interrupted during the second war for two years as Major in the Dental Corps. During part of that time he was in charge of a mobile clinic of the Canadian Army Dental Corps, particularly at the military centres in Newfoundland. It was equipped for field work and its facilities included even the various types of anaesthetics.

He was the first dentist to work part-time inspecting children's teeth in the city's public schools.

Athletic ability was displayed by Dr. Green during his student years at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and in later years between the two wars.

It is recalled that he was both junior and senior champion in Collegiate athletics, starring in track and field events, played on the rugby team and in other school games.

He was twice champion of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, and was generally regarded as the best lefthand shot in the city. His rounds with Robert Abbott are still remembered by galleries that followed some of the title series in those years. Dr. Green was also keenly interested in curling, but had to give up that winter game about six years ago.

DR. JOHN A. GREEN

He was a member of St. Andrew's United Church, a member of Peterborough Lodge A.F. & A.M.; Corinthian Lodge R.A.M. and Moore Preceptory, Knights Templar.

Dr. Green leaves his wife, the former Jean Eagleson, two sons, John and Robert of Peterborough; his brothers, George and Fred of this city; and sisters, Mrs. J. Fanning also of Peterborough, and Mrs. D. K. Anderson of Toronto.

The funeral service will be conducted at the Comstock Funeral Home, Wednesday at 2 p.m. by Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's Church. Burial will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Thief Discovered In Store Escapes Capture

A burglar was held at bay by a Kingan Hardware employee Monday night but he fled when the employee, Bert Carter, left to phone police.

Carter had been passing the rear of the store about 11 o'clock on the way to his apartment when he noticed a crack of light beneath the store's back door. Investigating, he saw it had been forced.

Carter looked through the door and at that time, he later told police, saw the condensed breath of someone inside coming from behind a shelf.

WAITED FOR HELP

Realizing a burglar was inside he stayed there for 10 minutes waiting for someone to come along. No one did, however, so Carter left his post to phone the police from the nearby King George Hotel. In the meantime the burglar vanished.

Tracks discovered this morning by the door lead police to believe the would-be thief smashed the door down by ramming it with a car or truck.

Inside he had torn the plastic plate of a cash register in an attempt to open it. He failed however but there was no money in it anyway.

Detective Douglas Farthing is investigating.

GIVE FLOWER BOUQUET

Giving a colorful touch to the council chambers where Peterborough's 1954 council were sworn in Monday afternoon was a basket of flowers. They were presented by the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

Paul Irwin Going To Ajax To Sell Cars

Paul Irwin, general manager of Maur Products, Armour Road, for the past year, announced today that he's leaving for Ajax. There he'll take up residence to enter an automobile dealership with James Philcox, former vice-president and sales manager of Godson Motors.

Mr. Irwin is returning to a business in which he spent four years prior to moving to Maur Products, a Norwegian company which he helped set up in Canada. During the four-year period he was in a partnership with William Godson. That partnership was dissolved in October, 1952.

Since coming to Peterborough, Mr. Irwin has taken an active interest in civic affairs, especially in the Rotary Club of which he is president this year. He was a member of vocational committee of the Board of Education. He has also played a large role in the development of senior lacrosse in Peterborough, serving a term as president of the senior club when it was known as the Timbermen.

In Ajax Mr. Irwin and Mr. Philcox will be handling General Motors products.

PREFERRED PETERBOROUGH

In discussions of the proposal to divorce the united counties of Peterborough and Victoria in 1861 Emily township farmers announced that they would appeal to the government that they be attached to Peterborough, instead of Victoria. Separation was evidently authorized in the session of parliament at Quebec city that year. A note in the Examiner at that time reported that Lindsay had been designated county town of Victoria.

Overflow Crowd See Mayor, Aldermen Sworn Into Office

Norman G. Graham, the man who pulled the surprise of the year by defeating Hugh F. Waddell, was sworn in Monday afternoon as Peterborough's 38th mayor. Mr. Graham, who has a flooring business on George St., took the oath of office [illegible] new members of [illegible] ceremony in the council chamber. It was followed by the committee of the whole choosing the 1954 standing committee and then by a reception with refreshments for councillors and members of the public.

First, mayor-elect Graham took the oath, becoming the 1954 mayor when it was over, and then city clerk E. A. Outram swore in the newly-elected councillors Stanley A. McBride, Mrs. Alene E. Holt, John A. Dewart, Patrick J. Anglesey and W. Gordon Powell.

HISTORY MADE

Civic history was made as Mrs. Holt, a city housewife, took the oath of office. It was the first time that a woman has been a member of the city council, though there have been a number on the board of education.

The largest crowd in many years was present. It is estimated that 120 people were seated in the council chamber proper and in the mayor's reception room adjoining. Many others lined the corridor on the second floor unable to get in to see the annual ceremony.

The other five councillors—still with a year to go before being up for election—are Gordon H. Farquharson, Harold T. Rehill, William J. Beggs, Arthur B. Burrows and Rupert E. Knox (who took Mr. Graham's place when Mr. Graham resigned to run for mayor).

Gordon Monkman, donor of the mayor's chain of office, then officially presented the chain to the new mayor. After performing this ceremony, he said:

"It is a symbol of tradition, accomplishment and dignity. May it also help to cement the relations between all those responsible for the difficult task of administering the affairs of our great city."

MINISTER'S ADDRESS

An address to the council was delivered by the Rev. Maurice P. Poole, rector of All Saints' Anglican Church, and president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association.

"Society, if it is to function efficiently and in the best interests of the people, must have a set of officers upon whom rests the mantle of leadership," said Mr. Poole. "This is the essence of democracy: 'government of the people, for the people, by the people.' The roots of democracy are interwoven with man's relationship to God."

Mr. Poole chose this scriptural passage to illustrate his address: Exodus 18: 13-23.

In the early days of Israel's development, Moses' office might almost be described as a benevolent dictatorship. However, due to the increasing demands upon his time, it was found that he could not perform his duties either efficiently or well. It was suggested to him by his father-in-law that he ought to delegate authority to subordinate officers known as judges. Each judge had his responsibility to discharge. Thus democracy among the people of Israel began to evolve."

Moses chose "judges" who were to be dependent upon him for the general leadership of the people, said Mr. Poole. Four outstanding characteristics were demanded of these judges; they had to be: (1) capable (2) God fearing (3) honest, and (4) hating covetousness.

"These judges were chosen for a specific purpose: to bear the burden with Moses, that Moses might be able to endure and all the people go to their place in peace . . . The Kefauver investigations of recent years have shown that it is possible for unscrupulous men to gain positions of authority to the detriment of society as a whole. This could not take place if electors demanded in those who serve the qualities which have been outlined today.

"Who is our great Leader? Is it not the one of whom it is written: 'Wonderful Counsellor, the might God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace'."

EVENING MEETING

At 7.30 p.m., city council held their first 1954 meeting and the following bylaws were passed:

Borrow $2,274,317, the usual first bylaw passed each year, to provide money to carry on city business until such time as the tax money begins coming in."

Borrow money for unemployment relief purposes.

Arthur Lewis, P. Melville McCarrell and Dr. Stewart G. Cameron for the three city appointees on the Civic Hospital board of governors. Messrs. Lewis and McCarrell will be newcomers. Dr. Cameron was on before.

Re-appoint present aldermen on the board of health: Alderman John A. Dewart (1953 chairman), Alderman Patrick J. Anglesey, and Dr. Ralph Honey.

Library board member (three year term): Walter Dinesen (re-appointed).

Alderman Stanley A. McBride, welfare committee chairman, on the Elmira G. Foley committee for the distribution of charitable funds.

Accused Brothers Granted Bail After Protest

The two McCaskey brothers, Walter and Raymond, who were arrested late Wednesday night and charged with breaking and entering Canadian Tire and stealing a safe containing $442, were Monday allowed bail at $5,000 each by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC.

Walter McCaskey, 26, of 141 Aylmer St., and Raymond McCaskey, 27, of 218 Wolfe St., pleaded not guilty to the charge when they appeared in court Thursday. At that stage bail had been granted at $1,000, but they had been kept in custody because Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, was not satisfied with bail securities.

In the court Monday their counsel, W. J. Arthur Fair, vehemently applied for bail on accuseds' behalf, stating that it would be easily possible to raise $10,000 bail if necessary.

"It is the inherent right of every citizen to have bail unless he is a suspected murderer," argued Mr. Fair. "It just means that the Crown hasn't got an open and shut case. However, Mr. Bradshaw should not have the right to refuse bail as long as the securities are in order."

Crown Attorney Bradshaw assured the court that he had not refused bail without due cause. He also asked, in view of pending investigations, that bail be refused.

Mr. Fair: "I oppose this application that no bail be allowed."

Magistrate Philp agreed to allow bail at the sum mentioned and added that the question of sufficiency of bail securities was Mr. Bradshaw's problem and not his.

The McCaskey brothers are due to stand trial on January 11.

Three Oil Wells On Farm But Farmer Continues To Grow Grain, Raise Cattle

VIRDEN, Man. (CP) — Farmer Bill Skinner plans to continue growing grain and raising cattle on his oil-lubricated land.

On his 320 acres are three producing oil wells—among the first free-flowing wells in Manitoba—and a fourth is being drilled.

But Bill is a farmer first and by heritage. And besides, "I've got to do something to keep out of mischief."

[illegible] him fine [illegible] from the three wells are expected to give him an income in the neighborhood of $35 a day, as a start.

WILL STAY PUT

"There's no need to move," he says. "We're almost living in town now. It's only half a mile and our land runs right to the edge of Virden."

The farm has been his home since 1927, and passed into his hands after the death of his father. His mother is living and he has a family of his own, two boys and a girl. The girl is five and the boys seven and nine.

Bill was born in Virden. While he hasn't done much traveling—"I've always been tied down to the farm"—he isn't thinking of trips to California or Florida. Not yet, anyway.

Only roughly can it be estimated how much he's going to make through the mineral rights he has leased to an oil company.

Under terms of the lease he retained a 12½ per cent royalty in any production obtained. Before oil was discovered he sold half his share to a group of Virden business men, leaving him a 6¼ per cent interest.

The provincial conservation board has limited production from free-flowing wells to 70 barrels a day each, meaning for the time being a 6¼ per cent share in a daily flow of 210 barrels.

IT'S JUST BONUS

Promise of oil income "sure feels pretty good," says Bill. Not that the land didn't treat him right before. "I've always had a dollar in my pocket," he says. "I hope to have two now."

The skinner farm is in the Virden-Roselea oilfield, which now has 10 producing wells dotting the outskirts of this agricultural community 193 miles west of Winnipeg. The first oil was discovered last August.

All the wells are free-flowing, something new for Manitoba. Most of the province's oil wells are in the Daly field, nine miles southwest of Virden. They must be pumped.

Oh yes, has Mrs. Skinner any ideas on spending the oil money?

"She likely has," grinned her husband. "That's why I haven't asked her."

N.Z. Premier Regrets Cancellation Of Trip

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — Minister [illegible] pressed regret at learning that Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada won't be able to visit New Zealand as planned on his forthcoming world tour.

"I hope this is only a postponement and that we shall have the pleasure of a visit from him soon," Holland said.

The Canadian prime minister announced Monday that the Australia and New Zealand visits on his tour were cancelled because they would conflict with the royal tour in those countries. He hoped to make arrangements later for a special trip to the two dominions.

Accused Admits Indecent Assault Faces 7 Charges

Facing seven different charges which range from resisting a police officer in his duty to indecently assaulting a female, Grant Howard, 26, 144 London, pleaded guilty in the magistrate's court Monday to indecently assaulting a Peterborough woman in a room at the Empress Hotel on the evening of December 29, 1953.

The woman, who [illegible] down and wept while in the witness box, showed evidence of a severe facial beating she said she had received from Howard.

The woman said she had had two glasses of beer in the beverage room of the hotel in company with another woman, when Howard had been invited by her friend to share their table.

Later the witness, in company with her friend and her husband, had agreed to go to Howard's hotel room for a drink of rye. Witness had hurried up the stairs and had gone into Howard's room and taken off her coat. However, only Howard had joined her in the room.

She then described to the court the struggle that had taken place and the subsequent beating she had received. Later, when Howard left the room she had been able to escape and phone for help.

Howard, who spoke from the prisoner's box under visible emotional strain, attempted no defence and stated he deserved full penalty for the crime he had committed. He added that on that day he had consumed about 20 bottles of beer and some liquor and had been in a very intoxicated condition.

Magistrate W. R. Philp Q.C. convicted Howard and remanded him to appear for sentence on January 11.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Some evidence for the prosecution was also taken in the second of the seven charges against Howard. It concerned the assault to cause bodily harm of a 16-year-old Peterborough girl. In connection with this offense there is also a charge of carnal knowledge laid by police, which will not be heard until January 11.

The girl, who is now 17-years-old, also broke down and went while giving evidence. She said that Howard had come to her home at about 12.30 a.m. on October 25, 1953, stating that he wanted to talk to her about his young brother "who I had been going with".

At Howard's request they had gone to the rear of the house. Following some conversation he had forcibly taken her to the rear of the plot and thrown her down on the ground, injuring her arm. She alleged that he had then indecently assaulted her.

Under cross-examination by Howard the girl admitted to having gone to Howard's mother very late on a previous night and telling her she intended to marry Howard's young brother at 9 a.m. next morning. She denied, however, to having stated that she was to be sent away for being an incorrigible and that a marriage would have prevented such action.

Howard: "Didn't you say that someone was going to have to pay because you didn't marry my brother?"

Witness: "No, I did not".

Howard: "Were you not assaulted by some men before our encounter?"

Witness: "No".

Howard: "Would you call yourself a girl of good morals?"

Witness, after a pause: "Yes".

Howard then told the court that the alleged indecent assault had taken place not only by consent, but by invitation. He considered the girl was not telling the truth and stated he would call witnesses to prove it. He also intended to employ the services of a lawyer.

At this stage the hearing was adjourned until Januaury 11.

Farmers Union Gaining Strength In West Provinces

Claims of the western Farmers' Union to have 112,000 members in Saskatchewan and 32,000 in Manitoba and not counting Alberta, may come to the notice of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture at its annual meeting this week in Toronto.

J. L. Phelps, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, said in Saskatoon the other day that 50 per cent of the farmers in [illegible] would be signed up [illegible] in February. The 112,000 membership is on the basis of families, and its equivalent is 50,450 farm units.

The Phelps expectation of half the 112,000 farm units in Saskatchewan being signed up by next month has been quickened by the canvass toward the end of the year. The SFU needed at least half the 112,000 farm units in line so that the provincial government could be requested to authorize a plebiscite on applying the Rand formula to agriculture.

PERMANENT STAFF

This would involve the levying of a tax on land to provide finances for the SFU in its operations. They have now five or six officials working full time in organizational work.

The Ontario Federation this week may leave the western embarrassment to the Canadian Federation whose convention is to be held in London. Apparently the Federation has lost ground in the prairie provinces to the Phelps [illegible] more responsive to the [illegible] methods and attitudes of the Union in the three provinces. From all accounts their missionaries have made little impression in Ontario.

THIS THRIFTY HOMEMAKER mends broken china with household cement and clear tape, which she will remove when the cement hardens.

Careful Washing Will Preserve Life Of Fine China

By KAY SHERWOOD

Caring for fine old china is a pleasurable sort of worry for homemakers who prize the beauty of old-time imports, the nostalgia of grandma's hand-painted plates and the rarity of cups from a long-out-dated pattern.

You want to use your treasures occasionally for appreciative company. But there's always the fret that an accident is going to happen. Sensible precautions and first-aid repair work will help keep your fine china in the family.

One of the biggest hazards is careless washing. I nicked the spout of a pretty old pitcher just by forgetting to swing the overhead faucet out of the way.

Old china should be washed by hand promptly after use. Never let it stand "as is" overnight. On occasions when I use a large, fine, old platter or hand-painted salad plates, I take the time to line the sink with a folded dish towel to reduce the danger of chipping the edges.

It's not a bad idea to wash, rinse, dry and put away the especially valuable pieces before you tackle the rest of the dishes.

If you're washing bulky or odd-sized pieces, cushion the drainboard with folded towels. Avoid sudden changes of water temperature. Pulling a dish from tepid water and scalding it with boiling water can cause surface cracks.

Such a simple precaution as separating stacked plates with paper napkins, flannel or blotting paper guards against scratches on delicate decorations.

I never had any luck mending broken china until I tried one special procedure. It's still a tedious job, but the plates didn't come apart.

First, wash up the broken pieces in mild suds and let them dry a day in a warm room away from moisture. Next, assemble broken pieces and apply household cement to edges. Fit pieces together and press tightly, holding them in place for a minute. Don't slide or rub broken edges together.

Gently remove excess cement with razor blade. Plaster the mended line with clear tape, using it generously on both sides of mend. Cement and tape until all the pieces are joined and held rigidly.

Let this stand for a day or two until the cement is completely hardened. Then scrape off the tape with a razor blade.

Mended china will give years of service, but you shouldn't let it soak or remain damp for any length of time.

Scientists Give St. Lawrence Clean Bill Of Health In Survey

MONTREAL (CP) — Scientists probing the depths of the St. Lawrence have discounted fears that the manufacture of nylon stockings might be throttling life in Canada's greatest waterway.

A research team called in by Canadian Industries Limited to test whether the river is being polluted at the company's nylon plants at Maitland and Kingston, Ont., has given both company and river a clean bill of health.

"River conditions generally . . . tions," a member of the United States research team reported to CIL.

The report by the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia followed exhaustive laboratory tests in the United States and an on-the-spot survey in July and August, 1952, by a team of six specialists headed by Dr. Ruth Patrick of Philadelphia.

Company officials feared industrial waste dumped in the river might be poisoning the waters. The scientists were assigned to plot the effect of the waste.

They decided not to limit the survey to the more important types of river life, such as fish.

All living things in the river live in a close-knit community, the bigger depending on the smaller for food and oxygen. What strikes at one, therefore, ultimately might threaten the life of all.

Some of the smallest, such as algae and bacteria, break down the waste into substances forms of river life on, and cleanse the river by replenishing oxygen in the stream.

They are eaten by worms, snails and insects which in turn become food for fish and animals.

The scientists sought to discover if any links in this food chain were being damaged.

Taking up position below the plants' outfalls, they collected living organisms out of reach of the main sweep of the stream. They also tested the effect of waste solutions of different strength on algae, worms and fishes.

Anglican Primate Takes Office In Colorful Winnipeg Ceremony

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Most Rev. Walter Barfoot was enthroned Monday night as the sixth archbishop of the Anglican province of Rupert's Land, which spreads across northern Canada from Quebec to British Columbia.

The 60-year-old Anglican Primate of All Canada took the office of Metropolitan of Rupert's Land in a ceremony of brilliant colors and ancient symbolism at Winnipeg's St. John's cathedral.

Seven bishops, and provincial military and civic leaders were in the cathedral when the archbishop, accompanied by his chaplains, knocked on the cathedral door and begged admission—a custom that dates back to the mediaeval church.

In the ceremony that followed, Very Rev. J. O. Anderson, dean of Rupert's Land, presented him with a shepherd's crook symbolic of pastorship over the diocese of Rupert's Land, the Winnipeg and southern Manitoba area.

In a brief adress the archbishop said he was unhappy because "this service is called a service of enthronement and I am against monarchial episcopacy."

The church, he said, must be viewed as a family under the fatherhood of God and as Archbishop of Rupert's Land he would strive to achieve that objective.

The Archbishop was elected Metropolitan of Rupert's Land last fall followin death July 31 of the Most Rev. Louis Ralph Sherman. Formerly he had been Bishop of Edmonton. He now holds the dual title of Metropolitan of Rupert's Land and Primate of All Canada.

Train 40 Minutes Late Locked Out Of Station

MABLETHORPE, England (AP) The 7:10 evening train for London arrived 40 minutes late Monday because it got locked out of the station.

The gatekeeper had gone on a holiday leaving the gates at the road intersection locked across the tracks. This is normal in rural England where trains don't run often.

The engineer of the 7:10 backed up for a mile to another crossing station, borrowed a hacksaw, chugged forward again, then got out and cut the chains locking the gate.

Girl 7, Raped On Way From School

DETROIT (CP) — Police said Monday a seven-year-old girl was raped in an abandoned shed on a vacant lot while she was on her way home from school.

The girl told police her attacker got out of an "old, dirty" car and led her into the shed. After the attack, the girl ran screaming home to her mother who called police.

Society Leader Countess Dies On Train

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Countess Dorothy di Frasco, 66, intimate of film stars, famed international hostess and friend of the late gang leader Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, died of a heart attack Monday aboard a train bringing her here from Las Vegas, Nev.

The party-loving New York society woman was found dead in her roomette aboard the Union Pacific's streamlined Los Angeles Webb.

She wore a black sequinned evening gown and a full-length mink coat. Jewels on her person and in her luggage were estimated to be worth $250,000, including a $100,000 diamond necklace around her throat and a 15-karat diamond, a huge emerald and other rings on her fingers.

In Las Vegas since shortly after Christmas, she had attended gay holiday parties including one Sunday night with Marlene Dietrich and her daughter Maria Riva Webb and the Van Johnsons among others.

HAD PREMONITION

She boarded the train in Las Vegas at 3 a. m. with Webb and Tom Douglas, Beverely Hills interior decorator. The latter had invited her to be a house guest and quoted her as saying Sunday night:

"I feel it's an awful imposition to stay at your house. I think I'm going to die."

He said she had been eating nitro-glycerine pills "like popcorn"—six pills at a time—in the belief they would relieve the painful pressure of her heart.

Born in Watertown, N. Y., she inherited an estimated $12,000,000 from her later father, Bertrand Taylor. First married to Claude Graham White, pioneer British aviator, she divorced him in 1916. Her 1923 marriage to the late Italian nobleman, Count Carlo di Frasso, ended in divorce several years ago.

In years past her name was linked romantically with Gary Cooper, Cary Grant and Siegel. She was credited with introducing the gangster to the film colony but always said of him: "We're just friends."

Trains To Keep Old-Fashioned Whistle

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — The "Toot! Toot!" of old-fashioned train whistles will return to today's scene of jets and atom bombs. Public sentiment and safety have demanded it.

A spokesman for the New York Central system here said the railroad is installing whistles in place of horns on all its new diesel engines.

R. T. Martin, New York Central division passenger agent, said many letters were received expressing regret at the passing of the steam whistles.

To assure safety, a "souped-up" veersion of thee old steam whistle was developed. The fog-horn blast could not penetrate as far as the shrill old toot.

Wants McCarthy Budget Cut Down To Size

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem. La.) said today he will appeal to the United States senate to "cut down to size" the spending budget of Senator Joseph McCarthy's permanent investigations sub-committee.

Simultaneously, four newspapers reported that the Eisenhower administration has been urging the Wisconsin Republican to concentrate on investigating waste and corruption, leaving searches for subversives primarily to others—and that McCarthy is said to have agreed. Accounts to that effect were carried today by the New York Times and Herald Tribune and by the Baltimore Sun and Washington Post.

The Post quoted administration leaders it did not name as saying McCarthy had been urged to give "greater attention to legislative needs, directing his investigations more at waste, inefficiency and corruption, and leave most of the Red-hunting to the group created to do that, the Senate internal security sub-committee."

"McCarthy reportedly has indicated he will follow this line, but how far he will follow it is unknown. . . .

NONE MATERIALIZED

"At the beginning of the last session of Congress, it should be recalled, there was also a series of moves aimed at curbing McCarthy's activities. None of them materialized."

McCarthy was not immediately available for comment. He said last week that "digging out communism" is not the "primary purpose" of his sub-committee, and that it has been careful to check with the internal security sub-committee to avoid duplication.

"If in our investigations we find subversive elements in government which would prevent the government from operating properly, and no other congressional group is investigating, then we go ahead," he said.

McCarthy has said he will ask the Senate to increase, by an unspecified amount, his committee's $200,000 budget for 1953. Recently he announced he would broaden his activities to take up the handling of some federal tax cases.

SHOULD HAVE DRASTIC CUT

"As far as I'm concerned," Ellender said in an interview, "he should not even get anything like last year's spending authorization. I'm going to make another effort to have it cut down to size."

"The committee McCarthy heads is only one. . . ," he said. "There is too much duplication by all of them, but that is particularly true with the McCarthy committee and the Jenner committee."

That was a reference to the internal security sub-committee headed by Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.). McCarthy's group, a government operations sub-committee, has blanket authority to examine the spending of any federal money.

South Koreans, Reds Both Oppose PoW Head Count

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP) — Bitter enemies South Korea and the Communists, were allied today in all-out opposition to a "head count" of anti-Communist war prisoners by Indian troops, a procedure warmly endorsed by the United Nations command.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai of South Korea and North Korean Lt.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho used almost the same language in condemning the count, which Thursday sent 135 Chinese back to Red China.

But Pyun told a press conference today that his motives and those of the Communists "are as far apart as two stars."

The Indian command made what it called a routine count of 4,334 Chinese prisoners Thursday. While the count was under way, 135 asked to be returned to Communist China.

The Communists promptly branded the count illegal, a word used today by Pyun.

CRIMINAL ACTION

"It is illegal and arbitrary—it is a criminal action," he said. "Our government has come to the stage where we cannot be quiet."

The foreign minister branded the Indian guards as "armed Communist explainers" who are forcing the prisoners to return to the Communists.

Pyun said "it is outside my province" when asked what action South Korea might take if the count were continued.

One high South Korean official earlier said the government was prepared to use force if necessary to halt a further count. However, most UN officials called the threat merely another move in South Korea's war of nerves against the Indian command.

HAVE FREE CHOICE

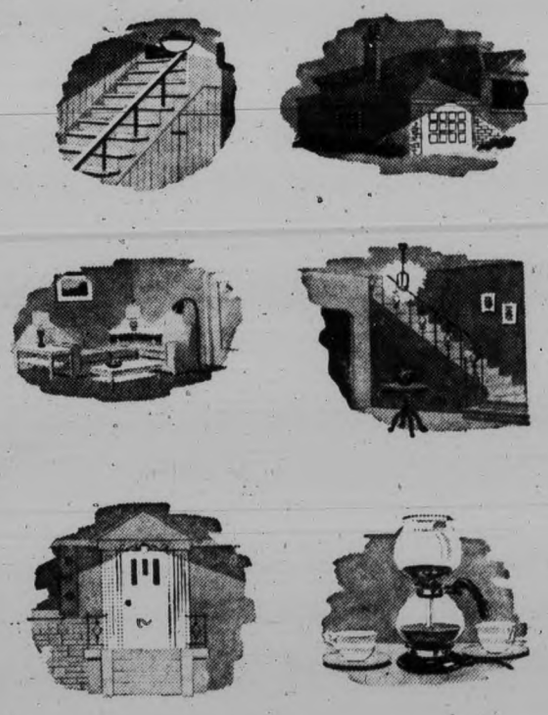
The Indians said the count was made to check its prisoner rosters. The UN command gave the count its full blessing, saying it is entirely in accordance with the UN principle of free choice for prisoners if any of them ask repatriation as a by-product.

Observers here said the Reds appear to feel that any de facto screening, even though some prisoners ask to return, undercuts their contention that PoW interviews which ended Dec. 23 should be extended. The Reds also contend that all prisoners should be kept in neutral custody until a peace conference decides their fate.

Pyun said "the Communists blamed the Indians because they think the Indian troops are not quite Communists, but we feel the Indians are actually dangerous pro-Communists."

There was no official reaction from the Indian command but some officers said privately that Pyun "is looking for a sensational headline."

Imagine switching indoor and outdoor lights "on and off" from your bedside



REMOTE CONTROL WIRING SYSTEM

provides master switches to control lights and appliances from several convenient locations

Few features of your home will create so much interest among friends as Remote Control Wiring . . . a new home-wiring system that allows you to control lights and appliances from conveniently-located master switches. This step-saving system was developed and perfected by G.E. to add to the comfort, convenience and safety of your every-day living.

A master switch at the bedside can not only turn off a forgotten cellar light, it can turn on downstairs, garage and outside lights, if you think you hear prowlers even turn on your coffee in the morning. When you arrive home at night, another master switch at the front door or garage can light a pathway through the house. These master switches can be situated wherever you may need them.

Although this system is an outstanding improvement in home-wiring, it costs surprisingly little. A group of well-known Canadian architects have specified G-E Remote Control Wiring for the modern Trend Houses being built across Canada Make certain your architect, contractor or builder includes this convenient wiring system in the plans for your new home, or discover from your electrical contractor how easy it is to install it in your present home.

Remote Control Wiring is another outstanding example of Canadian General Electric's continuing contributions to a better way of living.

Inadequate wiring is a bottleneck to better living . . .

Even in a new home you may be faced with inadequate wiring with too few circuits and outlets to plug in lamps and appliances where they are most wanted. By arranging with your architect, builder or contractor to install adequate wiring at the time of building, you make low cost provision for the work-saving appliances you own or plan to own and greatly increase the re-sale value of your home It costs much less to provide adequate outlets when building than to add them later

Canadian General Electric has pioneered and improved wiring materials to bring you the full benefits of electrical living through a safe and convenient wiring system. ONE OF THE BIGGEST challenges to the mother of a six-year-old boy is training the youngster in good grooming habits. He is fired with energy for constant fun-making, and, besides, he wants nothing to do with sissy stuff. This mother (left) is interesting her son in the care of his shoes. She is showing hi mhow to use a new one-step polish that comes with its own applicator. Then (centre) the youngster takes over the job himself. The work goes so easily and the shining results are so pleasing that this task is well suited to children in this age group. Now (right) mother stops to admire her son's achievement before they leave on a shopping tour. She has awakened an interest in his grooming and, incidentally, relieved herself of one little chore. Gradually she will encourage him to assume responsibility for other steps, such as nail and hair care.

Caring For Shoes Is Boy's Grooming Starter

By ALCIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Training youngsters in good grooming habits is quite a challenge. You can generally appeal to the vanity of little girls in coaxing care of curls; from there, it is a gradual process. But boys are a bit more difficult to handle.

At about the time they are ready for such training, they also have become aware of things masculine and feminine. And, of course, they want nothing to do with the latter.

Unless fostered with considerable tact, any care in grooming appears as sissy stuff to them. It often seems that the dirtier they are, the happier they are.

The best starting point for these little lads probably is care of their shoes. It offers a bit of challenge and the work itself can be fun; therefore it is least likely to carry the sissy stigma. Furthermore, the finished job rewards with that all-important sense of accomplishment which youngsters in this age group seek.

The old-fashioned method of shoe polishing was a tiresome chore that nobody liked. It was messy; there were too many steps, and one really had to work to get a good shine.

However, considerable progress has been made in recent years. One firm, for instance, recently brought out a one-step polish that is said to be no trouble at all for children to use.

Your second-grader should find it fun to see the rapid improvement he can make with one stroke. He can get that sense of accomplishment without too much effort since the dauber which is included in the package does not demand a deft hand. Neither is it messy to handle.

The polish will also condition leather, prolonging the life of the shoe, this firm says. Every application is said to restore damaged leather so that it appears like new.

Once you have your child beaming with pride at his work, encourage further development toward careful grooming.

After congratulating your son on his accomplishment, you might remark that you will take care to prepare his other clothing as well as he has groomed his shoes.

Then, outlining the things you will have to do to keep up with the pace he has set, suggest he might be interested in helping you with some of them.

Your next step might be to introduce him to keeping his closet and bureau drawers orderly.

A little later, you can go on to training him in other good grooming habits, such as care of his hair and nails.

Regular Weight Check Is Wise For Mature Woman

BY ALICIA HART

The tape measure and scale, prosaic things that they are, should be among the mature woman's most prized beauty aids.

For the older woman especially, the safest and easiest way to combat excess weight is to prevent its appearance.

Unless a check is kept, the pounds and inches will sneak up on one who has passed 40. And before she knows how it is happening, it already has happened; and another woman has been added to the list of the overweight.

The tape measure and scale, then, should be used as daily guides. It is not difficult to get rid of a few extra pounds and an inch here and there. A rigid reducing regimen, on the other hand, is sometimes too much of a strain on the heart. It certainly taxes one's will power.

Keeping your daily check with measure and scale, you will never have to do more than occasionally cut down on starches and sugars and add a few blocks to your daily walk.

And, because you are holding your weight to the proper mark, you will never have to worry about the flabbiness that many women suffer as a result of heavy reducing.

Kenya Hostess Must Be Handy With Sling-Shot

MONTREAL (CP) — Attention girls: There may be an opening for you in far-away Kenya if you have a friendly feeling toward elephants and if you are handy with a sling-shot.

The qualifications were among those laid down in an advertisement placed in Kenya newspapers by the Treetops Hotel, famous jungle resort where the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh stopped while touring Africa.

The advertisement, sent here by a former Montrealer, set out these requirements for the hostess sought by the hotel:

"Qualifications—similar to those required of an air hostess (including tact and personality). In addition, there must be a friendly feeling towards elephant, rhino, buffalo and other game; ability to climb a tree quickly if necessary; sufficient skill with a catapult to hit at 10 yards monkeys trying to enter treetops for tea; general knowledge of game; fluent Swahili."

MRS. G. C. STEVENS

Each officer was instructed on her specific duties in the installation ceremony and gave her pledge to carry them out as ordered. The vice-presidents are Mrs. W. Downer and Mrs. J. Buchan, the secretary Mrs. A. Mason, the treasurer Mrs. R. Ritchie and the standard-bearer is Mrs. J. Gray.

Mrs. Gray was most highly commended for the manner in which she has carried out her duties as standard-bearer in past years, and was asked by provincial president Mrs. D. Richardson if she will act at the convention in Toronto next September.

Presentation of a pair of white leather gauntlets to be worn when carrying the flag was made to Mrs. Gray, on behalf of her auxiliary, and when accepting them she advised that she would be happy to attend the convention as standard-bearer.

Replying to a toast to the provincial command, Mrs. Richardson advised that there are now 300 auxiliaries in Ontario, three having been formed since the convention at Ottawa in October. She said one auxiliary is entirely composed of Polish new Canadians who desired to work for the returned men. The toast was proposed by Melville Hamblin of Norwood, zone commander of F-5, who commented on the fine calibre of the people taking leading positions in the Canadian Legion work.

Two other men were head table guests: the Rev. R. E. Larke of Springville, padre of Legion, who said the grace, and also proposed the toast to the Ladies' Auxiliary to which president Mrs. Stevens replied; and Louis Durkin, president of branch 52, who replied to a toast to his branch, proposed by zone commander of the Ladies' Auxiliaries, Mrs. A. Parrington.

Eight members of the auxiliary have been named as executive committee to give advice to the officers. They are Mrs. Parrington, Mrs. C. S. Windsor, Mrs. A. Pilling, Mrs. A. Devall, Mrs. T. Moore, Mrs. A. Glenn, Mrs. A. Gynane and Mrs. A. Manley. They were also pledged to service for the year in the installation ceremony.

The bounteous turkey dinner enjoyed by 60 auxiliary members and their guests was served in the Orange Hall by members of the women's lodge. Tables were centred with stripes of red, white and blue and decorated with pastel colored powder box favors and the head table featured a tableau bringing in men of the army, navy and air force and the nursing sister on a base in which the maple leaf and the flag gave color.

After bringing forward of the flag to open the business of the meeting, Mrs. Stevens held a minute of silence in which to remember those who had given their lives in the ... country.

Chapter News

OTONABEE CHAPTER

Regent Mrs. Frank Merrett presided for the meeting of Otonabee Chapter, IODE, held Monday afternoon in the YWCA Green Room.

Conveners reports included that of Mrs. B. McLean on members who are sick and the cards and flowers sent the past month, also the Christmas cheer to sick and shut-in members at Christmas time. Mrs. R. Pollard, services at home and abroad convener, reported on the sewing and asked for a good attendance at the first sewing meeting which is to be at her home, 582 Bonaccord Street on January 13th.

Letters of thanks were received from recipients of food boxes sent overseas recently.

A slate of officers for 1954 was accepted and the nominating committee was thanked for their services. Installation is to take place in February.

Donations were voted to various IODE funds and projects.

Mrs. A. R. McWilliams, educational secretary, gave a short report on Miss Gnanaselvan David of India, a nurse taking post graduate work at the University of Toronto under sponsorship of the IODE Commonwealth and Empire committee.

Tea was served from the YWCA cafeteria and cookies were supplied by members of the social committee.

Helpful Hints

If you have a warm basement, why not place a sandbox there so the kids can enjoy a touch of summer fun even in the winter. Clean sand can be obtained from a tree or plant nursery.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Turkey Soup A Real Supper If Plenty Tossed In

Very primly and properly orthodox cookbooks instruct us that when making turkey soup we must simmer the bones stripped of meat in water to cover for a certain length of time then strain, chill, skim off fat—and presumably you've had it.

Now a dainty watered-down brew like that isn't for the likes of me.

When we have turkey soup we more eat it than drink it for it is so thick with good stuff you could scoop it up on your main-sized soup spoon rather than sip it like a dyspeptic from a bouillon cup.

Turkey soup has to provide a whole main course in this house, so cookbooks be blowed and to the contrary here's how to make it, Emem style.

I broke up the carcass leftover from the party Marianne and Pete had on New Year's Eve and put it in the freezer compartment for future reference. When the future arrived (Sunday Janary 3) I tossed it—minus skin—into the preserving kettle and covered with water—about 2 quarts—and went to work on the additions. This, I might add, constituted an icebox cleanup.

First I chopped 1 large carrot into ¼-inch cubes and added them. Then 3 outer stalks of celery likewise chopped small, then 1 small onion. I put what skin remained through finest knife of food chopper and in they all went. Then 2 tablespoons each long grain rice and macaroni alphabets, 1 tablespoon pot barley, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. I covered it and let it simmer about 2 hours. By that time it had a very interesting appearance and looked like heman soup. I poured the whole business through the biggest sieve and cooled the contents enough to get my hands in and picked out every bone and bit of gristle.

Then I returned all the lovely thick stuff, which contained plenty of turkey meat, to the broth. I added 1 more teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon MSG (very important I think—but you may know this ingredient as Accent). My one extravagance was finely chopped hothouse tomato. I brought it to a boil and added ½ cup finely chopped parsley. These last two additions gave a holiday red and green appearance.

At this point everybody gathered for a preliminary round of tasting. Of course Pete had to get his oar in and wanted more salt; Marianne said it needed more body so I added another tablespoon macaroni alphabets. (Privately I think this is a carryover from her childhood when she used to pick out the letters and spell out her name with them on her bread and butter plate.)

By that time everybody was so hungry they couldn't wait for supper any longer—particularly since I had just taken hot Parkerhouse rolls from the oven, and the lovely fragrance was wafting all through the house.

So I ladled the soup into the new "petite marmite" bowls Barb had given us for Christmas and we laid to. What slurping! What ohs and ahs! You would think they were a bunch of Korean orphans. I wistfully wished there had been some little orphans I could have filled up, for there's soup leftover and the family has gone back to school and you-know-who's left to eat turkey soup all week.

DOROTHY DIX

Thrice-Wed Man Wants To Return To First Mate

DEAR MISS DIX: I'll condense my story into as few words as possible, and hope you can make something out of it. I was married 20 years ago to a man who didn't work before or after our marriage. He drank, forged checques in his father's name, and I worked until our baby was born. Then he left us. I divorced him and continued working, brought up our daughter, who is now married. My ex-husband remarried, was divorced, remarried, and has been living in another city. Now, he is seeking a divorce again, is working steadily, and wants to come back to me, [illegible] a few [illegible] promises for the future. His family is anxious for us to be together again; mine is very much opposed to it. My daughter says the decision is up to me. I have a good job, a nice home and car. My former husband has visited me several times, he was pleasant and said he wanted to make amends for all the wrong he did us. Do you think I should continue to date him now (before his divorce), and take him back later?

Joyce W.

ANSWER: Only the Delphian Oracle could predict the workings of a man's mind, but the intentions of your ex-mate are so palpably evident that I don't see how anyone could be fooled by him, unless, of course, the desire to be hoodwinked is present. Here you have a man who has shirked all responsibility during his lifetime, which I judge would be about 45 years. He's done as he liked, has had his good times and, finally, has come to the end of his rope.

Perhaps he no longer appeals to women, perhaps people have just gotten wise to him and aren't handing out any more. At any rate, he learns that a cozy home is available with a wife he deserted, that the necessity of working no longer will plague him, and all this is his at the cost of a few [illegible] words, empty [illegible] smoothly. Wouldn't he be a fool to let it all go by without trying to get on the gravy train? His success is, apparently, easier than even he dared dream. Such is the gullibility of some women. If only people would put such faith in God.

Your letter conveys every intention of taking your ex-husband back, and I hope it doesn't work out too badly for you. A comfortable home, absence of worry over financial matters, may keep him from straying again. If his company is recompense enough for supporting and worrying over him, I wish you luck.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a very close friend and over a period of time she has repeatedly told me disparaging things that other people have said about me. She says it's because she feels it her duty to tell me. I hate to believe these tales, but sometimes they ar so convincing it's impossible to shrug them off.

B. V.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: One of the outstanding blots on the face of this good earth of ours is the friend who does distasteful things "for your own good." She and her ilk should be shunned like the plague, silenced, forcibly if necessary, when-[illegible] false words. [illegible] encouragement, by listening and acting upon their scurrilous gossip, are almost as bad. The lady (?) most certainly is not a friend.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 21, and ofr the past year have been dating a married man whose wife is an invalid. I know this isn't right, but I sincerely love him. His wife would consent to a divorce, but I hesitate to have him go through with one. My conscience says a divorce would be wrong; my heart tells me to urge him to get one.

Bette P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Better a broken heart than a nagging conscience. Desertion of a sick wife certainly would be no foundation for a happy marriage. Remember, you will rate the same treatment from the man that he's given his wife.

6—In Memoriam

CORBIN—In loving memory of our dear brother Henry who passed away January 5 1953.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they left behind.
—Ever remembered by sisters, Irene and Georgina and families.

CORBIN—In loving memory of a dear brother Henry Corbin who passed away one year ago today.
One year today, our brother was called [illegible]
And taken when God knew best
We miss him so very much
His presence oft seems nigh
But we all hope in Heaven to meet
Where no one says good by.
—Ever remembered by brother Louie and family, sisters, Annie, Della and their families.

STEWART—In loving memory of William H. Stewart, who passed away Jan. 5, 1945.
In the bloom of his life God called him.
In the pride of his manhood days;
Those that knew him loved him,
All spoke of him with praise.
Smiling and happy, always content.
Loved, respected, wherever he went.
Thoughtful of others, gentle and kind;
A beautiful memory he left behind.
—Ever remembered by Roy, Raymond and families.

SIMMONS—In loving memory of Mrs. Doris Simmons who passed away January 5th, 1953.
You are not forgotten, sister
Nor ever will you be,
As long as life and memory lasts.
We will remember thee.
—Ever remembered by Roy, Joyce, Jim and Dale.

STOREY—In loving memory of Fred Storey, who passed away January 9, 1951.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak; when all other things decay.
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

Preliminary Hearing In Slaying Adjourned

MISSION, B. C. (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Alberta Brown, charged with murder in the rifle-slaying of a man who was "pestering" her, was adjourned Monday until Friday.

William Zahar died Dec. 12 with a .22-calibre bullet in his abdomen, fired through the door of the Browns' tarpaper-and-slat house. Zahar was known here as Johnston.

Chief Sam Service, head of this Fraser valley town's police force, testified that Mrs. Brown, 23, told him she warned Zahar through the closed door:

"You better go away or say your prayers."

Orillia Unemployment Becoming Serious

ORILLIA (CP) — Unemployment is serious proportions, Mayor John MacIsaac said Monday night at the inaugural meeting of the 1954 town council.

He said there are more than 1,100 persons out of work in this town of 12,000, the highest unemployment figure in many years.

He suggested a special industrial committee be set up to study methods of assisting local industry and attracting new industry.

Rhodes Scholarships Announced For 11

TORONTO (CP) — The Rhodes scholarship trust today released the list of 11 Canadian Rhodes scholars-elect for 1954, who will be going to Oxford late in September.

The scholarships, awarded on the basis of academic record, athletic ability and leadership, entitle the winners to two years of study at any college at Oxford. They are valued at £500 a year.

The scholars-elect, subject to confirmation by the Rhodes Trustees include R. A. Bull, Toronto and I. A. Stewart, Kingston.

Duke Of Roxburghe Weds Second Time

LONDON (AP) — The wealthy Duke of Roxburghe, divorced by his duchess on the grounds of adultery only three weeks ago, was married today to Mrs. Elizabeth Church, who was named as co-respondent in the divorce.

Mrs. Church herself had been divorced by her husband, an army colonel, on grounds of misconduct with the duke.

The duke's first marriage, to the beautiful 20-year-old daughter of the Marquess of Crewe, was the most glittering society event of 1935. The late Queen Mary, the bride's godmother, was among the wedding guests who thronged Westminster Abbey.

The 40-year-old peer is the ninth holder of one of Scotland's oldest noble titles.

Church Editors Regret Banning Of Film

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Church Press Association, embracing editors of various Protestant communions, said today it profoundly regrets the action of the Quebec board of censors in banning showings of the religious film "Martin Luther" in Quebec Province.

The least the Quebec censors ... association said in ... be to permit the showing of this film in churches and schools which desire to use it."

Copies of the statement were sent to Prime Minister St. Laurent, leaders of the Opposition parties in the House of Commons, to Premier Duplessis and the Liberal leader in the Quebec legislature and to Alexis Gagnon, chairman of the Quebec board of censors.

The statement said it was felt the ban did a "grave injustice" to 400,000 persons of Protestant faith in the Montreal area alone in "depriving them of the opportunity of witnessing this magnificent film depicting one of the great heros of their faith—a man who notably changed the course of history."

Beyond allowing showings in churches and schools, the Quebec board should permit showings to those not of Protestant tradition who desire to see it "in order that they may understand better some of the reasons which created the Protestant reformation and which still make it a vital force in the world.

"There can be no national unity in Canada without the reciprocal and mutual will to understand one another."

WIDESPREAD FEAR

The statement noted that in recent years non-Roman Catholics have been asked to co-operate with Roman Catholics to eliminate certain types of books, films and plays which might have a demoralizing effect on the people.

There already is a "widespread fear," the statement said, that any support of such types of censorship might prove "the thin edge of the wedge in an effort to eliminate any criticism whatever of the doctrine or moral theology taught by the Roman Catholic Church."

"It is quite futile to seek to insulate people in our changing world from all such forms of criticism as the action of the Quebec board of censors will make all non-Roman Catholic communions extremely wary of any or all forms of co-operation in the field of censorship."

The statement was signed by John McNab, chairman of the association and editor of the Presbyterian Record and Harold U. Trinier, secretary of the association and editor of the Canadian Baptist.

Ex-Naval Chief Dies At Fire

WINBORNE, England (AP) — Admiral Sir Guy Charles Cecil Royle, 68, former chief of the British naval air services, died near his home here Monday while helping firemen extinguish a blaze. He collapsed, apparently from overexertion.

Admiral Royle, who retired in 1946, became a top figure at the admiralty after commanding numerous fighting ships.

Two South Koreans Tried For Betrayal

SEOUL (AP) — Two South Koreans went on trial today on charges of betraying Gen. William F. Dean into three years of Red captivity.

Today's session lasted only five minutes, during which the court was advised that the American general had written a letter describing how he was captured in August, 1950.

Contents of Dean's letter were not disclosed. Earlier he had written South Korean President Syngman Rhee asking clemency for the two defendants—Han Too Kyoo and Choe Chong Bong—as a "personal favor."

The two Koreans are accused of accepting $5 each from the Reds as a reward for the general's capture.

Kinmount Man Fined On Impaired Charge

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Kinmount man, Harold Hopkins, was convicted in Lindsay police court Monday of driving while his ability was impaired, and fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Gee.

The accused was originally charged with driving while intoxicated but pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Col. R. I. Moore.

The charge arose out of an incident December 29th. Constable Bill Mosely told the court that Hopkins truck had rounded a corner at Kent and Cambridge streets in Lindsay while the officer was on traffic duty at that point. The vehicle had then swung into the laneway at the Lindsay bus terminal. The officer stated that two women waiting for a bus at that point had been forced to jump out of the way of the truck.

Hopkins, stated the officer, had not been able to stand when removed from the truck.

Magistrate Gee also dismissed three careless driving cases by town drivers. One was on a technicality in the laying of the charge.

Men Must Live As Examples To Children

Business is only one part of our life, actually consuming just eight or nine hours each day. It is what w do with the remaining hours that really counts and therefore we must consider a profit and loss statement on all departments of life.

The Rev. Harvey Scuse, rector of St. George's Anglican church, so addressed members of the Peterborough Lion's Club at their initial 1954 meeting held at the Kawartha Club, Monday night.

"Are you glad to go home?" asked Mr. Scuse. The basic principles for success here are selflessness, the treating of the wife as a companion, and the setting of fine example to the children, he said. Children learn by watching, and consequently the home is the greatest moulding force in the development of the child's character.

Parents must accept the reality that marriage is a technique that must be learned and worked at.

Recreation is also a necessary factor in anyone's success. It is something that one must take a sincere interest in. No one gets more than he contributes.

HIGHER POWER

To stand the pressure of life, one must always realize that there is a higher power than our brain can comprehend. We must seek that higher order and have faith in it.

In summarizing, Mr. Scuse advocated a sincere business approach in assessing one's life. Make sure to look in all the departments, instead of just the dollar one. In making New Year's resolutions plan changes by discontinuing the unfavourable features and pushing the others.

Hope For German Unity In Big 4 Meeting

BERLIN (AP) — The coming Big Four meeting in Berlin contains "hope for German unity," Henry Parkman, assistant United States high commissioner to Germany, asserted today.

Parkman arrived this morning to take over his duties as chief of the U.S. element here, travelling by train from Bonn with high commissioner James B. Conant.

Dr. Conant indicated any details of the parley which may turn up here will be handled by Parkman. Conant is returning to Bonn tonight.

December Contracts Amount To $3,559,858

OTTAWA (CP) — Contracts amounting to $3,559,858 were awarded during December, the public works department announced today.

The figure brought the total value of contracts for the last quarters of 1953 to $12,102,042, an increase from $9,241,688 for the corresponding period in 1952. Contracts in December, 1952, amounted to $2,547,640.

December contracts included:

Marathon, Ont., public building, John E. Dagsvik, Port Arthur, $136,500;

Tweed, Ont., public buildings, Lawrence Contracting Co., Ltd., Belleville, Ont., $95,305;

Saugeen River, Ont., pier reconstruction, Intrusive Prepakt Ltd., Toronto, $105,628;

Midland, Ont., dredging, Consolidated Dredging Ltd., Toronto, $147,518.

Opera Star Sang Hymns On Cobourg Street

LONDON (CP)—The story of how a famous opera star sang hymns on the sidewalks of Cobourg, Ont., is told today by the Salvation Army.

The incident occurred, says an officer of the evangelistic order, writing in the Salvation Army Year Book published today, when a young captain and his wife held an out-door meeting before a fashionable hotel in the Ontario town. They were joined by a hotel guest who asked if he might sing with them.

The stranger's rich voice quickly brought a crowd to the scene. It was only after he had left that the young couple learned their guest soloist had been the late Enrico Caruso, world renowned Italian tenor.

Lindsay Mayor, Council Assume Office

LINDSAY (ENS)—A capacity crowd filled the Lindsay Town Hall auditorium Monday night for the inaugural of the 1954 council and Mayor A. E. Hick. It was the first time in some years that the inauguration ceremonies had been held at night.

The councillors elect repeated the Athenian Pledge, an ancient ... vow of public ... Mayor-elect Hick made his inaugural address.

He pledged "progress with economy" during 1954, and complimented fellow councillors on their election.

Included in the points he mentioned were the suggested annexation and widening of the town's boundaries, improved lighting, widening of downtown streets, new sidewalks, beautification of the town's park lands, improvement of the four main approaches to the town, consideration of the plan for a new hospital, an enlarged industrial committee, increased work in tourist publicity, and further improvement of conditions at the community centre arena.

The new mayor was followed by members of his council—Reeve Richard Butler, Deputy-Reeve W. D. Stevens, and Alderman J. A. Harrigan, W. S. W. Breese, B. C. Maidens, J. A. McQuarrie, Russell Lamb and W. McCrae.

FORMER MAYORS

Former mayors of the town then followed, including W. G. Graham, mayor in 1924, 1925, Col. R. I. Moore, who was mayor in 1928, 1929, 1940 and 1949 and ... ayor Charles Lamb who with a record of 12 years as mayor holds the record for the town. Premier L. M. Frost, congratulated the new council and he was followed by C. W. Hodgson MP for Victoria and Haliburton.

Mayor Hick introduced the various department and commission heads of the town, all of whom remarked on the year past and viewed the prospects for the coming year under the new council.

Members of the Victoria County Council, headed by Warden Vincent Fee, were also present, and Warden Fee brought his congratulations to the new Lindsay council, to end the evening program.

The new aldermen, were named to head the various committees of council during 1954. Ald Breese was placed in charge of the Board of Works, the town's largest spending group. Deputy-Reeve Stevens retained his post as lighting chairman. Reeve Butler was again appointed head of the police committee. Ald Harrigan was appointed to head town property. Ald Maidens re-appointed to town finance, Ald McQuarrie to the recreation committee, Ald Lamb to the tourist chairmanship and Ald McCrae to welfare.

Another Archbishop Now Held By Reds

VIENNA (AP)—Another Roman Catholic prelate has been added to the growing list of priests who have incurred the wrath of Poland's Communist government.

Diplomatic sources here reported Monday that archbishop Eugen Baziak of Krakow, who was last heard of nearly a year ago, is being held in confinement in Tarnow, in southern Poland.

Archbishop Baziak dropped from sight shortly after a Polish military court sentenced a number of Roman Catholic priests to death or long prison terms at Krakow almost a year ago. The archbishop had been accused in the Polish press of tolerating "anti-state activities" of his associates.

3 People Killed Youth Fined $100

WELLAND (CP)—Thomas Hridar, St. Catharines youth, was fined $100 Tuesday on a dangerous driving charge laid against him last October after a two-car crash which cost the lives of three persons.

Magistrate T. George Street also prohibited Hridar from driving for two years.

Crown attorney T. F. Forestell described the youth's driving as "the most reckless type." He said he would have laid a manslaughter charge if it were not for the fact that he had little faith in Welland county juries.

Second Nomination Nets 3 Candidates

HASTINGS (ENS).— Hastings held its second nomination meeting Monday night for three public school trustees. At the first nomination meeting held a week ago the persons nominated failed to stand.

Three candidates have signified their intention to qualify as trustees. Fred Scriver and J. Snowell, former trustees, and a newcomer, James Essex, have been nominated for two-year terms.

The remaining members with a year to go are chairman C. M. Baker, H. Carl Oliver, and Steve Perchaluk.

Popular Since Early 1900's 'Mature' Actors Keep Going

By GLENNE CURRIE

LONDON (Reuters)—The British theatre wouldn't be the same if actresses retired at 60. Fortunately few of them do.

A small, ever-popular group of "mature" actresses—in their 60s and 70s—is responsible for the success of at least five hit shows now playing in London.

At the head at the moment is Gladys Cooper, 65, a better actress now than when she was the toast of the town 40 years ago and, some old-timers say, just ... Miss Cooper generally is regarded as personally responsible for the success of Wynyard Browne's "A Question of Fact." She does not appear till half-way through the second act, but then carries the play triumphantly, with co-stars Pamela Brown and Paul Schofield tagging along.

"I've often thought of retiring," she admits. "But another play comes along that I like and so I go on."

DAME SYBIL TRIUMPHS

Dame Sybil Thorndike, on the other hand, has "never thought of retiring."

Thousands of theatre-goers are flocking to see Dame Sybil in N.C. Hunter's "A Day at Thoea," in which she stars with her husband, Sir Lewis Casson, and with Sir John Gielgud and Sir Ralph Richardson.

Her old rival, Dame Edith Evans, 65, is not in a play at the moment "This I Believe," and recently relaxed with a speaking role in a production of Honneger's symphonic psalm, "King David."

The muddle - headed, stylish mother in T. S. Eliot's "The Confidential Clerk" is Isabel Jeans, 62.

French-born Yvonne Arnaud, 61, long a London favorite in light comedy, is wonderful in "Dear Charles."

The part of Mrs. Higgins in the successful John Clements - Kay Hammond production of "Pygmalion" is taking by 64-year-old Athene Seyler.

One of the oldest actresses is Helen Haye, 79, who was the brightest thing about the play, "Anastasia," before it closed recently. She also appears regularly on television.

Australian-born comedienne Cicely Courtneidge, 60, recently finished the run of her revue "Gay's the Word" and now is raking in money from her best-selling autobiography, "Cicely."

Old favorite Marie Lohr, 63, has just closed a revival of "Aren't ... ford at ... year returned to the stage in Gielgud's brilliant production of "The Way of the World."

Possibly the most fantastic of her generation is Dorothy Ward, 63, "The British mistinguette," still singing and dancing in tights in pantomine, this year as Dick Whittington at nearby Kingston.

Pathan Leader To Be Freed By Pakistan

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (Reuters) Pakistan today announced it is freeing Pathan leader Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, who became known as the "Frontier Gandhi" during India's long struggle for freedom.

The six-foot four-inch Hindu leader, who always wore a long, flowing shirt and shaved his head, adopted the Gandhian method of non-violence in waging his freedom fight among the fierce Pathan tribesmen of the Northwest Frontier province. He was imprisoned in June, 1948, for anti-Pakistan activities in this Moslem state.

44 OTHERS FREED, TOO

Sardar Abdur Rashid, Pakistan's chief minister of the Northwest Frontier, announced that Ghaffar Khan and 44 other political prisoners in the province are to be released immediately and their properties restored to them.

Prime Minister Nehru of India twice appealed to Pakistan to free the Pathan leader, calling his imprisonment "a thorn in my heart." Nehru denied that Ghaffar Khan had conspired with Indian nationalists against the Pakistani government.

Rashid said restrictions are being removed from the movements of other persons where they had been applied for political reasons.

First Contract Signed In Purchase Plan

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — The first contract has been signed under an Anglo - Canadian "link purchase" scheme designed to boost British purchases of British Columbia salmon, it was learned today.

A spokesman ... bia House ... that is for delivery to Vancouver of Welsh tinplate, which will be used for canning the 1954 salmon pack on the British Columbia coast. Details as to price and quantity involved were not immediately available.

The "link purchase" plan, as outlined here, represents something of an act of faith by Canadian fishing companies. Under the scheme, 14 firms have agreed to make a definite effort to switch from United States to British sources for purchases of certain equipment such as winches, engines, nets and lines.

In return, the compahies hope—and it is only a hope—that Britain will respond by buying B.C. Salmon. During the Second World War, the entire B.C. pack went overseas. In 1952, British purchases dipped to $3,850,000 compared with $6,542,000 in 1951, causing the product to pile up in Canadian warehouses.

Toronto Coach Not Worried By Soviet Team

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP)—Russia's bark is bigger than her bite as far as Greg Currie is concerned.

The 39-year-old coach of Toronto's East York Lyndhursts, Canadian representative in the 1954 world hockey championships in Stockholm Feb. 26-March 7, said in an interview Monday he is taking the rep[illegible] grain of salt.

"We haven't seen them play and they haven't seen us, but I can tell you they aren't going to show us anything new. I think our team will take the title."

In Moscow, Rudolf (Putte) Kock, president of the Swedish AIK sports association, said Russia, which began playing hockey seven years ago, appears to have mastered the sport "and the day has passed when Canada could send a scrub team to Europe confident that it would be good enough to win. . . They'd better send a strong senior A team if they want to win."

Currie pointed to his club's record in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B loop this year. In 22 games, it has won 17; lost five and has scored 160 goals—an average of 7.3 goals a game—which Currie says is more than any other club in Canada has done in a similar number of games.

SWEDES TOP TEAM

Currie, coach of Lyndhursts the last three seasons, said reports he has received from Europe indicate that Canada's main opposition will come from the Swedish national team, 1953 titleholders. Canada did not send a team last year.

Since 1948 Canada has lost the title only once—in 1949 when Sudbury Wolves failed at Stockholm Edmonton Mercurys were world champions in 1950 and 1952 and Lethbridge Maple Leafs in 1951.

Currie expects most of his scoring punch to come from Moe Galand, 23-year-old right-winger. Galand is leading the Senior B scoring race with 30 goals in 20 games. Another top scorer is Norm Gray, 23-year-old centre and the Senior B scoring champion the last two seasons. The coach also named left-winger Johnny Petro, 23, and Bob Kennedy, 23-year-old centre, as scoring threats.

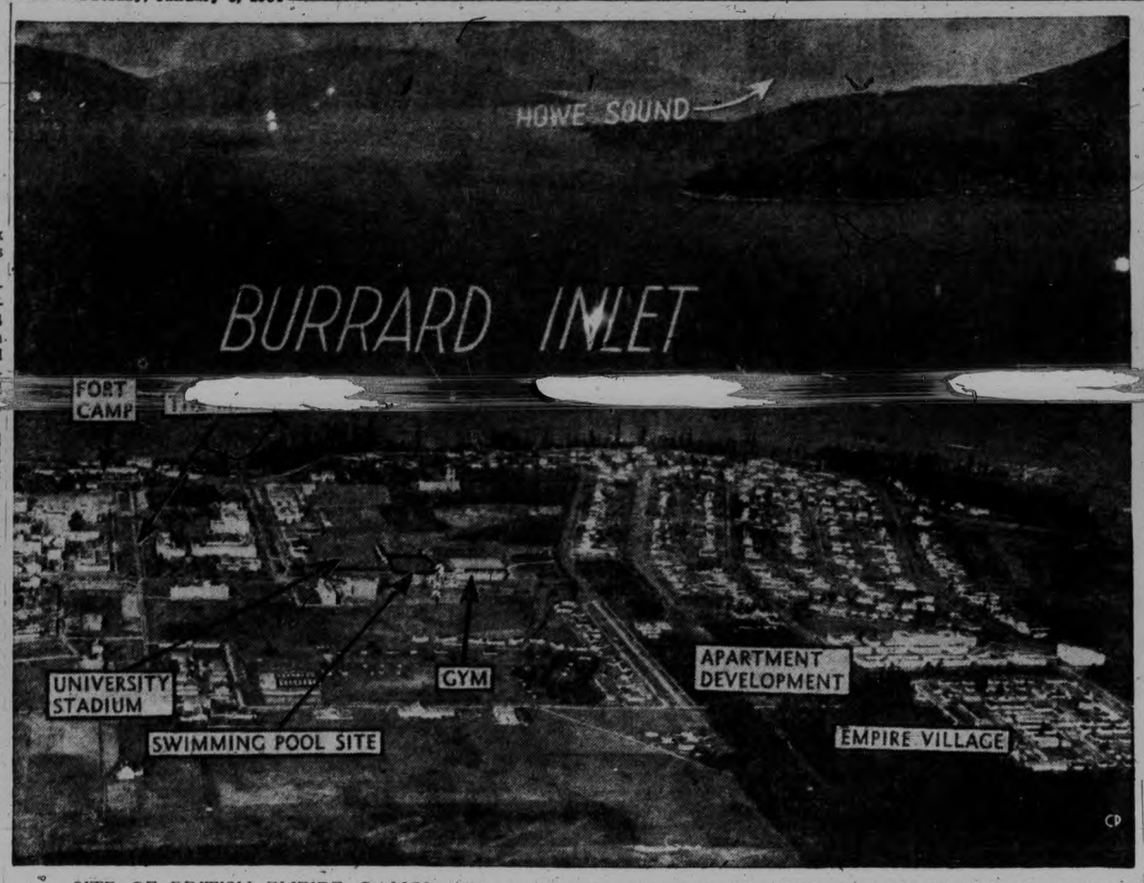
DEFENCE LINE

The defensive wall will be made up of Russ Robertson, 24, Ben Chapman, 23, and former professional Tommy Campbell, 29.

Netminding chores will be handled by 24-year-old Gavin Lindsay.

The club leaves Toronto Jan. 22 for New York where it will sail for Cherbourg, France, on the Queen Mary the following daye. Arriving in France Jan. 28, Lyndhursts will open a 13-game tour in Paris Jan. 30, swinging through Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Sweden.

The tour is being financed by the International Ice Hockey Federation.



SITE OF BRITISH EMPIRE GAMES—This is an aerial view, looking northwest, of the site of the British Empire Games next summer at Vancouver. At the upper left is Fort Camp, near Burrard Inlet, which is to be used for housing women athletes. At lower right accommodation for 700 competitors is provided at Empire Village which adjoins a new apartment development, complete with shopping centre and restaurants. The University of British Columbia stadium and gymnasium are at left centre. These are to be used as practice grounds. A new swimming pool is to be built beside them. The Mall is a street in the university district, called the college's "Main street." The university area was set aside as an endowment and much of it still is covered with trees, although it is rapidly being built upon.

SWIMMING POOL—This is a model of the new $90,000 swimming pool to be used in the British Empire Games at Vancouver next summer. The pool, built to Olympic standards, is expected to be completed Jan. 31 with stands for 6,000 spectators. It will be the most modern in North America with blue, black and white tile and plastic, trimmed with chromium-plated deck equipment.

700 Athletes To Compete In British Empire Games

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Sports Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—This year may go down as British Columbia's golden year in sports.

Topped by the British Empire and Commonwealth Games July 30-Aug. 7—with the Duke of Edinburgh expected to attend—the 1954 B.C. schedule lists the Canadian open golf and Canadian badminton championships, the debut of B.C. Lions in the Western Interprovincial Football Union and visits from overseas soccer and rugger teams.

The parade also includes Canadian trials for the games themselves and a special pre-games "world series" of curling.

700 COMPETITORS

Canada's biggest sports attraction of the year, the games will see about 700 athletes from 23 Commonwealth and Empire countries compete in track and field, swimming, fencing, boxing and wrestling, rowing, cycling, weightlifting and lawn bowling events.

More than $2,400,000 will be spent in preparatory work. Of that, $1,895,000 will build three new sites for the games—a $1,558,000 stadium holding 35,000 spectators, a swimming pool and a banked, all-wood cycle track—and renovate or improve six other existing sites.

A "deficit" of $200,000 shows in the current budget, the sixth such tentative balance sheet. A "moral commitment" of $135,000 is owed the city by the Games Association and was undertaken to start work on the stadium when costs soared that much over original estimates. The rest is in such things as additions or improvements to facilities and services and increasing costs as competing countries raise planned team strengths.

The $200,000 deficit may be overcome. Games officials say they are "deliberately conservative" in estimating revenues from ticket sales and concessions.

Original estimates placed the number of expected competitors at more than 550. Since then, a number of countries have indicated officially how many they will send, boosting the total to 654. If the ratio of increase prevails, the final total will be more than 700.

EXPECTED LINE-UP

Host Canada will have 224 in the games. England, the next largest, will have about 100, and Australia expects to send 60.

South Africa's contingent will be 50, New Zealand 40, Scotland 24, Pakistan and Wales 20 each, Northern Rhodesia 18, Jamaica 17, Nigeria 15, Kenya 12, Southern Rhodesia 10, Gold Coast and Northern Ireland eight each, Hong Kong four and Barbados, one.

Trinidad, Malaya, Fiji, Uganda, Bermuda and British Guiana will send athletes but they have not yet indicated the number competing.

Of the 26 countries in the games federation, so far only three are not sending athletes—Malta, Ceylon and India. The previous high was 13 countries in the New Zealand games in 1950.

The visitors will move into an Empire village on the University of B.C. grounds—modern, up-to-date accommodation normally used by students. A complete village, with postal services, and administration headquarters will be in operation.

CYCLE TRACK READY

The cycle track is ready for competition. Constructed from 100,000 pieces of warpless yellow cedar used mostly for boat-building, the $90,000 track is expected to l[illegible] t 25 years. It is 250 metres in c[illegible]mference—6½ laps to the mile—and seats 4,000 spectators. A $15,000 field house is under construction.

The swimming pool, a plastic and chromium tank with seats for 6,000, is expected to be finished Feb. 1. It was started Oct. 13.

Now scheduled for completion two months earlier than expected is the major project, Canada's largest stadium.

Roof decking for the 10,000 covered seats will start Jan. 15 and finish March 21. Inside finishing and painting starts April 17.

Boxing, wrestling, weightlifting and fencing will be held in existing arenas. Lawn bowling, with entries from six countries, will be at two clubs, each with space for 2,000 seats.

TO ROW ON CANAL

Rowing events will be held at the Vedder canal, an arrow-straight canal cutting across a rained basin 48 miles east of Vancouver near Chilliwack.

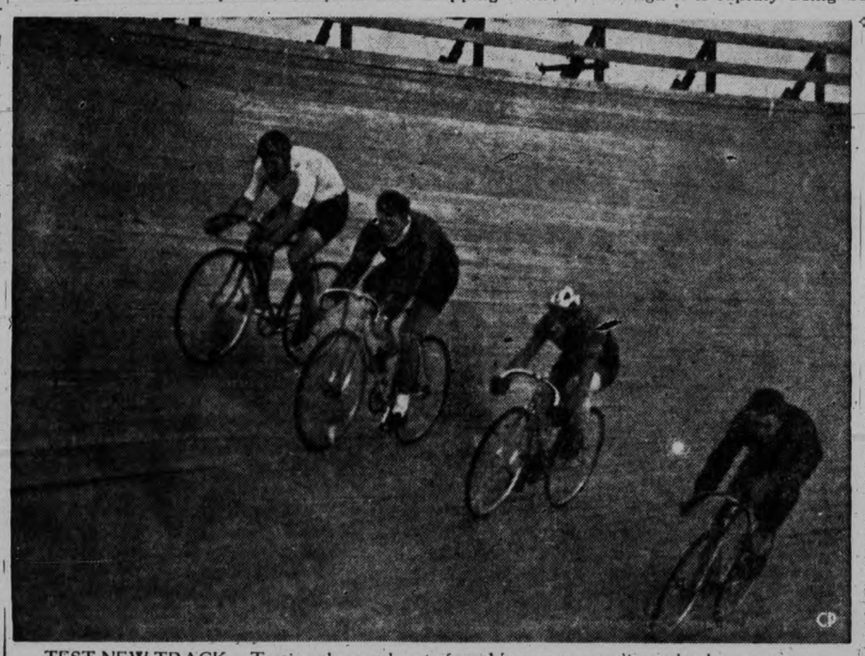
Excluding the long sprint out to the Vedder, an area 11 by four miles encloses the other competition sites. It is 11 miles east-to-west across built-up residential areas and the heart of the city from the stadium to Empire Village and the swimming pool. The cycle track is 3½ miles south of the stadium.

The 350,000-400,000 tickets to be printed will sell from a $5 top in the stadium to a $1 low for stadium standing room and seats at other sites.

SMOOTH SCHEDULE

The spectator can, if he wishes, take in as many as five events in one day, due to smooth scheduling, and can stay on the go from 10 a.m. to midnight.

Work started early in 1952 with formation of an organizational committee, Blair Clerk, general manager of the organization handling the games, says: "We plan to have everything so well organized that, when late July rolls around, we can sit back and wait for something to happen."



TEST NEW TRACK—Testing the newly-completed British Empire Games cycle track in the Grandview area of Vancouver are four Vancouver cyclists who hope to represent Canada in the games starting next July. Left to right are: Lorne Atkinson, Jim Davies, Jr., Tony Bachetts and Ed Bang.

Kramer Has Plan To Train Davis Cup Stars

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—All sorts of schemes have been advanced on how the United States can win back the Davis Cup from Australia, but Jack Kramer, one of the greatest American stars, has come up with a new one. And it might work.

He wants to give his time and money to developing new talent. The former amateur ace offered today to contribute $7,500 and two months of his time in an effort to develop young players.

Kramer figures he will visit about 85 cities on his professional tour the first five months of this year. At each stop he would like to have the local professional or school coach bring a group of the most talented youngsters to him. He, along with his troupe of Pancho Segura, Pancho Gonzales and Don Budge, would look them over and pull out the best for special attention.

"Let's face it," he said, "some of the coaching in this country is very bad. The only thing that is going to make a kid good is practice. If I can get a look at his shots, I can give a boy advice on what parts of his game to work on. I can even advise the pro."

DEVELOP YOUNGSTERS

The victory of the Australians in the cup challenge round last week convinced him something would have to be done—and "the only way to do it is to develop youngsters."

After he has looked over all the lads—he wants them all under 18 because they can be developed easier—he would take the eight top prospects to camp for a summer of coaching. The more money he can get the better, he said, but if no one else wants to contribute he's ready to underwrite the cost himself.

Gonzales won the $4,000 top prize of the opening "tournament" of Kramer's 1954 tour by whipping Pancho Segura 7-9, 6-4, 6-4 Monday night.

1953 Montreal Canadiens Voted Outstanding Team In Sports World

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, 1953 Stanley Cup winners, were the outstanding team of the year in Canadian sport.

Montreal Alouettes of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union made the greatest comeback.

The biggest sports disappointment? Toronto Argonauts, who toppled from their lofty perch as 1952 Grey Cup champions to an also-ran in the Big Four.

The choices were made in the annual Canadian Press year-end poll of sports editors and sportscasters across Canada, released today.

EDGED TIGER CATS

The Canadiens' triumph over Boston Bruins in the final last spring, their first Stanley Cup victory since 1946, won the votes of the experts but only by a narrow choice over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 12-6 in the Grey Cup final.

The Canadiens were given 154 points on a 3-2-1 basis, all selectors naming three teams. Tiger-Cats had 141 points and Montreal Royals International Baseball League and Little World Series champs, 4 points. In all 23 teams were named in football, hockey, baseball, lacrosse, basketball, curling, golf, soccer and tennis.

Alouettes, cellar-dwellers in the Big Four the previous three years, rebounded to a schedule-ending tie in points with the Tiger-Cats. The Als were badly crippled by injuries and lost to the black and yellow club in the best-of-three final.

They had no such walkaway in the "comeback" poll, however, winning by a narrow margin over Blue Bombers who got many votes for their come-from-behind victory in the final game of the best-of-three western conference series with Edmonton Eskimos. Tied in games, they trailed 18-6 in the second half, but, with Indian Jack Jacobs directing a powerful aerial offensive, won 30-24 on a last-minute touchdown.

THIRD CHOICE

Jacobs, who almost won Bombers a tie in the Grey Cup final, was third choice in the comeback poll. He wiped out the memory of the 1950 cup final when Bombers lost 13-0 to Toronto Argonauts and his showing in the 1953 classic at Toronto won him the praise of critics and fans.

Canadiens also won a few votes in the comeback poll along with Bob Cunningham, Ottawa Rough Rider player and winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy, awarded to the most valuable player in the Big Four. The hard-charging back, picked up in 1953 on a waiver by Riders for $200, was sidelined most of 1952 with shoulder and knee injuries.

Others receiving votes were 33-year-old Merle Hapes of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Elmer Lach, who scored Canadiens' winning overtime goal against Boston in the Stanley Cup final.

There was no argument against Argonauts' choice in the sports disappointment section as voters from Vancouver to Halifax put the tag on them. Their failure to gain the Big Four playoffs won them a wide margin over Eskimos' loss to Winnipeg in the western football final. Third place went to Toronto Maple Leafs who missed the Stanley Cup playoffs.

MARLENE DISAPPOINTS

Even Marlene Stewart, the country's outstanding female athlete of the year in the CP poll, received disappointment votes. Six selectors were unhappy that she lost in the final of the Canadian women's open and in the first round of the United States amateur.

Various other individuals and situations caught the selectors' eyes. For instance, Aubrey Keizer of the Sydney Post-Record hung the title on the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for what he termed "lousing up hockey in general."

"Old Father Time" got a vote from George Carver of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer for "blowing the whistle on the last play of the Grey Cup final." That was also the greatest disappointment for C. J. Perdue of the Peterborough Examiner.

The one-time fabulous Frankie Albert got a disappointment vote. The former San Francisco 49er made his debut into Canadian Football with Calgary Stampeders in 1953 and the southpaw-tossing quarter at one time was relegated to the position of holding the ball for convert attempts.

Owen Sound Rink Earns Berth In Finals

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — Rinks from Owen Sound and Bracebridge earned berths in the Ontario ladies' tankard curling finals to be held later this month at Owen Sound.

Twelve rinks took part in Monday's district playoffs.

The Owen Sound club, skipped by Mrs. Annie Fair, defeated a Barrie rink, skipped by Mrs. J. Corby, 11-3 in the second round.

The Bracebridge rink, skipped by Mrs. A. G. Smith, won a spot in the finals with a 12-6 victory over Collingwood rink skipped by Mrs. R. F. Conn.

King Maple Opens 2-To-1 Plate Choice

TORONTO (CP) — King Maple, owned by Mrs. Gordon McMaken and voted "horse of the year" in Canada in 1953, has opened as a 2-to-1 choice in the advance book for the 1954 running of the Queen's Plate.

The colt is one of 74 horses still eligible to start in the classic.

Queen's Own, a colt among the half dozen named from the E. P. Taylor stable of Toronto, is second favorite at 4 to 1. Third choice at 8 to 1 is a western Canada horse, Hi-Laude.

HOAD IN ARMY

SYDNEY (AP)—Army authorities announced Monday Australian Davis Cup player Lewis Hoad will begin 90 days' full-time national service training Jan. 13.

He had expected his call in February and had entered the Australian championships beginning at Sydney Jan. 22.

An army spokesman said, "If Hoad wishes to play in the Australian championships any application for leave will be considered on its merits. But until Hoad enters camp the army has no official knowledge of his intentions."

Ken Rosewall, the other 19-year-old member of the Australian Davis Cup team is not affected by the call-up because he is exempted on medical grounds.

TRY TO KEEP RUNNER

LONDON (AP)—The mass circulation Daily Sketch Monday launched a campaign to keep Gordon Pirie, Britain's great distance runner, in England.

"If Pirie goes to the United States to obtain a betterment that is not available to him here, Britain may as well give up and get out of amateur international athletics altogether," wrote John MacAdam, columnist for the newspaper.

His comments were prompted by Pirie's recent statement he is "seriously considering several scholarship offers to American colleges."

MacAdam said England's Amateur Athletic Association "puritan diehards" should make it possible for English universities and other organizations to assist athletes without running afoul of the rules.

He concluded:

"Unless we begin to take a more realist view of these matters we are going to find ourselves playing little games all by ourselves with a new breed of sporting supermen all over the world putting up performances to make us look what we are—just amateurs.

"By whatever means, Pirie must stay."

BUCCERONI FAVORED

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Philadelphia's Dan Bucceroni, pressing for a heavyweight title bout with champion Rocky Marciano, is a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat German veteran Hein Ten Hoff in their non-televised 10-round bout here tonight.

Unless piston-punching Bucceroni who spots 25 pounds to the 215-pound Ten Hoff, scores convincingly against the former European heavyweight champion, he may drop well behind such hot pursuers of Marciano's crwn as Ezzard Charles, Nino Valdes and Danny Nardico.

Ten Hoff, who came to the United States a year ago and proceeded to score five straight knockdowns against second-rate fighters, at 32 is almost seven years older than Bucceroni.

SIGNS FOR GARDEN BOUT

TORONTO (CP) — Promoter Frank Tunney said Monday night Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles has agreed to meet Earl Walls of Toronto in a 10-round heavyweight boxing bout at Maple Leaf Gardens Jan. 26.

Walls, Canadian heavyweight champion who is ranked fifth among the world's heavyweight contenders by Ring magazine, will be making his first appearance in Toronto since he gained international fame by twice knocking out the high-ranking Rex Layne of Salt Lake City, Utah. A native of Windsor, Ont., Walls now makes his home here.

Harrison, ranked by Ring as the eighth leading heavyweight contender, agreed to terms for the fight by telephone through his manager, George Parnassus.

LARGEST STADIUM — This aerial view shows construction progress on Canada's largest stadium, to be used for the British Empire Games at Vancouver next summer. To cost $1,895,000 and scheduled for completed April 30, three months before the games start, it will hold 35,000 with 10,000 seats under cover.

Two Horses Divide Dufferin Trot Event

TORONTO (CP) — Red Key, owned by John Zeron of Morrisburg, Ont., and Ronnie Don, owned by D. Massero of Rochester, N.Y., divided the class "A" trot, featured harness event at Dufferin Park Monday. Each won a heat.

Butch H. Keyer, owned by T. T. Kyer of Eagle Bridge, N.Y., and handled by Joe Hodgins, and Gerry Belwin, owned by Evans and Fraser of Brantford, and piloted by Allan Schweitzer, were the heat winners in the class BB paee, the secondary attraction.

BIG JEAN BELIVEAU doesn't miss his big chance against Boston Goaler "Sugar Jim" Henry in this action. He blazes the rubber high into the netting for Canadiens' lone goal in the 1-1 deadlock at the Montreal Forum Saturday.

Men Too Sloppy About Attire And Haircuts

By GLORIA SWANSON
In Coronet

There is nothing unusual these days about seeing an attractive man—one with a young body, a young walk, a young attitude—who does everything he can to destroy his own appearance. He seems to be accommodating himself to his sloppy clothes, rather than doing what "The Weaker Sex" does—making their bodies fit an outward appearance.

[illegible] stand why most men look as if they had borne at least six children, especially since the modern mother no longer shows of ever having had any!

POINTED QUESTION

Husbands—why are you the first to complain about wives losing their shapes, sleeping in curlers and cold cream, and, in general, letting the glamor fade soon after the little ring has been put on the proper finger? At least they have some concern about looking their best most of the time. Can 90 percent of the men today honestly say that they care two hoots about, or give two seconds' thought to, their own appearance?

I've often wondered what men would say if women didn't wear garters to keep their stockings up? (I do not know what they say when our seams are crooked!) Or if the ladies wore their skirt belts around their tummies or at the fullest point, rather than at the waist? Suppose their clothes looked as though they belong to their big sisters—just as the length of most trousers and jacket sleeves make men's clothes look like Gargantua's castoffs?

Why do you men wear sleeves so long that they hid your shift cuffs—and probably an attractive pair of cuff-links your lady has given you? Cuffs are seldom, if ever, seen because, I suppose, it's too much trouble to have the sleeves of your jacket shortened. And, please, stop trying to fool us about the breadth of your shoulders!

Just think of the money, time and thought devoted to glamorizing your homes. And, the pride you have in the appearance of your car. When are you going to fit your bodies into some streamlined clothes—for that outer appearance?

WHAT'S NEEDED

Don't you know that we (your ladies) want you to be a complement to us? If you can afford evening clothes for her (wife), surely you can afford one dinner jacket for yourself in five years! But, of course, not if you insist on hanging it in the closet year after year, with the weak excuse that it isn't as comfortable as any other suit!

Should there be no occasion for your lady to dress for a cocktail party or an informal dinner party, you could still be a complement to her in a blue suit, rather than the same old one you've worn all day.

You must admit that seeing people properly dressed for all occasions adds to the spirit of it all. I have several times asked my escorts, who have arrived in sports clothes in the city, to wait until I changed from a black silk cocktail or informal dinner dress to a sweater and skirt. Or I have asked them to go home and change into the proper blue or dark suit (and, please, not with brown shoes!).

I simply will not dress up and have my escort looking like an urchin. Besides, it's rude to one's hostess, who has spent a lot of time and thought on the appearance of her home, herself and the pleasure of her guests.

Really, just being a male is not sufficient. We women like to look at beauty. We, too, want our aesthetic sense pleased. We prefer a faint scent of cologne, especially when we're dancing with you, to mothballs or the smell of smoke.

ABOUT HAIRCUTS

Just because you hate the barber, there still isn't any reason to have him run a lawnmower over your head so that it resembles a criminal's on the eve of execution. Women suffer more than you do at the hairdresser. What would you say if we had our hair done only every six weeks.

Not long ago, I heard a man, who had an eye for every pretty girl, remark about a woman who had heavy legs—a misfortune over which she had no control. I led him to a full-length mirror and asked him to look at himself.

His shoes needed polishing, he looked 18 months pregnant, his hands and fingernails were unclean, his tie was spotted, his hair uncombed. He is the extreme case, of course, but he is still the male, like his brethern, expects the lady on his arm to be svelte, beautifully coiffed and manicured, well-dressed, well-groomed and to smell sweet.

Since I have worked since I was 14½ years old, I have lived pretty much in a man's world, and I can remember well the pride that men used to take in themselves. It was an era in which a man, believe it or not, had different suits for different occasions.

Half-Billion Spent Yearly On Phoney Medical Devices

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A phony gadget racket is operating in the United States today, despite the vigilance of the U.S. government.

Those guilty are doing more than just preying on the American pocketbook, the Food and Drug Administration points out. The danger, it charges, is that people who are really sick, say with cancer, will turn to quack medical devices rather than to doctors. By the time they realize their mistake it may be too late.

True, the gadget come-on is ages-old. But the magic words [illegible] modern fakers a new advantage for cashing in on the gullibility of the public.

For some time the administration has been seizing devices that are claimed to give off atomic waves. One even claimed to radiate "a force unknown to science" and was said to be able to cure any disease afflicting mankind.

Today, FDA estimates that Americans spend a half-billion dollars annually on food additives, "medicines" and therapeutic contrivances they don't need.

FDA's last annual report, for the fiscal year 1952, declared that 25 device seizures had been made because of false and misleading claims. These ranged from "cosmic ray" lockets which sold for $250 to $750 depending on size, to complicated colonic irrigators.

The $1600 colonic irrigator was being sold to chiropractors, says FDA, with literature claiming usefulness for a number of diseases including asthma and diabetes.

Recently, the government seized something called an "Atomotrone." Light is rigged up to shine through colored glass onto a jug of water. What results was called "Thermal water" and "Electric water," explains FDA. One was recommended for soft nails or even no nails. The other, the "Atomotrone" people claimed, was good for about 100 diseases and ailments, including nails again. This time, brittle ones.

An administration official says that he thinks women fall oftener for phony devices aimed at slenderizing and beautifying while men are more apt to try to doctor themselves.

The inventor of the Zerret Applicator, a plastic dumbbell-like contrantion, was sentenced to jail in 1950.

To cure disease, said the directions, a patient had only to sit, without crossing his knees, holding the dumbbell, one knob in each hand, for 30 minutes at a time. This $50 "toy" was loaded with "Zerret Water" which was said to give forth "Z-Rays." The maker claimed his treatment would "expand all the atoms of one's being."

Chemists testified the water had the composition of tap water. Leading atomic scientists declared the device was not radioactive and brought a Geiger counter to the court room to prove it.

CRIPPLED INVENTOR

Another phony in FDA's "sucker collection" looks like a flashlight with a roller on the end. With its attachments the Electreat was said to help heart attack, paralysis, or just dandruff. Following government action the manufacturer was fined $1,000.

Although the promoter of the Sinuothermic Device recommended it for advanced cases of arthritis deformans, he himself was so crippled by this disease he couldn't raise his arm to take the oath when he testified in court. For this same reason he couldn't occupy the witness chair but made his statements from a wheel chair. The government finally won.

Several years ago, promoters of the Vrilium Tube claimed their "Magic Spike" had radioactive powers that would cure disease when it was worn on the body. The two-inch piece of brass tube contained less than one penny's worth of barium chloride and had no medical value. It sold for $306, sales tax included.

At this trial a pathetic witness described the death [illegible] pinned his faith on the "Magic Spike."

The government's hokus-pokus list also includes a "radio-active" pillow and a "sleep recording" by a hypnotist.

NOT INFORMED

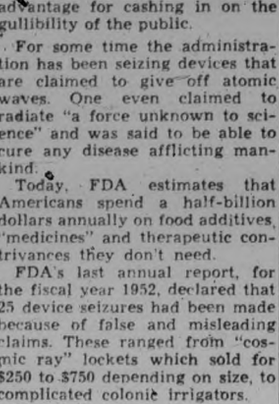
One explanation for all this human gullibility, FDA believes, is that despite advances in education and medical science, there are millions who are no better informed about health fundamentals than if they had lived a hundred or a thousand years ago.

But it isn't true that only uneducated, backwoods people fall for gadget cures.

A proof of this was FDA's action against Chiropractor Ruth B. Drown, who claimed that her machines could "tune in" the organs of the body and heal them by remote control. All she needed was a single drop of the patient's blood, or two drops if he couldn't be there in person.

Among the witnesses for Dr. Drown was none other than the president of the Los Angeles City Board of Education. Los Angeles newspapers demanded her resignation, and got it.

At the trial the government had a key case history. It was that of a woman treated for cancer by the Drown radio instrument until it was too late for successful surgery.



HEART OF DANDRUFF troubles were supposed to vanish with device FDA's Erminia Rebollini holds. Maker was [illegible]

DUMBELL exhibited here by FDA's Mrs. Charles Drake claimed to expand patient's "atoms." Maker was jailed.

Railmen Seeking New Contract

MONTREAL (CP)—Negotiations for a new labor contract between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen (Ind.) and Canadian National Railways will start Jan. 12, it was announced by the union.

The brotherhood is asking for a $1.35-a-day pay increase, reduction of the work week from six to five days without loss of pay, and rule changes.

A union spokesman said similar negotiations with Canadian Pacific Railway will be held later.

Board Says Transport Strikes Unlawful

TORONTO (CP)—Strikes at T.W. Sayless Transport Ltd., Brantford, Walkerton, last summer were declared unlawful by the Ontario labor relations board Monday.

No reason was given.

Workers were called on strike by the Hamilton truck drivers' local of the Teamsters' Union (AFL-TLC), during a strike of the union's Hamilton and London locals.

The disputes have since been settled.

Faces New Year With Buoyancy and Hope

By O. M. GREEN

One country at least faces the New Year with buoyancy and good hope: Pakistan's recovery in the past twelve months is all the more remarkable in that her position at the beginning of 1953 was really desperate.

In the years of sellers' markets Pakistan spent lavishly. Then came the drop in world prices of her most paying exports, jute and cotton; with the further handicap that she had held the value of her rupee at nearly 2s.2d. when India lowered hers to 1s.5d. A year ago Pakistan had £15 millions worth of jute and cotton on hand for which there ap[illegible] with two seasons of drought and irrigation canals running dry, one and a half million acres of wheatlands went out of cultivation and Pakistan, which normally exports grain, found itself in need of importing a million and a half tons of wheat for 1953 and no foreign exchange to pay for it.

This was the situation when Mr. Mohammed Ali was appointed premier last May in place of Mr. Nazimuddin and a new government was installed.

TRADE BALANCED

Now the minister for commerce can announce that foreign payments and expenditure have been balanced and that in the July-September quarter of 1953 there was even a small favourable balance of £920,000 against a deficit in the same quarter last year of £40,560,000.

Help from abroad was quickly given to Pakistan in the early summer. The United States gave Pakistan 700,000 tons of wheat; Australia, New Zealand and Canada came to the rescue with grain and in other ways, their contributions altogether of 12,254,000 dollars being roughly equal to that of the United States. Britain lent Pakistan £10 million on easy terms. Here was proof of the value to Pakistan of remaining a member of the Commonwealth.

But credit is fairly due to Mr. Mohammed Ali and his colleagues. They have proved clear-sighted and resolute; results have been won, not by financial juggling, but by hard work and rigid discipline; harmful economic measures of the past have been reversed and corruption sternly punished.

There appears no reason why Pakistan's finances should not henceforward float on an even keel. Even if next year's budget does not quite balance, the deficit, according to well-informed observers, should be so small as to be negligible. Jute is again earning good amounts of foreign exchange and there are favourable trade balances both with Japan and European countries.

One public want much felt in Pakistan is the shortage of consumer goods, due to the severe restriction of import licences in the crisis months of this year.

IMPORT CAPITAL GOODS

About seventy per cent. of Pakistan's foreign exchange earnings, say £7,500,000, will be allocated in the first half of 1954 for the import of essential capital goods, machinery and spare parts.

But Pakistan's mills, though expanding, are still only able to turn out [illegible] of what is needed. The minister of commerce forecasts that Pakistan will be self-supporting in cotton goods, woollen fabrics, earthenware, paper (for want of which schools are badly handicapped) and matches. But this position can hardly be reached soon.

One great achievement is that four million refugees who fled from India in 1947 (the year of the partition) have now been settled on the land in West Punjab, with from five to eight acres to each family. Four-fifths of them have received compensation for what they lost in India.

But refugees are still flowing in, at the rate of three thousand or more a month, and are crowded together in hovels in Karachi. They are fed, but there is little work for them and their living conditions are terrible even by the low standards of Asia.

Some relief for the refugees in Karachi should be forthcoming when the supply of water from the Kotri Barrage on the Indus in lower Sind is turned on next May. This will make cultivable 2,700,000 more acres, half of which is now totally waste land. And work has already begun on another huge irrigation project, the Giddu Barrage, to water 2,300,000 acres of land in Sind and Baluchistan.

In construction work of this kind the sister Dominions of the Commonwealth are giving substantial help. Canada has undertaken an aerial survey of the agricultural and mineral features of Baluchistan and Sind; Australia and New Zealand have given equipment for hydro-electric works and irrigation. Britain is helping to equip technical and research schools and a textile training centre. At present Pakistan mills can produce only medium and coarse cloth.

Meanwhile the framing of the Constitution of Pakistan goes on at leasurely pace. The first draft by the Basic Principles Committee, under which all legislation would have been subject to the veto of the mullahs (the Muslim religious leaders) on religious grounds, is buried in oblivion. It raised, quite justly, a storm of protest.

GUARANTEE FOR MINORITIES

To meet the religious feelings of the Muslims who number eighty-five per cent. of the population, the Dominion will be called "The Islamic Republic of Pakistan," with guarantees in the Constitution for the religion and culture of minorities.

The worst political obstacle, perhaps, is how to balance the rivalries of the different States that make up Pakistan. [illegible] Eastern Bengal) is bigger than that of all the other States together, and Lahore (in the Punjab) claims that, on the score of age, it ought to be the capital instead of Karachi. Here are matters of sentiment which may take a long time to adjust.

Although reports of an impending military aid agreement between Pakistan and the United States have brought protests from India, relations between Pakistan and India are certainly better than they were a year ago. At last the railway link between Lahore and Amritsar (East and West Punjab) has been reopened and through-travel by rail between India and Pakistan is again possible. The expert committee to discuss a plebiscite in Kashmir have lately begun work and are said to be "cautiously optimistic." If only the violent extremists of the Hindu Mahasabha and Muslim League can be kept quiet, there seems at last some chance of a settlement in Kashmir. For this improved prospect credit is due to Mr. Mohammed Ali for his initiative in bringing about the personal talks between himself and Mr. Nehru, the Indian Prime Minister, in the autumn of this years.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER REUTHER SOLVED

Beware Wiles Of Reds Says Pearson

Urges Free World Negotiate As Cohesive Team

MONTREAL (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson urged Tuesday night that the Free World negotiate as a "cohesive team" in dealing with Moscow and Peking.

"We hear too often the 'voices' rather than the 'voice' of freedom," he said, in an address to the Canadian Public Relations Society here.

The minister also warned against the "insidious pressure of enticing doubletalk and bewildering blandishment" used by the Communists to split the Western nations.

"Very far-reaching developments may be taking place behind the Iron Curtain," he said. "If so, we should keep an open mind and a clear head about them. These developments may make it possible to advance the policy of peaceful co-operation between states to which we of the Free World are committed.

"On the other hand, words of peace and goodwill which come now from the Communist camp may represent merely an orthodox and normal shift in party tactics, designed to disarm and deceive us.

"In a coalition of free states, large and small, powerful and weak, each has its own voice, each has its own pride, prejudice and public opinion.

MUST CO-OPERATE

"There may be no more imperative necessity facing us in 1954 than that of working out and applying satisfactory and effective methods of consultation and co-operation within this coalition, so that we can negotiate with the Kremlin and Peking as a well-knit and cohesive team. . ."

Speaking of Canada's responsibility in the coalition, Mr. Pearson said "we have a special problem in international public relations with the United States.

"Relations with the U.S. are becoming more varied and complicated. It is not surprising, therefore, that problems are increasing."

But these problems must be settled with a minimum of bickering because if "Canada and the U.S. cannot grow closer together in friendship. . . what chance is there for peace and stability in the world?"

Mr. Pearson predicted that during 1954 the strength and unity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will come under increased attack by the Communists "within and without our gates."

PAINTING AT 78 is Mrs. Margaret Ashwell who painted when she was a girl but then gave it up for housework. She didn't pick up a paint brush again for about 56 years when a grandson urged her to try oil painting. Now all her relatives and friends want paintings by the great, great grandmother.

Woman Returns To Painting For Relaxation At 78 Years

It's never too late to learn, a 78-year-old Peterborough woman is proving to her admiring friends. At a time of life when most women would be content to just sit in rocking chair and knit for their recreation, Mrs. Margaret Ashwell of 450 Rogers St. has taught herself an exciting new hobby: oil painting.

A resident of Peterborough for the last three years, Mrs. Ashwell took up oil painting just two years ago after a grandson saw some water colors she had done more than 50 years before. He asked her to paint a picture for him; so, after a little prompting, at the age of 75, Mrs. Ashwell bought some brushes, paints, set up an easel and began experimenting with oils.

BEGAN AS GIRL

As a girl of 16, and for several years afterwards, she was interested in art and did some water color paintings, some work in black and white, and some paintings on chinaware. Then came marriage and raising a family and she abandoned painting entirely to give her time to domestic matters.

However, she kept a few of her old water colors that had been framed and they served as a constant reminder of her undeveloped artistic talent. It was when he saw these water colors that her grandson requested her to paint something for him.

He was delighted with the finished painting; so were the other members of the family who all, it seemed, wanted one of her canvases.

The immediate family includes three sons, four daughters, 18 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. Satisfying their requests for paintings gave Mrs. Ashwell plenty of scope to exercise her talent.

Now a widow, Mrs. Ashwell lives at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Helen O'Shaughnessy of 450 Rogers St.

Mrs. Ashwell's husband was an accountant, and their sons and daughters all established themselves in a successful manner. Three of the daughters, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy of Peterborough, Mrs. Eileen Masters of Kenmore, New York, and Sister Georgia at a London, Ont., hospital, all entered the nursing profession. The other

3 Fliers Safe, Complete Mercy Mission

WINNIPEG (CP)—Three fliers were safe in Churchill, Man., today after spending three days in the wilds of the Northwest Territories while the temperature dropped as low as 52 below zero.

They left their Norseman aircraft on an unnamed lake about 1,000 miles north of here.

The men, pilot FO. O.J. Fisher of Duparquet, Que., Lac. G. M. Dawe of Vernon, B.C., and Lac. J. W. Bradley of Sturgeon Falls Ont., were flown to Churchill late Tuesday. They landed the Norseman on a frozen lake Saturday when it started to leak oil while on a 400-mile mercy flight to pick up a sick Eskimo at Baker Lake, NWT.

The original plan was to fly the Norseman back to Churchill. However, mechanics must be flown in before the plane can be brought out.

ESKIMO FLOWN OUT

The Eskimo was picked up by an RCAF Dakota Tuesday and flown to Churchill for treatment.

Search for the plane started late Saturday, after it radioed it was landing on an unknown lake, out of fuel. Brief radio contact was made Sunday with the Norseman, and flares were spotted. The flares however, could not be pin-pointed, and the plane was once again lost.

Flares were spotted 120 miles south of Baker Lake Monday night, and the Norseman turned on its landing lights. Radio contact was soon made, and to ensure no mishaps, Dakotas circled the plane until the ski-equipped plane arrived.

High Wind Greets Queen At Welcome

GISBORNE, N. Z. (Reuters)—High winds made Queen Elizabeth clutch her hat today and almost blew two prepared speeches out of her hand as the young monarch resumed her official tour.

Gusty coastal breezes menaced the Queen's bonnet from the moment her plane landed here early today. The 40 mile-an-hour wind forced harassed royal secretaries to tape down the pages of one of the two speeches she read outdoors.

The first speech flapped wildly in the Queen's hand as she replied to a welcome address from the mayor of Gisborne—whose own notes fluttered like sails.

The Queen, making her first public appearance after a two-day rest, laughed when wind lashed her skirts and flung her hair wildly over her forehead.

She faced the full force of the gale for six minutes in a specially-constructed lookout post over the ocean. The hill lookout and the road leading to it had been built for her visit by the town at a cost of $3,000.

The wind followed the royal party back through the streets of Gisborne, where youngsters waving flags saw the emblems suddenly ripped from their sticks.

By the time the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh reached Napier, tour officials had reckoned with the weather. The pages of the second speech were firmly lashed to a piece of cardboard with transparent tape.

Gouzenko Gave No New Names

OTTAWA (CP)—Officials indicated today that Igor Gouzenko had no new names or information for the United States senate internal security sub-committee.

Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Soviet embassy here who exposed operations of a Russian spy ring in Canada in 1945, was quizzed Monday by Senators William Jenner and Pat McCarran of the committee at an undisclosed place.

On their return to the U.S. the senators said they got names and information from Gouzenko during the five-hour interview. They would use them for "internal protection."

It was pointed out here that the senators made no mention of "new" names or information.

Before agreeing to the meeting between Gouzenko and the sub-committee, the Canadian government made it clear it thought the interview would be fruitless.

It said all names and information supplied by Gouzenko in 1945 had been passed on to the U. S. federal bureau of investigation.

HAD ADVICE ONLY

Gouzenko himself said he had no new information to give American hunters of Communists-in-government but that he thought he might have some useful advice, about spy-catching.

Officials said there has not yet been any request from Jenner, sub-committee chairman, for permission to make public all or part of the testimony given by Gouzenko Monday.

Reds May Try Seize Prisoners

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A Chinese Nationalist news agency today said the Chinese Communists will try to seize all anti-Red war prisoners in Korea if plans go through for them to be released as civilians Jan. 22.

The interior ministry agency, Ta Tao, which claims underground contacts, said its information came from the Red China capital, Peiping.

It said the seizure would be carried out by Red Chinese front-line troops.

The 22,000 anti-Red Chinese and Koreans are held in camps in the 2½-mile-wide neutral zone separating the Red and Allied armies in Korea. They are guarded by 5,500 Indian troops.

Armistice terms require that only authorized personnel of either side enter the neutral zone. Any such attempt by Red troops would be a breach of the truce.

Ontario Divorce Rate Soared During 1953

TORONTO (CP)—In Ontario 1953 was a bad year for the marriage vows and the bank-accounts year-end records issued Tuesday disclosed.

More marriages went on the rocks last year than ever before except for the post-war divorce boom of 1947-48. There were 3,004 final divorce decrees granted, 1,434 of them in Toronto, and 1,249 couples filed divorce applications. The worst divorce year, 1947, saw 3,509 absolute decrees. In 1948, there were 3,107.

For money actions, involving mortgages, foreclosures and promissory notes, the total of 4,329 Supreme Court writs issued was 10 per cent more than in 1952.

Clinging To Roof Tops

Hundreds Italians Marooned As River Invades Villages

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Storm tides in the upper Adriatic smashed into the snow-covered lowlands of the Po river delta today, breaking three dikes and flooding five villages with more than three feet of water.

Police and firemen manned boats in the pre-dawn darkness to carry some 200 marooned residents to dry ground in the wind - whipped cold.

Scores — perhaps hundreds — of others were reported clinging to roof tops and waiting in upper-storey windows for rescue.

More than 100 persons died in floods in the Po delta in November, 1951, and damage was estimated at more than $200,000,000. Those floods came not from the sea, however, but from the river itself, swollen by heavy rains and run-off water which poured unchecked from cut-over forest land.

The inrush of the sea today poured salt water over hundreds of acres of some of Italy's richest farm land in Rovigo province. The villages of Maddalena, Forti-Palestrina, Bonelli Levante and Plesine Camerini were under water.

Authorities, fearing the day's second tides might be even more severe than those of the early morning, warned residents of the whole district to "take all possible precautions again tonight."

Take What Comes

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— French-speaking Canadians like big families and "we'll take what God sends us," says Mrs. Yvette Breault, 41, in announcing the birth of her 17th child. The newest, born Tuesday, is Eugene, eight pounds, 9½ ounces. The others, 10 daughters and six sons, range up to Eugenie, 24. The father is Louis Breault, 55-year-old millwright formerly of Montreal. "Each one is the last," he said, smiling.

Canada Plans Go Ahead Seaway Project

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada does not plan to wait for the United States Congress to take action in getting the St. Lawrence seaway started.

Despite Washington reports that a bill for joint U.S.-Canada participation will be an early item on the Senate agenda, a cabinet informant said Canada will go ahead on her own if current litigation is cleared up before the Senate moves.

The Canadian government has been prepared for two years to move alone on the $300,000,000 navigation phase of the seaway-power project. The start has been held up by still-pending court action in the U.S.

Simultaneously, the U.S. court proceedings have delayed the $450,000,000 hydro development to be built concurrently with the deep waterway system. The Ontario hydro-electric power commission and the New York state power authority have been authorized by their respective federal governments to build the 2,200,000-horsepower electrical works.

The court action by U.S. opponents has been taken specifically against the power project. It now is before the U.S. Court of Appeals with a decision looked for early in the year.

Administration officials here and in Washington are confident of a decision favoring a go-ahead, but they also expect the opponents will carry their case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, despite President Eisenhower's recent statement here that he hopes for joint U.S.-Canada participation on navigation, there has been no evident rise of enthusiasm in official quarters in Ottawa for his kind of operation.

After waiting many years for the U.S. to join in, Canada definitely cooled off on the joint job two years ago and made plans to go ahead alone. It now has its whole setup ready to launch a canal on the Canadian side, and government experts figure this would save $35,000,000 as against a U.S.-side canal that probably would be dug in the event of a joint undertaking.

No Indication Will Resume Peace Talks

Unidentified Nation Go-Between Says Diplomat

PANMUNJOM —(AP)— A United States diplomat disclosed today that he has been feeling out the Reds secretly on resuming the stalled preliminary Korean peace talks, but there has been no indication that the Communists and Allies will return to the conference table.

Kenneth Young of the U.S. state department said the hush-hush negotiations have been handled by a go-between, whom he did not identify. It could be India, Switzerland or Sweden, each of which is represented here.

"From where I sit I can't say when it might be possible to resume the conference," Young said in an interview after the secret negotiations were announced.

The talks broke down Dec. 12 when the Communists accused the U.S. of perfidy. U.S. envoy Arthur Dean demanded a retraction, and ended the six weeks of negotiations after the Reds refused.

Young said Russia's part in a peace conference remains the critical issue. The Reds demand that Russia be seated as a neutral. The U.S. has insisted that Russia either line up with the Communists or attend as a third party bound by conference decisions.

Speaking of chances that the Reds will back down on their charge of perfidy, Young said: "I do not think it is an impossible hurdle."

DATE UNSETTLED

There was no indication when the peace conference, originally scheduled to begin last October, will get under way.

One of its agenda items was to be the disposition of war prisoners, Red and Allied, who refused to go home, but the prisoner issue is almost certain to be settled before a conference begins.

The Communists were expected today to tell the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission how they want unrepatriated prisoners handled after Jan. 22.

The NNRC has asked both sides for guidance on what to do with more than 22,000 PoWs after that date.

On Jan. 4, the United Nations commander, Gen. John E. Hull, said his command refused to accept anything less than the complete freedom of the prisoners beginning Jan. 23.

$36,600,000 Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's exports fell by $36,600,000 during November, nipped by cuts in shipments to the United States, Britain and most other major markets.

Ontario Man Held With Others For Shooting In '48

DETROIT (AP)—Charging four persons with assault with intent to kill and conspiracy, police today cracked open the five-year-old attempted assassination of CIO President Walter Reuther. Wayne county prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien and Detroit police commissioner Donald Leonard announced the charges and the arrest of two of the four at 5:30 a.m. EST. "I am convinced the shooting of Walter Reuther in 1948 has been solved," O'Brien said.

He said a similar attempt on the life of Victor Reuther, brother of Walter in 1949, is still a mystery.

Arrested were:

Carl Renda, 35, a key witness at the Kefauver committee hearing in Detroit.

Clarence Jacobs, 48, of Tecumseh, Ont., who once jumped bond when accused of illegal entry into the United States.

Named in the warrant was Peter Lombardo, 50, already serving sentence at the Terre Haute, Ind., federal penitentiary.

The fourth person named in warrants issued Tuesday was Santo (Sam) Perrone, 56, father-in-law of Renda and a frequently questioned suspect accused by the Kefauver committee of being "a gang-leading strike breaker and enemy of organized labor."

Perrone is being sought by police. O'Brien said he is convinced Perrone was "in Detroit" within the last 24 hours.

O'Brien said he would ask federal authorities to transfer Lombardo to the federal penitentiary at nearby Milan, Mich., to be available for trial.

FOUR "JOHN DOES"

The warrant naming the four also had four "John Does" indicating further arrests.

"This is a solution," O'Brien said, "but it may go further."

Jacobs, owner of a television shop in adjacent Windsor, Ont., was held in Windsor on a fugitive warrant.

Jacobs was slated to appear in Windsor before Judge Albert J. Gordon at 2 p. m. today on an extradition hearing applied for by

Bandits Rob Manager Get Away With $200

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bandits armed with a shotgun and an iron bar held up the manager of the Seven-up Ontario, Ltd., plant on Oxford st. E. Tuesday night and escaped with more than $200.

Charles Ware, 40-year-old district manager, was left lying on the floor, his hands tied behind his back while the pair made their getaway in a car.

In addition to about $200 from the office safe, the thugs took Mr. Ware's wallet containing $12.

S.S. Arrest Man For Theft Treasury Bills

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The secret service today picked up a man they described as a fourth suspect in the $160,000 New Year's Eve theft of new $20 bills from the bureau of engraving.

The service earlier had reported recovery of all but $31,700 of the money.

Charles Howard Nelson, 27, of Chapel Oaks, Md., a Negro, was brought under custody to the field office of the secret service in the treasury early today, the service said.

Nelson was placed under questioning immediately.

Other details were not immediately available.

3 ARRESTED TUESDAY

The case broke open Tuesday with the arrest of a bureau employee, his wife and a soft-spoken little flagpole painter on a tip furnished—after all-night soul searching—by the father of the woman.

The secret service identified Nelson as a cousin of James Rufus Landis, 29, who was held under $50,000 bail following his arrest. Landis was picked up at work at the bureau of engraving, his 26-year-old wife Mamie was arrested at their apartment and a neighbor, William Giles, 27, was the third to be nabbed.

A phone tip was given early Tuesday to Virginia state police by Irving Grant, father of Mrs. Landis. Before the day was over $128,300, in three separate caches —one of $95,000 on Grant's farm—

8th Army Will Resist Attack On Indians

SEOUL (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today warned the Republic of Korea that the 8th army will permit no South Korean attack on Indian forces guarding prisoners-of-war at Panmunjom.

In a blunt two-paragraph statement, Taylor labelled as groundless" South Korea"s' claim that Indian counting of anti-Communist prisoners is illegal.

Will Fight Father's Legal Moves

Hidden Lovers Determined To Wed

EDINBURGH (CP) — Maria Isabella Patino Y Bourbon, still in hiding from her father, today appealed the Bolivian tin magnate's interim injunction preventing her from marrying the man of her choice.

Counsel for the 18-year-old beauty filed the appeal in Edinburgh's Court of Sessions, where it will be heard Thursday. If the appeal is allowed, there will be nothing to prevent Isabella from marrying 20-year-old James Goldsmith, wealthy son of a director of London's plush Savoy hotel.

The couple remained hidden somewhere in snow-covered Scotland. They issued their appeal through Scottish lawyer R. P. Morrison.

Morrison said he held discussions with his clients from their secret hideout. Antenor Patino has been here hunting his daughter with the help of a team of private detectives for the last week. He says his daughter is too young to know her own mind and besides he has half a dozen eligible French suitors lined up for her.

Another reason Patino is fighting the marriage is that his daughter is a Roman Catholic. Goldsmith's father, director of London's plush Savoy Hotel, is Jewish, and his mother a Roman Catholic.

Canny Scots said Jimmy and Isabella, who fell in love at the Coronation last June, could find a way. They said the couple could apply for marriage banns to be read in any one of the 34 churches in Edinburgh's Haymarket area where Jimmy resided the required 15 days. The banns would also have to be read in any of the 34 churches in Edinburgh's Morningside district where Isballa spent 15 days.

Then, 48 hours after the banns were read—one week from today in all—they could be wed by any registrar or minister in Scotland. But the legal position of such a move is open to doubt. One lawyer said: "There has never been anything like this in a Scottish court."

In Scotland, youths over 16 can marry without parental permission. Isabella and Jimmy had qualified for a Scottish marriage permit during their secret stay in the country.

Then her father obtained an injunction preventing the registrar-general for Scotland and two registrars of Edinburgh from issuing the permit.

His plea was that his daughter normally lives in France and is therefore subject to French law—which would not allow her to marry without father's consent until she is 21.

LOVE MAY FIND A WAY—Bolivian heiress, Maria Isabella Patino y Bourbon, 18, and her 20-year-old sweetheart, James Goldsmith, who are hiding in Scotland may yet find a way to marry against the wishes of the girl's father, Antenor Patino. If they publish the banns of marriage in a church they may get married without a license.

1600 B.C. Workers Return To Jobs End 99-Day Strike

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Sawmills hummed with activity in the northern British Columbia interior today [illegible] workers. Another 3,400 men were put out of work by the dispute. A compromise contract formula was reached Tuesday by the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association and the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL). The agreement calls for a general 5½-cent hourly wage increase and an industry-wide maintenance of membership clause, one of the union's key demands.

A union spokesman said the formula was approved by more than 90 per cent of the IWA members.

The union had previously turned down settlement recommendations by judge Arthur E. Lord, appointed as a one-man royal commission by the provincial government.

Judge Lord had approved a six-cent hourly pay increase but had turned down the union's demands for a compulsory check-off. In a sharply-worded statement the judge accused the IWA of "irresponsible" activities during the strike.

SIMILAR INQUIRY

He is slated to conduct a similar inquiry into a 12-week strike of woodworkers in the southern B.C. interior.

The northern workers originally asked for an 18½-cent hourly increase over the basic rate of $1.29½.

An operators' spokesman estimated that $1,000,000 in wages were lost during the strike.

Advises Lower McCarthy's Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem. La.) today said he will invite Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) to tell the Senate whether he uses "rehashed, plagiarized" information in his claimed exposure of Communists in the United States government.

McCarthy, without specifically mentioning Ellender's announced plan to urge that the Senate cut McCarthy's investigating funds "down to size," said that if Democrats win in such a move "it will be the most Pyrrhic victory they ever won . . . a victory in which you destroy yourself."

Informed of McCarthy's remarks, Ellender said "I'm going to oppose not only him, but all". Senate committee chairmen who ask the senate for increased funds. Ellender long has argued that no committee should get more than the $95,000 automatically given it at the start of each congress session.

McCarthy's investigations subcommittee last year had a budget of $200,000 and he has said he will ask for an unspecified increase in 1954.

U.S. Steel Sales Increasing

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumers are showing signs of increasing their orders, which would bring the American steel market out of its year-end doldrums, The Iron Age, national metalworking weekly, said today.

"Steelmakers are counting on renewed buying in the next several weeks to lift the market out of its year-end decline," the weekly said. "It is expected that the January business will be only slightly better than December. But steel people are hopeful that February and March will register gains. If this is to happen, order books should reflect it during the next few critical weeks."

American steel producers have just finished an all-time record year, said Iron Age, and operations are scheduled to advance for the second consecutive week, with the ingot rate estimated at 75 per cent of the new capacity. At the old rate it would have been 80 per cent.

Lakefield Nips Apsley 5-3 In League Opener

Paced by Murray Paterson with two goals and two assists, Lakefield handed Apsley a 5-3 setback to open the East Peterborough Hockey League for these northern towns Tuesday night.

Paterson opened the scoring on a solo effort followed up minutes later by Lakefield's second goal, by Bill Downs, assisted by Delmar and Jim Sloan. That 2-0 lead lasted until the second when Apsley tied the score on goals by Howe, helped by Watson, and by Wagner, assisted by Jeff.

But Lakefield, with Paterson and Hopkins leading the way, rallied again in the third period. Hopkins started the scoring on a pass from Paterson, only to have Watson, helped by Houle, tie the game at three-all.

Paterson, combining with Herb Knox, and the Hopkins, working in with Paterson, scored two more for Lakefield for the victory.

The same teams will return to Lakefield Thursday night for their second meeting.

Urge Prevention For Delinquency

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Welfare Council said Tuesday it is possible to a certain degree to predict which children will become delinquent and urged that a preventative program be established for these children and their parents.

The council, in a brief to the Ontario legislature's select committee on reform institutions, suggested establishment of research projects on the detection of predelinquent children as well as a pilot project for the study of methods of re-education and reform of delinquents.

J. E. Griffin, council spokesman, said Ontario reform institutions have failed to put into practice principles of re-education and reform already tested and proved valuable.

Public interest, he said, has apparently not yet justified the expenditure of even modest amounts of money in what might be called preventative programs for delinquents.

OBITUARIES

GEORGE FALLS

After a lengthy illness, George Falls of Peterborough died Tuesday. He was in his 85th year.

Mr. Falls was borne in Clarke township and educated near Kendall. He was the son of the late James Falls and Margaret Cooper. He lived in Peterborough for 10 years after retiring from his farm in Hamilton township (the Rice lake district).

Left are five sons—Arthur of Toronto; Leonard of London, Ont., Reginald of Port Huron, Mich., Harry of Bewdley and Lewis of England; two brothers—Joseph of Lethbridge and James of South Monaghan. Predeceasing him were his first and second wives, Annie Frostick and Ellen Jane Roberts; also a son Jack.

Mr. Falls was a member of the United Church.

The funeral wil be 3.15 p.m. Friday at the Kaye funeral home, the Rev. H. Kaye officiating. Burial will be at the Boilieboro Union cemetery.

MRS. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN WRIGHT

Just two weeks after her husband died, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Wright, 69, 503 Elm St., died today at her home.

The former Margaret Renetta Northey, she was born in Smith township, daughter of the late William Northey and Kathleen Hatton.

Mrs. Wright was married twice. Her first husband, Peter Cummings, predeceased her some years ago, and her second husband died Dec. 24, 1953.

She lived the last six years in Peterborough and before that in Keene.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Earl Rimbey (Stella), Mrs. Harold Johnston (Ruby), Mrs. Lawrence Calkins (Margaret), Mrs. Elwood Childs (Ella) Mrs. Ed McLeod (Dorothy), and four sons, Herbert, George, Leonard and Gilbert Cummings, all of Alberta, brothers Percy Northey, Toronto, Joseph and Gordon Northey of Peterborough, and John Northey of Mount Julian, and a sister Mrs. West Davis of Young's Point.

Tourist Trade Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Problems and future prospects of Canada's tourist trade will be discussed by hotel and resort owners and operators from across the country at a three-day convention here of the Ontario Hotel Association starting Jan. 18.

Mayor Refuses OAF Request

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton Tuesday opposed in board of control an application by the Ottawa division of the Ontario Alcoholism Foundation to rent quarters in a civic building at a low rate.

She said the province had lib[illegible] endowed the foundation from [illegible] millions [illegible] to pay rent. Miss Whitton also refused to hear Dr. Wallace McKay, secretary of the Ottawa division, when he appeared before the board.

The mayor was pressed for an explanation of her action by Controllers Roy Donaldson and Paul Tardif, who said the foundation was "an excellent and necessary thing."

Miss Whitton said Dr. McKay was also secretary for Alcoholics Anonymous.

"At the police commission," she added, "we call it 'Alcoholics Unanimous.' We have had quite a few pickups after their meetings, too."

The board finally agreed to write the Ontario Health Department for its views on the application.

crown attorney B. J. S. MacDonald.

Police who arrested Jacobs at his Tecumseh home Tuesday night at the request of American authorities said he offered no resistance.

Thirty Detroit policemen headed by senior inspector Paul Slack, who has directed the five-year hunt for Reuther's assailants, were sent out to round up the suspects.

O'Brien did not give out full details of the arrests and filing of the charges.

TWO CRIMINAL COUNTS

The warrants contained two criminal counts. One charged assault with intent to murder, and the other conspiracy to assault with intent to murder.

The first carries a mandatory life imprisonment sentence, the other permits a sentence of five years.

The attempted killing of Reuther, and the attempt also on the life of his brother, Victor, a little more than a year later, defied years of investigation.

TWO ATTACKS SIMILAR

Each of the two CIO unionists was shot at his home by a would-be assassin who fired a shotgun through the window.

Whether it was the same man on both occasions police could never say.

Reuther was shot April 20, 1948. Victor was shot May 24, 1949. Walter lost part of the use of an arm as a result. Victor was blinded in one eye.

At the time Walter blamed "Communists, management or a crackpot." Nothing came out of investigations to support any theory.

Walter Reuther's top union job then was the presidency of the United Auto Workers (CIO). He is still UAW president, and within the last two years has also become president of the CIO.

Today's police announcement came as a surprise to union officials. Frank Winn, the union's public relations officer, said he had had no advance word of it. Reuther was in Atlantic City, N. J.

In 1950 a minor unionist, Carl Bolton, member of a UAW local, was charged with assault in the Walter Reuther shooting. He was brought to trial, but the case, built on circumstancial evidence, folded.

MAY EXTRADITE

WINDSOR (CP) — Crown Attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald of Windsor said today he expects to confer with Detroit authorities concerning the extradition of Clarence Jacobs, one of four men charged in the 1948 shooting of union leader Walter Reuther.

Jacobs, described as the owner of a television store in Tecumseh near Windsor, is held in Windsor police station on a fugitive warrant. He is scheduled to appear before Judge Albert J. Gordon at 2 p. m. today in an extradition hearing.

"I really know very little about the matter at the moment, so I can't speculate on what will take place," said Macdonald.

Police arrested Jacobs at his Tecumseh home Tuesday night at the request of American authorities. They said he offered no resistance. Mr. Macdonald said he will confer with Wayne County (Detroit) prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien.

Jacobs is the lone Canadian among the four named in warrants charging assault with intent to kill and conspiracy.

MAN OF MYSTERY

Jacobs, who is 47, was a mystery to his neighbors in Tecumseh and St. Clair Beach.

He was known to almost everyone in Tecumseh, but his occupation and his source of income remained unknown. Tecumseh residents describe him as 'a very quiet man." Some believed that he owned a barber shop in Windsor, while others said he was in the television business in the city.

In St. Clair Beach, where Jacobs lived for several summers in a sumptuous lakefront cottage, there were rumors that he could not go to Detroit for some reason. Otherwise, he was regarded as just another summer resident.

3 Arrested at Gunpoint

TORONTO (CP) — Three men were arrested at gun point today by suburban North York police and a fourth escaped under fire.

The arrests and shooting followed a tip which brought five police cruisers to a Dufferin street lumber yard. Police said they found the men hiding among the lumber. The fourth man scaled a six-foot fence in escaping.

Iranians Thwart Assassination Plot

TEHRAN (Reuters) — Iranian military authorities said today that they have thwarted a Communist assassination plot against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi's mother with the arrest of 50 members of the outlawed Tudeh party.

The authorities said two kegs of dynamite, intended to kill the shah's mother, were found in Tehran's main railroad station shortly before her scheduled arrival there.

Meantime, police redoubled their hunt for underground Communists of the Tudeh party. The leftists have been showing increased signs of activity in preparation for parliamentary elections late in January.

Urge RC's Keep To Own Schools

OTTAWA (CP) — Roman Catholics have been urged to send their children to convents and colleges of their own faith until more Catholic high schools are set up in Ontario.

The recommendation came in a statement issued Tuesday by Gaston Vincent, Ottawa lawyer and

Mr. Vincent issued the statement in connection with a report that two nuns in a non-denominational high school at Hawkesbury now are concealing their crucifixes under their habits.

The nuns normally wear them on top of their habits, but made the change following protests from parents of non-Catholic minority children attending the school.

Mr. Vincent denied that Education Minister Dunlop had ordered the two members of the Grey Nuns of the Cross to conceal or remove their crucifixes while in class.

He said Mr. Dunlop had only informed the Hawkesbury school board of the "pressure" brought by the Protestant minority in Hawkesbury.

had been recovered. The charge against them was taking money from the federal government.

GIRL QUIZZED

The secret service also announced it had picked up a young woman in Washington early today and was questioning her about reports that she accompanied Nelson, Landis and Giles on a money spending tour of Baltimore and Washington over the week-end. Her name was not given.

Additionally, an announcement from the office of secret service chief U. E. Baughman said another man is being sought in or near Washington and "it is expected that he will be taken into custody later today."

SAY MAN BEATEN

The announcement said the man still being sought is also a cousin of Landis. It said he and Nelson were arrested early today and charged by Prince Georges, Md., county police with severely beating a man whom they accused of informing police they had spent some of the stolen money.

Nelson, a tall, huskily built man, was arraigned in Prince Georges county on the assault charge, with bail fixed at $5,000 and was then turned over to the secret service for questioning.

Officials said Landis admitted stealing 8,000 new $20 bills. The dummy packages weren't discovered until the long new year's week-end was over.

"I did it for the future of my family," said Giles. "I can't give them all the things I want to give them."

TEMPLE LIVED HIGH

What became of the missing $31,700?

Chief U. E. Baughman of the secret service said he doesn't think it was all spent—though the Landises lived high between New Year's Eve and the time of their arrest five days later, buying among other things a large 1953 car.

"It is possible," Baughman told reporters, "that a fourth person took part in the theft and received a good share of the remaining money."

U.K. Will Help Says Butler

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—R. A. Butler, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, told Australians today that Britain is willing to help them by greater investment in their country "but we are not an out-and-out fairy godfather."

Butler arrived today for the Commonwealth finance ministers' conference which opens Friday.

At a press conference, reporters asked him about the chance of more British investment in capital-hungry Australia. He replied: "We are going to take risks and try to help."

"We are a pretty willing friend. But we are not an out-and-out fairy godfather."

He said Britain wants to put money into constructive projects in all commonwealth countries.

Mine Owners Negotiate With Strikers

TIMMINS (CP) — Negotiations opened today between officials of the Coniaurum Gold Mine and United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), aimed at settling a strike at the mine.

[illegible] was a meeting between the union and officials of Delnite mine.

Coniaurum's 267 miners struck Oct. 26 to back the union's drive for higher wages and a checkoff of union dues in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec mines. The strike at Delnite, which employs 276 men, was called Aug. 26.

Eight gold mines in the Timmins area were struck along with four base metal producers in the Rouyn-Noranda, Que., area.

ONLY ONE SETTLED

So far settlement has been reached only at the Hollinger mine, where the 1,500 men now are back at work.

It was hoped the Hollinger settlement would provide a pattern for settlement of disputes at the seven other Timmins area mines. The 18-month agreement provided an hourly increase of five cents but did not include the checkoff.

Gold mines still struck are: Preston East Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Broulan Reef, Aunor, Hallnor, Coniaurum and Delnite.

Negotiations were opened during the week-end between McIntyre officials and the union. Further talks have been tentatively scheduled for Tuesday.

At Noranda Tuesday, Noranda Mines Ltd., in a message to strikers and their families, said it will not go beyond its offer of a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour.

256 Cement Poles Bowled Over By Cars

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto hydro reported that 256 of its best cement hydro poles were bowled over by cars in 1953—including one that was hit three times.

"One driver even phoned to accuse us of putting a car-attracting magnet in each pole," said a company spokesman.

It costs $108.67 to replace each pole but in most cases the motorists who knocked them down were found liable.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 17-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Tuesday's noon rate was 97 13-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.74, against $2.73⅞.

New Tests For Entrance To Universities Needed

PORT HOPE (ENS)—Delegates from all over Canada, attending a conference here of the Headmasters' Association of Canadian Independent Schools, heard discussions on the qualification requirements of candidates in which dissatisfaction was expressed with current or present requirements at Canadian universities.

Chairman was the president, P. A. C. Ketchum, [illegible] Port Hope. The delegates assembled Monday evening and the conference got under way Tuesday, concluding in the evening. The Rev. Dr. C. W. Sowby, principal of Upper Canada College, Toronto, was elected president of the association of headmasters, for the coming year.

Dr. W. A. McIntosh, principal of Queen's University, told the meeting that Canadian universities want candidates who have not only developed skill, but have also shown excellence in basic qualities which are not always disclosed in the present type of subjective examinations.

INTELLECTUAL AMBITION

"There is a real need for an intellectual ambition, a high level of literacy and the beginnings of independent standards of truth and accuracy in university students today," Dr. McIntosh said. Independent thinking and analytical thought, is a sign of maturity which should be expected in university students, and it is preferable to a merely "bright" intellect. Mastery of subject matter is not as important as a "stretching of the mind", precision in thinking and power of intellect, he said.

Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, said that no one in his university is entirely satisfied with the present means of selecting students and a committee in the university is now making an exhaustive enquiry in the matter. He outlined what he described as many discrepancies in the admission requirements among the Canadian universities at present.

The educational viewpoint in the United States, was outlined by Henry Chauncey of Princeton, N.J. president of the Educational Testing Service. He said that the objective tests presently in vogue in the United states have proved valuable in predicting university success.

These tests, he said, could be administered simply and are fair to students from all types of academic backgrounds. He said that this type of test eliminates "cramming" is speedily corrected and affords university admission boards further time for deliberation The tests also made possible a wide sampling of subject matter and a careful planning of the examinations themselves. They can be used to measure any quality [illegible] and need not be concerned solely with facts and memory work, he said.

Speaking on the same tests, Dr. W. J. Bender, Dean of Admission, Harvard College, said that they revealed aptitude or the lack of it, for further academic work and enabled the universities to select candidates on the basis of ability rather than achievement on a set curriculum. However the tests fall down in that they do not so far measure motivation or maturity.

Arthur Millikin of Simsbury, Conn., president of the American Headmasters' Association, said that the tests were satisfactory in most respects but still did not show whether the student was a worker or could write capably.

Other speakers were Frank Bowles, New York City, Director College Board; Dr. C. A. Brown, Toronto, registrar Ontario Department of Education; Dr. Francis Parkman, Boston, Sec. National Council of Independent Schools; T. H. Matthews, Montreal, registrar of McGill; M. St. A. Woodside, Toronto, dean of University of Toronto; Kenneth Lindsay, London, Eng., formerly member of parliament for the combined universities of England and F. R. Weed of Boston.

Fire In Paint Shop

Niggling At Neatby

Since the appearance of Dr. Hilda Neatby's book So Little For The Mind the editorial columns of the Ottawa Citizen have carried a number of comments upon it which seek to show that Dr. Neatby has been unfair, exaggerated and personal in what she has said about Canadian education. This seems to us to be a waste of time, and below the usual high standards of Citizen comment. Of course Dr. Neatby has been unfair, exaggerated and personal. Does she not call her book "an indictment"? In saying that Dr. Neatby has not written gospel the Citizen is wasting its time without in the slightest diminishing the value of what Dr. Neatby has written—which is first-rate polemic.

* * *

Dr. Neatby is a Canadian, and therefore she knows that the only way to work up a controversy on an important subject in this country is to go at it hammer and tongs, using every device of unfair exaggeration and personal prejudice; Canadians are a lethargic people, and when somebody who has been attacked puts up a plea that the attack has been 'unfair' it usually means that he is too lazy to answer it properly, and wants to go back to sleep. The only way to get him to wake up and come into the open is to hit him again. Intellectual constipation, which afflicts so many elements in our land, is nowhere more evident than in our Departments of Education.

* * *

Dr. Neatby's book has plenty of flaws and some inaccuracies. To expose these is not to dispose of the book. For that book has one quality which makes it important, and that quality is the unmistakeable ring of truth.

* * *

This is not to say that Canadian education at present is worthless and corrupt, and must immediately be displaced by something else. Quite obviously Canadian education is not worthless and corrupt, and is, in certain respects, working well. But it has grave faults, and many people think that these faults lie along the lines which Dr. Neatby has pointed out in her strong indictment. She has annoyed many educators (though some have found her book congenial reading) but she has delighted many parents—who are, after all, also parties to education.

* * *

If anyone thinks that Dr. Neatby exaggerates in her condemnation of the 'social engineering' which now goes on in many schools, let us recall a questionnaire which was given to some Peterborough children not long before Christmas. It asked such questions as: Are you happy at home? Is there anyone there you particularly dislike? Which member of your class do you like best? Like least? And other questions of the same tendency, which we consider uhdesirable. A good teacher knows what is necessary about her pupils, without this kind of prying.

* * *

Nobody, including Dr. Neatby, is trying to pull Canadian education about our ears. Quite a few people think that it includes elements which are undesirable, or which could be bettered. Merely attempting to discredit Dr. Neatby because she has painted her picture in primary colours does nothing to dispose of the issues she has raised. And to call her book 'The Neatby Report on Education' as the Citizen does, is to falsify its intention: it is not a report but an indictment.

Strange Claim To Fame

Part of the news of the holiday season was a report of the death of James Leo Connelly, better known as One-Eyed Connelly, at the age of 84. He was famous as a gate-crasher, and claimed to have entered every important sporting event since the Corbett-Fitzsimmons match in 1897 without paying. He practised his strange art not only in the U.S.A. but in Europe and Australia, and we can recall a McGill-Queen's match in the 'twenties which was enlivened by a rumour that Connelly had crept past the gate-keepers.

His method was usually one of impersonation. He would appear at the gate of a sports arena carrying a ladder, a bucket, a chunk of ice, a basket of candy or some other convincing property which suggested that he was employed or needed inside; usually he got past the guards without trouble. But not always; at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight he was thrown out of 13 of the 15 entrances, but made his entry at last carrying a pail of coffee and a basket of sandwiches.

During recent years Connelly worked as an usher at Wrigley field, where the World's Series is played; but one day in 1945 he stopped a man who was making his way to a box seat and demanded his name. "P. K. Wrigley, Jr.", said the man, and produced a card to show that he was owner of the Chicago Cubs. "That's for the birds", retorted Connelly, and tried to throw him out. That was the end of his career as an usher.

[illegible] achieve fame as a gate-crasher, but there was a boldness about Connelly which appealed to the popular imagination. He did what all of us have wanted to do at some time — he went where he pleased without bothering over formalities like tickets. A strange claim to fame, but a valid one. We wonder if he entered the Pearly Gates carrying a harp-repair case.

The Fuzziest End Any War Ever Had

The war in Korea has been in the process of ending for two years. The armistice that finally put a stop to the firing was signed on July 27th. It was only an armistice, a cessation of hostilities, pending peace or a resumption of the war. Neither has happened, and, as seems likely now, neither will come about.

The armistice terms called for a neutral repatriation commission to deal with the vexing prisoner-of-war issue. The commission was constituted, and its work was to end on January 22nd, following the interviews of the prisoners by the two sides, controlled by the commission. The interviews were to end last December 23rd. They were not completed. The remaining unpatriated prisoners in U.N.-U.S. hands—that is, the great majority—will probably be released to civilian status on the 22nd of this month. Thus that matter will be settled by default.

Meanwhile, the armistice commissioners at Panmunjom reached a stalemate, and the U.S. walked out of the conference tent, probably for good and all. No political settlement is therefore in sight.

Meanwhile, no international agreement seems to be in the offing, no U.N. disposal of the matter, even though the action in Korea against the Reds was taken nominally by and for U.N. A special session of the U.N. Assembly may be called in February, but what can that accomplish?

Thus has the Korean war ended, not with a bang but a whimper.

The fact is that no settlement can be reached without conference among the four greatest nations, and at "the highest level". The four which alone can decide the Korean war, and that only in relation to other spheres of conflicting interests are: the United States, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom—and the People's Republic of China.

Germany Resurgent

Eight years after her utter defeat Germany was again upright and strong, the most vital nation in Europe of the West. This is a triumph of German work, skill and force—and American money. The resurgence of Germany in so short a time has been hailed by the Americans with pleasure amounting to gratification. When the Chancellor of West Germany, Dr. Adenauer, visited Arlington National Cemetery last year, where illustrious American generals are buried, also thousands of American soldiers killed in two wars waged against Germans, the band followed the Stars and Stripes with Deutschland Uber Alles ('Germany Over All') the old German national anthem. One wonders if the favour which Germany now finds in the U.S. accrues because Germany has become democratic, more like the U.S., or because the U.S. has become more like Germany?

New Book On The Trent Valley

We have received word from Mr. Edwin C. Guillet, the Upper Canada historian, of a new publication which should be of considerable interest to Peterborough and district readers. The estimable Champlain Society, whose scholarly editions of original historical texts are landmarks in Canadian historical studies, is to publish a volume on the Valley of the Trent. The Society has asked Mr. Guillet to edit it. The interest of the Champlain Society in the Trent stems, of course, from Champlain's journey from Georgian Bay through the Kawarthas and the Trent in the autumn of 1615, when Champlain, a small band of Frenchmen and a Huron war party disastrously invaded the country of the Onondagas, near the present Syracuse, New York state.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Perhaps you can learn more by listening than by talking but most of it is gloomy evidence of how little other people know.

An article in The Canadian Doctor says that as far as germs are concerned, it is better to be kissed than to be sneezed or coughed at. They won't work up much of an argument over that.

Hats In Heat

By HUGH LATIMER

BEFORE the Second World War no white man would go out in the tropical sun without a heavy, off-white, coalscuttle topee on his head. There were two types of this headgear, an Indian and an African. The Indian was light, known by its English name "pith helmet," and swathed in yards of cotton cloth. The African was heavier, known by the [illegible] shape of a shovel, no doubt to prevent tree-insects falling down the neck.

If one did not wear one of these things, the story went, one would be felled by sunstroke. This myth was left over from the days of early colonisation in the tropics, when Europeans used to wear far too many clothes, and so became easily overheated. Macaulay dressed in Calcutta just as he did in London. Livingstone tramped the monotonous dry forests of Central Africa in a tunic tightly buttoned up to the neck.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MILITARY, who preserved the status of the topee for so long, dealt it its death-blow in the last war. All that was needed, the troops found, was an open neck, plenty of water and salt, not too much square-bashing (drill), and any old hat would do.

✧ ✧ ✧

TODAY the topee is a local survival only. Governors and High Commissioners wear it, heavily plumed, on official occasions, though for some of these, for instance emerging from an aeroplane in a high wind for an official reception, it is felt that a better headgear could be designed. The White Fathers, Catholic missionaries, combine the topee with sweeping white clerical gowns and impressive beards; one may find them so garbed driving mud-stained lorries in all parts of tropical Africa. In South Africa, topees survive only on the edge of the Antarctic Ocean, on the heads of cheeky coloured telegraph messenger boys in Cape Town. Baganda clerks sometimes wear them in Kampala, Uganda, where, however, the topee is associated with a rather spivvish type, rather as "Anthony Eden" hats are now associated in England with commercial travellers.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONLY ONCE have I seen the topee's inherent dignity fully exploited. On the railway line which meanders up through Kikuyuland, the heart of the Mau Mau country, in Kenya, there is a station whose name is unremembered. Its stationmaster, a magnificent Anglo-Indian who must have weighed at least 200 pounds dressed in white pith-helmet and spotless white bush-jacket and long trousers, epitomised to me all the pride of status of the Indian Raj. He condescended to take a green flag in a sunburnt hand and wave it imperially. "Let the Express go through!" That was a sahib.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHAT of the other hats of Africa? In South Africa the Afrikaner Boer wear the veld hat, tall of crown, felt, and with a broad brim. But then the African native started to wear it, too, and the Afrikaner in town and countryside has taken to the so-called "English hat." This is a trilby with a very small brim, which sits ill on the heavy, severe Boer face. Nevertheless, it has become the typical wear of the white South African, the most hated nation on earth, according to statistics. The real modern English hat, with a rounder crown and curled, almost Edwardian brim, is to be seen only occasionally in South Africa, but it is known in Johannesburg, where it is worn by stockbrokers and directors of gold companies.

The African native of South Africa has progressed from the Boer hat to the ten-gallon Stetson or any other American style which comes along. Only a few wear the "English hat"; they are the safe, marrying types, according to an African lady journalist writing in the African magazine "Drum" to advise young girls how to recognize the African male wolf.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE AFRICAN GIRLS themselves prefer a beret, of all styles the least suited to their closely-cropped woolly heads. A black built-up affair, reminiscent of the hats of pre-war London charladies, is also in vogue. In tropical Africa the women have less money but more taste, using various kinds of bandana, of which the Nigerian is the most sumptuous.

The Rhodesian hat is a national emblem, worn by both white men and black. It is an ordinary trilby with a very wide brim, made in England for the Rhodesian market. Sir Godfrey Huggins, Prime Minister of the Central African Federation, invariably wears one of these. Rhodesian women, though somewhat shaken by the "Princess Style" during the recent tour of the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, adopt a feminine version of the Huggins hat—generally a sweeping white hat with an extravagant brim. Rhodesian schoolchildren and toddlers wear a uniform grey felt, with narrow brim, and graduate to a wide one when they leave school.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN KENYA, the broadbrimmed hat is also common, but not so frequent as in Rhodesia. The Kenya settler is Catholic in his hats, but he likes them battered. A local headgear is affected by the White Hunter, of whom several can always be found in the area between the New Stanley bar and the Avenue Hotel, Nairobi. In this variation, a strip of leopardskin replaces the ordinary hat-ribbon. Lionskin is sometimes used because leopard-skin is becoming scarce and has to be imported from neighbouring Ethiopia. This hat is growing in popularity; I have seen several Kenya Indians wearing it.

The Belgian, Portuguese and Italians in Africa once wore the topee, but the younger colonials now prefer a cloth hat, of the kind worn on Mediteranean beaches. Nylon is the favourite material, and cream, khaki or pink the favourite colour. As it is generally worn with sun-glasses it gives the Latin settler the appearance of a tourist seeking, rather successfully, a good time.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE STRAW "BOATER" survives in Nigeria, where it has become part of the national costumes of the Itsekiri tribe. The influence of the Arab slave-raiders is seen in the fez worn by all the African waiters north of the Limpopo River, whether they are muslims or not.

What of the future? Will the topee ever return? It is possible.

In Africa, the days of open-air, free-and-easy colonial clothes are numbered. Already in the Union of South Africa, it is a social error to be seen without worsted or tweed jacket in a town, however hot the weather. Mr. Jacobus Gideon Nel Strauss, Leader of the Opposition, always wears a tweed coat and waistcoat in the height of summer. Collar and tie have advanced northward and conquered Salisbury, capital of Southern Rhodesia. Every month they are consolidating their hold on Bulawayo and Lusaka, on Kampala and Nairobi. Soon every respectable person, white or black, will be enclosed in thick clothing up to the neck. When that happens, heat-stroke will claim its victims in hundreds once more, and to ward off the sun, the topee will come into its own again.

Letters To The Editor

THE GOLD MINERS

SIR: Our attention has been called to the leading editorial in your edition of December 28th dealing with the Northern Ontario gold mine strikes. While we fully recognize the right of any publication to hold and express such views as it cares to there is, surely, a responsibility to maintain some measure of accuracy as to facts.

Your editorial states: "The wages of gold miners are already higher than the average paid in Ontario." This statement is in direct contradiction to figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. DBS figures for July 1, 1953, give the average wage in gold mining as $1.33 an hour. This compares with an average of $1.36 an hour in manufacturing where there is a considerable proportion of female employees; $1.70 in other metal mining; $1.70½ in the basic steel industry; and $1.71 in the automobile industry.

In the light of these figures it is difficult to understand the source of your statement that these miners are earning $5,000 to $6,000 a year. It is true that the mines are still on a 48-hour week; but, according to the average hourly rate reported by the government, it would be necessary for them to work a 70-hour week to attain such an income.

In fairness to the men and women who are engaged in this struggle to better wages and working conditions we would ask that you make this information available to your readers.

Yours truly,
JACK WILLIAMS,
Publicity Director,
Toronto. United Steelworkers of America.

OUR ABYSMAL IGNORANCE

SIR: In your article "No bonus for the gold miners," in the Examiner edition of December 29, 1953, you mentioned "good workmen" in gold mines who earn between five (5) and six (6) thousand dollars a year.

The Labour Gazette of September, 1953, gives the average weekly earnings of gold miners as $62.32 for a 46.4 hour week. The "good workmen" whom you appear to know must supplement their earnings by some sort of part time labour such as bootlegging, pandering, or highgrading.

As for your tirade against the United Steelworkers of America, your gripe is common to publishers throughout the country. When a few strong Unions move into your district you are compelled to dig down and pay your help something more than they formerly received.

Further, your remark that "the strikers won little sympathy or support from other people in the province" can only be credited to your abysmal ignorance of the amount of financial support that has been, and is being given, to organized labour in this province.

The sympathy you mention was never asked for from the people of this province, but the Conciliation Boards set up in conformity with the laws of this province were sympathetic to the miners.

The Premier of Ontario recommended a settlement which both he and the Minister of Labour felt was fair and just.

Apparently, you as well as the mine owners, from your seats on Mount Olympus, feel that the representatives of the people of this province are erring in their judgement as well.

Sincerely,
F. J. BURRETT,
President,
Local 5009, U.S.W.A.
Peterborough, Ontario.

ED. NOTE: The information upon which our editorial was based came from a source we have no reason to doubt—disinterested persons living at the scene of the strike. The Economic Review of Ontario, published under authority of Premier Frost, gives average mineworkers pay in three chief gold mining areas of Northern Ontario as $61.86, $76. 57 and $80.23 weekly. The average industrial wage in Ontario is given as $61.69. These figures appear in the issue of November, 1953, and are as of September 1st, 1953.

Put and Take

(Fort William Times-Journal)

A story is told of an Arabian sheik. At his death, he left his property, 17 camels, to his three sons, stating that the eldest son was to receive one-half of them, the second son a third and the youngest a ninth. Since fractions of camels are almost worthless, an elder of the tribe solved the difficulty of the three sons; he added a camel of his own to make 18. Then the camels were divided among the sons, one received nine, as half the total, the second received six, the youngest two. The one camel that remained was returned to the elder of the tribe; it had served its purpose.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder. And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy. Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

And he went a little further, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.

And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak.

He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, thy will be done. And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.

And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words. Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. (Matt. 26:36-45.)

The Place of Our Railways

(Ottawa Journal)

What this all adds up to is that Canada's two great railways, run by men of ability and vision, are providing and planning for this country a transportation service as fine as any on this continent or anywhere in the world, and one which is vital to this country's growth. Take away Canada's two railways, or take away their efficient operation, and despite all that we have in air service and truck service and all the automobiles we possess, the country's prosperity would perish. Not in all the world is there a country where railway transportation is more vital.

This, as clear as crystal, should give us thought; more thought than is now evident. Our railways, no matter what the other consequences, cannot be left to operate, or to try to operate, under conditions which cannot provide them with reasonable profit from efficient operation.

To expect less than this, to impose conditions which must mean less than this, is to trifle with the nation's prosperity.

The Liberated Mind

(New York Times)

President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard has an answer to those who say that institutions of the higher learning ought to tell their students what to think. Dr. Pusey, addressing a meeting of New England educators, said that the job of universities is "to educate free, independent and vigorous minds capable of analyzing events, of exercising judgement, of disinguishing facts from propaganda and truth from half-truth and lies."

This principle ought to be hammered home. It ought to be understood on campuses and everywhere else. We are in no danger now or ever, of too much thinking. The danger lies in the peanut-sized brain and the foghorn-sized voice—and then only if we put them in positions of power. The cure is more education, not less.

Plan Commonwealth Court To Rule On Major Disputes

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Canada may soon be asked to join in the setting up of a supra-national court to rule on disputes within the Commonwealth.

The "Commonwealth court" is the dream of a short brisk Labor member of Parliament, Hector Hughes, known as the Irishman with the Welsh name who sits for a Scots constituency, he hopes that his plan will come up for consideration during the present session of the Commons.

He has w[illegible] Churchill [illegible] discussion of the motion and has received a reply assuring him it is being studied by the government.

Canada ruled out appeals to the Privy Council with a bill passed Oct. 11, 1949, making the Supreme Court of Canada the ultimate authority of domestic affairs.

Hughes hopes to have the chief justices of self-governing Commonwealth states nominate their ablest jurists to serve on the court. He has no preferences as to the size of the body.

"It should, of course, be an odd number," he said in an interview, "perhaps five, seven or nine."

[illegible] court would sit in [illegible] member countries as required.

Hughes said that, while he hopes it would hear and determine appeals from the supreme courts, it would play a greater role in deciding disputes between members such as might arise over common roads, bridges or hydro - electric projects.

He offered as a theoretical example a dispute that might arise between the Union of South Africa and the neighboring Central African Federation over power from the Zambezi falls.

Another role he outlined in a recent letter to the Manchester Guardian:

"A true Commonwealth court is highly desirable as a practical link and as providing an opportunity for the comprehensive and scientific exposition of law at the highest level. Goodwill could, indeed, thus shape theory to facts and utility."

JOCKO, the bald eagle found exhausted on the ice in upper Michigan and nursed back to health with rabbit meat and whiskey, stretches his wings in Washington's National Zoological Park after a flight (by commercial airliner) to the U.S. capital. The bird, which has a wing spread of more than six feet, was given to the zoo through the efforts of a Michigan congressman.

Old-Time Whistle Still Haunts North Railways

NORTH BAY (CP)—The plaintive, echoing wail of the old steam locomotive is still heard across Ontario's northland even though modern diesels now pull most trains of the Ontario Northland Railway.

A. Freeman, general manager of the 450-mile line which runs from North Bay to Moosonee on the shores of James bay, said [illegible] the United [illegible] Canada in getting back to the old locomotive whistle.

Most diesel-equipped lines, including the ONR, have complied with a 1951 board of transport commissioners order to replace the "foghorn" type of whistle with which the diesels came equipped with one that simulated the old steam whistle.

The action came after many people said the diesel horns didn't carry far enough and besides, they missed the far-carrying wail of the old steam locomotive.

Mr. Freeman, commenting on reports Monday from Columbus, O., that the New York Central Railway only now is getting around to replacing the diesel horns, said it was done long ago on the ONR. To do it engineers had to perfect five differently-toned air horns which, when blasted together, simulate the old steam whistle.

In making his comment Mr. Freeman blew up one northern myth that the diesel horns attracted mating bull moose to the tracks to challenge the diesel engines.

That's all that story ever was, he said—a myth.

Bargain Trip

PRINE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Harold Hellough, an engineer for Queen Charlotte Airlines Company repaired a small airplane which had been lying on the beach for a year after a crackup. He made a 6,000-mile flight across Canada in it at a cost of $120.

Injured Pianist Two Men Jailed

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A Christmas Eve fireworks prank that ruined the career of a concert pianist Tuesday brought 15-day jail terms to Vasil Wosilenko, 24, and Frank Zagar, 23. The men, both worked on the Queenston hydro project, also were ordered to pay costs of $19.50.

Evidence was that the men made fireworks from explosives detonators and tossed them on the steps of a hut. The pianist, John Kusiks, 35, picked up one which exploded in his grasp, shattering his right hand.

Kusiks suffered permanent injury to the hand, the court was told. He had studied piano 16 years in Latvia and was working for the hydro to establish himself in Canada and learn English before resuming his musical career.

Church Calls Too Low For Young Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto west presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Tuesday refused to approve a church's call to a minister because it said the salary offered was too small.

The salary suggested by Parkdale Presbyterian church in a call to Rev. T. E. Black of Toronto was $4,200, including rent and car allowance. Presbytery officials said this would mean less than $3,000 in cash.

"How can you ask a young man to live on such a small salary?" asked Rev. H. D. Stewart. "We cannot see young ministers ground down like that."

The presbytery sent the call back to the church for redrafting.

Theft Charges Made After Card Game

KITCHENER (CP)—Theft charges laid against two men in connection with the transfer of $300 during a card game in Waterloo were dismissed Tuesday after restitution was arranged.

After the case the two, Ernest Delaney, Windsor, and Nicholas Lebano, Cornwall, were rearrested to be handed over to Hamilton police to face fraud charges.

Judge D. S. Charlton dismissed the theft charges after stating that he believed the money may have been obtained from Frederick Morell of Waterloo as a loan.

Intend Licensing Plot Salesmen

TORONTO (CP)—A system of licensing cemetery plot salesmen in an effort to end the present wide-open, door-to-door selling of plots, was predicted Tuesday by James N. Allan, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Haldimand-Norfolk.

Mr. Allan, chairman of the legislature's select committee on cemeteries, also suggested provincial inspection of the books of cemetery companies.

James H. Edwards, representing the Memorial Gardens Association which operates 13 garden-type cemeteries in Canada, agreed that regulation of salesmen would eliminate phases of present selling methods not liked by the public.

INTRODUCING HIGH SCHOOL COACHES—There's a number of major changes this season in the collegiate basketball scene in Peterborough. In the six main teams in PCVS, St. Peter's High and Kenner, there will be three newcomers on the coaching scene. Introducing this season's coaches ,they are (left to right), John Lynch of St. Peter's, Art Currie of PCVS, Hilly Yudin, St. Peter's senior coach, Zoltan Temesy, PCVS senior Garnet and Grey coach, Ken Wass of Kenner, and Bev Goulding of PCVS. Port Hope Takes A 4-1 Win Over Lakefield Squad

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—In one of the best hockey games seen in Lakefield Arena since it was built, Port Hope Redmen defeated Lakefield Lumbermen 4-1 last night in an OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore fixture before nearly 600 enthusiastic fans. The tilt was lightning-fast all the way with the visitors capitalizing better on their scoring chances, Lakefield's lack of practise hurting them, but the northerners will be at it hard from here in and should be very tough to beat.

The first frame was scoreless with both goals in great form. Just two penalties were handed out, McKeen of Ports for high-sticking and Gooley of Lakefield for slashing. The Lumbermen notched a goal early in the second, Floyd taking a pass from McCracken on a play with Dean Wasson to light the lamp. Racine tied it later from Turner and Hogan. Ports went up then on Freeman's breakaway goal with Hogan's pass. The Vitarelli pack drew three penalties this frame for tripping as Lakefield got one for elbowing.

CARRIED PLAY

Cam Wasson's crew carried play through the speedy third heat in an attempt to sew it up, thereby leaving Goalie Harding not too much protection as they ganged up. But Lakefield's gift to Port Hope, Goalie Red Wasson, was brilliant, time and again kicking out redhot thrusts from all angles and in close, too. He was bombarded with rubber, but kept coolly picking them off, screened shots, also. Harding, without the same protection, stopped half a dozen clean breakaway stabs by two and three men, but finally, Ports got two goals on breakaways, Douglas from Buckton first, and then Buckton from McKeen to ruin a great game.

The final minutes of play saw most of the action on Red's doorstep, though Ray had several more breakaways to halt also. Six penalties were handed out, four to Port Hope and two to Lakefield in a fray well handled by Referee Doug Calhoun and Linesman Bun Kingdon. Teams:

Port Hope — Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Douglas, Hay; centre, McKeen; wings, Freeman, Racine; alternates, Turner, Medhurst, Fennell, Robinson, Hogan, Evans, Buckton.

Lakefield—Goal, Harding; defence, D. Wasson, Richlark; centre, McCracken; wings, Floyd, N. Wasson; alternates, Wilson, Birch, Gooley, Sabatino, Hunter, C. Wasson, Caravaggie, Hopkins.

Referee, D. Calhoun. Linesman, B. Kingdon.

The summary:

FIRST PERIOD

No score.

Penalties—McKeen, Gooley.

SECOND PERIOD

Lakefield—Floyd (McCracken, D. Wasson) 1:53

Port Hope—Racine (Turner, Hogan) 7:30

Port Hope—Freeman (Hogan) 10:11

Penalties—Hogan, Wilson, Turner, Douglas.

THIRD PERIOD

Port Hope—Douglas (Buckton) 14:28

Port Hope—Buckton (McKeen) 15:11

Penalties — Caravaggie, Fennel, Buckton, Hogan, Douglas, Floyd.

Famous Baseball Player Dies In N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, 61, rated as one of the greatest fielding shortstops in baseball history and a member of the 1914 "miracle" Boston Braves, died Tuesday night of a heart attack.

Death came to the little man, who started his major-league career with the Braves in 1912 and wound up with the same club in 1935, at his home in New York.

In between the times he played with the Braves he was a member of Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals. He managed the Braves briefly during the 1925 season and again for a short period in 1929.

WOUND UP CAREER

After breaking a leg in a 1934 spring exhibition game, the Rabbit wound up his major-league career the following year. But before bowing out of baseball altogether he took a fling at managing Montreal Royals in the International League.

In late years, Maranville had been active in baseball as director of the New York Journal-American's sandlot program.

Maranville was an important cog on the 1914 Boston team, which came from last place on July 4 to win the National League title and then defeat Philadelphia Athletics in four straight games in the world series.

Bata Gets Victory

STIRLING (ENS)—In the Trent Valley Hockey League last night Bata defeated Trenton by a score of 3-2. The game was played at Frankford arena.

In the first period Bata had six penalties and Trenton two.

The scorers for Batawa were Cook, Mits and Farmer, the final goal being scored by Farmer during the last half of the third period.

Trenton scored both goals in the first period.

These teams meet again Friday night in Trenton.

Collegiate Basketball Grows With New Coaches, Teams

New faces in players and coaches, plus several more schools making their debut in high school basketball, are expected to give the sport added impetus this season. The most noticeable change isn't in the players or schools but in the shift of coaches, a mixture of tried and untried men with experience in college and collegiate teams.

The major changes are in the senior quintets at PCVS and at St. Peter's High School where the usual senior coaches have stepped down to develop the younger boys.

G. B. (Bev) Goulding, Garnet and Grey coach for the past decade, this year is handling the bantam and midget PCVS quintets, believing the basketball system at the collegiate needs instruction most among the beginners.

JUNIOR SUCCESS

His place at the senior reins has been filled by Zoltan Temesy, last year's junior coach. He took his juniors to the COSSA finals last year before losing out to St. Catharines. Since most of the juniors moved to senior this season, Mr. Temesy moved up too, to keep the quintet intact.

This left a gap in the junior coaching rank and immediately a newcomer, Art Currie, stepped in. A University of Toronto grad, Mr. Currie comes to PCVS with two years of coaching experience, handling the senior team in Walaceburg during his first years of teaching.

Meanwhile at St. Peter's High, Coach John Lynch, senior Saints' coach since basketball returned there several years ago, is spending his time this season with the junior and bantam teams. Like Coach Goulding he hopes to develop these younger lads, giving them a good basketball foundation.

To fill his place, Hilly Yudin, whose hidden talent is basketball, volunteered to help the Saints and immediately the Saints accepted the offer of this experienced coach.

PLAYED IN U.S.

Yudin played basketball in the United States, first with the University of Pittsburgh and then with Washington-Jefferson College. His first coaching assignment was with Catholic High, in Johnstown, Penn., then with the Johnstown YMHA and YMCA, then with Johnstown Cambria Rowe Business College.

Coming to Canada, the popular theatre manager first coached in Toronto and St. Catharines, finally taking over the girls intermediate quintet in Peterborough.

The other major change in basketball coaching is at Kenner Collegiate where all coaches from last year have moved to other schools or dropped out. Therefore newcomer Ken Wass, University of Toronto grad, will handle the junior and bantam COSSA teams while another newcomer Bob Wright will coach the OABA bantam team.

Curlina News

By HERB MARTIN

Nelson Routley who passed away Tuesday morning at Civic Hospital, was for a few years a member of the Peterborough Curling Club and for well over 30 years was a member of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club.

Perhaps he was most happy and at his best among lawn bowlers. He belonged to the old school, and when the club moved up to McDonnel St. from the corner of Brock and Aylmer he came right along and was a loyal and enthusiastic member.

He was well and favourably known to all bowlers in this district and there was hardly a tournament that the late Mr. Routley missed.

He won many trophies, and his name appears on the shields of several cups that adorn the Lawn Bowling club house.

His family has lost a kind father, and these two clubs a real member.

Schedule For TVHL

Four teams comprise the northern section of the Trent Valley Hockey League this season, the schedule having started Monday. All player certificates must be signed and presented for sanction at the general loop meeting in Batawa on Jan. 10 at two p.m. Following is the rest of the first part of the schedule in this district:

JANUARY

6 Marmora at Hastings, Havelock at Campbellford
8 Havelock at Marmora, Campbellford at Hastings
11 Campbellford at Havelock, Hastings at Marmor
13 Marmora at Can[illegible]ilford, Havelock at Hastings
15 Marmora at Havelock, Hastings at Campbellford

Teams in the southern section are: Point Anne, Wellington, Trenton, Batawa and RCAF.

Keen Contests Seen In YM Hoop League

Close games marked the opening of the YM house hoop loop last night in the "Y" as Fowler's beat Spraggé's 51-49 and Apprentices finished strong to get a 40-26 verdict over Trojans. Games next Tuesday: Test vs. Trojans, and Orphans vs. Apprentices.

Apprentices led 15-11 at the half and wound up strongly to rack up the score after some keen action. Payne led the winners with 17 points and Roinen got 14. Keeting was tops for the losers with 12.

Fowler's built up a 21-19 halftime lead in the other game, and it was nip-and-tuck the rest of the route in a free-scoring fray before the Fowler crew yanked out the verdict. Haney led the Spragge squad with 17 points as Webb got 15. For the winners, Killen shone with 23 points and Cranfield was good for 14. Teams:

Apprentices: Hurle 1, Payne 17, Roinen 14, Ouellette 7, Whithard 1, Thompson.

Trojans: Wood 2, Keeting 12, Ibey 3, Heffernan 5, Pearton 4.

Spragge's: Webb 15, MacLeod 2, Belisle 8, Metheral, Kitsen, Haney 17, Spragge 7.

Fowler's: Whibbs, Killen 23, Cranfield 14, Batchelor 8, Pearton, Fowler, Walks 6.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Local senior "A" lacrosse club officials keep busy at their job the year round. Hold regular meetings and if a member of the executive misses three meetings he is liable to be dropped. They plan a huddle this weekend to select a coach and manager for 1954, choose two or three new executive members, and appoint a treasurer. Various sportsmen have been approached so far and several are willing to take over the jobs, and 'tis expected the slate will be complete by Sunday next. Gord Dobbin and Paul Irwin are retiring from the executive (after good service) owing to business pressure, and Howard McLean asked relief as treasurer after a lengthy period. Bob Thorpe doesn't wish to coach this year, and Bob Curtin wants to step down from manager to assistant.

President John Harris of the Oshawa senior baseball club says he is through, since the Intercountry League turned down an Oshawa bid for entry again this year. London and St. Thomas voted 'em out when Harris refused to help pay their expenses for games in the Motor City. Some of the other I-C clubs wanted Oshawa back, so they may still wangle an entry, but Merchants refuse to subsidize any team as they lost nearly $5,000 in 1953. In fact, Kitchener was the only western team to make any money last season. Harris said the other day: "I expect Oshawa will have a team in some league." Maybe it might be in a revived COBL, eh?

Hockey in The TVL

TVL puckists started their league schedule this week, and district tilts this Wednesday eve are: Marmora at Hastings, and Havelock at Campbellford. All player certificates must be in at a general meeting in Batawa Jan. 10 at two p.m. when the executive will check over the lists to see what players are eligible. Each club may sign up to 18 players. No replacements are allowed. Loop officers are: Art Duncan of Batawa, president; the vice-prexies being Bill Regan of Marmora, Les Greer of Wellington and Fred Rutherford of Campbellford. C. Nobes of Marmora is secretary. Teams in this area: Marmora, Havelock, Hastings and Campbellford, latter being 1953 champs. Some city players are in the village lineups.

Lindsay and Young Petes clash here tonight at 8:30 in Civic Arena, an OHA junior "B" fixture. Last standing we saw had the locals tied with Port Perry (an Oshawa outfit) for first place, just one game ahead of Lindsay. So, it should be quite a scrap here betwixt these fiery young rivals of a number of puck seasons. Red Creighton's crew have no soft touches this week, travelling to Port Perry on Saturday for another important tilt. Midland and Collingwood haven't been doing too well so far in the schedule, but the top three teams are closely bunched and dishing up some dandy hockey. Drawing plenty of penalties, too.

* * * * * *

Petes Back in Action

Petes pull out early this e'en for Orillia and a game which means a lot. If they win they're firmly entrenched in second place, but Orillia by a victory can hurdle 'em into the second slot. Oshawa beat Pontiacs 7-5 last p.m. and now lead with 28 points. Petes have 22, Orillia and Kingston 21 each, and Belleville 12. Oshawa comes here Friday for another important tilt to the TPT-ers. The Memos trek to Kingston on Friday, as Saturday sees Orillia at Bella Villa, and K's vs. Oshawa in Bowmanville. Official scoring figures yesterday showed Erwin Duncan of Belleville leading with 40 points, one more than Chum Fryia, though the latter leads the loop in goals scored, having 30. We have three in the top 10, Gus Leonard boasting 34 points and Toodie Greenlaw 31.

* * * * * *

Let's look at the Lakeshore OHA intermediate scene for a moment. Recent games found Port Hope beating Lindsay 7-3, with Lindsay coming back to down Cobourg 4-2. The latter had a 4-1 surprise victory o'er the hot Port Hopers, who last night took Lakefield 4-1 before 600 Lakefield fans. 'Twas much tighter tilt than the score indicates as the Ports got two breakaway goals in the third period as Lakefield ganged up to pepper Goalie Red Wasson almost continuously. He and Ray Harding starred and the fans saw one smart, streamlined struggle. Dr. Skipper Bean, who played with Montreal Royals and Vancouver Cougars, is assisting Cam Wasson coach the northerners, who are coming fast. They go to Cobourg on Friday.

Lindsay Boys Win Against Port Perry

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay juniors climbed close to the leading Peterborough and Port Perry teams in the Central Ontario Junior "B" group here last night, with a 7-6 win over the Port Perry team. Both teams were shorthanded for the game, played before some 275 fans.

Ron Teel starred for the winners, as he turned in a hat trick, scoring the winning goal with two minutes to go in the game.

The Lindsay club went out in front in the first period on goals by Truax from Hutton, and Teel from Growden and Crawford, while Brodie counted for the Flyers.

The visitors scored three in a row in the second before the homesters could organize. Fisher counted two while Teel added the third. The Lindsayites came back, Packer scoring while the Flyers were shorthanded, Teel getting the second while Packer sat out a minor, and Hutton the last on a ganging attack.

TIED IT AGAIN

In the last period McGill gave Lindsay at 6-4 edge on a rink-length rush but the Flyers came back again, Brodie and Romanuk tying the score.

Terrific pressure by Lindsay finally paid off, with Teel banging in G. Bowden's rebound with two minutes left. The home club held the Ports in their own end until time ran out.

Referee Jim Crombie called 14 penalties, including a misconduct to Johnson of the Flyers in the second. Graham and Myles drew roughing sentences for their scuffle in the third period.

Danny Pearson of Lindsay fell into the goal post during the first period and was taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital for stitches to a scalp wound.

Badminton Champions To Play At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Malaya's Ed and David Choong, considered world badminton champions, will compete in the 10th annual invitation tournament at the Strathgowan Club here Jan. 12-17.

The brothers have been living in England for the last three years. Eddie is English singles an men's doubles champion and David has the men's and mixed doubles titles. Since the English championships are usually considered top honors, the Choongs are usually rated as world champions.

Young Petes To Carry On Though Gates Below Par

Here's interesting news for Peterborough sportsmen and sportswomen: The Junior Petes will definitely continue operations in 1954 according to present prospects and plans. On Tuesday evening, members of the executive of this young club met at the home of Myer Cherney to review the club's progress during 1953, check the finances and appraise the future. The result was a happy one; because, despite the fact the team has as yet no sponsor, affairs have been conducted to date in such a manner by a small group (aided by a faithful group of supporters at home games) as to indicate fair sailing ahead. This provided that the Peterborough fans show a wholehearted and increased interest in the young hockeyists; and also that executive plans for immediate supplementary aid reach the point of fruition.

SMALL BALANCE

The early season draw for the victory bond proved successful, and despite several frail gates, the team has a small balance to start the New Year, after expenses have been paid, according to genial treasurer Bill Sims.

"I would suggest we make an effort to carry on to the finish," said president Doug Miller. "We are in a precarious position financially, but I believe we are all agreed that when the fans are made aware of the efforts you have all put forth, and the great team-spirit exemplified by these boys who are now tied for first place, is made known, also the position we are in at the moment financially, they will rally to our support as never before."

"The team plays Lindsay Wednesday night here, and we need the support of as many fans as we can pack in the rink."

Plans for the new year's efforts include a canvass of special names, a sponsor for each player with suitable recognition through advertising given each contributor. This will commence immediately with selected members of the executive making individual calls on respected citizens and sportsmen of the city in an effort to achieve their end.

PROSPECTS GOOD

The general feeling of the meeting was to the effect that this year's team bids fair to retain its lofty position in the loop standing, with a good chance to cop further honors.

"We have a fine club this year," remarked Frank Buckland, honorary president of the Young Petes and local OHA representative. "One of the best in years, I believe."

Following the business session, all guests enjoyed a fine lunch prepared by Mrs. Cherney.

Those in attendance included: Hon. president Frank Buckland, president Doug Miller, vice-president Bob McCabe, Doug Landon secretary, Bill Sims treasurer, Myer Cherney, manager and coach Robert (Red) Creighton, Ev. Stewart, Dave Wilson, Curly Alberico, Ralph Carpenter, and Fred Maybee.

Western Union Reports $80,000 Reserve

EDMONTON (CP)—Boasting a bank reserve of $80,000 after reentering the Western Interprovincial Football Union on a shoestring in 1949, Edmonton Eskimos are preparing to play before more fans in 1954 in an enlarged Clarke Stadium.

These developments, and the fact that major football promotion here is fast approaching a $500,000 enterprise, came from meetings Monday night of city council and the Edmonton Eskimo Touchdown Club.

Eskimo manager Al Anderson said at the meeting that the team realized a net profit of $13,172 on gross income of $423,531 in the 1953 season. Revenue in 1952 was $366,000.

Added to $66,852 in accumulated profits from previous years, the surplus gave the club a bank reserve of $80,852, one of the best in the league.

Eskimos' expenditures increased to $410,000 from $335,000 in 1952. Club president Ken Montgomery attributed the increase to higher player salaries and travelling expenses. The team switched from train to plane travel in 1953.

SALARIES TOP COST

Anderson said the biggest single expense was $265,439 for players' salaries and travelling expenses. Gate receipts last year totalled $342,000, compared with $255,786 in 1952. The $13,172 profit was down from the record $30,000 reported in 1952.

Edmonton city council approved construction before the 1954 season opening of a new $350,000 concrete grandstand of 8,000 to 10,000 seats on the west side of the city-owned stadium, replacing the park's original wooden stands. Montgomery said this will increase the stadium's seating capacity "to 19,000 in a pinch." Present capacity is about 15,200.

The city will be paid back over a period of 20 years from football club earnings.

Clancy Must Feel Way Back Into Big Hockey

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Francis Clancy, who always had to depend on natural skill and fighting spirit to win the nickname "King", [illegible] back into big time hockey. That's [illegible] don't hear too much from the salty-tongued little coach these days. The king has chattered but seldom shouted since he took over as coach of Toronto Maple Leafs last March. Even as a kid, with his pugnacious jaw and slim frame, King always had been boisterous.

"This time it's different," Clancy says. "I'm in with some boys who really know their business. These coaches around the NHL have class. I'll just take it easy for a while."

Clancy, a 52-year-old native of Ottawa, was never one to decline a prediction. But he won't come right out and say where he thinks the Leafs will finish this year.

"How can I tell? We looked lousy in pre-season practice. We were a little better at the start of the season. Now we're going pretty good—18 wins and eight ties in 36 games."

TAKE ON MONTREAL

Clancy will be going after victory No. 19 when he takes the third-place Leafs to Montreal Thursday night against the second-place Montreal Canadiens.

Clancy, one of the game's all-time greats, was in a class of his own for 16 seasons as a defenceman in the National League. He retired in 1936, became a top-notch referee and later a successful, and still talkative, coach in the American League with Pittsburgh Hornets.

For six seasons, 1930-'36, he was the driving force that kept Leafs in the forefront of the NHL.

In another game Thursday night, fourth-place Boston Bruins meet the league-leading Red Wings in Detroit.

In the only game tonight, last-place Chicago Black Hawks, with eight wins in 39 starts, travel to New York for a game against the fifth-place Rangers.

College Players A Gamble Says Coach

VANCOUVER (CP)—Coach Annis Stukus says he can't gamble on "too many college players" for his professional football club. He wants established pros.

Stukus, on the lookout for talent for British Columbia Lions, who make their debut in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season, said Tuesday he is shying away from American college players unless they're big names.

"We want proven players for the Lions," he said. "There is too much at stake to gamble on too many college players."

Stukus will leave soon for the Prairies and eastern Canada to find Canadian talent. He returned recently from the United States.

TOP-LEVEL PLAYERS

Stukus said he would go for "top-level college players," such as all-American half Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame. However, Lattner is due to be inducted into the U.S. Air Force in June and is on the National Football League draft.

Stuke says he has as many American professionals as he wants on the hook. He added:

"We are all fixed up, barring the actual signing for U.S. talent. Our big worry now is getting enough good Canadian players to fill out the squad properly."

ARENA COLLAPSES

MODENA, Italy (AP)—Tons of snow caused the roof of the Sports Palace to collapse Tuesday shortly after an Italian basketball team finished practising and left the court.

An Egyptian team was in the dressing room waiting its turn to practice when the roof caved in. No one was hurt.

Tee Pees Score Most Goals In Junior Group

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Second-place St. Catharines Tee-Pees have scored more goals this season than any other team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group.

Tuesday night they crushed Jon[illegible] 16-1 in an OH[illegible] Junior League interlocking schedule game. The windfall brought their season total of goals scored to 147, 14 more than league-leading Toronto St. Michael's.

Marquis have had 39 goals scored against them in the three games they have played so far in their Ontario tour.

Quebec Frontenacs, league mates of the Marquis, scored a 5-4 victory over Galt Black Hawks, cellar dwellers of the Ontario loop.

SCORING SPREE

The TeePees were never in trouble from the start and fired 62 shots at Marquis goalkeeper Ray Pearson.

Captain Brian Cullen scored six goals. His brother, Barry, tallied three. Other goals were scored by Don McLean and Henry Ciesla, with two each, and Hugh Barlow, Ian Cushanen and Armstrong.

The Jonquiere goal was scored by St. Jean at 19:27 of the final period.

At Galt, Bill Turcotte scored two goals, one in overtime, to give Frontenacs their win. Two goals also were tallied by Guy Rousseau. Charles Denomme got the other.

Galt goals were netted by Chick Chalmers, Bob Wilson, Eddie Switzer and John Sleaver. Chalmers' goal came two minutes before the third period was over and after coach Al Murray pulled goalkeeper Les Binkey and sent a sixth attacker into the game.

Games tonight are: Jonquiere at Marlboros, Quebec at Hamil[illegible]n, Toronto St. Michael's at Montreal, Barrie at Trois-Rivieres and Kitchener at Guelph.

Indians Beat Dutchmen 3-1 To Move Into Fifth Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians Tuesday night took the hard way to reach a new level in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

The Indians scored a 3-1 victory over league - leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to move into a fifth-place tie with Chatham Maroons.

Both Chatham and the cellar-dwelling Niagara Falls Cataracts were defeated in the loop's other two games.

Cataracts were defeated 2-1 by Hamilton Tigers and Windsor Bulldogs downed [illegible]

Dutch[illegible] their way to a win when the Indians hit the war path in the last eight minutes of play.

Harry Psutka scored the only goal of the first period for Kitchener. The seconperiod was scoreless.

ROTH SCORES TWICE

In the third, Mickey Roth, who got two of Indians' tallies, scored in a rebound at 12:29 for the tying score. Danny Flanagan got the winner 32 seconds before the game ended.

It was Indians first win in six games against the Dutchmen.

A deflected shot by Jack Taylor early in the third period gave Hamilton their victory over the luckless Cataracts. Eddie Busch scored the other Hamilton goal and Red Olsen got the Cataracts goal.

Gord Haidy scored two goals for Windsor. Singles went to Fred Hildebrand, Clarence Jaster, Wally Kullman and Frank Bathgate. Jim Connelly scored three for Chatham and Bill Lee and Joe Carveth [illegible] the others.

[illegible] Northern Ontario Association Senior A southern group game, Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians climbed to within two points of the fourth-place Pembroke Lumber Kings when they edged Sudbury Wolves 3-2.

Gordie Kerr scored twice for the Indians. The other goal was scored by defenceman Danny O'Connor. Frank King and Lennie Speck scored for the Wolves.

Tonight Kitchener is at Chatham and Niagara Falls at Owen Sound.

INVENT SHIN GUARD—Gorge Armstrong, of Toronto Maple Leafs, inspects the new shin guard, protected by brass mesh, that saved his leg from being slashed in a recent game. The new safeguard, latest in a number of innovations by the National Hockey League team, uses the brass mesh that fits back of the fibre in a player's shinpads. A number of players have had their shins and legs slashed by skates in games and Leaf officials ordered the new guard as added protection.

Interlocking Schedule Predicted Between East And West In Football

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—An interlocking schedule between the big-league eastern and western Canada football teams is predictd by Canadian sports editors and sportscasters.

Voting in the annual Canadian Press year-end sports poll on the subject, they took a sharp look at the Big Four and Western Conference [illegible] and decided by [illegible] with 13 other [illegible] and-see" attitude that in the future such a situation is likely. Predictions ranged from 1954 to 1965.

Some voted a decisive "no" but the majority figured the interlocking schedule was sure to come.

QUALIFIED FORECASTS

Some sprinkled their long-range predictions with ifs and buts and underlying many answers was the situation in Vancouver, due to make the Western Interprovincial Union a five-team league in 1954. That was a big poser to many.

"I've been foreseeing an interlocking schedule since 1948 but inclusion of Vancouver will put it back farther," said Scotty Melvile sports editor of the Regina Leader-Post.

It won't come "now with Vancouver in," said Maurice Smith of the Winnipeg Free Press. His view was shared by Cam McKenzie of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, Lionel Wilson of the Prince Albert Daily Herald and Hal Pawson of the Edmonton Journal.

Other "no" votes were based on the 3,000-mile travelling distance between Montreal and Vancouver. In this category were Ken Milton of CKX, Brandon, Man.; Jim Tang of the Victoria Colonist and the sports staff of the Vancouver News-Herald.

Voters in the other Big Four and [illegible] when the interlocking schedule idea, talked about for a couple of years, would be a reality.

VARYING OPINIONS

"Not within the next four years," said Tommy Shields of the Ottawa Citizen. "About 1956," predicted Jack Meek of the Winnipeg Free Press and Dink Carroll of the Montreal Gazette.

"Not later than 1956," said Perc Allen of CKOC, Hamilton. "In a few years," wrote Wes McKnight of CFRB, Toronto. "In 1956," said Erwin Swangard of the Vancouver Sun. Al Shaver of CFRN, Edmonton, predicted it would come in 1955. "Not within five years," said Jim Cox of CKNW, Vancouver.

"In five years, depending on Vancouver's success in the West-Esaw of CKRM, Regina: "Four ern Conference," said Johnny years," said Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Daily Star. "About 1955," commented Bobby Hewitson of the Toronto Telegram.

Here are other comments:

Gorde Hunter, Calgery Herald: "No, not for a great many years."

Frank McCool, Calgary Albertan: "Not in the immediate future. Teams will stick to pre-season exhibitions until a football commissioner for all Canada is appointed or the two major leagues pull out from the Canadian Rugby Union."

Tom Foley, CFRA, Ottawa: "One tour for each team yearly to the other league in 1957."

George Ludgate, CHEX, Peterborough: "Eventually, but not for at least three years as Vancouver will have to prove it is a big-time football centre."

Cam Church of CHLO, St. Thomas, Ont., and Bill Walker of CKRC, Winnipeg, figured it would come when bigger stadiums are built.

W. E. Walker of the Victoria Times believed it would "take much of the flavor from the Grey Cup final" and Jerry O'Grady of the Brockville Recorder and Times asked: "What would happen to the Grey Cup final?"

The most optimistic of the voters was Don Pilling of the Lethbridge Herald. He wrote: "Yes. And would say it'll take place next year (1954)."

Gordie McBride of CKFI, Fort Frances, came up with a "yes" vote and added: "About 1965."

England Hopes To Become Champion Of Cricket World

LONDON (Reuters) — England, having beaten the Australians last summer and retrieved the "ashes" after 20 years, now is seeking to defeat the West Indies on their own soil and confirm her position as champion of the cricket world.

But there's a hard fight ahead. Although the West Indians forfeited their claim to the mythical title by their unimpressive performances in Australia in 1951-52, they have yet to be defeated by England at home. On the last tour of the islands in 1947-48, England failed to win a match. And to rub in their supremacy, West Indies crossed the Atlantic in 1950 to win a test series in England by three matches to one.

Since then England has improved while the West Indies appear to have deteriorated. The nucleus remains of that successful West Indies side—Worrell, Weekes, Walcott, Stollmeyer, Ramadhin and Valentine. But the three "Ws" were plainly bothered by the fast bowling of Miller and Lindwal in Australia, and English cricket followers are hoping the speed of Trueman, Moss and Statham will equally disconcert them. Left-arm spinner Tony Lock is another new English bowler who, it is felt, may prove successful even on the toughest wickets.

HUTTON TOP BATSMAN

Len Hutton, England's captain, is again expected to be the main prop of the batting. One of his problems is to find a dependable opening partner. Apart from Spooner, the reserve wicket keeper there is no other regular opener cluded in the Marylebone Cricket Club party.

The threat of West Indian spin bowlers Ramadhin and Valentine appears to have diminished since 1950 but they can give plenty of trouble yet. Unless a new pace bowler is suddenly unearthed, they are likely to carry the main burden of the West Indies' attack.

Four of the five tests will be played on grass wickets, which the English side prefers. The exception is at Trinidad, where the surface is matting on concrete. Each of the tests will last six days.

Dates and venues are: Jan. 14-21 Jamaica; Feb. 6-12, Barbados; Feb. 24-March 2, British Guiana; March 17-23, Trinidad, and March 30-April 5, Jamaica.

Between times MCC will play each of the islands.

Rotary Club Sponsors School Hockey Teams

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The Rotary Club decided this week to again sponsor Public and Separate school hockey teams.

The matter was discussed after the club's youth committee reported on the school, OMHA and TVL minor hockey setup in the town.

William Rothwell, principal of the public school, is to coach the youngsters from the public and separate schools.

Canadiens Resent Movies Used To Decide Ruling In Fracas

MONTREAL (CP)—The part motion pictures should or should not play in rulings on hockey incidents was raised Tuesday by managing director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens in announcing no appeal will be taken from the eight-game suspension imposed upon Bernie Geoffrion.

Selke said Canadiens, as a hockey club, "resent" use of movies in deciding the merits of a case, but if pictures are to be made they should be made under the direction of the National Hockey League and of all games in full.

At the same time, he made it plain in a prepared statement that Canadiens consider the decision of NHL president Clarence Campbell unfair and that the club has been made to suffer unduly.

Geoffrion and Ron Murphy of New York Rangers engaged in a stick-swinging brawl during a game in New York Dec. 20. Geoffrion suffered a four-stitch cut on the head. He grabbed a stick and swung on Murphy, fracturing Murphy's jaw. Each player was given a match penalty, automatically incurring a $100 fine.

Campbell carried out an investigation and announced his decision Dec. 28. Geoffrion was suspended for eight games and Murphy for five—all games involving the two clubs.

Geoffrion's financial loss through suspension and fine has been estimated $1,100; Murphy's at $650. Murphy went from a New York hospital to his home in Stratford, and is expected to rejoin Rangers by Feb. 1.

Commenting on Selke's statement, Campbell said: "I don't consider myself immune from criticism or appeal; I want the facts made known."

OUT OF DEFERENCE

He said the only reason the motion pictures of the New York incident have not been made public "is out of deference to the wishes of the Canadiens club."

"I don't think the pictures show hockey in a favorable light and under these circumstances I don't see any point in it. But I don't want anyone to get the impression—as put in circulation by Irvin (coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens)—that they have been withheld or that I have deprived anyone of the opportunity to see the pictures thereby making them unable to form their own impressions of the incident."

Selke and other Canadiens officials refused to look at the pictures when invited by Campbell to do so during the hearing in his office.

Canadiens resent use of movies in deciding a case because it "undermines the confidence and the authority which the referees now have and which are shaky enough in any case," said Selke.

Pontiac Abbe Wins Double Heat Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Pontiac Abbe, owned by H. Proudfoot of Fort Coulonge, Que., won a hard-earned double heat victory in the featured class A pace at the Dufferin Park harness races Tuesday.

Joe Bunter, owned by Reg McGee of Goderich, and Hillcrest Adam, owned by W. S. Sharpe of Oshawa, shared the class BB trot, the secondary feature. Each won a heat.

Australian Pair Beat U.S. Tennis Players

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — The United States' winning Davis Cup doubles team of Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas was beaten today by Australia's 19-year-old youngsters, Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, in the semi-final of the South Australian championships, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

The match created great interest because in the cup challenge round last week Rosewall was benched in favor of Rex Hartwig. Seixas and Trabert won in straight sets over Hartwig and Hoad to take a 2-1 lead in cup competition before Australia came back to win in the singles.

Death Valley Scotty Dies In California Castle

STOVEPIPE WELLS, Calif. (AP)—Death Valley Scotty, desert prospector and a colorful western figure for half a century, died Tuesday night. He was 81.

Scotty, whose real name was Walter Scott, died at the fabulous castle with which his name had been associated for years.

At his bedside was Miss Mary Liddecoat, president of the Gospel Foundation, who was his constant [illegible] in the desert [illegible] promptly fulfilled.

[illegible], said he was summoned to the castle Tuesday and found Scotty in "very, very dangerous condition."

Scott suffered a gastric haemorrhage three years ago but recovered and had been exceptionally active for his age. He felt fine earlier Tuesday, and greeted visitors to the castle.

Scotty's benefactor, Albert Johnson, owned the castle, 170 miles north of Las Vegas, Nev. When the Chicago insurance executive died about six years ago he left the property to the Gospel Foundation, with the provision that Scotty was to live the rest of his life there."

Walter Webb, business representative of the foundation, said Scotty is survived by his widow and a son, Walter Scott, Jr., whose whereabouts he did not know.

[illegible] rich several times and each time ran through his fortune Around the turn of the century he hired a special train to take him from San Francisco to Chicago and the run set a speed record that lasted for decades.

Crashed, Jailed On Two Counts

When a 56-year-old Norwood man, William James Cain, was driving his truck along Highway 7 on the night of December 29, it suddenly went into a skid, flipped over and crashed on its side into a ditch. That is all he remembers until he came to some time later.

[illegible] around this story [illegible] Tuesday when he answered a dual charge of being intoxicated in charge of a vehicle and consuming liquor while an interdicted (under order to abstain) person.

When Cain reached his senses he was unhurt, but according to OPP Constable Archie Eady, in a very intoxicated condition. He asked the constable to place him in the cruiser and lock him up—

Admits Hitting Man Faces Murder Charge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 19-year-old youth Tuesday was committed for trial on a charge of murder after a statement was read in police court in which he admitted hitting Frank Pitsch, 45, over the head with a four-pound steel bar.

William Gash, unemployed and the father of a seven-month-old son, is accused of killing Pitsch on the 13th fairway of Langara golf course here. Both men made a meagre living hunting lost golf balls.

Police allege that robbery was the motive. A wallet containing $100 was missing from Pitsch's coat when his body was discovered by a golfer.

In the statement Gash was quoted as saying he and Pitsch were walking together on the golf course hunting for balls when he hit Pitsch with the bar

Fight At Dance Brings On Assault Charge

Protests by a Warsaw youth, Fred McCracken, that he was not guilty of assault, but was rather the victim of a dance hall scuffle in which he had tried to defend himself, did not deter Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, from convicting him in court Tuesday.

Harry William Smith, Warsaw, laid the charge of assault against McCracken whom he said had kicked him in the groin prior to a minor fight at a Christmas Eve dance in the Warsaw town hall.

Evidence by Smith, McCracken and four defence witnesses agreed as to the cause of the Smith-McCracken mix-up. A cup had been smashed on the dance floor and Smith, who was in charge of the dance, had handed McCracken a broom, the inference being that McCracken was to clean up the mess. McCracken, who was not responsible for the breakage, objected and promptly snapped the broom handle in half.

The story goes that Smith stood off a little way and either grinned, smiled or smirked. (The evidence differed a little at this particular stage.) However, McCracken offered to "wipe the smile off his face" and Smith "walked briskly" towards him.

KICKED

Smith testified that McCracken kicked him in the groin. McCracken said he only lifted his leg to ward off possible attack. Smith then took off his watch and grappled with McCracken and threw him to the floor. At this stage Smith said he had his legs wrapped about McCracken's head, but that McCracken had been able to kick him in the eyeball and mouth.

Defence counsel Edward Fanjoy wondered how Smith could be vulnerable in such a position. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that perhaps his learned friend would care to demonstrate. Magistrate Philp glanced at the clock and advised the court not to ponder too long over trivial details.

When McCracken took the witness stand, Crown Attorney pointed a stern finger at him and said: "Do you deny that you have been ruled out of the Brookside and Brock dance halls because of fighting?"

McCracken: "Yes."

FEW "INCIDDENTS"

Mr. Bradshaw intimated that OPP information advised him otherwise. He applied further strong questioning to McCracken who at length admitted to having been mixed up in a few "incidents" at the dance halls.

Mr. Fanjoy submitted that Smith had been wrong in suggesting that McCracken clean up the broken crockery and that he had angered him by jeering at him. Further, that Smith had attemped to start a fight.

Magistrate Philp: "Wouldn't you say rather that McCracken was asking for it?"

Mr. Fanjoy: "No. After all Smith took off his watch . . . much the same thing as rolling up the sleeves . . . if there's any blame it should rest upon Smith."

The magistrate fined McCracken $10 with court and witnesses' costs amounting to $18.50. He then warned both accused and complainant that he looked upon any dance hall fracas in a serious light and warned them to use more discretion in the future.

Film Shows Highlights Of Eastern Canada In Color

Touching high points of Eastern Canadian scenery and commerce, the film "Niagara to Newfoundland" was shown Tuesday night at PCVS auditorium. It was the fourth color feature in a series of six presented by the Kiwanis Travel and Adventure club.

Lecturing during the showing was George Perkins, co-producer of the Burton Holmes travelogue. He told the large audience he spent five months and travelled 12,000 miles in gathering material for the one and three-quarter hour production.

Mr. Perkins said it was seldom he showed a film in the area where it is made. "Niagara to Newfoundland" bore this statement out. It was obviously made for the American public and repeated many scenes already familiar to a Canadian audience.

Although parts were highly informative and the whole interesting, time was too brief to touch on any but a very few highlights of the Canadian scene. It was lamentable that many fine features of Ontario and Quebec geography were not included and a few inferior ones included.

BYPASS KAWARTHAS

The Kawarthas, for instance, were bypassed completely. In their stead, Algonquin scenes were portrayed.

Valuable minutes were spent even then showing scenes of a boys' camp when breathtaking scenery so close at hand was disregarded.

As in most travelogue portrayals of Canada for other than home consumption, municipal life which after all does play a major part in any country's existence, was just about skipped.

Niagara Falls, was naturally shown as just that. But Toronto was depicted as nothing more than the home of a hotel, a castle, the exhibition and a few street cars. Ottawa was portrayed as the site of the parliament building, Rideau hall and RCMP headquarters.

As for Montreal, Mr. Perkins didn't even mention its main feature, Mount Royal. Although pictures were taken from the mountain, none were taken of the mountain.

Switching up to Algonquin park, the speaker lauded its wildlife and resources but didn't waste much footage on them. A notable departure from this was the excellent filming of a beaver repairing its dam by floodlight.

Travelling eastward, he showed Quebec, Newfoundland, the maritimes. He made frequent references to travelling across Newfoundland on a narrow-gauge railway. When the time came to see the railway, the audience got only a glimpse of coaches swaying across wastelands.

FILM INTERVIEWS

Apart from that letdown and the very slight reference to Gander airfield, the east coast section of the movie was done very nicely. Time was taken out from showing panoramic views of scenery to visit personalities engaged in handicraft. Some of the movies' best points were hidden away in these film interviews.

Nature's oddities were well shown in different parts; New Brunswick's tides and magnetic hill; the east coast's Bonaventure island; all were treated in an informative manner.

Canada's major industry, paper production, was given good treatment by Mr. Perkins and his clarification of the process was commendable.

What the film boiled down to was this: Too much was covered in too short a time. The overall picture that emerged was colorful and not uninteresting, but slightly misleading.

It would make good watching for the millions south of the border unaware of Canada's ramifications but it's too hasty to tell a Canadian much he doesn't know already.

Peron Eases Hold

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's private radio broadcasting industry, which has been under virtual dictatorial control by the ministry of communications, has regained a large part of its independence. The government Tuesday published a decree lifting direct control from the private stations, which will operate as three separate networks. The government still maintains its own state-radio.

Licence Suspended

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Ronald James Ferrier of Guelph was fined $50 and costs Tuesday on a charge of careless driving, but Magistrate Ivan B. Craig could find no room on the back of his licence to record the conviction. All three spaces were filled with previous violations. Magistrate Craig suspended his licence for six months.

Gassings Set Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Domestic gas poisoning claimed 44 lives here in 1953, the worst year in the city's records. There were 188 persons involved in gassings during the year including 43 suicides, 22 attempted suicides, and 79 cases of persons accidentally gassed who recovered.

Papal Audience Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to be received by Pope Pius at a private audience when he visits Rome in February, a spokesman in his office said Tuesday. Mr. St. Laurent will leave Ottawa Feb. 4 on his six-week round-the-world trip. He will be in Rome about Feb. 14.

TV Station To Open

MONTREAL (CP) — CBMT, Montreal's first English-language television station, will begin operations Sunday. Officials said work now has been completed on a new tower on top of Mount Royal. The station was originally scheduled to open for Christmas but cold weather delayed construction of the tower.

1953 Record Year For Progress In Nova Scotia's Economy

HALIFAX (CP)—Industries Minister Wilfred Dauphinee says Nova Scotia's economic progress reached record proportions during 1953.

In a year-end review, Mr. Dauphinee pointed to increased electric power consumption, more building construction, more consumer buying and a higher average weekly wage.

The estimated investment in capital, repair[illegible] the year was th[illegible] to the $200,000,000 in 1952. Three quarters of this was for capital expenditure.

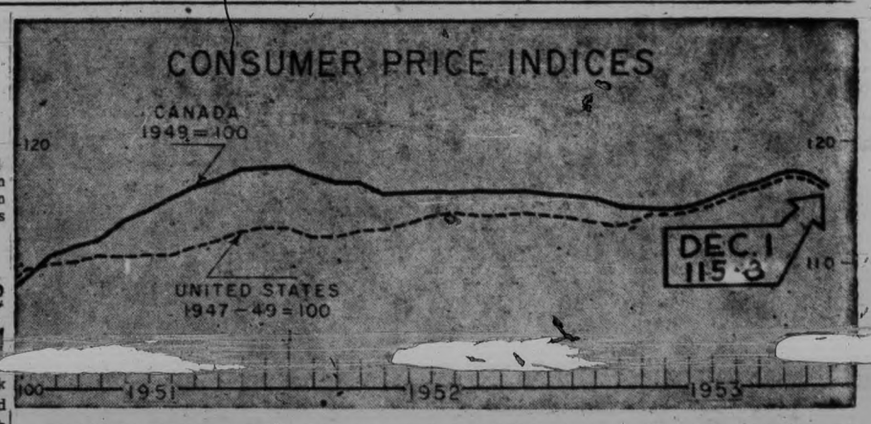
Mr. Dauphinee said:

"This investment signifies additions to existing production facilities and general strengthening of the economy through construction of economically desirable public works and utilities."

This investment trend was matched by an increase in production of primary and secondary commodities. There were a few soft spots in textiles, wooden boatbuilding, lumber and fish production, but most manufacturers reported a satisfactory year.

On the red side of the ledger, fish landings at the end of October totalled 320,000,000 pounds, down seven per cent for the same period last year. The landed value, however, was up three per cent to $17,962,000.

As 1953 ended there appeared to be a revival of the fresh ground Rising prices for Canadian fish on ising prices for Canadian fish on the United States market was partly responsible.



LIVING COSTS DROP—Living costs dropped during November for the second consecutive month, paring two-fifths of a point from the consumer price index which declined to 115.8 from 116.2. The bureau of statistics reported that lower food prices was the reason for the decline. The peak of 118.2 was reached in December, 1951, with 1949 prices equalling 100. The dotted line shows the United States consumer index which also declined in November to 115 per cent of the 1947-49 average after a steady eight-month rise. These indices measure percentage changes in each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries.

Citizenship WI Theme At Two Branches Meet

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Havelock Women's Institute entertained members of the Norwood branch at their meeting in the council chamber, Monday. The theme for the meeting was "citizenship and education" with the motto "Read more, know more, to broaden your mind." The roll call was answered by naming a Canadian city and what it is noted for.

A very fine program was presented by the visitors with Mrs. Armstrong as the convenor. Mrs. Clarence Copp was the guest speaker who took "Citizenship" as her subject.

A pageant "Canada and her people" with Mrs. Copp as pianist was presented by the following cast: Canada, Mrs. Stewart; China, Mrs. F. Patterson; Latvia, Mrs. F. Hunter; France, Mrs. G. Parker. Scotland, Mrs. A. Gill; England, Mrs. Gardiner. A recitation on the flag was given by Mrs. W. Galler. The attendance was divided into team for a contest, "How well do you know Canada."

Mrs. H. Pollock, president of the Havelock branch presided and welcomed the visitors.

It was decided to contact Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Peterborough Cancer Society for further information with the view of forming sub-units. The following committee was formed to try and do something in regard to the "penny roundup" for the Mental Health Association:

Members will be Mrs. Gerald Buchanan, Mrs. Fred McKenzie, Miss Ina Morrison.

It was decided to hold a tea and bake sale in the council chamber March 13.

Mrs. Pollock announced that two cheer boxes, two plants and 20 cards had been sent to shut-ins at Christmas.

Hostesses for the tea hour were Mrs. H. Pollock, Mrs. G. Buchanan, Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Mrs. J Hoffman and Mrs. R Melville

U.S. Unemployment Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The department of commerce says unemployment in the U.S. rose about 400,000 from November to December, increasing the jobless total to 1,850,000. The department's monthly report on employment showed little change in non-farm employment, but a sharp drop in farm work with the onset of winter weather. Unemployment last December was 425,000 higher than in Deceber, 1952.

Unions Unhappy Over Terms In Rail Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—After a four-week tussle on terms of reference, the labor department has set up a conciliation board in the big railway-union contract dispute, but on terms that leave the unions unhappy.

Government [illegible] Tuesday the board with claims of land workers. It will not handle those of a relatively-small group of railway company water transport employees, which the unions anted included in an over-all contract.

Though this group consists only of 2,900 out of the approximately 150,000 railway company employees involved in the deadlocked negotiations, its removal from the conciliation board operations drew union protest.

"We disagree with this," said Harry Chappell of Ottawa, president of the 35,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL), largest single body involved in the discussions.

The labor department, it was understood, excluded the water transport workers from the main bargaining body because Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada—acting as arbitrator in a settlement after the 1950 rail strike—left them out of the main settlement terms.

SEEK FRINGE BENEFITS

At stake before the conciliation board will be perhaps $60,000,000 a year in "fringe" benefits sought by the non-operating employees—those who do not actually run the trains but who make up by far the largest body of railroad employees.

For the first time in 20 years, they are not asking a general wage increase, but they seek such concessions as more paid holidays, longer vacations, more paid time off for sickness and more overtime pay for Sunday work.

Seventeen unions are involved in the negotiations. Fifteen are international organizations, and two—including the CBRE—are all-Canadian groups.

Two Men Charged With $262,000 Theft

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Joseph Harboway, 33, and Edwin Blair, 29, Tuesday were committed for trial on charges of theft of $262,000 worth of metals concentrate.

Two containers of metal were stolen Nov. 3 from a shipment piled on the railway platform. They were recovered later that day in a culvert near a spot where Blair's car was in an accident.

Both were free, on $50,000 bail each.

Napanee Firm Sold Shredded Wheat Co.

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., Ltd., has bought the Ross-Miller Biscuit Co., Ltd., of Napanee.

I. M. Pollock, executive vice-president of the purchasing company said the Napanee plant will be called the Milk-Bone Pet Food Division of Canadian Shredded Wheat and will continue manufacture and distribution of the animal and pet foods of the former company.

Woman, Child Injured When Car Hits Pole

HAMILTON (CP)—A woman and child from Galt were injured Tuesday when the car in which they were riding skidded on icy pavement and crashed into a telephone pole.

Mrs. Marianna Birkenhauer, 28, was admitted to hospital with a broken left shoulder and back injuries. Marlene Sibenhaar, 6, suffered head injuries.

Police said the two were passengers in a car driven by Philip Siebenhaar, 35, of Galt.

Population Declines

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's population dropped by 1,862 during 1953, assessment commissioner A. J. B. Gray reported Tuesday. Assessors last year counted 665,502 residents compared with 667,364 in 1952. But Mr. Gray said reticence of many householders in revealing the actual numbers living in their premises, meant the assessors' count is much lower than the true figure. Civic officials estimate that the uncounted city population is as high as 100,000.

THE GROOM—Lt. Commander Percy Silbertson, 43, of the British Naval Reserve, purposely appears very different, sartorially speaking, from the usual bridegrooms as he stands with his bride, the former Mrs. Ellen Ruth Alpert, of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., following their wedding in London. He wears tight trousers, a gold Chinese brocaded waistcoat, a black jacket edged with braid, a pearl-encrusted diamond pin on a yellow silk tie, a curly-brimmed bowler and pointed black boots. "My face never was my fortune and I felt I might look ordinary in a morning suit," was Silbertson's explanation.

Windsor Soldier On Murder Count

CALGARY (CP) — Pte. Walter Cierpisz, 17-year-old Windsor, Ont., soldier, was charged with murder Tuesday night after the fatal shooting of a soldier in a washroom at Currie barracks. Both were members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry regiment.

The victim's name was not released pending notification of next-of-kin.

Police said the victim was shot twice in the back with a .303 army rifle during an argument before a large group of soldiers. An army doctor was called to the barracks but the soldier died about 35 minutes after he was shot, police said.

Calgary police questioned several soldiers at the scene and said they seized a .303 rifle alleged to have been used in the shooting.

Fire Destroys Two Offices

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Fire early today burned out two downtown business places and heavily damaged others with smoke and water.

Universities Want Students Who Think

PORT HOPE (CP) — Canadian universities want students who are not merely bright but who can really think.

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, said Tuesday at a conference of educational officials under auspices of the Headmasters' Association, Canadian Independent Schools that the present type of examinations on which entrance to university is based do not also reveal students' basic qualities.

He said mastery of subject matter is not as important as a "stretching of the mind," precision in thinking and power of intellect.

Presbyterians Oppose Legal Lotteries

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. W. A. Cameron, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said Tuesday Presbyterians will fight any move to legalize lotteries in Canada.

Mr. Cameron said the Toronto east presbytery, of which he is also moderator, is preparing a brief on the subject for presentation to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

He urged other churches to get behind the anti-lottery movement and said "Ottawa listens much more attentively if the Protestant churches make a united appeal."

Plan Makeshift Office

SARNIA (CP) — Canadian National Telegraph employees may be "working on the railroad" after next month. Russell Sweet, local agent, said the company's office lease expires at the end of February and plans have been made to shift operations to a railway passenger car. The car, now on a railway siding, will be fitted up as offices until a new office is located.

Brave Robin Sighted

ORILLIA (CP)—A brave little robin today set a new year's record. Harry Kehoe and his son Bob saw the bird on their way to work and reported that, undisturbed by the cold weather and deep snow, it was singing a tune that sounded like a "spring song."

Missing Girl Found In Vancouver

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police are prepared to close their file on one more "missing persons" case as Shirley Normandeau was reported safe in Vancouver.

The [illegible] reported missing from [illegible] 1952. Her stepfather, Joseph Antonio Normandeau, disappeared at the same time.

Mrs. J. A. Normandeau, Joseph's wife and Shirley's mother, reported their disappearance to the police. She was then living in Ingersoll.

She told police at that time the family became separated at the railway station while on holiday in Toronto. She said she believed her husband was suffering from amnesia.

She also expressed hope the daughter would read or hear of her distress over the case and get in touch with her.

Normandeau, a construction man had been employed at various times as a road foreman, dragline or shovel operator or road superintendent. His last job before he disappeared was at Bigwood, 40 miles southeast of Sudbury.

Police in Vancouver Monday arrested a man they identified as Normandeau, 42, on a charge of stealing $300 worth of clothing and personal effects from a Vancouver roominghouse. They also found Shirley, whom they described as well-dressed and having the appearance of being well cared for.

Toronto police said they have notified the child's mother, now living at Bigwood.

Neither the Vancouver nor the Toronto police made public any reason for the disappearance.

28 APPLICATIONS

The recreation commission, Monday, eliminated 24 of the 28 applications received for the post of city recreational director. Of the four remaining candidates, who will appear for personal interviews, Thursday, three are from Toronto and one from Peterborough. Final decision will be made Thursday evening it is expected.

BOY ESCAPES INJURY

Four-year-old Norman Thomas of 453 King George St. was treated for a possible broken finger after he was struck by a truck on King George St. Tuesday. The boy ran from the north side of the street past double parked vehicles and into the front of a truck driven by W. Bryer, 33, of RR 1, Keene. He was carried 10 feet by the impact.

MUST BE PRESENT

Residential assessments will be confirmed by default if appellants are not present at the time arranged for their hearing by the Court of Revision. This was the intimation of the Court today as reported to The Examiner by its chairman, John A. Harstone. Postponements caused by absence of appellants are impeding the court's progress with the many residential appeals.

RIFLE CLUB STARTS

Don Blondeau of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association will instruct junior marksmen at the association's rifle club which will meet for the first time at the Armouries on Friday evening at 7. Boys from 14 to 18 years are urged to attend and both juniors and seniors will compete for Dominion marksmen prizes. Juniors will pay a special reduced rate for membership.

FIRST WOLF HUNT

All sportsmen are requested to attend the first mass wolf hunt of the season on Saturday, sponsored by the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. The area to be flushed will be the Kosh Lake country where tracks of seven wolves was found on Tuesday by member Norman Bradley and conservation officer Stanley Windsor. Marshalling point will be at the CNR freight sheds on Saturday morning at 8:30; northern sportsmen may join the motorcade en route as it drives north toward Kosh lake country where tracks of are the required equipment for the day.

RETIRES FROM BOARD

After nine years' service as a member of the Civic Hospital board of governors, Jack Welsh of 435 Rogers St. asked City Council not to reappoint him in 1954. He said that he no longer had sufficient time for the job. The other three-year nominees whose terms were up this year were John R. Marshall, who died a year ago, and Dr. Stewart G. Cameron. Dr. Cameron has been reappointed, along with P. Melville McCarrell and Arthur Lewis. T. Douglas Miller also resigned from the board, though he still had another year to run in his term. He has not yet been replaced.

Unemployed Jump 600 In December

Number Out of Work Highest Since Spring of '52

increasing for three months since September, unemployment in the Peterborough district suddenly jumped more than 600 in December to send the total for December over the 2,000-mark. James Sharpe, National Employment office manager, announced today that at the end of December there were 2,004 men and women drawing unemployment insurance. These people are in Peterborough, the county, Haliburton county and parts of Victoria, Durham and Northumberland counties.

December's total is the highest since the spring of 1952 when the unemployment insurance claims in this district were more than 2,000. The 1953 peak, reached in January was slightly lower, and after that the monthly totals gradually decreased to the year's low in August. Since then there has been a gradual increase.

Mr. Sharpe said unemployment is following a similar pattern to last year but that a 10 per cent increase was expected. That expected increase was based on previous year's figures.

December's final total of 2,004 included 1,134 city men and women drawing money and 870 district people on claims. This is compared with a total of 1,480 for December 1952 when 795 city and 685 district people were on the insurance scheme.

1,375 IN NOVEMBER

November's total was only 1,375 made up of 697 people in the city and 678 district people. At that time short time work in Peterborough as well as scattered small layoffs in the city and the influx of district people working in Oshawa and Toronto, now laid off and returning to their homes, was given for the large number of claims.

No definite reason was given for the large increase in unemployment in December. No large layoffs were reported either in the city or in the district.

Throughout the city and district at the end of December there were 1,524 men and 442 women job-hunting and registered as such with the Peterborough office. Last year at the same time there were 1,597 men and women looking for work.

For the second straight month the Peterborough office also had fewer jobs to offer; the number of job available, 28, was also fewer than for the same period in December 1952 when there were 41 jobs available, 28, was also fewer able require skilled workers.

Driver Finds Parcels Left In Trunk Of Car

Over the holiday period police have been concerned with people who have forced their way into parked cars in the city and stolen parcels of groceries and presents.

However, on Tuesday afternoon they found just the opposite had happened. A. T. Stainton of 482 Alberta St., informed police that he had found two parcels of groceries in the trunk of his car. They did not belong to him and as it is a week since he has opened the compartment, he is at a loss to know where they came from.

Detective Doug Farthing said that the goods had been purchased at the A and P stores and he imagined their worth to be in the vicinity of $4 or $5. Some one had probably mistaken the car for his own and spent the weekend eating last week's left-overs.

Engineering Building Officially Opened

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The Kemptville agriculture school's new $355,000 agricultural engineering building was officially opened Tuesday by the acting provincial agriculture minister, George Doucett. It replaces a building destroyed by fire in 1950.

Dr. E. S. Hopkins, director of the federal central experimental farm at Ottawa, said that agricultural engineering has multiplied farm products and reduced farm drudgery to a minimum.

He predicted that irrigation may be introduced into some areas of Ontario as a means of increasing production.

AN ACQUISITION OF THE PETERBOROUGH Historical Society is a cloth model of an Indian maharaja on an elephant and entourage made by the district's well-known poetess, Isabella Valancy Crawford. The piece was sent to the society by John Garton, 84, of Mount Vernon, Ont., for whom it was made by the poetess in 1884. Miss Crawford was born in Dublin, came to Canada in 1858 and lived with her parents in Paisley, Lakefield and Peterborough. She died in poverty in 1887 at the age of 37 years and is buried in Little Lake cemetery.

Community Fund Drops Navy League

At the first directors meeting of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Chest Fund it was decided that no funds would be issued to the Navy League this year.

The league's allocation in 1953 was $1,000 and the question at hand, Tuesday, was whether the amount of $500 should be granted to the league or not. A report read by Blake Bell, chairman of the investigating committee which was set up to determine whether the league was eligible for subsidization by the community fund, stated fundamentally that the one recipient of funds in Peterborough was the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

It was also stated that RCSCC received most of its subsidization from the naval division of the department of defence. The $1,000 received from the community fund was used in the rental and repair of corps buildings on George St. wharf.

A number of board members expressed their beliefs that if one such youth training organization received community aid, all other such organizations (i.e. boy scouts, girl guides, YMCA) possessed the same prerogative.

Claire Sullivan asked why the Air cadets, a similar organization, should not receive community aid.

The reason why the Navy League originally received funds stemmed from the fact that during the war years, its funds were put to use in more ways than the one existing. One of its biggest functions was to supply sailors with food and clothing parcels. Other organizations such as the Canadian Legion and the Knights of Columbus carried on similar work and received community aid, but this was ended after the war.

Ernest Wolff and James Lillico were in support of continuing aid to the league on the grounds that the sum of $500 did help the youthful training of 40 youths (present number of Sea Cadets) and expressed their beliefs that it was worthwhile.

A motion by Blake Bell was heavily carried that the Navy League receive no funds from the community fund this year. He qualified his motion by stating that if the Navy League should present reasons why their subsidization should continue, the matter would be re-considered in the future.

The election of officers was not completed but stands presently as: vice-presidents, Mrs. J. P. Watts, and Ford Warren; secretary, Claire Sullivan; treasurer, T. H. Henry. A president's election date is set for Friday.

Those elected to the budget committee were: J. E. Girven Blake Bell, John R. Corkery Sr., Mrs. T. J. Carley and the president of the Red Cross association, who is yet unnamed.

Those named for the campaign committee are: Russell Baer, James Fraser, H. L. Garner, J. E. Girven, Mrs. J. F. Watters, Stan Whitehouse, James McClenaghan, W. Roberts, James Wharry and Ford Warren. Others may be named in the future.

One Third Of Members Of County Council New

Introductions will be in order when the Peterborough county council hold their inaugural meeting 2 p.m., Jan. 19. A third of the council will be newcomers. A new seating arrangement will also have to be worked out because, with the addition of James Irwin, Harvey township's new deputy-reeve, council will now number 21—one more than last year.

Here is the list of 21, representing the 12 townships and three villages of Peterborough county.

TOWNSHIPS

VILLAGES

Lakefield—Reeve, William C. Grant; Norwood—Reeve, John Nixon, and Havelock—Reeve, Ernest J. Leeson.

To sum up: Ten former reeves have been returned, seven by acclamation and three by election; the other five reeves include three newcomers and two of last year's deputies who have moved up to the reeveship. And there are four new deputy-reeves, including Mr. Irwin who was acclaimed to the newly-created office in Harvey township.

Several well-known veterans of county politics have either stepped down this year or have been defeated at the polls.

Rork Ferguson, reeve of Norwood for 12 of the last 13 years did not run this year and his place in county council will be taken by John Nixon, village merchant, a councillor for nine years. Mr. Ferguson was warden in 1934 (when he was reeve of Asphodel).

His deskmate in council, James Humphries of Asphodel, who has been Asphodel reeve for the last 10 years, also stepped down this year. His place will be taken by Max Scott, 1953 township councillor. Mr. Humphries was warden in 1948.

DECLINED TO RUN

In another surprise move, Norman Wilson, reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther township, declined to run this year. His place will be taken by Sidney McCauley, Apsley car salesman, who has been a councillor for two years. Mr. Wilson was reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther for nine years and was only opposed once. He was warden in 1950.

One of the leaders for the last several years in forming county council policy will also be an absentee. He is Dick Stewart, reeve of Otonabee township, who bowed out at the nomination meeting after completing three years as reeve and two as deputy-reeve. Mr. Stewart was warden of the county in 1952.

David McIntyre, deputy-reeve of Otonabee for the last three years and seven years a councillor before that, is the new reeve. In 1953 Mr. McIntyre was chairman of finance and kept the county on the right side of the ledger, financially.

Belmont-Methuen has a double change. George Newton, deputy-reeve in 1953, is this year's reeve after defeating William E. Griffith by 384 votes to 319. Besides his one year in county council, Mr. Newton has been a councillor for 13 years.

He will have the support of a new deputy-reeve, Gardner Gawley, who defeated Robert Wrightly by 351 votes to 333 for the second-ranking municipal office. Mr. Gawley is also a veteran councillor.

In Dummer township there is a change in deputy-reeve but Reeve Stewart Clysdale is back after defeating Walter Sloan by 336 votes to 213. Mr. Sloan, 1953 deputy-reeve, was unsuccessful in his bid to oust Mr. Clysdale, who is now beginning his fifth term.

The new deputy-reeve is Harold Clifford, former councillor.

Harvey ratepayers seemed content with the way Reeve Charles Flynn is handling municipal affair. Last year plans were drawn up and preliminary work begun on the Gannon's Narrows high-level bridge and causeway.

Mr. Flynn is now beginning his fifth term as reeve. He has been in municipal politics for 17 years.

1,000 VOTERS

This year, for the first time, Harvey has registered more than 1,000 electors and is thus eligible for a deputy-reeve, giving the municipality two votes in county council. Their deputy-reeve, installed by acclamation, is James Irwin, a councillor for two years.

Other reeves who are back and their experience: Clive Hoard of Chandos, fourth term; Peter Pearson of Galway-Cavendish, ninth term; Roland Tedford and Loyola Moloney, respectively reeve and deputy-reeve of Douro township, fifth term; James Gifford of Ennismore, the senior member, beginning his 21st year as reeve; Gordon Fitzgerald and Robert McAdam, respectively reeve and deputy-reeve of Smith township for the last three years; Ernest J. Leeson, 1953 warden, beginning his ninth term of office as reeve of Norwood after defeating Fred Pollock by 179 votes; William C. Grant, beginning his eighth year as reeve of Lakefield; and Willard G. Waterman, beginning his fourth term as North Monaghan reeve after defeating Walter Brown by 272 votes to 161.

Cold Drink . . . At Last

One of the constant peeves of grand juries—lack of cold drinking water in the county courthouse—has been remedied at last. Acting on instructions of the county council, the property committee have bought an electric water cooler for $360. The cooler replaces the old drinking fountain that was located in the main hall on the right-hand side of the courtroom stairway. The previous fountain setup was unsatisfactory because hot water pipes ran along parallel with the cold, making the drinking water lukewarm.

Beginnings Of Gore's Landing Told To Society

The early days of Gore's Landing on the south shore of Rice lake were described to members of the Historical Society Tuesday night by the Rev. L. J. Delaney of Lakefield.

Mr. Delaney outlined the early prosperity which came to the settlement with the building of the Plank road in 1847 from Cobourg to Peterborough. It passed near the property of Captain Gore. A thriving community known as Gore's Landing very quickly grew.

The hopes of Gore's Landing ended with the building of two railroads to Peterborough. The village has virtually stood still since then.

While still young, Capt. Gore died and his widow married Mr. Barron, principal of Upper Canada College. Mr. Barron started a school at Gore's Landing for the sons of wealthy parents, and a literary and cultural community developed. It was at Gore's Landing that three of Canada's illustrious sons were born and spent their early days: Gerald Heywood, the painter of many of Europe's royalty, Archibald Lampman, one of Canada's best known poets; and D. T. Owen, primate of the Anglican Church.

SIMILAR TO ENGLAND

That part of the country has a great similarity to parts of England, and this together with the culture in the community, was partly responsible for Lt. and Mrs. Traill moving there for a time from Lakefield.

Mr. Delaney was thanked for his talk by W. R. Philp.

The four main sub-committees discussed their projects for the month: Interviewing aged inhabitants for their early memories which are being recorded; the recording of interesting and historical houses and pioneer furniture in the county; the preparation of an historical booklet on the city and cataloguing of history of local material available in the city.

DONATIONS

The president brought with him two interesting acquisitions of the society donated by John Garton of Mount Vernon, Ont, who is 84. One was a first edition of the poems by Isabella Valancy Crawford which is autographed by her.

The other is a two-foot square model of an Indian potentate riding on an elephant surrounded by 12 other Indians in splendid costumes made from rich materials and brocades. This was made for Mr. Garton by Miss Crawford when he was 15 years old in 1884.

President John Londerville reminded members that the next meeting would be Feb. 2.

Court Of Revision To Visit 2 Plants After Protests

Canadian Sealright Co. objected before the Court of Revision of assessment today to the allowance for depreciation in the 1954 valuation of their industrial property on Aylmer St. at Perry and Lake Sts. The [illegible]op and Alex McGregor. Assessment of the main block of the plant at $7,510 for land and $105,730 building, was recommended for reduction to $82,010 on building, but unchanged on land. Recommendation was made by J. E. Davis, assessment commissioner.

The company's representatives recalled the past of the property from about 1901 when it was first used at completion by the Canadian Cordage Co., manufacturing binder twine and rope. From 1912 the buildings were vacant until 1915 when a metal company moved in to make shells for use in the war.

Canadian Nashua Paper Co. leased the buildings in 1920, and carried on their business until 1953.

APPEAL DEPRECIATION

Mr. McGregor said the appeal was presented chiefly against the rate of 45 per cent allowed on depreciation.

He said on the basis of replacement in 1940 the buildings were 53 years old, they had been rented for 3 years; some $15,000 has been spent by Sealright on repairs to floors and other work; $6,000 on windows; and the brick walls, particularly in the exterior facing have been corroding to a serious condition. Experiments are being made with a finish material; some brick replacement has been done; and possibly all the facing brick might have to be replaced.

NEEDED SHORING

Mr. McGregor explained that the foundation wall was built of stone and mortar. During the half century the mortar had dried out, with some sag to the wall, requiring use of heavy timbers in shoring up the foundation.

"We'd like to show you over the plant, so you can see its condition," Mr. McGregor suggested.

The company was proposing that the depreciation rate should be 55 or 60 per cent at 1940 values. The maximum depreciation rate mentioned by Mr. Davis was 65%.

"I think we should take time and go down and see their plant," John Harstone, chairman, said.

An older building is the former Wm. Hamilton foundry property on Reid St., south of McDonnel St., which Canadian Ventilating Shades took over in 1936, Thomas Taylor, general manager, told the court.

"It must be from 80 to 100 years in existence—very old." He was asking for revision of the assessment of the main section of their premises at $40,280 but recommended by Mr. Davis to be reduced to $30,910.

$15,980 IN 1952

Mr. Taylor said the entire assessment was $15,980 in 1952, but was advanced to $51,390 in the new assessment, before any reduction was recommended.

Considerable money was spent when Ventilating Shades prepared to use the buildings in 1936, and put them into usable condition, and there have been year to year repair expenses.

Mr. Taylor cited details of walls and roof in the effect of time, wear and weather.

Mr. Taylor stressed the comparison of $15,980 assessment, entire, two years ago with $51,930 total this year; 325 per cent increase.

The creek under the factory is another cause of trouble, including occasional flooding.

The Court adjourned, pending their visit to both plants.

The Peterborough Lock Company assessment was confirmed at $22,710 on land and $61,270 buildings, also a further assessment of $1,540 on the Hunter St. frontage, crossed by the Jackson Park creek.

Beaver Lumber Co., confirmed at $4,800 land and $23,570 buildings.

Canada Packers Ltd., confirmed at $15,170 land and $251,440 buildings.

Canadian Pacific Railways' assessment reduced $7,875.

Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis informed the Court that De Laval Company had withdrawn their appeal, upon acceptance of recommended change in their assessment.

COMMENT ON FAIRNESS

A compliment to the fairness of Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis and Hector McLean of Charles Warnock Co., Ltd., Toronto, who was in charge of the industrial assessments, was paid by Alex R. MacGregor, plant superintendent of Canadian Sealright Co. He was present with Stanley Northrop, treasurer of the company.

At the conclusion of their hearing, Mr. MacGregor told the Court that the company's representatives wished to commend the assessors for the frank manner in which they had made their property valuation.

"In their reassessment they have been straightforward, fair and honest, and we appreciate the co-operative way in which they performed their duties." Mr. MacGregor said.

"That is a nice tribute," chairman J. A. Harstone commented. "This Court has been impressed by the fair and reasonable manner in which assessments of all types of properties have been approached by the public. I think that in the United Nations, Dominion-Provincial conferences, and generally, there is a frankness indicating that people wish to get together and disclose facts. That spirit in this Court helps to promote good public relations and understanding. People are not holding back facts, but are disposed to help in bringing them out. It is our wish to be as fair as possible and give every appellant a full hearing."

Mr. Harstone remarked that in some legal cases there was a disposition to hold back evidence until the last stage of hearing.

Advocates Joint Construction Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Osler of Winnipeg, president of Western Pipe Lines, Ltd., said today his company is anxious to co-operate in an amalgamation of competing plans for a cross-Canada natural gas pipeline from Alberta.

Mr. Osler was conferring today with Trade Minister Howe, designated by the federal government to bring together the Winnipeg firm and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines to work jointly on the $300,000,000 construction job.

Western's original plan called for piping gas as far east as Winnipeg and then sending it to Minneapolis. Trans-Canada planned an all-Canadian line as far east as Montreal. In releasing gas last month, the Alberta government ruled the two operations should be combined, and the federal government has accepted this view.

"We have told Mr. Howe we are anxious to co-operate in going ahead," said Mr. Osler, whose conferences with the trade minister began Tuesday.

He said he agrees with the minister that a single company will have to build the line.

Orders Inquiry Anti-Freeze Tariff Rate

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott has ordered the tariff board to launch a new anti-freeze inquiry with a view to suggesting possible changes in import duties.

Officials said Tuesday that the order follows new complaints from the Canadian industry, fearing competition from low-priced imports will eventually destroy Canadian production.

Mr. Abbott before he departed for Australia for the Commonwealth finance ministers' conference, ordered the board to scrutinize tariffs not only on ethylene glycol, the basic ingredient of anti-freeze, but also the finished product. Both are produced in the United States and shipped into Canada to compete with Canadian production.

A previous request by Mr. Abbott for a tariff study and recommendation was disregarded by the board on the grounds that anti-freeze duties are fixed by international agreement under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade which runs to mid-1955.

However, in his latest letter Mr. Abbott told the board to disregard GATT for the purposes of the inquiry.

There is an "escape" clause in GATT allowing a signatory country to withdraw concessions whenever imports become so heavy they threaten a domestic industry with ruin.

Ethylene glycol—97 per cent pure—comes into Canada from the U. S. duty-free. Imports of American blends—that is, glycol of less than 97 per cent purity—bear a 20-per-cent tariff. So does anti-freeze in tins.

Traffic Offences Bring Fines

The following charges for traffic breaches were brought by the OPP in the magistrate's court yesterday:

For exceeding 30 mph in a restricted area George Charlton of RR 4, Lakefield, and Canadian Cellucotton Products Ltd., Toronto, were each fined $5, costs $2.50. For a similar charge Scott Sayers, Havelock, and Charles Young, Young's Point, were each fined $10, costs $2.50.

Harry Campbell, 185 Aberdeen Ave., was fined $5, costs $2.50, on each of two charges that he did not carry adequate lights and that his truck did not bear its owner's name and address. Ruby McIlmoyle, Apsley, was fined $5, costs $2.50, for not having sufficient lights and $10, costs $2.50, for having no license.

Convicted of dangerous driving, Wilbert Knight, RR 3, Warkworth, was fined $75, costs $15. A fine of $10, costs $2.50 was given George Orr, Regent St., Lakefield, for driving without reasonable consideration for other road users.

Joseph Sheehan, RR 4, Lakefield, was fined $15, costs $2.50, for exceeding 30 mph in a restricted area.

500 Employees To End Strike

TORONTO (CP)—More than 500 employees of three Toronto-area plants of Continental Can Company, which signed an agreement Tuesday to end a 36-day strike at plants in Canada and the United States, will return to work as soon as possible, a union spokesman said.

The spokesman said local officials of United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) have not yet received an official announcement of the settlement. However, they probably will meet today to discuss the settlement and to pass an order to return the men to work.

The settlement affects 14,500 employees in 36 plants, including the three here.

The union won a 15-cent-an-hour package increase.

Congregation Presents Silver Tea Service

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—A special service was held in the Camborne church Sunday morning. The Rev. A. W. Lougheed, of Port Hope was in charge and Herbert Lander was guest speaker. Mr. Lander told of his 20 years as minister to the Hiawatha and Alderville Reserve congregations. The Alderville mixed quartette sang three numbers.

E. Lean called Mr. and Mrs. Lander to the front and W. Kennedy read an address and Olaf Snelgrove, on behalf of the Camborne congregation presented Mr. and Mrs. Lander with a beautiful four piece silver tea service. Mr. and Mrs. Lander thanked their many friends for the gift. They said they were celebrating their 37th wedding anniversary.

To Visit Chiang

TOKYO (Reuters) — Gen. John Hull, United Nations Far East commander, will fly to Formosa next Monday at the invitation of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese Nationalist leader, it was announced today. A UN spokesman described the trip as a "brief familiarization visit."

Trade Accord Reached

MOSCOW (AP)—Dr. Zev Argaman, economic counsel of the Israeli foreign ministery, has negotiated a trade agreement with the Soviet Union under which, Israel will receive 750,000 barrels of Soviet fuel oil. Israel is supplying fruit in exchange.

Council Holds Inaugural At Havelock

HAVELOCK (ENS) — The inaugural meeting of the Havelock council was held Monday night with Reeve Leeson and Counsillors Bell, Davidson, Sanderson and Steenburgh present.

Reeve Leeson welcomed the three members of last year's coun- [illegible] Steenburgh.

The following municipal offices were appointed:

Auditor, R. A. Dean, member of the Board of Health, G. T. Buchanan; park board (three years), R. B. Harry Watson; council representatives on rink board, Councillors Davidson and Bell; pound keeper, Roy Althouse. Snow plow operators will be Roy Althouse in the east ward and Howard Dafoe in the west ward. Their salary was set at $6 per trip.

The appointment of the other officers was left over for a special meeting, the clerk being authorized to contact Mr. Jennings regarding assessing.

The resignation of D. Johnston as garbage collector was received and accepted.

The council decided to advertise for sealed tenders for the municipal garbage collection, applications to be in the hands of the clerk on or before 12 noon, January 18, 1954, and marked "tenders for garbage."

A by-law authorizing the borrowing of $10,000 until the taxes are collected was given three readings and passed.

A communication was received from the Round Lake Conservation and Cottagers' Association requesting the use of the village dump. The clerk was authorized to refer the association to the Belmont council.

A communication was read from W. Howell, regarding release and discharge for claim — Breweries Transport. The reeve and clerk were authorized to sign this release.

The annual grant of $25 was made to the Havelock Pipe Band. Chief Halls' report for December was as follows: complaints and occurances, 31; articles reported lost, two; recovered, two; articles reported stolen, four, recovered, one; building permits issued, one; motor vehicle accidents, five; transients cared for, two; court attendance, two days.

Don't Snub Winter White Sales

By KAY SHERWOOD

This is the time of year to linger in the linen cupboard to take stock of sheets, towels and washcloths. The springtime bride-to-be isn't the only one who can benefit from the white sales which beckon every homemaker to invest in a bargain or two.

If your linens aren't quite ready for the rag bag and you meet up with a good buy in sheets or towels, remember that cotton goods can be stored safely.

But sheets should be washed before storage to remove starch or sizing which may make the fabric stiff. They should be stored in a dry, well-ventilated place to avoid mildew and wrapped to keep them clean.

How many sheets do you figure per bed? Some homemakers say six; others say four. With automatic washing and drying equipment, you need fewer than if you send out the laundry or must wait for a sheet to dry indoors.

Although the debate about comparative wear of muslin and percale still crops up, in my experience I haven't noted any startling difference. And percale is certainly lighter weight and easier to handle in the wash tub.

It is smart shopping to check for flaws such as thick yarns, knots and bumpy weaves.

Towels and washcloths don't wear out at an even rate in our house. The washcloths seem to go first. This poses a real problem if you have started out with sets in matched colors.

In buying replacements, I've switched to white in order to solve this problem. Then, when time permits, I cross-stitch an initial on the cloth in the color of the still usable towel.

Buying "seconds" can represent substantial savings with no loss of wear. But do check terry towels and cloths for even pile. If the pile-warp threads are loose and pull out easily, the towel probably won't wear well.

A YOUNG HOMEMAKER carefully checks linen supply to see if replacements are needed.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Menu Designed To Cut Costs After Splurge

The purpose of this menu is to cut down costs, so if you don't like saving money don't read it.

Creole Liver Cornbread
Baked Squash Winter Cole Slaw
Apple Dumplings Top Milk
Tea.

CREOLE LIVER

Buy 1 lb. (or 1½ lbs. if you are liver enthusiasts) of beef liver. Cut into small pieces and dredge in flour. Gently brown it in bacon or other meat drippings with ½ cup finely chopped onion, for about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Make a Barbecue Sauce: Mix together 3 cups tomato juice, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce, ¼ cup brown sugar (or less), ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons vinegar and simmer these about 15 minutes. Pour over the liver and place over low heat and simmer covered 15 minutes.

CORNBREAD

One cup each cornmeal and sifted flour, ¼ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, ¼ cup very soft shortening. Sift dry ingredients together into bowl. Add the egg, milk and soft shortening and beat until perfectly smooth, but do not beat any longer. Pour into hot shallow pan which has been buttered or greased and placed in oven to preheat it before pouring in batter. Bake at 425 degrees Fahr. about 20 to 25 minutes. Serve piping hot.

WINTER COLE SLAW

Because we are being economical does not mean we are at all careless, so shred Savoy cabbage and red cabbage, equal amounts, as finely as possible with your sharpest knife — just as if you were preparing it for your most elegant guests. Add ½ cup finely chopped parsley. Now add old-fashioned slaw dressing which is ¼ cup each cream or top milk, sugar, vinegar, and ½ teaspoon salt.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

Pastry. (These are the same amounts that you would use for one 2-crust pie): 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup of shortening at room temperature, 4 tablespoons cold water. Sift flour and salt together, cut in shortening until particles are the size of peas. Sprinkle water over and mix lightly with a fork until all flour is moistened. Gather dough together and press into a ball. Roll out pastry on lightly floured board to ⅛-inch thickness, and cut into six 7-inch squares. For each square pare and core 1 medium-sized tart juicy apple (small Spys are fine). Place 1 apple on each pastry square. Fill cavities with a mixture of ½ cup sugar and 1½ teaspoons cinnamon, and dot top with butter—using 1 tablespoon in all. Bring opposite points of pastry up over top of apple having them overlap. Moisten and seal. Carefully lift and place ½ inch apart on baking dish. Around them pour this syrup: 1 cup sugar, 2 cups of water, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and, if desired, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bake at 425 degrees Fahr. for about 45 minutes, or until crust is golden brown and the apples are baked through. Serve warm with the syrup, and if desired, top milk, or whipped cream when you are not on a saving spree.

If youand your family do not like liver you could substitute for it—

SALMON RICE LOAF

One-half lb. can pink salmon or tuna, 1 cup raw rice, 2 well-beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, juice of 1 lemon, salt, pepper. Cook the rice in 1½ cups hot water with 1 teaspoon salt, tightly covered, until all the water is evaporated and rice is dry. Flake salmon and add cooked dry rice to it. Stir these into the beaten eggs. Add the liquor from the canned salmon, the butter or margarine which have been melted, lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste. Mix gently. Bake in casserole for which you have a cover at 350 degrees Fahr. until firm. You may want to serve this with tomato or parsley white sauce.

Of Interest to Women

NO MONTHLY CRAMPS... not even on the VERY FIRST DAY!

In tests by our doctors... striking preventive relief of pain, backaches, nervous feeling!

• Women and girls who suffer from the functionally-caused cramps, backaches and headaches due to menstruation—who feel upset and irritable on "certain days" every month—may be suffering needlessly!

Such is the conclusion from tests made by our doctors in which Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound and Tablets stopped or gave striking relief of such distress in case after case . . . even on the very first and worst day of the period!

Yes! Medical evidence proves Lydia Pinkham's modern in action. It exerts a pronounced calming effect on the uterus—strikes at the cause of the pain!

Relief . . . even on first day of period!

Note how Pinkham's works! Included in its beneficial action is a "calming" effect on the uterus . . . quieting contractions (see chart) that so often cause menstrual cramps and other distress.

The effectiveness of Lydia Pinkham's needs no proof to the millions whom it has benefited. But do you know what it may do for you?

Take Lydia Pinkham's! See if you don't get the same relief from cramps and weakness . . . feel better both before and during your period!

Get either Lydia Pinkham's Compound, or new, improved Tablets, with added iron!

Lydia Pinkham's is splendid for "hot flashes" and other functional distress of the "change of life," too!

Letters of appreciation from Father Kay at Kearney and Father Ryan at Britt, for the toys which were sent to them at Christmas for distribution to needy children, were read. Miss Genevieve Murray reported that at Christmas one large box of food was sent to a needy family, one to a single person, and eleven smaller boxes were distributed. Boxes were sent to the Orphanage, the House of Providence, and to patients at St. Joseph's Hospital. Letters of thanks were received from the Sisters for these gifts. Means of raising money in the future were discussed. Miss Loretto Sullivan announced that the study clubs will start on Monday, January 11.

✧ ✧ ✧

No Election Necessary

No election of officers was necessary at the annual meeting of St. Andrew's church Woman's Association on Tuesday afternoon as all those presently in office consented to remain in charge during 1954. President Mrs. J. A. Dewart presided for the business and called for annual reports from all officers and conveners. These indicated a busy and successful year past. Devotions were conducted by Miss Jean Gillespie and the subject was "A New Year." The minister of the church, the Rev. Henry Cotton, was a very welcome guest at this meeting and he brought the ladies an inspiring message for the new year. Mr. Cotton also talked in an informal way about church affairs in general. Afterward, a social hour was enjoyed with the January group convening.

High-Priced Mink Coats Shown By Models at Toronto

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A bevy of dolls draped in mink sashayed along a runway.

They moved in time to the words, almost musical in their intonation, of Jean Courtot, internationally-known furrier:

"You must never look as though the fur is taking you for a walk. You must be taking a walk with your fur."

Svelte Betty Warner showed, definitely, she knew what he was talking about. With a flick of a shoulder she let $10,000 worth of imperial pastel mink ripple as casually as a housewife shrugs off her apron after doing the supper dishes.

HIGH-PRICED HANDIWORK

Courtot and his models were displaying some of his high-priced handiwork for the Ontario Fur Breeders' Association and the March of Dimes Foundation.

There were numbers such as a simple little sapphire blue mink jacket—selling for $9,500. And an opera jacket in royal pastel at $8,000.

Courtot, as offhand with his remarks as he was later in reeling off his four-and-five-figure prices, gave his audience some tips in buying mink.

LIKE BUYING HOUSE

"It's like buying a house," he told his audience of about 200 socially-prominent men and women who paid $1 apiece Tuesday night to look, for the benefit of charity, at thousands of dollars worth of skins on display. "You must know what is in it."

He said he bases his value of a mink coat at 50 per cent for the skins and 50 per cent for the workmanship that goes into the finished product. Just like buying a house.

Why does a woman wish to buy a mink, asked the man who has plush fur shops in Paris, London and Toronto?

Her reasons are "widely varied and often intangible" — economic and psychological and the pull of fashion.

Three Canadian Painters Have Exhibits In New York

NEW YORK (CP)—This is something of a Canadian week in the fashionable art galleries on New York's 57th street. Three Canadian painters, a westerner and two Montrealers, have one-man shows running simultaneously. Art dealers are unable to recall that ever happening before.

Roloff Beny of Lethbridge has a big showing of oils, water colors and drawings at the Knoedler galleries; Jean-Paul Riopelle's massive colorama [illegible] the Pierre Matisse gallery; Paul Emile Borduas has the Passedoit gallery to himself.

All three paint in terms of symbolism or mysticism; their appeal is to the initiated, rather than to those who like pictorial form in their art.

TAKES BIBLE THEME

As a theme for 10 striking canvases, Beny has gone to the Bible, the third chapter of Ecclesiastes, beginning: "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." Thus we have "A Time to Mourn," "A Time to Dance," "A Time to Keep Silence and a Time to Speak," "A Time of War," "A Time of Peace."

There are four paintings of Canadian inspiration. Art critic Charlotte Weidler describes them in this way: "While travelling in the Mediterranean countries, visions of his homeland, the Canadian prairie, came into sharper focus. . . . He succeeded in finding a personal formula . . . For its emptiness and wide open space, for the strange beauty of the luminous immense sky, enriched by the calligraphic wonders of the Aurora Borealis."

Beny's paintings at the exhibit are priced as high as $1,200. This is his fourth one-man exhibit in New York. He has also had shows in Milan, Paris, Florence and Toronto.

STYLES CONTRAST

Beny's colorings are delicate, his lines slender and exquisite. This is in contrast to the dazzling impact of the paintings of the two French-Canadians. Riopelle's canvases are huge, some measuring more than nine feet by nearly seven. To the uninitiated, they seem like aerial views of cities, saturated in the brightest colors.

Borduas' paintings are masses of color, too, but done in a mood altogether different from Riopelle's. Where the latter's colors are universally warm, Borduas uses deep tones in his backgrounds and catches a mood of eerie solitude in canvases like "La Danse sur le Glacier" and "Le Gel de Paillettes."

Church Guild Names Officers

STIRLING (ENS) — Mrs. Burton Woodbeck was elected president of the St. John's Anglican Church Guild on Tuesday afternoon. Other officers named were: Vice-president, Mrs. Earl Morrow; secretary, Mrs. William Webber; treasurer, Mrs. Flossie Morrow; convener of purchasing committee, Mrs. M. Tanner; and convener of flower committee, Mrs. C. Vance.

Hill-Clarkson

The marriage took place quietly on New Year's Day, at the Lakefield United Church parsonage by the Rev. H. C. Wolfraim, of Bertrice Carolyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clarkson of Buckhorn, to Murray Laverne Hill, son of Mrs. Hill and the late Ernest Hill of Omemee.

The bride was attired in a navy knitted suit and wore a white hat and gloves, navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. Her attendant, Miss Barbara McCulloch, wore a light blue knitted suit with black hat and accessories and her corsage of pink 'mums.

Mr. Llody Hill attended the groom.

After a reception at the bride's home, the couple left for Hamilton. They will live at 592 Charlotte, Peterborough.

George St. WA Slate Installed

The WA of George Street church commenced a new year of monthly meetings on Tuesday afternoon, president Mrs. W. H. Frise opening with a New Year's poem. Devotions were led by group one, under leadership of Mrs. Fred Horton. Scripture was read by Mrs. Charles Allen and prayer offered by Mrs. Roy Brown.

Monthly and annual reports were both read, the latter showing a splendid year of activity and work. Mrs. Jack Beatty reported on the church's contributions to the United Church Training School in Toronto.

The officers elected for 1954 were installed by the Rev. E. W. Rowland, who preceded the ceremony with a wonderful message on "Service." Miss Mary Elliott voiced the members' praise of Mrs. Frise as their president the past year, and it was with pleasure that they saw her installed for the coming year in this office.

The honorary presidents are Mrs. Charles Elliott and Mrs. George Munro; vice presidents are Mrs. W. G. Benton and Mrs. P. Sanders; recording secretary, Mrs. C. Munro; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. Duncan; treasurer, Mrs. H. Helson; press, Mrs. H. W. Coones; pianist, Mrs. A. J. Weames.

Committee conveners are: program, Mrs. I. Walker; decorating, Mrs. R. Stabler; parsonage, Mrs. J. P. Bickell; social, Mrs. F. Horton; cards and flowers, Mrs. W. K. McGee; visiting, Mrs. P. Taylor; goodwill, Mrs. S. Wildman; life membership, Mrs. W. H. Morton; memorial, Mrs. P. M. McCarrell; kitchen, Mrs. L. Gilders; Red Cross, Miss Jean Buck; Local Council of Women, Mrs. W. G. McLaren; nominations, Mrs. A. G. Metheral.

Group leaders are: 1, Mrs. F. Horton; 2, Mrs. G. Leonard; 3, Mrs. Charles Elliott; 4, Mrs. W. W. Sheppard; 5, Mrs. G. Munro.

P.T.A. News

ST. ANNE'S SCHOOL

St. Anne's Parent-Teacher Association held the first meeting of the new year Monday evening, opening with a prayer by the Rev. L. M. Dubbery.

Mr. G. Burns introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. J. Henderson, branch librarian.

Mrs. Henderson discussed how parents may help children in their early years of life. She stressed that parents should get down to their children's level, answer their questions; read to them, and set a good example by letting the children see them read. Mrs. Henderson said "Children may discover at an early age that we learn things from books."

Mr. J. Boland extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Henderson.

Next on the program was a delightful one-act play, entitled, "Good Will Toward Women," the cast being six P.T.A. members. Bright dialogue, good characterizations and excellent philosophy made this most enjoyable.

Attendance prizes were won by Miss English's and Mrs. Moore's rooms.

Lunch was served in the kindergarten.

CGIT Doings

HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK — (ENS) — The CGIT girls held their first meeting following the holiday season, Monday night in the United Church sunday school room.

Ten members and two visitors who are prospective members were present. The meeting opened with a sing-song with leader Mrs. R. G. Newman at the piano. Then the president, Doris Newman conducted business. Lunch was served by Marilyn Quinlan and Ferne Emery.

H. and S. News

WARSAW PUBLIC SCHOOL

WARSAW (ENS)—The Home and School Association held a formal dance New Year's Eve in the town hall. There was a very good crowd and music was supplied by Alan Leahy's orchestra. Jack Delaney was floor manager and everyone enjoyed round and square dancing.

Yuletide decorations, hats, horns, balloons and noisemakers were the highlights of the evening. Everyone welcomed the New Year by singing Auld Lang Syne, after which everyone enjoyed cake and sandwiches served by lunch conveners Mrs. Harold Payne, Mrs. George Cobb and Mrs. Hilliard Ray. Dance conveners were Mrs. Trevor Watts and Mrs. Reg Payne.

The spot dance prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bell. Door prize was won by Mr. Ivan Payne.

DOROTHY DIX

Fast Group Of Girls Snare Boys From Well-Behaved Classmates

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a high-school freshman and my companions are nice girls from my class. We're all fairly attractive, take part in school activities, and are well mannered.

There's another group of girls of our year who seem to have all the boys. These girls are not the type we like; they're noisy, use too much make-up, and are very forward. They'll have nothing to do with school activities; prefer-ring outside amusements. I hate [illegible] can be that [illegible] passes quickly.

Don't under any circumstances try to imitate the other girls, or let down your own standards. In the long run (and it won't be so very long) you'll discover that your way is best.

Girls who participate in the sports and social life of school are bound to be noticed by boys sooner or later. Once you've won initial attention, the rest is easy. Don't ignore the girls you don't like, be pleasant and friendly to all comers. Earn your reputations as co-operative, interesting lassies whose friendship is well worth cultivating.

The first year of high school is largely a trial-and-error undertaking. One sometimes makes mistakes in friendships, just as one learns that a particular course or activity is the wrong choice. Freshman year is the proving ground for your permanent program, scholastic and social. You and your group should [illegible] with charm, [illegible] you want, preferably with the aid of a faculty advisor. Don't make it too rigid, but don't let it overstep the bounds of good judgment. Set an example, and your classmates will soon follow it.

MAUREEN

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: To please my fiance, I have cut my dating with girl friends to a minimum. On the evenings when Gene doesn't come over, I stay home alone. But he goes out with the fellows two or three evenings a week.

ANSWER: Why not expand your social activities with other girls, instead of spending so much time at home — brooding, no doubt? There's no reason why you should cut down on your social life while Gene extends his. It's much wiser for you both to have outside interests, rather than concentrating all you time on each other's company.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widow of 62, and have been friends with a man slightly older for the past three years. A few weeks ago I had a telephone call from a young man of 36, whom I have known all his life. He had just returned from a long stay abroad, and wanted to have dinner with me. Being happy at the prospect of seeing an old (in time) friend, I agreed. Later, when my older friend heard of the date, he was annoyed. He said he had intended asking me to marry him, but since I had a date with another man, he had changed his mind.

A. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your older friend may be old in years but he behaves childishly. Believe me, though, if his matrimonial intentions had been sincere, no youngster of 36 would have thwarted them. Let him sulk until he acquires some sense.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Merchants Ask Gov't Help

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's independent retail merchants Tuesday asked the federal government to help them modernize their stores and improve their competitive position.

The Retail Merchants Association of Canada in a brief presented to Prime Minister St. Laurent and Justice Minister Garson urged the government to set up a revolving fund and "make it available to qualified merchants for modernization of their stores." It left the amount of the fund up to the government.

The brief was submitted to Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Garson by the national executive officers of the association. They included Luc Marchessault, West Shefford, Que., national president; S. A. Boswell, Hamilton, past president and J. R. Thomson, St. Catharines, vice-president.

The association suggested that the revolving fund be similar to those operated under the Industrial Development Bank Act, and the National Housing Act.

Mr. Thomson said "independent retailers are not having a hard time." However, he said, "we are going through a phase of new methods of merchandising."

Heavy Snowfall In N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Winter closed in on New York state from all directions today, piling up to eight inches of snow on some areas and putting an icy kink in highway traffic.

The storm hit hardest at eastern New York. Eight to 10 inches of snow carpeted the Albany area and westward through the Mohawk valley to Utica, and more was in the wind.

Investigate Nude Show By Strip Girls

LONDON (Reuters)—The American embassy has been asked to investigate ch[illegible]ges that show girls are hired to perform strip tease acts at United States Air Force camp shows in Britain.

The British [illegible] federation, a [illegible] ville performers, is compiling evidence of such "total" strip acts.

The federation has asked the embassy to receive a deputation to discuss the future of entertainment for American servicemen in Britain and to track down the theatrical agents who booked the nude shows.

The embassy said today that an investigation is under way and talks may be held.

$30 FOR TWO "SHOWS"

"The performances have been revolting and they have caused us the gravest concern," said Reginald Whitby Swinson, general secretary of the federation.

He said girls receive as much as $30 a week for two nude shows and are also transported to and from the base. This is a high wage for a small-time model or bit player.

Swinson said: "The majority of these girls can hardly be described as performers—they are just odd pickups. Usually they arrive at the camp, take off their clothes, walk nude before Americans, put their clothes on again and go home."

Vietminh Forces Clash With French

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The French today reported the first serious clash with the Vietminh invaders of Laos, and claimed the Communist rebels lost 100 killed, wounded or captured. French losses were not given.

The French said their paratroops clashed with an estimated battalion of Vietminh 30 miles north of Seno, the village turned into a French strongpoint Christmas Day after a Vietminh division cut Indo-China in two by a thrust to the Mekong river border of Thailand.

The paratroops, adopting Vietminh tactics, ambushed the rebels in the jungles Tuesday. The Vietminh also was under attack from French fighter and bomber planes.

AIR ACTIVITY BRISK

Farther North, French fighters and bombers hammered for the 10th consecutive day at Vietminh troops threatening to attack the fortified plain of Dien Bien Phu. American-supplied B-26s dropped napalm bombs on Vietminh troop concentrations and rear supply bases in the area just north of the Laotian border.

French army sources reported only patrol activity around Dien Bien Phu, the last remaining French fortified position in northwestern Indo-China. It is threatened by the Vietminh "Iron" Division of 12,000 men, reinforced by thousands of troops from two other divisions which have been opposing the French Union forces in the Red river delta area around Hanoi.

Two Accused To Consider Trial

Appearing to renew their bail of $5,000 each, Walter and Raymond McCaskey, jointly charged with breaking, entering and theft in connection with the theft of a safe last Wednesday from Canadian Tire, withdrew their election today.

On their first appearance, they elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty. On advice of their counsel, W. J. A. Fair, QC, however, they withdrew their election but didn't re-elect.

They are scheduled to appear January 20 on the charges.

Promises $1,000,000 If Dockers Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was reported today to have promised a strike fund of $1,000,000 to the International Longshoremen's Association, (Ind.) if it calls a dock walkout in a move to win bargaining recognition.

The ILA locked in a struggle with the new ILA-AFL for control of waterfront labor along the United States east coast, has hinted at a strike if the national labor relations board sets aside a representation election in which the ILA is leading.

Reports of the promise of funds were carried today by the New York Herald Tribune and The Daily News.

Two New Battalions Being Formed

OTTAWA (CP)—Two battalions of the new 1st Canadian Infantry Division now are being formed.

An army spokesman said Tuesday night in an interview that the battalions at present are being made up mostly of men who returned from Germany last November and December and have since been on leave.

One battalion is being formed at Petawawa, Ont., and the other at [illegible] Que.

Denies Asked $10,000,000 In Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Sears (Bobo) Rockefeller was quoted today as saying it is "real nonsense" to assert she wants a $10,000,000 settlement from her estranged oil millionaire husband.

Edwin Dunaway, a lawyer for Winthrop Rockefeller, said in Little Rock, Ark., Tuesday that Mrs. Rockefeller had repudiated a financial agreement signed last Oct. 1 and is now asking $10,000,000.

A spokesman for Mrs. Rockefeller early today issued a statement in which Mrs. Rockefeller said, "Contrary to reports, a settlement has not been rejected."

DEMANDS "INSATIABLE"

Dunaway asserted: "There is no apparent way of meeting Mrs. Rockefeller's insatiable demands."

The Little Rock lawyer said the agreement of last Oct. 1 was contingent upon Rockefeller's having the right to have his son with him during half the summer and on special holidays.

Dunaway said in his statement that Rockefeller has been permitted to see the boy only in the presence of Mrs. Rockefeller.

The Rockefellers were married in 1948 and separated the next year.

350 Unemployed In Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — Unemployment in Lindsay has hit its highest point since the national employment office was established here according to the director, Harry S. Brown.

At present there are 850 persons unemployed in the office's jurisdictional area which includes all of Victoria county and parts of Ontario and Simcoe counties.

Of this number some 350 are located in Lindsay. A large number of local workers were laid off some time ago at General Motors Oshawa plant and only about forty per cent have returned to their jobs.

At the same time the textiles plants in Lindsay are suffering. All three local plants are working at less than full staff and one, National Textiles, is now on a three-day week. Other plants in Lindsay, Horn Bros. Woollens and Knitters Ltd., are also cutting their staffs.

daughter, Mrs. Phyliss Henry of London, became an interior decorator. The three sons are well established in the interior decorating business in the United States. G. Barry Ashwell lives in Minneapolis, John F. Ashwell lives in Syracuse and Charles F. Ashwell lives in Seattle.

The sons and daughters all wanted a painting for their homes after their mother got started on her second painting work. And the grandchildren and great-grandchildren wanted paintings also. Other relatives and friends have greatly admired the work.

KEEPS ACTIVE

Mrs. Ashwell is a pleasant, active woman and is most friendly and a good conversationalist. She can work at her paintings almost any place whether it be in her own room or downstairs with other members of the family.

The paintings include various scenes, such as water scenes, wooded scenes, ships at dock and many others, including an eye-catching painting of an old-type sailing ship on a huge expanse of deep blue ocean. They are all accomplished in an experienced manner and a splendid example of work done by a person of 78 years.

Mrs. Ashwell's friends claim that "she is a remarkable woman." She, however, is quite modest about everything, and she does not see why her family and friends are so amazed at the artistry she is showing. As for her work, she says it is a pleasure, and she adds, "I love painting better now than ever." Her other favorite pastime is one shared by numerous other folks and that is attending bingo games. "I don't win very often, but I love going to bingo," she said.

Mrs. Ashwell spent most of her life in Strathroy, but during her lifetime has also lived in Victoria and Cleveland. She has travelled by plane and likes that method of travel as well as travelling by train and automobile or bus.

She has only a short distance to go to church, the Immaculate Conception Church, which is on the same street where she lives. She has always been active in the church, and some years ago was a church organist for over 20 years. She is also a great reader, and her eysight is good for a woman of her age. She likes the radio, television and other present-day conveniences.

At the age of 78, she leads a happy life and is pleased that she returned to something which gave her so much pleasure in those years so long ago when she was a young girl.

Possibly only artists realize the great amount of satisfaction she receives now in putting down on canvas the beautiful paintings of scenery. She has plans for still more paintings to be done, and it is little wonder her friends all say that "she is a very remarkable woman."

Move Revision Of Boundaries In Great Lakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives Kenneth Keating and Harold Ostertag, New York Republicans, plan to introduce identical bills at today's opening of Congress to provide specific means [illegible] damaged by projects affecting water levels in the Great Lakes.

The two bills call for revision of the boundary waters treaty between the U. S. and Canada. The treaty now gives to the international joint commission discretionary authority to provide indemnity to lake shore owners whose lands are damaged from authorized projects affecting lake levels.

The Keating and Ostertage measures make sure indemnity action mandatory.

In another identical bill they plan to seek assurance that the level of Lake Ontario, during operation of the proposed St. Lawrence river power project, be maintained within a range of 245.5 and 247.38 feet above mean tide, New York.

Active Trading Groups Mostly Higher

TORONTO (CP) — Most groups were higher in active forenoon stock market trading today.

Industrials, base metals, uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals and golds were higher. Western oils were mixed.

Papers, manufactures, utilities, foods and motors were strong in the industrials and led that group higher. Refining oils, steels and liquors slipped in mixed trading and banks were steady.

Although senior golds were a little lower, the group as a whole was up. Violamac in the prospects took over the feature spot with a 20-cent gain. Consolidated Howey slipped again today as the profit-takers whittled away at its recent gains. It was down 10 cents with a volume of 95,000 shares.

STRONG AGAIN

Uraniums were strong again, led by Chima which added eight cents with a volume of 88,000 shares in the first hour. Bathurst-area base metals' recent upward trend continued but at a lower rate following New Larder U's two-cent lead.

Western oils were mixed and a slightly lower note was apparent although the group was not on a downward path. Canadian Collieries was up 10 cents and several others were close behind but some recent strong issues followed Merrill's 25-cent drop.

Base metals were higher as International Nickel led with a 62½-cent gain.

Reduce Charge To Assault

Carrying through his own defence, Grant Howard, 26, of 144 London St., saw a charge which originally started out as rape, reduced to common assault by Magistrate W. R. Philp this morning.

Midway through his evidence the 17-year-old informant arose and walked rapidly out of the court room.

Howard was remanded for sentence on the charge after being found guilty of assault. Several other counts were adjourned. They include assault charges laid by his mother and his brother, one charge of causing a disturbance and another charge of resisting an officer.

Evidence was first heard Monday, revealing Howard had supposedly slapped the girl and thrown her to the ground, then had sexual relations with her.

According to the accused, however, intercourse was "obtained very easily with more willingness than I've experienced in numerous other cases."

Howard said this took place after he talked to the girl about her use of marijuana, and consumption of beer and wine. He originally went to her place for two reasons; to tell her not to come around to his home bothering his mother; and "for the same reason any man will when told certain things about a girl by other men."

Unbelieving, Howard repeatedly asked the girl how old she was; he couldn't see "how any girl of that age could obtain that much experience."

Arguing his case, he reminded the court "with the record against me if I thought there was any chance of a charge against me, I wouldn't have been in Peterborough."

Magistrate Philp decided that, while the girl may have been struck and thrown down, her injuries were not of the nature to justify the charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Howard is also on remand for sentencing on a charge of indecent assault.

Syndicate Raises $200,000 For Richmond

By ROBERT MOORE

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A syndicate of four Richmond citizens—two of whom mortgaged their homes to raise funds—has put this city into baseball's class-AAA International League. None of the four has been identified.

The syndicate came up with $200,000 Tuesday night about be-fore the league's ... for the city to find a park that would meet triple-A specifications. Parker Field will be converted to seat between 10,000 and 12,000 spectators.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the league, said in Montreal that Richmond's entrance is a mere formality, and described the work of Richmond's mayor, Dr. Ed Haddock, as "wonderful" and "tremendous" in driving for the franchise.

INDUCT RICHMOND

The league probably will meet in New York next week to induct Richmond, since 1932, a member of the class-B Piedmont League. At the same time, Havana, Cuba, a member of the class-B florida-International loop, will be admitted.

The last day before the deadline had all of the earmarks of an old-time movie thriller in Richmond's drive to gain a berth in the league. The tireless Haddock undoubtedly was the hero.

Haddock believed he had met the requirement of an adequate baseball park when city council Monday night made municipally-owned Parker Field available for basebal use. The mayor figured he would go right to work to raise sufficient money to improve the park to meet league standards.

TRAUTMAN STEPS IN

Tuesday, though, in stepped George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minors). Trautman said that making the park available by the city wasn't enough, and brought up that old devil—money.

With the deadline only hours away, the heads of Richmond baseball fans drooped — all except Mayor Haddock's. He called a meeting or two and in a few hours had the promise of the $200,000.

"Two members of the group (the syndicate) have mortgaged their homes and all their worldly belongings," Haddock said, "to go into this thing." The mayor said a bond drive will be started immediately to reimburse the syndicate.

Richmond started to work to gain an IL franchise after Baltimore Orioles joined the American League, replacing St. Louis Browns. Richmond and Havana replace Baltimore and Springfield, Mass.

The six other IL member are Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo, N.Y., and Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa.

Two-Way Win For Boxer

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Marty Marshall, Detroit light heavyweight, won two ways Tuesday night—by a knockout and by a decision—in a fight which was interrupted to permit another bout to finish.

Victim of the strange affair was Herbie Moore, a 168-pounder from Cincinnati.

Marshall caught Moore with a left hook just before the end of the third round of their scheduled 10 rounder. Referee Lou Luzader, believing the timekeeper had counted to 10 raised Marshall's hand in victory. Actually the timekeeper, noting Moore's attempt to rise had stopped at eight.

Marshall and his handlers went to the dressing room and returned only after a threat by the Columbus boxing commission of a fine and a year's suspension. But the remaining seven rounds had to wait the finish of a six-rounder which had started during the debacle.

Marshall won again, this time on a decision.

77 Teachers Continue Strike

EDMONTON (CP)—No immediate end to the strike of 77 suburban Jasper Place school teachers was in sight following a meeting of the town's school board.

The five-man board Tuesday stood pat on its stand to increase basic salary to $2,000 from $1,800 effective Jan. 1. The teachers did not return to classes Monday because they want the increase retroactive to Sept. 1.

The teachers' contract expired at the end of August.

The school board has asked Mayor J. M. Stone of Jasper Place to call a meeting of ratepayers Friday night.

About 2,300 school children are affected by the walkout.

U.S. To Play Canada In Curling Classic

DETROIT (AP)—American and Canadian teams will enter into "friendly match championship" competition in a friendly sport—curling—this week.

The occasion is the 68th annual International Bonspiel, the curling classic which will crown a new international champion at the end of a four-day meet next Sunday. The bonspiel opens Thursday.

Forty rinks will enter—20 from Canada, 20 from the U.S.

The Lloyd Raney rink of Timmins, last year's champ, will not compete this year.

The bonspiel's additional crown will be the "friendly match championship" from a side competition between six American and six Canadian rinks.

May End Walkout Against Company

NEW YORK (AP)—Settlement of a strike against the Continental Can Co. was viewed today by some union sources as a possible pattern for ending a walkout against the American Can Co.

The United Steelworkers (CIO) went on strike against the two companies Dec. 1 in a bid for higher wages and other contract improvements.

Agreement to end the strike of 14,500 workers at 36 Continental plants—three of them in Canada—was announced Tuesday, with the union saying the settlement constituted a 15-cent-an-hour package increase. Included is a general wage rise of 8½ cents an hour.

Some union sources expect the Continental formula to set a pattern for agreement in the strike of 20,000 workers at 40 plants of American Can. James Robb, union district director, said he will ask American Can officials to meet with him Friday to discuss the stuation.

However, E. T. Klassen, head of the negotiating committee for American Can, said in a statement that his firm "has had several meetings with the union looking toward a settlement, but no agreement has been reached, and we are presently in no position to speculate as to when work will be resumed."

Doubt Quebec Mother Sets Twins Record

LONDON (CP)—British experts today said they doubt that the delivery of a sixth set of twins to a Canadian mother sets any world record.

They were commenting on a dispatch from St. Joseph d'Alma, Que., telling of the birth to Mrs. Paul Emilie Tremblay of the sixth pair of twins in eight years.

Officials of the British Medical Association cited the case of a Cleveland, Ohio, woman who bore seven pairs of twins. They said the woman, married three times, also gave birth to five sets of triplets and two sets of quadruplets.

The London Star noted that an Italian woman in 1947 bore her seventh set of twins. It added that a Sicilian mother a year earlier gave birth to her 11th pair.

Aces Lose And Draw In Exhibition Games

In exhibition minor hockey games at Civic Arena on Monday night, Toronto Downsviews defeated the local juvenile Aces 10-4 as the midget Aces drew 5-all with their Downsview opponents. The latter tilt saw Toronto draw seven of the 10 penalties, while the juvenile joust had Downsviews earning seven penalties and the local crew four. Ed Woodcock and Bill Post handled both frays.

Floyd got two goals in the second period ... Hook and Doris scoring in the third, with Kane, Ferren and Stewart each earning an assist this frame. Moore got a pair for Toronto in the first, Packer helping on one. In the second, Packer, Stevens and Brooks counted, with the latter, Stevens and Packer each getting an assist. In the third, Stevens tallied twice, and Cosma, Moore and Sucko once each. Fryimota had two assists.

Naish and Baker got goals for the midget Aces in the initial inning, Murphy earning one assist. In the third, Towns, Baker and Murphy scored, with Darling getting an assist. Egan and Chinn counted in the opener for Downsviews, with Brown scoring from Chinn and Egan in the next heat. Disera dented the twine twice for them in the third, his marker from Clark at 19.54 tying it up.

Ont. Jockey Club Makes $742,526

TORONTO (CP) — Consolidated earnings of $742,526, after depreciation but before income taxes, shown by the Ontario Jockey Club Ltd., exceed substantially earnings of the company and its present subsidiaries during any one of the last several years, the annual report shows.

President K. R. Marshall, in his report on the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, said public reaction to development of the Fort Erie track has justified the over-all expansion program.

Expenditures of about $1,000,000 for further improvement of the track are planned, he said.

Shareholders will be asked to consider an increase in capital by the creation of 2,000,000 additional shares.

First phase of work at the Fort Erie track cost about $1,070,000. About $318,000 was spent for alterations at the Toronto Woodbine track.

Net profit was $360,257 as compared with $111,290 in 1952.

Report Actress Still In Frisco

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movieland's mystery of the moment—where's Marilyn Monroe?—brought this flat statement from her representative:

She's still in San Francisco.

He said he talked with her by telephone Tuesday.

Presumably she's staying with the family of her friend, Joe DiMaggio, former heavy-hitting center for New York Y... ...ldtimers" is ... a misnomer because there will be some spry performers only a few years out of the National Hockey League or the minor pro and top amateur loops.

In San Francisco, DiMaggio told a reporter that he and Marilyn have not been married and he added:

"We're neither confirming nor denying our marriage in the future. But if it occurs I'll issue a statement for everybody."

The former Yankee Clipper said Marilyn was in San Francisco staying with friends, but he would answer no more questions about himself and the actress.

STUDIO DRAWS BLANK

Her studio, 20th Century-Fox, which suspended her Monday for failing to show up for the start of a picture, said it still didn't know where she was.

Her representative acknowledged she might not be answering studio calls, possibly feeling that such discussions should be with her agent.

The representative, who asked not to be identified, said: "Until she gets the script, she won't report to the studio."

He said Marilyn told him there's "no foundation" to rumors that she and DiMaggio, her frequent escort in past months, planned to elope. Earlier reports had the couple en route to Las Vegas or Reno, Nev., to be married.

Canadian Soldier On Murder Charge

SOEST, Germany (AP)—Canadian army authorities said today that formal murder charges have been filed against a 22-year-old Canadian soldier, George Mitchell of Winnipeg.

Mitchell is subject to a general court-martial on charges of having killed a 56-year-old German widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Sieling, in Iserlohn Dec. 15 during a robbery attempt.

MARCIANO PLANS FLUID

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano may pass up a winter defence of his heavyweight boxing championship to wait until June for a New York ball park match with ex-champ Ezzard Charles.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club which is holding open a Feb. 24 or Feb. 26 date at Miami, Fla., for Rocky, said Tuesday a Miami match for Marciano now is uncertain.

"I talked to Al (Al Weill, Rocky's manager) for two hours today and I'll see him again tomorrow," said Norris. "I got the impression that Al is not too anxious to box until June. We definitely do not have a heavyweight championship match now. I'm going to stay a week until Al decides."

Norris said four opponents were discussed in his conferences with

Bucceroni Wins Over German

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Philadelphia's Dan Bucceroni, giving almost 28 pounds, pummeled effectively at short range for a unanimous 10-round heavyweight decision over Germany's Hein Ten Hoff Tuesday night.

Bucceroni, 188, slashed away inside the looping attack of his 215¾-pound foe and nearly ... former European ... the closing rounds.

Scoring his 46th victory against only three defeats, Dan was shooting for a possible February date against champion Rocky Marciano in Miami.

A capacity crowd of 7,298 watched Bucceroni notch his ninth straight triumph by a piston-like attack with both hands that frequently had the six foot, 3½-inch Ten Hoff hanging on desperately.

Referee Dauber Jaeger voted for Bucceroni 99-84 while judges Harry Zaidins called it 100-86 and Les de Camera 100-82 for the determined American.

REUNION—Herman Romine, 28-year-old Second World War veteran who once contemplated suicide because his Dutch bride could not join him, has a tearful reunion with his wife and their three-year-old adopted daughter Marja at Idlewild Airport, New York, on their arrival from Europe. Romine met his wife during war service in Holland and returned there last May for his marriage ceremony. When he learned she was not classified as a war bride for quick entry into the United States, he climbed a tower of the George Washington Bridge and pondered suicide. He was rescued and the incident led to efforts on his behalf with the State Department to obtain a visa for his wife and Marja.

Brodrick Opposes Suggestion Farmers Strike For Increase

TORONTO (CP) — The old suggestion that farmers ought to strike to force up prices for their produce was criticized Tuesday at a junior farmers' meeting.

Jack C. Brodrick of St. Catharines, former president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said at a junior farmers' session which launched the annual meeting of the Ontario federation:

"I don't know how you feel about labor b[illegible] negative [illegible]

"Perhaps labor has accomplished much through the medium of the strike, but I feel that it is a vicious circle—that as soon as a wage increase has been gained there is an increase in the price of articles labor has to buy.

"Therefore I feel that we should have a more positive approach, that farmers should try to sit down and work out a solution with other groups, whether it be management or labor or whatever, in a way that will show some benefits for all."

Mr. Brodrick was the main speaker at Tuesday's sessions, largely devoted to discussions of farm organization both in small groups and in a general session of the junior farmer association. He launched the discussion and answered questions after discussion groups had devoted part of the day to their own ideas on the subject.

Mr. Brodrick let it be known he favors a single voice for Ontario agriculture, and for that matter, a single voice for Canadian agriculture. But that voice must be strong and united, with no hint of indecision.

SUGGESTS FEES

He recommended, and many juniors agreed, that a token membership fee for the Canadian Fed[illegible]tion of Agriculture, [illegible] idea along [illegible] financing (the present method, by which fees are collected through sales or assessments). This, he felt, would give the feeling of membership to the individual and might eliminate some of the dual membership in farm organizations of farmers today, which tends to weaken the farmer's voice in important places.

Most important, though, the farmers agreed, was the common voice on farm problems, the organization which aimed at the good of all farmers without concentrating on problems of individual groups, but which, at the same time, used the positive approach without the strike threat that has been labor's weapon.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture today will receive recommendations from the juniors, and will, in turn, make recommendations to the federal organization, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, meeting in London, Ont., later this month.

Winner of the provincial junior farmer public speaking contest was Leonard Hopkins, of Argyle, in Victoria county. He spoke on "Why I Am Proud to be a Citizen of Canada."

Girls Marry Faster In Rural Schools

TORONTO (CP) — The quickest way for city girls to get married is to teach in rural schools, T. R. Hilliard of the Ontario department of agriculture said Tuesday.

Mr. Hilliard was addressing the conference of the Ontario Junior Farmers' organization of which he is secretary treasurer.

Myrtle Stewart an executive of the group and herself a rural school teacher agreed that cupid [illegible]as in the country.

[illegible] she said, was [illegible]

The junior farmers, who range in age from 16 to 30, are holding their meeting in conjunction with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture which opens a three-day conference today.

Road Budget Approved

TORONTO (CP)—The metropolitan roads committee Tuesday approved a 1954 budget of $8,942,000 of which the price for acquisition of land for three main traffic arteries is the largest item. The budget lists $15,192,000 in capital expenditures and $3,750,000 out of this year's levy.

Parents Charged With Neglect

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa couple, whose five scantily-clad children were found wandering near their home in near zero weather New Year's Eve, Tuesday were charged with neglect.

[illegible] and Mrs. William Behan, the parents, will appear in court Thursday.

Three of the Behan children, discovered by neighbors shivering and freezing near their winterized cottage, suffered from frostbite and had to be taken to hospital. Five-months-old Patrick Behan is still [illegible] and Mrs. Behan for police [illegible] the children had been left in the care of a 19-year-old boy who, in turn, had asked his 12-year-old sister to look after them. When she failed to do so, they were left on their own.

Sentenced To Four Years

KITCHENER (CP)—John Zik of Sheffield Tuesday was sentenced to four years for armed robbery. Zik was convicted in December of forcing Allan Huntley of Mimico from his car at gunpoint Oct. 1 after hitchhiking near Galt.

Newlywed Couple Honored By Community

WARKWORTH — (ENS)—On Friday evening a very large crowd attended a shower and presentation party in the town hall for a recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Isaac (nee Joan Knight).

The Rev. A. L. Sisco of St. Paul's United Church was master of ceremonies for a program. Some of the numbers were readings given by Mrs. Oscar Laver, Mrs. Don Phillips, George Massey, Peter Robinson and David Turney sang and asked for encores. Miss Myrtle Hardy was their piano accompanis .

A girls' double trio from Warkworth high school also sang. Those in the double trio were: Marie Campbell, Mary Lou Hermiston, Ferne Killingbeck, Helen-Anne Knox, Marlene Wartman and Ida Honey.

A song by three youngsters, Bryce Allen, Linda Hermiston and Leslie McCleary, sang a humorous song, "Tell Me A Story", and were in comic costume. Garth Allen was their piano accompanist.

A vocal duet was given by John Coggins and Miss Ida Honey, accompanied by Miss Hardy.

Vocal solos were given by Miss Margaret Phillips and Miss Eleanor Calder.

A piano duet by Misses Mary and Isabel Potter.

Misses Gwen Wartman and Miss Jacqueline Potter directed a couple of humorous stunts, one were several men took part in threading a needle while sitting on a bottle and another where Edward Thompson, Jack Honey, Mary Massey and Ferne Killingbeck took part in an egg contest.

Mr. F. Buckley, principal of Warkworth high school read an address presenting the couple with a cabinet of silverware, a floor lamp and a chair on behalf of the community.

The groom replied, thanking the friends for the lovely gifts and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Those who assisted in preparing the program and helping in making the evening a success were Mrs. Grant Allen, Mrs. Jim McCleary, Misses Jacqueline Potter, Patricia Duff, Helen-Ann Knox and Messrs. Jack Honey and Ken Johnston.

3 Burned In Rawdon Stove Blast

Farmhouse Razed By Flames Family Save Nothing

BONARLAW — (ENS)—An exploding oil stove burned Leslie Sweet, his wife and son Gordon, 2, as they stood around it to get warm, and started a fire that burned their two-storey frame home to the ground about 7 a.m. today on the 11th concession of Rawdon township. All their possessions were lost.

Their small daughter was unhurt, but Mr. Sweet, who had all his clothes burned off him, was rushed to the hospital. He walked into hospital about 9.25 but a Belleville report on his condition was not immediately available.

His wife had part of her hair burned and Gordon suffered a burn on the side of his face.

The Sweets had bought the oil heater just a week ago, but were unable to get it to run satisfactorily. The company they bought it from was going to take it back today. They had decided to have the house wired for electricity instead.

AWAKENED BY COLD

The family were awakened about 3 a.m. by the cold because the heater was not working properly. They tried to get it going and went back to bed. But about 7 a.m. they gathered around it to try and absorb some of the faint heat it was throwing. It began to puff smoke and then exploded, burning three of them.

The alarm was soon spread from the home of the neighbor, Lloyd Anderson, across the road, but nothing could be saved, not even clothes.

Sweet appeared to be so badly burned that he was rushed without delay about 15 miles to the Belleville hospital.

MOVED HOUSE

Just Wednesday they had moved the house from its site across a field on the Sweet farm to a new location. Originally there had been a house in two sections and a blacksmith shop on the site. They and the farm were owned by Harry Sweet, father of Leslie.

Harry Sweet has been working as a blacksmith in Lakefield while Leslie ran the farm.

About two years ago the whole family was living in one section of the house while the other was being made ready for occupancy. But lightning struck it and it was burned to the ground.

The Sweets then converted the old two-storey blacksmith shop into a home and moved in. Just this fall, they decided to move the remaining section of the house onto a foundation that was there. Because the foundation was too near the converted blacksmith shop, Leslie Sweet planned to move his home a short distance.

STILL ON SKIDS

The house had just been shifted Wednesday, but it was still up on the skids when disaster struck.

The Sweets have had bad luck with fires. Some years ago, a home owned by Harry Sweet on the south line was burned.

Until they can get another start, the Sweets are living with Harry Sweet.

Can't Decide On Site

BERLIN (CP) — Western delegates met with the Russians at length today but failed to reach agreement on the exact place in Berlin for a forthcoming Big Four foreign minister conference. They will meet again Saturday at Soviet headquarters in the East sector of Berlin. A communique issued after six hours of meetings said only that there was an "exchange of views."

Former City Man Dr. Barclay McKone Stricken In North

TIMMINS (CP)—A speedily-assembled mercy train of the Ontario Northland Railway made a record-breaking 186-mile trip from the shores of James Bay to bring a critically-ill hospital superintendent to hospital here early today. Dr. Barclay McKone was taken ill with an acute abdominal condition while at his duties Wednesday as superintendent of the Moose Factory hospital for Eskimos and Indians. Dr. Barclay McKone is a son of John A. McKone, 377 Downie St. He was born in Toronto about 40 years ago, and was a year old when his parents came to Peterborough at the time Mr. McKone assumed the Peterborough Business College.

Dr. McKone was educated here and on graduation from the Collegiate Institute he took the medical course at the University of Toronto. He was an interne at Ottawa Civic Hospital, and for a time was on the staff of the Mountain Sanatorium, Hamilton. He has been specializing in TB work since his graduation, and was engaged in examining wartime recruits at Bay St., Toronto.

ON DVA HOSPITAL STAFF

After the war Dr. McKone served on the staff of the DVA Hospital on Monaghan road, with Dr. Ash Benson and Dr. J. A. McNeill, and after other work at London he was appointed three years ago to the Moose Factory hospital. He is married. His wife was the former Lorna Dunker of Kitchener. They have two children at Moose Factory.

John A. McKone received early this afternoon a reassuring telegram from his daughter-in-law confirming the Canadian Press report of an emergency operation this morning for appendicitis.

Her message brought the news that Dr. McKone had come through the operation in good condition. The rest of the telegram was: "Sudden attack Tuesday. Children at home in good hands. Do not worry, all is going well."

A mercy plane could not make the flight because of adverse weather conditions. The ONR was approached and quickly issued orders for a swing train shunting freight at nearby Fraserdale to drop all work and proceed to Moosonee.

The sick doctor was brought four miles by snowmobile from his Moose Factory home to Moosonee.

The mercy train—a diesel engine, van and coach—left Moosonee at 6:15 p. m. and, with engineer Don Dingwall giving it full throttle, arrived at Cochrane, 50 miles north of here, shortly before 11 p. m. Railway officials said this was a record for the 186 miles.

From Cochrane Dr. McKone was brought here by ambulance.

St. Mary's Hospital authorities said his condition was satisfactory but still grave this morning.

Montreal Battles Biggest Snow Storm Of Year

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's snow-removal resources — 2,000 men and 700 machines—battled around the clock to remove the heaviest snow-fall of the season. As they did, snow continued to fall but the weatherman promised respite today.

A day-long fall dumped more than seven inches of soggy snow on the city Wednesday. Pushed by a steady, 15-mile-an-hour wind, the snow slowed motor traffic to a crawl and disrupted traffic in and around the city.

The weatherman said there would be light snowflurries today and that by tonight about 10 inches of snow will have fallen.

COULD HAVE BEEN WORSE

But the traffic snarl-up could have been worse. Wednesday was the feast of the Epiphany, a Roman Catholic holy day on which many businesses close, and the rush-hour was not as dense as normally.

The city, fearing a quick freeze-up, sent all its snow-fighting forces into action. In the suburbs more than 1,000 men and 120 machines worked on miles of suburban streets.

Downtown streets were a mass of stalled automobiles, trucks, trams and buses during and for hours after the supper rush.

The police department put 300 traffic officers at work unsnarling traffic jams. Late Wednesday night, police reported more than 100 minor auto accidents but no fatalities or serious injuries in the city or its suburbs.

FIRE DURING STORM

At the height of the blizzard, more than 50 persons, including a number of small children, were forced out of their downtown apartment block when it was swept by fire.

The storm started in the Great Lakes area, travelled south to New York state and gained momentum before swinging north and blanketing the northeastern U. S., the Maritimes, Quebec and eastern Ontario.

The Provincial Transport Company said its buses were running 30 to 45 minutes late. By midnight, however, most were closing the time lapses.

U.S.-Russia Start A-Talks In Few Days

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department said today the United States and Russia will start preliminary talks on President Eisenhower's atomic pool proposal "presumably in the course of the next few days."

The two countries agreed Wednesday to begin conversations aimed at setting a time, place and agenda for full-scale negotiations on the project outlined by Eisenhower in his Dec. 8 address to the United Nations.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi M. Zarubin will represent Russia and State Secretary Dulles will speak for the United States at the preliminary talks here.

TO START SOON

State department press officer Henry Suydam told a press conference today:

"The procedural conversations between Secretary Dulles and Ambassador Zarubin will be arranged at their mutual convenience, presumably in the course of the next few days."

Asked whether nations, such as Britain and Canada, which have atomic facilities, will be consulted on the Dulles-Zarubin talks, Suydam said he had "no information on that." The Eisenhower plan was for all nations "principally involved" in atomic energy development to pool their materials and knowledge to develop peacetime uses of atomic energy.

Dulles has been pressing for early negotiations since President Eisenhower proposed in his Dec. 8 address to the United Nations that the world unite to strip the atom of "its military casing and adapt it to the arts of peace."

Under the Eisenhower plan, atomic materials and techniques would be pooled for peaceful purposes by the U.S., Russia and other countries. An international agency under UN auspices would control the pool. The hope is that such international effort might lead to control of atomic weapons.

Dulles had planned to discuss the idea with Foreign Minister Molotov at the Berlin conference, originally proposed for Jan. 4. But when the meeting was postponed to Jan. 25, he instructed Charles Bohlen, U.S. ambassador at Moscow, to take it up with Molotov.

Man In Hotel Blown Apart By Explosion

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP)—A man identified as Alotz Bencina, about 27, of Cobalt, Ont., was blown apart in a hotel room here early today in what police said appeared to be a dynamite explosion.

The blast sent his body into three parts and tore holes in the floor and three walls of the room. His left arm was blown into the third floor corridor.

Coroner Dr. L. P. Brousseau of Malartic was expected to open an inquest today. Police chief Henri W. Daoust of Val d'Or said the death looked like suicide.

The man checked into the Chateau Louis Hotel late Wednesday. It was not known whether he remained in his room until 1:50 a. m., time of the blast. Firemen were called along with police since the blast set fire to the mattress.

No one else was injured although a man was sleeping in the room below, the ceiling of which was torn.

Chief Daoust called an explosives expert from the Lamaque Mining Company in an attempt to determine what was used to cause the explosion.

THROWN FROM BEDS

Some of the hotel's 50 guests were thrown from their beds by the force of the blast but none was seriously injured. The explosion damaged seven rooms in addition to the one in which it took place.

Water pipes burst, sending a flood cascading into other parts of the hotel.

Defence Plans Geared To Use Of Atom Weapons—President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that United States defence plans are geared to use of atomic weapons "if they are needed to preserve our freedom." The president, in his State of the Union message, outlined a program he said would build the military might of the U.S., bolster other free countries against communism and maintain a healthy economy at home. Proclaiming encouraging developments in the struggle for peace, Eisenhower said in his 7,000-word address it roughly corresponds to a parliamentary speech from the throne prepared for a joint session of the House of Representatives and Senate:

"Slowly but surely, the Free World gathers strength. Meanwhile, from behind the Iron Curtain, there are signs that tyranny is in trouble and reminders that its structure is as brittle as its surface is hard."

SMALLER BUDGET

Speaking to an election-year Congress almost evenly divided politically, the president also:

Predicted a federal spending budget of about $66,600,000,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1, about $12,000,000,000, less than the original Truman administration budget for the current year.

Appealed again for congressional approval of the St. Lawrence seaway as vital to national security.

Called for legislation to strip U.S. citizenship from Communists convicted of conspiring against the government in the future.

Disclosed that more than 2,200 employees now have been released from federal jobs under the Eisenhower administration's new security program. The previous total, announced last Oct. 23, was 1,456.

Sketched plans to combat any business recession or depression, but again declared the U. S. economy basically sound, and said his administration is determined "to keep it growing."

RECOMMENDS AMENDMENT

Recommended a constitutional amendment to give U. S. youth the right to vote at 18 years of age instead of 21.

Declared foreign military aid be continued, but that economic aid can be cut except in Korea "and a few other critical places."

Confirmed that the special farm message he will send to Congress Monday will call for a new government price support program "with enough flexibility to attract the production of needed supplies of essential commodities and to stimulate the consumption of those commodities that are flooding American markets." His support of a flexible price support program is certain to divide farmers as well as Congress members.

Eisenhower Asks Congress To Share Certain A-Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for authority to share certain atomic secrets—on the tactical use of A-weapons—with allies to strengthen the defence of the free world. To further develop security and strengthen the free world's bargaining position with Russia the president called for limited sharing of atomic secrets in what he describes as the field of "tactical use" of atomic weapons. He put it this way in his state of the union message:

"While determined to use atomic power to serve the usages of peace, we take into full account our great and growing number of nuclear weapons and the most effective means of using them against an aggressor if they are needed to preserve our freedom.

"Our defence will be stronger if, under appropriate security safeguards, we share with our allies certain knowledge of the tactical use of our nuclear weapons. I urge the Congress to provide the needed authority."

REVOLUTIONARY PROPOSAL

While he did not elaborate, administration experts are known to have prepared amendments to the Atomic Eenergy Act of 1946 which would allow information on the uses of atomic weapons — as distinguished from manufacturing data — to be treated as ordinary military secrets instead of atomic secrets. Both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations have felt that the present law renders them powerless to provide atomic information to allied governments.

The president's proposal is revolutionary in that it calls for the first sweeping change in the iron-clad secrecy provisions of the atomic law. It has been amended once but only to permit very restricted exchanges of information with other friendly governments.

The new Eisenhower proposal may prove to be one of the most controversial recommendations before the new Congress.

Two Sweethearts Wed In Glasgow

GLASGOW (Reuters)—The runaway lovers, Isabella Patino and her sweetheart Jimmy Goldsmith, were married tonight at a Scottish registry office.

Bolivian tin tycoon Antenor Patino early today gave up his struggle in the Scottish courts to prevent the marriage of his beautiful 18-year-old daughter to the handsome young Briton.

In a two-minute court hearing, Patino's lawyer announced that Patino has decided to drop his opposition to the marriage of the young lovers.

Lord Preston Cooper, red-robed lord president of the Scottish Court of Sessions, then lifted the injunction which Patino had obtained only 48 hours ago to prevent Jimmy and Isabela from marrying for at least a week.

The tin magnate, after an angry chase from Paris to Edinburgh, had obtained a restrainer on the grounds that his daughter is domiciled in France and thus cannot marry without his consent until she is 21.

2 Missing On Plane

HALIFAX (CP)—A jet aircraft with two men aboard was reported missing from the RCAF base at Chatham, N. B., the air force announced today. The T-33 training plane was last heard from at 1:50 p.m. AST when the pilot was talking to the Chatham control tower. The radio cut out during the conversation.

Expect Racketeer To Surrender

DETROIT (AP)—Santo (Sam) Perrone, union - busting Detroit racketeer, was expected to surrender today to face charges in the 1948 shooting of CIO president Walter P. Reuther.

Perrone and his son-in-law, Carl Renda, who both built scrap metal fortunes, were charged Wednesday with two others — one a Canadian — in the attempted assassination of the union chief.

Some police officials predicted that "prominent Detroit names" would figure in the case and might even replace the four "John Does" now listed on the warrant. Police, who "broke" the long investigated case Wednesday, have not given any hint to the identities of the other four.

In 1951, Perrone and four associates were charged with conspiracy to smash union organizing at the Detroit Michigan Stove Co. Perrone pleaded guilty in May, 1952, and was placed on probation.

15 RAF Rugby Players Killed In U.K. Crash

AYLESBURY, England (AP)—A two-engine RAF troop carrier plane carrying an RAF rugby team crashed on a blizzard swept hillside Wednesday night, killing 15 of the 16 men aboard.

Two men were pulled alive from the wreckage strewn over the snow at Toms Hill, 30 miles north of London. One died in a hospital; the other was in critical condition.

The pilot of the plane, a Valetta, apparently became blinded by the storm and crashed into trees.

The rugby players aboard were being carried from Bovington airfield to their base at Thorney island, in the south, after a game at Reading.

Doubts Canada Will Agree To Release Gouzenko Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Pat McCarran (Dem. Nev.) said Wednesday he doubts that the Canadian government will agree to release the transcript of the secret interview he and Senator William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) had with Igor Gouzenko.

Jenner, chairman of the Senate internal security sub-committee, and McCarran, its senior Democratic member, questioned Gouzenko in Canada for five hours Monday in a search for leads on Soviet spies in the United States.

The Canadian government, in agreeing to the internal security sub-committee's request for an interview with Gouzenko, stipulated that it have the right to determine what, if any, information be made public.

MCarcran gave no reason for expressing doubt that Canadian authorities would ever agree to releasing the record of the questioning.

"I just doubt it," he said.

He said in an interview, however, that the sub-committee can make use of the information it received from Gouzenko. He called the trip he and Jenner made to Canada "well worth while from the standpoint of the internal security of this country."

Jenner said Tuesday that Gouzenko had given names and information that would be useful in protecting the internal security of the United States.

McCarran described the interview as a formal affair conducted under rules laid down by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario. He also said there was a heavy guard of RCMP.

CIB Joins Search For Marion McDowell

TORONTO (CP)—The Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario provincial police has joined in the search for Marion McDowell, 17, missing since Dec. 6.

Clifford Magone, deputy attorney-general of Ontario, said today a detailed report of the investigation made by suburban Scarborough township police now is being studied by CIB officers.

"In view of the fact they have exhausted all the available facilities they have at Scarborough, I suggested CIB step in and offer the greater facilities at the disposal of provincial police," said Mr. Magone.

Not a clue has been turned up as to the whereabouts of the blonde junior typist although police and volunteers combed thousands of acres for more than a week and police questioned more than 200 persons.

Red Sabotage Hinted On Liner

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Sketch today raises the possibility that a Communist sabotage expert may have had a hand in the loss by fire year ago of the liner Empress of Canada.

The London tabloid says the name of Ernst Wollweber, now security chief for the East German ministry of the interior, was brought into Wednesday's session of the inquiry into the fire. The paper said recent reports from Germany have portrayed Wollweber as training Communist British sailors in ship sabotage.

The 20,000-ton Canadian Pacific Steamships liner capsized at her berth in Liverpool after being swept by fire last Jan. 25. The ship was termed by experts "a constructive total loss" and has not been raised.

Company counsel J. V. Naisby Wednesday questioned Liverpool police inspector Joseph Sparks on the possibility of sabotage. Sparks replied that he "kept an open mind" on the question of incendiarism throughout his investigations.

He also testified that in 1943 a member of the crew of another Canadian Pacific ship, the Empress of Australia, was convicted of deliberately setting fire to a hold of the ship while in Liverpool.

Canadian Prosperity Bright Spot—NY Paper

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times in an editorial today hails Canada's "prosperity, zest and material expansion" as "a bright spot in the world."

"One gets a positive glow of pleasure in the contemplation of a young nation coming to a rich maturity so quickly and honorably," the editorial says. "To see such progress in a nation devoted to democracy and free enterprise is doubly satisfactory."

The Times forecasts that during the coming year it is "inevitable" that Canadian prices will have to adjust themselves to the price levels of the greater American market. But "Canada's economy is so buoyant and expansive that nothing short of an American slump could hurt the country badly."

Baby Suffocates In Apt. Blaze

TORONTO (CP) — Chesley Browning, 21 months old, was suffocated Wednesday while his mother, awakened from an afternoon nap to find her apartment ablaze, struggled with the jammed door leading to his bedroom.

Mrs. Elma Browning, 26, recently separated from her husband, William Browning, said she tried several times to enter the bedroom to rescue her son.

She said she was awakened by another son, four-year-old Norman, shouting "fire." She called the fire department before going to the baby's room. She could hear him crying, she said.

Cause of the blaze was not known.

A daughter, Nancy, 8, was away visiting relatives.

Clark Seeks Actors For Stratford Festival

LONDON (CP)—Cecil Clark, artistic director of the Stratford, Ont., Shakespeare festival, returns to Canada by air Friday to begin a three-week search for actors and actresses for next summer's productions.

Clark, living in London since the fall, said today he has not yet found a British actress to play the leading feminine roles opposite British film actor James Mason in the three plays for 1954. Negotiations are continuing and Clark was scheduled to have a last-minute meeting with one actress tonight.

For the last week he has been meeting with British director Tyrone Guthrie at his home in Newbliss, County Monaghan, Ireland, to discuss this summer's productions, "The Taming of the Shrew," "Measure for Measure" and "Oedipus Rex."

When Is Man Drunk?

Magistrate Wants Ruling As Guide For Bartenders

HAMILTON (CP)—County magistrate John E. Robinson at Dundas Wednesday sugested to crown prosecutor A. L. Shaver, that the liquor control board be asked to investigate just what system bartenders use to decide whether a patron has indulged enough.

The matter was brought up in the hearing of theft charges against two Middleport men, alleged to have taken a stove and refrigerator from the unfinished home of Ralph Freeman, at Alberton.

His worship reserved judgment against James Holditch, and remanded Donald Myers, who pleaded guilty, one week for sentence.

Evidence was that the two met at the Myers residence, then went into a hotel at Brantford, where they stayed from "shortly after 8 o'clock, until closing time," according to Myers.

Counsel for Holditch called the bartender of the hotel, who testified the two seemed to be drinking quite a bit, but "were not rowdy so were not cut off."

Questioned by Magistrate Robinson, the bartender said the usual practice was to allow a customer as much beer as he wished as long as "he didn't get rough or loud—then he would be cut off and asked to leave."

His worship indicated that he did not think much of this system, and asked the bartender: "Just when is it you think a man is intoxicated?"

"When he's drunk," was the reply.

Blind Institute Plans Rehabilitation Centre

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian National Institute for the Blind announced Wednesday that it plans to build a six-building rehabilitation centre on a 10½-acre site at Bayview avenue and Glenvale boulevard in northeast Toronto.

The centre plus first year's administration costs, will cost $3,650,000. Of this, an estimated $500,000 will be raised through sale of present scattered properties, and a public campaign will be launched in the spring for the remaining $3,150,000.

Subscriptions will be asked in the Toronto area and in the adjoining counties of York, Ontario, Peel, Halton and Simcoe, and also from federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Douks Plan To March On B.C. Gov't

Press For Release Of 35 Children Taken From Parents

VICTORIA—(CP)—Between 300 and 400 radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors may descend on the British Columbia parliament buildings here soon to press for the release of 35 of their children held in government custody.

That was the prediction Wednesday by members of a group of 30 singing, banner-waving Freedomites who marched on the capital to protest the government's policy of compelling Doukhobor children to attend public schools.

They failed to meet with Education Minister Bonner but held a three-quarter hour interview with Deputy Education Minister H. L. Campbell.

Many of the women were sobbing when the delegation began the return journey to their homes in the interior Kootenay area, 350 miles east of here.

WON'T BACK DOWN

They will carry back word that the government will not back down on its policy of sending children of the radical religious sect to public schools and will, if necessary, take away more children from parents who refuse to comply with the law.

There was no violence or stripping during the demonstration, a possibility that was reported earlier.

Before they left, the delegation told reporters they were relatives of the 35 children now held at a former sanatorium at New Denver, B.C., and "some of us are mothers and fathers of children the police are trying to take away from us."

During the interview with Mr. Campbell, held in the education department library, the group charged that the children were being "emotionally" and physically" mistreated at the makeshift school.

SILLY IDEA

One of the Freedomites said it was "silly" for the government to start educating their children now because "we feel our time is due to leave the country, according to our phophecy."

The Sons of Freedom, numbering about 2,500 of a total population of 10,000 Doukhobors in B.C., refuse to send their children to public schools because of their beliefs.

Mr. Campbell said later there was no truth to charges that the children at New Denver were being mistreated.

WATCHES FOR HELPING HANDS—An anonymous donor has given each of these seven Toronto youngsters a 17-jewel wrist watch for their work in helping others. Missing Butter Trailer Found In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg police said today that a $10,000 tractor-trailer with its $9,000 load of butter, found abandoned here Dec. 30, will be turned over to local representatives of the Toronto company which owned the truck.

Police here said they didn't suspect foul play and were not looking for the driver.

Danny Stafford, 45-year-old driver, had apparently abandoned the vehicle, which is owned by Northwestern Motorways of Toronto.

Owner A. Scott of Toronto said Stafford had been able to arrive in Toronto Jan. 3.

Stafford was registered at a Winnipeg hotel from Dec. 21 to 30, listing his home town as Windsor, not Calgary.

The hotel clerk in Winnipeg said Stafford had told him he was headed for Montreal. The clerk added that Stafford had stayed at the hotel for more than a month earlier in the year when he was out of work. It was Stafford's second round trip on the butter-truck.

Quebec CCF Urges Pipeline Support

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec CCF party today urged the provincial government to support a plan for a state-controlled natural gas pipeline from western Canada to Ontario and Quebec.

The party, which has no representatives in the legislature, said in a statement that the pipeline should be controlled by a public commission. State control would save consumers up to 40 per cent on the cost of the gas, it said.

Fined $1,000 For Bingo Card

STRATFORD (CP) — A Detroit couple today was fined $1,000 in connection with a false card they used at a bingo game in nearby Mitchell last August.

William Neeley, 23, was fined $600 or six months in jail, and his wife Joan, 19, $400 or four months. They pleaded not guilty to uttering a forged document and defrauding, and guilty to a third charge of cheating.

Testimony was the couple was playing the game for a $1,000 prize when Neeley went to a washroom. He returned to his wife's side shortly, she called "Bingo." They were paid by cheque.

Committee members said they became suspicious because "a person just doesn't walk out of a $1,000 bingo game." They stopped payment.

Crown witnesses said they believed a third party was involved.

Judge H. D. Lang said in passing sentence: "It is obvious there was someone higher up. I am taking into account that you were acting for someone else."

6th Set Of Twins Said Chance In 7 Billion

MONTREAL (CP)—The birth of a sixth set of twins to Mrs. Paul Tremblay represented one chance in 7,000,000,000, a genetics expert said today.

Dr. Julius Metrakes, lecturer in the McGill University department of genetics, also said that Mrs. Tremblay, 29-year-old wife of an unemployed laborer, may not be capable of producing anything but twins.

Mrs. Tremblay gave birth to her sixth set of twins in eight years at her home in St. Joseph d'Alma, Que., last Monday.

Dr. Metrakes said he agrees with an opinion of Dr. Joseph A. Bergeron, the Tremblay family doctor, that Mrs. Tremblay can produce nothing but twins.

This was based on the theory that the one single birth in the family—Clement, born in 1950—was conceived as a twin. The other child apparently died during the pregnancy period.

MANY GIFTS SENT

Meanwhile, telephone calls telegrams and letters have been flooding in to St. Joseph d'Alma. There have been gifts from all parts of the province and other parts of Canada.

Dr. Bergeron has taken a firm stand on picture requests. He says it will be another two weeks before the family can stand the strain of interviews, pictures and newsreel cameras.

Defence Plans

SPEND BILLION MORE

Announced that during the next fiscal year the U. S. will spend nearly $1,000,000,000 more for continental defence than during the current year.

Described the controversial Taft-Hartley labor law as "basically sound" but in need of improvements he said he will recommend in a special message Monday.

Eisenhower went before the legislators just 24 hours after opening of the second session of the 83rd Congress.

His message, carried by television and radio, came at the start of a political year which will be climaxed by the November congressional elections.

SLIM CONTROL

Republicans now hold only a slim margin of control in Congress, and the Democrats are hopeful they can then slip into the saddle. Meanwhile, the administration must win some degree of support from the Democrats for any success in putting through the program Eisenhower said has one objective—"the building of a stronger America."

On the foreign policy and national defence fronts, he said the U. S. has gained the initiative during the last year in the struggle against communism—and means to keep it.

Referring to his Dec. 8 United Nations speech calling on Russia to join with the U. S. and other powers in creation of an international atomic pool for peaceful use, the president said:

"A truly constructive Soviet reaction will make possible a new start toward an era of peace, and away from the fatal road toward atomic war."

In his prepared text, Eisenhower took no note of Moscow's announcement Wednesday night of willingness to join the U. S. in discussion here of the president's proposal.

WILL SAVE MANPOWER

Eisenhower's pointed reference to defence plans being geared to use of atomic weapons if need be came in his discussion of the "new look" military program.

"While determined to use atomic power to serve the usages of peace," he said, "we take into full account our great and growing number of nuclear weapons and the most effective means of using them against an aggressor if they are needed to preserve our freedom."

New atomic weapons would permit "economies in the use of men as we build forces suited to our situation in the world today." His forthcoming budget would show how "the air power of our navy and air force is receiving heavy emphasis."

Reds May Force Crisis Holding PoWs

SEOUL (AP)—The Communists demanded tonight that Korean war prisoners who haven't returned home be held until a Korean peace conference considers their fate.

The Red insistence could force a crisis Jan. 23, the day when the repatriation [illegible] maining PoWs be freed as civilians.

Preliminary talks on setting up a peace conference are stalled and there is no indication when it might begin.

The Communist view was in a letter from the Red high command to Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, which was broadcast by the official Red Peiping radio.

WANT TALKS RESUMED

The letter also insisted that the explanations to woo back the PoWs be resumed. The 90-day interview period ended Dec. 23, with the approval of the repatriation commission.

The UN command interpretation of the armistice terms is that a 90-day period was to be set aside for explanations; the Red interpretation is that there should have been 90 actual days of explanations.

During the 90-day period the Reds met with only about 2,000 of the 22,000 anti-Red Chinese and Koreans in 10 days of interviews.

American and South Korean leaders met separately Thursday on the tense problem of disposing of the PoWs and apparently reaching at least a temporary settlement to a growing rift.

South Korean Foreign Minister of violence to free the anti-Red PoWs while "new (Allied) arrangements" are tested.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, United States 8th army commander, flew to Tokyo for conferences with Gen. John E. Hull, UN commander. An official spokesman said the two generals were "smoothing out a number of prisoner details and tying up some loose ends."

Pyun threatened Tuesday to attack Indian custodial troops in the Korean neutral zone. Then Taylor issued a statement at Seoul Wednesday night that 8th army troops are pledged to protect Indian troops against an attack.

THREATENED ATTACK

Pyun had threatened to attack the Indians because of a roster check or head count of anti-Communist prisoners, during which 135 PoWs asked and were granted repatriation to Red China.

President Syngman Rhee met with cabinet officers today to consider the Taylor statement, and afterwards Pyun said in an interview:

"They (Rhee and Taylor) will watch and check on how the Indian guards are handling the prisoners," Pyun said. "If no more anti-Communist prisoners are sent north by the Indian guards as a result of the new arrangement, that is to our satisfaction and we need not use force against the Indians."

Doctor Failed To Aid Wife

VANCOUVER (CP)—A doctor failed to provide "proper hospital and medical care" for his spiritualist wife in the final hours of her life, a coroner's jury ruled here.

The jury ruled Wednesday night that Mrs. Margaret Rush, 39, died Nov. 30 from natural causes and said, in their opinion, her husband, Dr. Raymond D. Rush, had failed to provide proper care as she lay dying.

The inquiry heard testimony by two doctors that they had been asked by Dr. Rush to sign the death certificate several hours before his wife died.

Dr. Thomas Dalrymple said Dr. Rush told him his wife was receiving spiritualism in the form of faith-healing.

"KNEW" SHE'D DIE

Dr. Rush was quoted by detective C. W. McKay as saying he knew his wife was going to die and refused because of religious beliefs to put her into hospital, doctor said.

Police began questioning two unidentified friends who arrived from Malartic Wednesday with Bencina, who came to Canada from Yugoslavia in 1951.

Police were investigating a report Bencina was involved in a collision with his car here just before checking into the hotel. He had recently quit his job as a machineman at Cobalt's Auguanico mine. Before working at Cobalt he had been employed at mines in British Columbia and at Malartic, a few miles from Val d'Or.

After worrying for weeks, suddenly it hit me. The best way to find a good, safe job would be to read the Examiner "Help Wanted" ads.

To Bomb China If Necessary

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Daily News said Wednesday night that President Eisenhower plans to use the atom bomb on Red China if that country renews the Korean war or intervenes in Indo-China.

In a Washington dispatch by Ruth Montgomery, the newspaper says its information came from a top Republican senator, who was not named.

The senator, The News adds, sat in on a hush-hush conference earlier this week at the White House.

The News says:

"It was disclosed that Ike's new strategy calls for an attack on China itself if the Reds renew aggression. His plans for an A-bomb strike, however, did not leak out until today."

Rose Agrees To Pay With $30,000 A Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Winding up more than two years of battling in and out of the courts, showman Billy Rose today agreed to pay his estranged wife $30,000 a year plus $200,000 if they are no longer man and wife within the next three months.

Justice James McNally approved the settlement and said that while the payment stipulation "superficially might be considered an undertaking to procure a divorce," the court of appeals had held otherwise in similar cases.

The $30,000 a year alimony, which she will get as long as she does not remarry, represents a cut in income for the former swimming star. She has been getting $700 a week temporary alimony since November, 1951.

The $200,000 lump sum settlement will be paid in $20,000 instalments over a 10-year period.

Most Price Groups Higher On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Most price groups were higher in moderate early afternoon stock market trading.

In the industrials utilities, papers, constructions, steels, liquors, manufactures and retail stores were strong. Refining oils and foods slipped.

Agriculture Still Basic Industry Frost Declares

TORONTO—Farmers are entitled to expect fair play from other sections of the province, Premier Frost told the Ontario Federation of Agriculture at the annual banquet in the King Edward Hotel Wednesday night.

"We all [illegible] farmers were co-operative when protection was provided for industry. Therefore, protection, or rather I should say fair play, may be required for what agriculture has done for the province."

He told the farm group agriculture was still the great basic industry of the province, and urged farmers to keep the real worth of agriculture before others.

"The prosperity of industry depends to a great extent on the purchasing power of rural people," he said. "Don't bury your light under a bushel."

He discussed the rural hydro program and said 88 per cent of rural homes were now electrified. He noted that farm production was up although the farm work force had been reduced by one third. He noted that improved transportation was providing more equal educational opportunities for rural children.

New Storms Cripple Europe

LONDON (AP)—Europe shivered again today from more winter ice and snow. Northern Italians, the continent's hardest hit, struggled to dig out from under the white blanket before new storms hit.

Dozens of small villages in the Italian Alps and Appenines were isolated after the worst snowstorm in 15 years.

Huge drifts closed many miles of highways. A textile mill collapsed Wednesday night under tons of snow near Pordenone after its 350 employees had left for the day.

Italy's flood damage in the Po river delta cannot yet be estimated. Great areas of rich farm lands were wrecked, and fishermen suffered large losses. Six small villages were inundated, but everyone in serious danger had been evacuated.

Holland experienced its first snow of the season. In Sweden, snow kept falling and workmen estimated that high winds in Sunday's blizzard cut wide swathes through Sweden's forests equivalent to three years of normal lumbering.

Manson Nicholson

Funeral service for Manson Nicholson, a retired farmer of South Monaghan, who died Monday at his home, 366 Mark St., was held Wednesday at the Comstock funeral home at 3 p.m.

The Rev Dr. N. D. Patterson of Mark St. United Church officiated, and burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were Allie Watkins, John Nurse, Lawrence Finnie, George Fletcher, Harold Thorne, and Gordon Thorne.

Scottish Club To Celebrate Birth Of Burns

Robert Burns, Scotland's greatest lyric poet, will be remembered by Peterborough Scots at a Burns Supper on Jan. 22 in the Club Aragon. The celebration will mark the 195th anniversary of the poet's birth.

As many as 100 are expected to attend the traditional ceremony which will feature the piping in of the haggis and the toasts appropiate to the occasion.

The supper is being sponsored by the Canadian Scottish Club of Peterborough which includes native-born Scots and those of Scottish descent. According to custom it will be an all-male affair.

Tommy Kay, Canadian Scottish Club piper will pipe in the haggis (the heart, lungs, and liver of a sheep mixed with suet and oatmeal and boiled in the stomach of the animal). The traditional dish will be carried in by Benny Caldwell, welfare officer of the club.

TOASTS

Lt.-Col. Max Clarke, former CO of the 50th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regt. (RCA), will propose the toast to the two countries—Scotland and Canada.

The Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville United Church will give the toast to the bard's Immortal Memory.

Hugh Waddell, honorary president of the club, will propose the toast to Peterborough.

Val Smith who was born in Dundonald, Ayshire, in the heart of the Burns country, pose the toast to the two haggis.

Club president Tommy Nimmo will pronounce the Selkirk Grace and Roy Gilchrist will deliver the toast to "the lasses". Tommy Hammell, vice-president, will be chairman.

Also on the program will be the singing of Scottish songs and other entertainment, including the showing of a film on Ayrshire.

The Burns Supper will be the third organized by the local Scottish club. It is one of the three Scottish festivals that they make a special point of celebrating every year.

Condemned Man Invokes Koran

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A condemned man in Karachi's central jail won an 11th-hou postponement of his execution Wednesday by invoking a law from the Koran.

Mohammed Jutma was to have been hanged yesterday morning for murdering his young wife, whom he suspected of being unfaithful.

He petitioned Pakistan's Governor-General Ghulam Mohammed saying relatives of his wife had pardoned and forgiven him in writing.

He argued that Koranic law provides that a condemned man cannot be hanged if so forgiven.

At the last moment notice came through to postpone the hanging.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM COLLINS

The death occurred, Wednesday, in St. Jospeh's hospital, of Mrs. William Collins, 74, of 492 McDonnel St., after a lengthy illness.

Formerly Mary Loretta Cadigan, she was born in Ennismore, daughter of Jarvis Cadigan and Mary Ann Crimmons, and has lived there all her life except for the three years spent here. Her husband, William predeceased her.

Surviving are sons, Michael of Ennismore, John J. and George of Peterborough; daughter, Mrs. P. J. O'Neill of Peterborough; brothers, Patrick of Peterborough, Jack of Ennismore; and sisters, Mrs. Michael Sullivan, Mrs. John Killen of Ennismore, Mrs. Fred Kearns and Mrs. Thomas Quinlan of Alberta.

Mrs. Collins was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral, the Altar Society and the CWL.

Funeral services will be from the home of her son, John J. Collins, 165 Romaine St., Saturday at 8:45 a.m. to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass at 9:00 a.m. Burial will be in St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

Israel Gov't Guards German Doctor

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—A German woman doctor, defying death threats from Israeli extremists in this Jewish state, arrived under heavy security precautions from Bonn today to examine Jewish victims of Nazi medical experiments.

Dr. Laura Schefer, first official representative of the West German government to visit Israel, will check Israeli claims for compensation from her government.

Police invoked the security precautions to protect Dr. Schefer from extremists who oppose any deals between Israel and "the murderers of 6,000,000 Jews." The extremists have threatened to assassinate all visiting officials from Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

Under civil laws of ancient Rome arson was punishable by death.

Farm Outlook Not Bright Economist Says

TORONTO—Members of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture were told Wednesday by their economist [illegible] Belyea, that the farm futu[illegible] appear bright.

Not only will production be ample for domestic needs up until 1960, but [illegible] some embar[illegible] well.

"It is quite possible," he said, "that in the cases of beef and pork at least, periodic surpluses will continue to appear, if only because of cyclical fluctuations. And surpluses of concentrated milk by-products probably will continue to be of an embarrassing size.

With these exceptions, however, I am satisfied that the year 1960 will see a more hopeful atmosphere prevailing in agriculture. I am equally sure that we cannot merely sit idly by and hope for the best. The future will bring its own problems to be tackled."

He saw no reason why Canadian farmers should fail to fill domestic requirements in 1960, and at the same time felt the farm labor situation might be better by that time.

"As far as labor is concerned," he said, "once farming becomes more attractive than other employment, we can expect that the required small number of workers will move into agriculture."

MORE INTENSIVE FARMING

Supplying domestic requirements, Mr. Belyea felt, was not likely to require bringing new areas under cultivation. He expected more intensive farming to keep pace with probable population increases, and said that, in the case of beef, at least, the United States was likely to absorb any surplus.

He felt that economic growth would continue at a lower rate for the next few years, and that the per capita disposable income would show a tendency to become stabilized at around $575.

"Future developments, such as the St. Lawrence Seaway or the introduction of atomic energy as a source of power for industry may be counted on to stimulate economic activity some years hence," he said.

For fruit growers there was a touch of optimism in his address. He felt that incomes of "less-well-off families" would improve, and result in a switch in eating habits from cereals to more fruit, vegetables and meat products.

The group of farmers tackled a problem during afternoon sessions yesterday, when it was suggested that dates of the annual meeting be shifted to late November or early December. At present the federation meets at the same time as several other farm groups, which some members thought was not a good idea.

However, many rural elections are held in early December and this caused the federation to vote down the proposed date change.

Stuart C. Webb Dies In Cobourg

COBOURG (ENS) — Well-known Cobourg man, Stuart C. Webb died suddenly on Tuesday night in Cobourg Hospital. He was taken ill that evening and died shortly after he arrived at the hospital. Sixty-three years of age, he was a native of Cobourg.

Mr. Webb left here when he was 18 and went into the banking business, later leaving to join the sales staff of the Durant Motor Car Company. When that organization went out of business, he joined the Chrysler Corporation and, including a number of years with the Graham-Paige Company, was in auto sales for about 20 years, residing in North Bay, Kingston and Montreal. In 1939 he returned to Cobourg where he went into the service station and garage business, retiring in 1951.

The late Mr. Webb was a member of the session of Trinity United church, was past president of the Rotary club and a former member of the collegiate board. He was keenly interested in the crippled children's programme of the Rotary Club and was very active in Rotary work. His retirement from business was due to ill health but he had since been in reasonably good health until a heart attack on Tuesday night. He is survived by his widow, Madeline Kerr of Cobourg, a daughter, Mary of Toronto and a brother, Percy, also of Toronto. The funeral will be Friday from Trinity United church to Cobourg Union cemetery and the pall-bearers are J. Alexander, L. Anderson, Dr. C. Moorhouse, Dr. W. W. Wade and A. R. Willmott of Cobourg and C. Pylon of Peterborough.

Plowmen Planning Annual Meeting

COBOURG (ENS) — Northumberland and Durham Plowmen Association meet next week at Cobourg for the annual meeting, which will be held in the counties council chamber on Tuesday afternoon. The association will elect its officers for 1954 and Harry Campbell, of Bailieboro, chairman of the international plowing match, will report on the international match held in conjunction with the world plowing match at Cobourg last fall. A lands committee will be appointed to select a site for the 1954 match and to report at the June meeting in February of the provincial branch of the international plowmen's group.

Berlin Will Not Remake The World

On the 25th of this month the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain, France and Russia are to meet in Berlin. It is the first serious attempt to come to a Four Power agreement on German problems since the end of 1947. Hopes quaver for it—yet there is reason to hope that some good can result from it. The very fact that all four have agreed to come together, even if they have no agreement on what they will discuss, is hopeful. It is better than no congress at all. It is better than the state of dangerous animosity which has kept the two sides apart since 1947.

* * *

Yet, as Canada's Minister of External Affairs said on Tuesday, one must beware of the "insidious pressure of enticing doubletalk and bewildering blandishment" used by Russia and one must not have great expectations of settlement. The objective of the conference is the making of a peace treaty with a reunited Germany. This can be made only with a democratic all-German government. Whose idea of democracy should prevail — the Western, or the Communist? The West believes that the all-German government for this purpose must be elected by the free vote of the free people. Is this possible in the Soviet sector? The Russians seem to think that a treaty can be negotiated with a "provisional all-German government"—a merger of the two existing ones. Especially since the June uprisings and subsequent severe repression in East Germany, the Adenauer government of the West considers the East Germans oppressed by a puppet regime, in no way representative of the people; so it would not recognize or accept as partner the present East German government, even for purposes of a peace treaty.

* * *

Thus the manifest purpose of the Berlin conference, to reach a settlement of the German question, seems defeated before the meetings begin. The Russians may not, however, accept the notion that the German problem is the prime reason for the conference. Mr. Molotov has talked of "the necessity of ensuring European security and eliminating the threat of a revival of German militarism". Is this the sort of doubletalk against which Mr. Pearson warned this week? Are the Russians going to use the Berlin forum as a propaganda device to demand again the abandonment of NATO, all plans for raising armed forces in Western Germany, and to get the Americans out of Europe? Are there to be blandishments towards the French on the one hand, Britain on the other, to divide the Western camp?

* * *

Despite the difficulties in the face of which the Berlin conference will be held, this one good thing rises clearly: a meeting is being held. Mr. Pearson said that "words of peace and goodwill which come now from the Communist camp may represent merely an orthodox and normal shift in party tactics, designed to disarm and deceive us". He also noted that "very far-reaching developments may be taking place behind the Iron curtain. If so, we should keep an open mind and a clear head about them. These developments may make is possible to advance the policy of peaceful co-operation between states to which we of the Free World are committed".

* * *

This sort of speech-making is of the type on-the-one-hand-this, on-the-other-hand-that, but it is good that even such conjecture is possible, that alternatives seem to be real. Certainly no agreement can be reached without conference. The minimum agreement possible in Berlin is agreement on the points on which the Powers disagree. Defining the area of disagreement is the basis from which many settlements are reached. International politics are never black and white and the problems are always complex and confused. Only people who are so idealistic as to expect perfection and human affairs to be arranged in tidy bundles can be disappointed with the results of the Berlin conference. Even if the world was made in a week, it cannot be remade in a week at Berlin.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that bebop is banned in Russia, and as a means of luring us to the Left we have to admit that this is very strong medicine.

A bloodless revolution is foreseen in Russia, under Malenkov and we wonder if it can be due to any lack of Red corpuscles?

The Significance Of Modern Art

Are you flabbergasted by mobiles? Dismayed by abstracts? Shocked by blobs of white splashed on black and labelled "Portrait of Thought No. 2"? Angered by canvases which resemble nothing as much as a wind in the stomach yet are considered by experts other than yourself as outstanding works of expressionism? Perhaps you are not sufficiently tutored in the modern school to appreciate what is being done and to understand what is going on. You see—no, you don't, others do—there are hidden meanings behind the modernists. [illegible] simple, finger-paint[illegible]

We admit that artists themselves do not rank finger-painting high as a genre, because too many people have fingers and therefore can finger-paint; finger-painting is not eclectic enough to warrant a secure position in modern art circles. However, there is something in it. The current edition of Collier's magazine contains a couple of pages of vivid abstractions—f i n g e r-paintings. Weird and wonderful they are; one might think they had come straight out of the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

According to the explanations given with the pictures, "experts" assessed these finger-paintings as the work of children aged eight to ten. Some read into them interesting psychological explanations, and categorized the young painters variously as paranöic, schizoid, emotionally healthy, emotionally lacking. The secret—revealed overleaf—is that the painters were a chimpanzee and a monkey, having a wonderful time splashing their fingers in paint.

Next time your gorge rises at a particularly outlandish example of modern painting, quiet yourself by remembering that there are some clever apes.

A Woman Needs A Master

Let us explain at once that the highly controversial statement which forms the heading of this editorial is none of our doing; it is a quotation from Marlene Dietrich, who has recently been giving advice on How To Be Loved. And the way to be loved, Miss Dietrich says, is to love in return. Trust your heart, she says to women in general; in matters of love trust your heart rather than your brain.

Miss Dietrich's advice is Continental, rather than North American. She thinks, quite frankly, that a woman's job is to play second fiddle in marriage. 'To be completely a woman you need a master, and in him a compass for your life; you need a man you can look up to and respect; if you dethrone him it's no wonder that you are discontented, and discontented women are not loved for long".

Further Dietrich counsel is: don't make your husband do things; see that he has what he likes to eat; dress well (which means the way your husband likes you to dress); be a good housekeeper and don't grumble."

We would not comment on this advice if it did not come from a woman whose life has been spectacularly successful both personally and professionally. Although she is one of the most beautiful and popular women in the world, Miss Dietrich has been married only once, and there has never been any scandal attached to her name. It may be assumed that she knows a good deal about men. We do not suppose that what she says will be of much interest to the emancipated, independent ladies among our subscribers, but we thought that some of our male readers would like to know about it.

What's Wrong With Rabbit?

A scientist in Boston says that it is stupid to talk of a world food shortage when we do not eat the food that is available, and he instances kangaroo, rat and rabbit as meats which are rarely eaten.

We know people who have eaten kangaroo-tail soup, and who say, with some caution, that it is not bad. We also know one man who has eaten rat, and who says that it is palatable, particularly if you do not know what you are eating until it is well and truly involved in your digestive processes. But of rabbit we can speak from personal knowledge and with enthusiasm.

Rabbit is excellent, either as stew or pie. The daintiest dishes are made from young rabbit, and a mess of these, cooked with onions and carrots, carefully seasoned with sage and covered with a flaky crust in a deep pie-dish, are a dish fit for a king. We have also eaten hare, which is very good, though it is gamey, and must be carefully hung, and then marinated either in brine, or vinegar, or a wine sauce, before it is good eating.

Rabbit is not easy to find in our butcher's shops, and we presume that this is because it is game, and in Canada people are expected to shoot their own game. But we see no reason why somebody should not raise rabbits for table use, selling the flesh either cut up (as is now done with chicken) or in cans. We have never met anyone who had eaten rabbit who did not like it, but it is impossible to count on buying a rabbit when you want one.

We are a spoiled people. When we think of meat we think of beef and pork; even mutton is comparatively little eaten in Canada. We think it is time rabbit came into its own.

Signs From Russia

By RICHARD LOWENTHAL

THE DEATH of Stalin and the convulsions in the Soviet Empire which preceded and followed it have raised a glimmer of new hope in the hearts of mankind. Harassed by fears of atomic war, weighed down by the burden of armaments, cut off from their fellow men by a wall which only yesterday seemed unsurmountable, millions are scanning the horizon for signs of peace in our time. [illegible] in sight to the fatal [illegible] "ideological" [illegible]

May we at least expect a change from bitter political conflict to cool co-existence, a gradual solution of outstanding issues—in short, to an end of the cold war? And is there anything we, on the Western side, can do about it?

After a year of trouble and turmoil in Russia, a year that opened with the fantastic accusations against the Kremlin doctors and ended with the execution of Beria, the basic struggle for the leadership and future character of the Soviet State seems to be still undecided. What is at stake is not the mere rivalry of powerful and ruthless personalities; the real issue is whether the Stalinist regime, implying the control of the State machine of one of the world's great empires by a party dedicated to permanent internal and external revolution, can survive its founders. For it is the dynamics of that totalitarian regime, not the character of the Russian people or the natural interests of their State, that have divided the world and threatened its peace.

✧ ✧ ✧

EVER SINCE Russia's new bureaucratic industrial society emerged from the fearful sacrifices of the first five-year plan and the forced collectivisation, this regime has maintained itself only by rigorously resisting the longing of the Russian people to enjoy the fruits of their efforts in stability and security. In the thirties, Stalin silenced the pressure for relaxation only by the horrors of the Great Purge; again in the last months of his life, when the "Doctors' Plot" was made the starting point of a new wave of spy hysteria, he seemed about to employ the same device against the same pressure.

After his death, the quashing of the charges against the doctors gave the first indication that his heirs meant to follow the opposite course — that of concessions to popular demands. They abandoned the Byzantine cult of the dead leader; they reversed his economic policy of continued maximum sacrifice; they encouraged the cultural autonomy of the subject nations; restored some freedom of literary, artistic and scientific discussion, and for a time even talked about civil rights and legal security. No doubt they imagined that such loosenings were the best way to save the Party regime. Yet with every lessening of popular fears, the pressure from below for further reform grew stronger; with every step away from dogmatism the Party lost some of its raison d'etre. It was inevitable that one day the Party machine would try to react in defence of its authority, and there have been many signs of a Stalinist counter-offensive in the last two months.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT SEEMS symbolic that the death sentence on Beria and the men who helped him to bury the doctors' affair was passed by a tribunal headed by Marshal Koniev — one of the military leaders glorified last January as an intended victim of the doctor-poisoners and relegated to obscurity in the meantime; symbolic, too, that the chief of the vital and traditionally unduly Leningrad Party organisation was replaced at the end of November by one of the active participants in last January's anti-spy campaign. The recent alternation of "tough" and "soft" notes in Soviet diplomacy, the precaution of avoiding a public trial of Beria, the frantic efforts of Khrushchev, the Party boss, to make agriculture his special domain while Malenkov promotes the great managers of the Soviet economy to join an inner Cabinet in which agriculture alone is unrepresented — all these may well be the prelude to yet another climax in a struggle whose outcome is still uncertain.

✧ ✧ ✧

YET one development has steadily continued and gathered momentum since last spring, independently of the twists and turns of Soviet politics: the economic "new look" in Russia and her satellites. Its core is a shift of investments, of labour and of imports from heavy industry and large-scale construction towards agriculture and the production of consumer goods, accompanied by a lowering of prices for the consumer and an improvement of incentives for the peasants.

The switch seems largest in South-eastern Europe, where agriculture is now given absolute priority even at the price of actual shut-downs in the steel industry. In the more developed East European centres only the targets for new investment in steel production are lowered, while in Russia itself the plans for heavy industry are left unchanged, but Stalin's great canal-building projects are postponed. The general direction, however, is the same everywhere.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE IS much evidence to suggest that this economic reorientation is not just one of the political experiments following Stalin's death, but has been brought about by independent external factors — factors which would have compelled a change even if Stalin had lived. During the armament race which started with the outbreak of the Korean war, the published targets for the heavy industries of Russia's European satellites were revised upwards year after year; so most probably were the unpublished annual targets of Russia's own heavy industry. The result of this effort has indeed been a formidable growth of East European steel and machine production — up to the point where it encountered the physical limits of the available natural resources.

By 1952 several countries simply did not have the labour force needed to combine the scheduled growth of heavy industry with the current needs of food production; as several satellite leaders have since admitted, their attempts to fulfil the heavy industrial targets at all costs resulted in a reduced output of food and consumer goods, and a consequent fall in the standard of living. At the same time it was discovered that the output of coking coal and iron ore could not be increased quickly enough to supply all the projected steel works of Eastern Europe. Last spring the point was reached where shortages of labour, of food, of fuel and of raw materials created a vicious circle which finally forced a retreat from over-ambitious plans.

IF this analysis is correct, the Soviet need for an international detente — at least to the extent which would permit what is now known in the West as a "fattening of the armament curve" — must be as independent of the basic outlook of the new rulers as is the economic retreat itself. The advocates of reform and the upholders of the Stalinist tradition agree in making a detente the most urgent objective of their foreign policy — they disagree only about the means.

Though it is difficult to be sure, the signs are that the reformers would like to reach a settlement of some of the big issues which Russia deliberately left unsolved during the cold war period, even at the price of some concessions; while the unrepentent Stalinists argue that the quest for an agreement with the "imperialists" is bound to fail, but that a detente may be obtained without concessions, by informal acceptance on both sides of the status quo — provided Russia makes it clear that she is willing to settle down on that basis and to avoid military aggression for the time being.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE DANGER of this latter policy, from a Western point of view, is that it would amount not to a liquidation of the cold war but to a long-term continuation of it at a slower pace. The armament race of the past three years has been burdensome for the West, but it has thrown the Soviet economy off balance. A long-term contest at a slower pace would allow the Soviet bloc to exploit to the full advantage of its closely knit party discipline over Western alliance apt to dissolve quickly in the absence of acute danger. At the same time, the status quo would leave the Soviet forces right in the centre of Europe, where the West could balance them only by a disproportionate long-term effort.

To accept such a situation by a silent "agreement to disagree," in order to evade the problems of real negotiations, would play into the hands of the Stalinist cold war strategists. But we should play equally into their hands if we entered into negotiations with impossible demands for a wholesale Soviet surrender or with a rigidly fixed programme, intending merely to use the inevitable failure of the negotiations as a means of "unmasking" our opponents. In the first case, we should supply proof that to obtain a detente is to try seriously to negotiate its price — a limited but real Russian retreat. That will leave us in a better position for a long-term contest if the Stalinist regime succeeds in once more consolidating its grip. It may also strengthen those elments in Russia who genuinely want to end the cold war — by proving that it is possible to negotiate a settlement with the West, but that no relief can be obtained without it.

An American Opinion: MAY WE HOPEFULLY SUGGEST

Gouzenko The Ham

(Stuart Keate In The Victoria Times)

IT's high time we Canadians indulged in a little plain talk about brother Igor Gouzenko.

Eight years ago, when the little Russian cypher clerk walked out of his embassy with 28 incriminating documents stuffed in his shirt, he did this country a great service. On the basis of his firm evidence, the North American spy ring was exposed.

Gouzenko's rewards, both spiritual and material, were great. We gave him asylum, citizenship, and the costly protection of the RCMP. A wealthy Canadian set up a lifetime annuity for him. His story, serialized in an American magazine and later published as a book, and his movie rights, made the once-obscure clerk a wealthy and famous man overnight.

What has been our reward for all this? Gouzenko has dumped us into one of the most embarrassing frictions we've ever suffered with our southern neighbour. He has brought down on Lester Pearson some of the most violent smears known to a Canadian statesman.

What's the explanation?

It's simple. In the argot of the theatre, Igor Gouzenko has become "hammy."

While the harassed Mounties have been trying to keep him out of the public eye, to help him create a new identity, Gouzenko has sought the bright lights under the marquee. He has become a victim of his own press clippings. He's a pundit. He wants to Issue Statements.

Let me give you an example:

About four years ago, I lunched in Montreal with a journalist friend who had just come from an interview with Igor. Suddenly my friend produced a cheque from his wallet and said: "You'll get a kick out of this."

It was a cheque for $500, signed "Igor Gouzenko."

My friend told me the story: Gouzenko, riding in a car with his Mountie protectors and the journalist, had suddenly asked him to "ghost" a new book he was planning.

When my friend refused, Igor dangled the cheque out of the car window, saying: "Take it, or I will drop this cheque on the road."

Such actions, I was told, were not uncommon at the time. Unequipped to handle his new-found wealth, Gouzenko was squandering it prodigal fashion. This, of course, was highly embarrassing to the RCMP, since the cheques were going through dozens of hands in an Ottawa bank and thus providing a relative clue to his whereabouts.

Far from helping the Mounties in their onerous task—which, after all, was for his own good—Gouzenko was giving them a bad time.

With this background, it is not perhaps so hard to understand his latest pronunciamento. He has told a man from the Chicago Tribune (of all papers!) that he thought an interview with Senator McCarthy and his associates might prove "worthwhile."

Now ask yourself: living the life he has for the past eight years, under RCMP guard, what can Gouzenko possibly know about recent Russian spy activities? What can he tell the committee that he hasn't already testified?

It is on the record that his last meeting with an FBI official in August 1950, "produced no new evidence."

A husband and wife could not speak to each other except in deaf and dumb language. One night when the husband came home rather late the wife let him have her raging anger, her fingers flying a mile a minute.

Just as he raised his hands to answer her, she turned out the light.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba, and went toward Haran.

And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

And, behold, the Lord stood above it, and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed . . .

And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not. (Gen. 28:10-13, 15, 16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way.

The meek will be guide in judgement: and the meek will be teach his way . . .

What man is he that feareth the Lord? him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose. (Ps. 25:8, 9, 12.)

MacCohen's Star

(Ottawa Journal)

The Black Watch church in Montreal is St. Andrew and St. Paul, where there is a window in memory of the members of this Canadian regiment who died during World War 1. The window is dominated by the figure of Christ and in a panel is a small Star of David.

The Montreal Gazette has told the story of this little emblem and at this Christmas season, when the bonds of brotherhood gleam so radiantly, it is timely to repeat it.

The Star of David is in the window in memory of Lt. M. T. Cohen, MC, who was killed at Passchendaele in 1917, wearing the Black Watch tartan. When he was teased for being a Jew serving with a Scottish tradition Lt. Cohen always laughed and said he would change his name by adding "Mac" to it.

He was a brave man and after one raid Major General Sir A. C. Macdonell, wrote the battalion complimenting it on what had been done and said: "Well done, old Cohen. I herewith and hereby confer on him the brevet rank of 'Mac' to be used whenever and wherever he likes but it must always be MacCohen in the kilt. I am generally pleased and proud of MacCohen and not for the first time."

And thus it came about that in a Christian Protestant church there should be forever the Star of David. Common heritages of faith are further recalled by five heroic figures at the base of the window, including a crusader in shining armor and David, the warrior of ancient Israel set beside St. Andrew of Scotland.

A goodly sight, this window, a remembrance that in courage and in maintaining the right the Cohens, the Macdonells, the Joneses, the Chartrands and all the others in the mosaic of Canada the divisions of race and creed become small indeed.

Discrimination

(Liberty)

Pat and Mike were walking down Yonge street and stopped to wait for the traffic light to change.

When the light was red, the pedestrians huddled together on the corner. When it turned orange, one or two daring souls darted across. When it turned green, the crowd surged forward.

Pat looked at Mike and muttered. "They don't give them Protestants much time to get across, do they?"

BROADCASTING HOUSE TAKES A PAYING GUEST

GUESSING GAME — Here's a parlor game for those long winter evenings. This abandoned car, with its once-gay message, was found at the bottom of a small canyon in the Big Sur country, 30 miles south of Monterey, Calif. Of a model apparently dating from the late Twenties, the hulk has been there for some time, judging by the height of the shrub growing through the front floorboards. Let amateur scenario writers give their answers to the questions it poses: Who were the precumably happy newlyweds? Where are they now? How did the car get there? Those small round holes, two between the "U" and the "S"; one on the crossbar of the "A"; another between the "R" and "I"; and three in a line below the word "Married"—are they bullet holes? If so, who was the "heavy" who fired the shots?

Costa Ricans Ask For Half Of Fruit Profit

By PAUL SANDERS

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—President Jose Figueres, a bantamweight with deceptively mild-looking light blue eyes, is Latin America's newest centre of controversy.

Only five foot three, Don Pepe—as he is usually called, has been president of tiny Costa Rica only a few weeks. His country has only 800,000 inhabitants.

At 47 Figueres already has taken on the giant United Fruit Co. in negotiations to revise the firm's concession in Costa Rica. Don Pepe wants a 50-50 split in the Costa Rican profits. But, he says, talks are being handled in a way to demonstrate his country's "sense of responsibility."

"We don't want to give the Russians any propaganda weapons," Don Pepe said in an interview. He made clear he didn't believe expropriation was any way to settle problems.

KICKED OUT COMMUNISTS

Leader of a revolution in 1948 which kicked organized communism out of Costa Rica, Figueres has been blasted by the Reds from one side and by Latin American conservatives from the other.

Figueres doesn't think that foreign capital, permanently settled, is good for underdeveloped nations. Often it is a drain on a small nation, he believes.

Aid can come by loans and temporary investments, he contends, but the loans should be repaid, the temporary investments liquidated on equitable terms, and the "permanent" type of investments repatriated under agreements satisfactory to both sides.

3 U.K. Policemen Joining Canadian Force

LONDON (CP) — Three former members of London's metropolitan police left by air Wednesday for Canada to join the Canadian Army Provost Corps.

The three—Richard Griffiths, 25, Ernest Smale, 26, and Robert Newton, 24—said they decided to join the Canadian Army when offered almost twice the salary they earned in Britain.

Griffiths said his decision to join the military police followed his arrest of a Canadian Army deserter. He said he took the soldier to the London headquarters of the Canadian provost corps where officials said: "Thanks bud—care for a job with us at 17 sterling a week to start?"

OTHERS ASKED

Griffiths said he was receiving £9 a week as a civilian constable.

London papers followed up Griffiths' story with reports that another 80 London policemen have resigned the force to join the Canadian Army.

An army spokesman, however, said the provost corps has recruited only 25 men in Britain since April, 1952, and five of them were Canadians.

Building In Lindsay Down $400,000

LINDSAY (ENS). — The value of building permits issued in Lindsay during 1953 dropped by some $400,000 from 1952, according to assessor Harold Baty, whose otifce is now in charge of issuing permits.

During the year just ended permits totalled $1,108,095, including $619,900 for dwellings and $488,195 for other buildings such as commercial, church, repairs and alterations.

The drop in the 1953 total, explained Mr. Baty, was due to the fact that some large contracts were included in the 1952 figure, such as the addition to the Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

The largest figure for 1953 for the month of December showed permits issued of $30,000, some $28,500 for residential purposes and $15,000 for other purposes.

Fire Destroys Miner's Home Fellow Strikers Rebuild

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Eugene Ricard has been on strike more than two months. His house burned down seven weeks ago.

Yet for Ricard, his wife and the five little Ricards, this turned out to be one of the happiest Christmas seasons of all.

The 35-year-old French-Canadian, an underground laborer in nearby Quemont mine, lives on a bleak hilltop farm outside this town, supplementing his mine pay by raising a few livestock and small crops.

When the United Steelworkers of America pulled the hardrock strike in this area, he was one of 400 to leave Quemont Oct. 21. Three weeks later, his little frame home went up in smoke while the Ricards were visiting relatives. Only the kitchen stove was saved.

COMMUNITY EFFORT

While the Ricards moved in with in-laws, union friends started planning their biggest Christmas present.

They cajoled merchants into donating $1,200 worth of building materials, house fittings and furnishings. Ricard threw in his $1,500 insurance, and the union came across with a $500 loan.

Striker - carpenters and other workmen then got on the job, and a month after the fire the Ricards were the possessors of a solidly-built seven-room home with all the trimmings including a snappy set of indoor plumbing—the envy of all the neighbors.

"I can hardly believe it all happened to us," Ricard said.

While that was the top Christmas present, it was one of thousands whipped up by union members for the families of strikers, particularly for the kiddies.

BUSY TOY-MAKERS

Toy production lines operated both here and at Timmins in Ontario's Porcupine gold camp 150 miles from here.

Skilled workmen made sturdy wooden toys such as wagons, doll beds, table sets and sleighs. Dolls were collected and renovated. Merchants contributed new stock.

In the diaper-hung cellar of Richard Lajoie here, eight men from the mines made bunnies and wagons on an assembly-line basis.

In the post-office basement, stacks of parcels were piled to the ceiling as a half-dozen orkers, checking with lists of children in each family, selected the appropriate toys by ages and made up the parcels.

At Timmins, in the former basement dining room of a hotel, 75 men working three shifts a day operated a production line of lathes and other gear. Elsewhere, other workers freshened up used toys. Women produced stuffed dolls.

Requests Investigate Kinsey Backers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Carroll Reece (Rep. Tenn.) said today his congressional committee has received a number of requests to investigate the financial backers of the Kinsey report.

Reece, who heads a committee to investigate tax-exempt foundations, told reporters there are no plans to call Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey as a witness.

The senator said he was "surprised" to learn that Kinsey's latest report, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female" was made possible by several foundations which supply financial backing for the Institute for Sex Research at Indiana University.

75 Years Needed To Uncover Second Half Of Pompeii

WASHINGTON—Archeologists, digging at the ruins of Pompeii for 205 years, have succeeded in uncovering one-half of the famous buried city.

Block by block the ancient metropolis is being cleared of the 20-foot-thick layer of volcanic ash and stone that entombed it in A.D. 79, says the National Geographic Society. An army of 1,000 workers now has restored hundreds of private homes, shops, temples, open-air theatres and public baths. Extensive bomb damage suffered during the Second World War has been repaired.

But to complete excavation of the 145-acre settlement, at least another 75 years will be required, the Italian government estimates.

ROMAN RESORT

At the time of its burial, Pompeii was six centuries old. It was a flourishing commercial centre as well as a fashionable resort for wealthy Romans. Cicero had a villa at the foot of nearby Mount Vesuvius. The population exceeded 25,000.

In A.D. 63 the city was razed by an earthquake. Scarcely a structure remained undamaged. Fearful of further quakes, the Roman Senate at first refused to appropriate restoration funds. It later relented, and a new, even more luxurious city rose on the site.

Sixteen years later, on a hot August morning, the final calamity struck. With a terrifying roar, Vesuvius erupted an enormous cloud of flame and smoke. Burning lava flowed down the mountain's shuddering side. A black blanket of ash enveloped Pompeii.

Trapped in their homes and in public buildings, hundreds were smothered by poisonous gases. Others rushed into the streets and were killed by falling rocks. Many were crushed to death as panic-stricken residents mobbed the city's exits.

When the skies cleared and Vesuvius quieted two days later, survivors returned briefly to search for the 2,000 victims. Feeble attempts to raise the buried town were soon abandoned. Later volcanic eruptions added new layers of ash and earth. Finally, even the last vestiges of Pompeii disappeared beneath rows of vines and greenery.

CHANCE DISCOVERY

More than 1,500 years later, in 1594, a group of men laying a water conduit stumbled onto the ruins. The blanket of volcanic ash that destroyed Pompeii had also preserved it. Works of art and science and objects of everyday life were miraculously intact.

Organized excavation operations were begun in 1748 by Charles III of Naples. Early treasures retrived from the ruins were removed to the Naples National Museum or sold to private collectors. In recent times the priceless articles have been left in their original positions, and Pompeii has developed into one of Italy's greatest attractions.

Vesuvius still casts a constant shadow over the restored city, and archeologists fear it may one day undo their work. The volcano has erupted from time to time, but there has been no modern catastrophe comparable to Pompeii.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Come the following invitation: "The council of the corporation of the city of Peterborough has pleasure in extending you an invitation to be present as its guest at the civic dinner to honor the members of Peterborough teams which won championships in the years 1952 and 1953 in the Kawartha Room, Empress Hotel, Friday evening, January 15th, 1954, at 6:30 o'clock." The teams honored will be the senior lacrosse club, grid Orfuns, UEW soccer, ladies' badminton doubles, juvenile lacrossers, ornamental swimmers, and bantam hockeyists. Chairman of the reception committee is Ald. Gordon Powell. As his last official act here ere leaving for [illegible] Commissioner Alex Sinclair will present the Charles Reaths Trophy to the city's outstanding athlete during 1953.

A recent sports' college survey on hockey shows that, in the average game, players skate from two to three miles. Goalies, of course, don't, and some defencemen do little rushing, but the average player is said to go from two to three miles, with some travelling closer to four miles. This is not a great distance for husky athletes, especially in view of the fact that player changes on the ice occur every two minutes or so. But they keep up a fast pace as a rule while out there and are glad to take a breather frequently. They skated much longer and further in the old days, but also much slower.

Hockey Canada's Game

Quite a bit of criticism has cropped up over reports that some of the European hockey teams are a lot stronger now than a year ago, and they expect to beat Canada's representative (Toronto Lyndhurst senior "B" team) in international play in March. It is felt that if the Soviet squad should down the Canucks it would be great propaganda for the peculiar Communists who love to claim superiority over our way of life Coach Greg Currie of Lyndhurst says he's not worrying, as he has an outstanding senior "B" crew. Maybe so, but we've seen 'em and have noted several recent losses by them to other senior "B" teams, and we feel the Petes and other clubs in our group could beat Lyndhursts right now. They'd better add some "A" players for the European junket.

* * * * * *

Petes' victory streak was snapped in Orillia last evening when the potent Pontiacs roared to a 7-2 senior "B" win before 1,300 noisy fans. The arbiters handed out 22 penalties in a rugged struggle, some of them affecting the score. The Redmond men had a letdown in this one and idn't play up to par, Keith Montgomery being the best man on the ice for the visitors. He and big Bill Mcmaster got both Peterborough goals, Toodie Greenlaw aiding on one as he was the lone local forward to figure in the tallying. The Ponties played a solid game, especially in the last half. Orillia is now in second spot, one point ahead of Petes, who can go back on the second rung here tomorrow eve if they can trim Oshawa Truckers. No easy task that. It was Petes' first reverse in the last seven games Wednesday.

Young Petes In Front

Young Petes swept to an impressive 12-4 OHA junior "B" triumph over Lindsay here last night to take sole possession of first place in the standing. They have 18 points now, while Port Perry and Lindsay have 16 each—though Lindsay has lost two more than the Ports. Midland and Collingwood have four each. Locals go to Port Perry on Saturday. The Scugog squad had a 2-0 lead in the first frame but faded after that, being tired from a tough one the night before and shy a few players. Red Creighton's crew came on fast in a fine showing during the last two periods to roll up the count. Paul Doris, Bud McDougall and Blake Uren were each in on three goals for the victors, with Gord Coyle, Gary Kearns, Morrow, Heffernan and Bob Gardner in on a pair each. Hook and Frizzelle notched single points.

Pro mat followers saw an odd finish to the main tag team bout along the Rue Brock last cold evening. Fred Atkins and Hombre Montana were tangling on the level when their corner partners, Athol Layton and Ilio DiPaulo, got into the affair. The harassed ref, Sam Gotter, ran from one fighting pair to the other and finally was clipped twice, once by Atkins and again by Montana. He was flat on his pants when a prelim matman named Tony Martinelli hopped into the ring and revived him. Gotter got up and called the whole thing off. An unfinished draw, one supposes. Certainly hectic action while it lasted. Johnny Barend won the semi-final o'er Firpo Szybsko, as Jack Harmon downed Martinelli in the curtain-raiser.

Main Pro Grappling Bout Finishes In A Draw

The main pro mat bout wound up in a draw last night at the Brock Arena, though time wasn't up. The third round ended in seven minutes with a dazed Referee Sam Gotter, aided by prelim wrestler Tony Martinelli, finally restoring order in a four-man ring riot. The groggy arbiter gave up the ghost and called it quits when the team of Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins against the pair of Ilio DiPaulo and Hombre Montana refused to listen to reason. They were banging away all four at once in the enclosure, and Gotter had been felled first by Atkins and then Montana before the affair was finally halted. Honors were about even in the final brawl:

WON THE FIRST

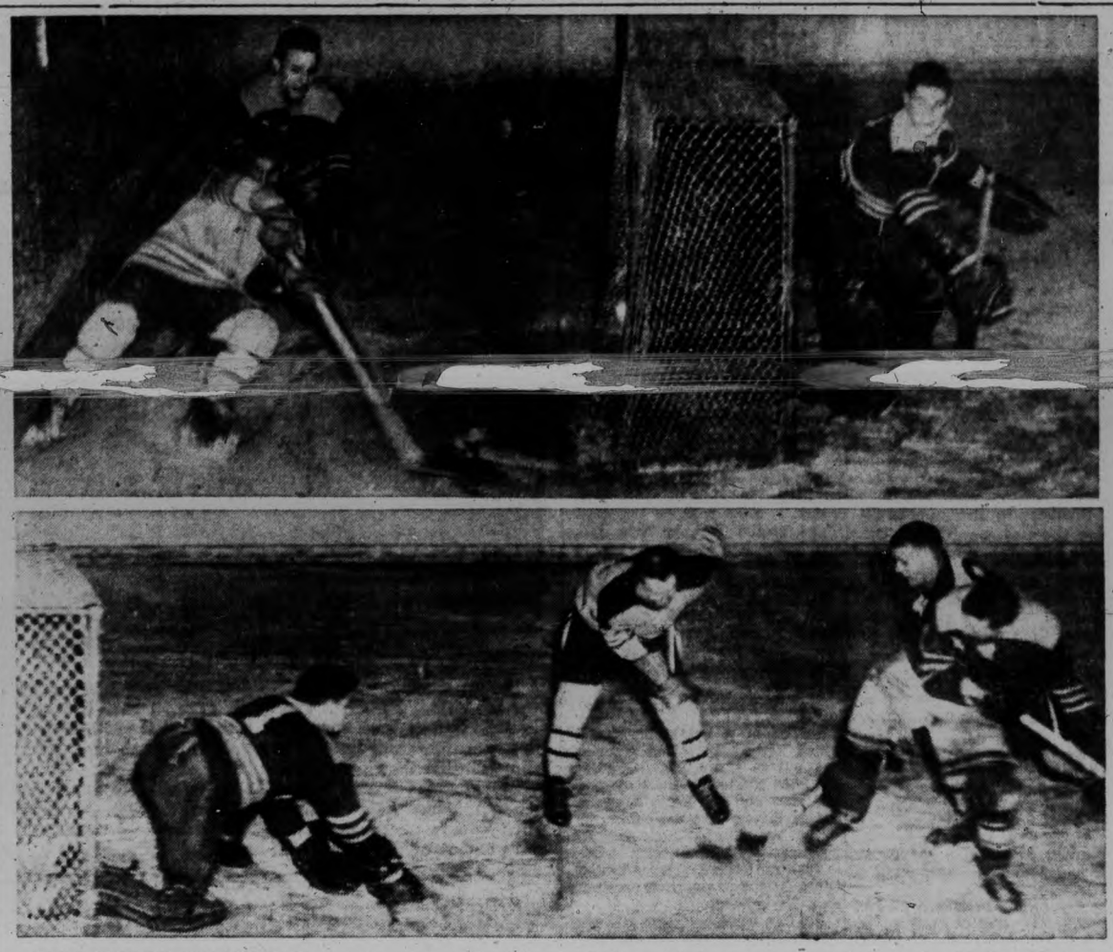
Layton, scaling 272 pounds, won the first fall in 14 minutes over the scrappy DiPaulo, at 246, with a slash to the throat and a spread as Ilio came off the ropes in his third flying tackle and looked to have Athol on the way out. Earlier Atkins, 252 pounds, and the be-whiskered 325-pound Montana, had mixed it hard, but the Aussies teamed up better in their corner for villainous tactics and that's how they softened up DiPaulo for a spell, plus a hammerlock. Neither corner was safe for a rival in the hot action and the ref had trouble keeping track of things as the fans roared throughout.

Ilio evened it up in nine minutes to the fans' delight when he got Layton with a reserve nelson and shoulder stand, after an assist from Montana in the corner as Layton started his slashing attack again with flying tackles off the hemp. Atkins and Montana had tangled hard and evenly to start the round, and there's wasn't so much illegal corner stuff. Montana was strong, Atkins rought and rugged, Ilio fast and aggressive while Layton was the tricky character.

GETS SEMI-FINAL

Popular Johnny Barend, scaling 230, won the semi-final in 23 minutes over bald 241-pound Firpo Szybsko with a flying body scissors off the ropes following a series of flying tackles. Firpo was rough and tricky but he stalled too much, and frequently stepped outside the ropes when threatened. Barend was better in the punching exchanges and he retaliated for hair-pulling by yanking Firpo's big handle-bar moustaches.

The prelim went over big as Johnny Harmon, going 224, won it in 24 minutes over 220-pound Tony Martinelli with a flying tackle and spread. It was fast and clean all the way, with both huskies showing a barrel of smart mat tactics, displaying a vast assortment of holds and breaks in rapid tempo. They frequently drew loud applause, and the bout was unusual inasmuch as there wasn't an illegal stunt pulled from start to finish. They were given a big hand at the finish.



BUSY END OF THE RINK Wednesday night was where goalie George Kemp of Lindsay tried to stand off the junior Petes. With little protection from his tired mates who had played the Port Perry Flyers just the night before, he allowed 12 goals to slip by him, but still did an excellent job of net minding. Lindsay scored just four goals. In the top photo, Gary Kearns of the Petes is hunting for another goal with Lindsay's Graham chasing him. In the lower photo, Kearns again is fighting for the puck as goalie Kemp expects the worst.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Reds Wallop Buffalo 5-1; Pittsburgh Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Every dog has his day, even in the American Hockey League.

Wednesday was the day for the Providence Reds and Pittsburgh Hornets—both low in league standing.

The Reds walloped Buffalo Bisons 5-1 and Pittsburgh subdued Cleveland Barons 6-1. The losers were, and still are, tied for first place.

Zellio Toppazzini rapped in three Providence markers; Eddie Slowinski scored for Buffalo.

Pittsburgh wrapped up their third consecutive victory. Andy Barbe, Frank Mathers, Bob Sabourin, Jack Leclair, Willie Marshall and Larry Cahan were the Hornet scorers. Andy Bathgate scored for the losers.

Harry Pidhirny, Bronco Horvath and Billy Gooden tallied for Syracuse Warriors, and George Sullivan and Jack McIntyre for Hershey Bears in the only other game, as Warriors won 3-2.

Young Petes Lead League After A 12-4 Victory Over Lindsay Pucksters

Has anyone an adding machine they can loan the junior Petes? They'll certainly need one if they keep totalling large scores in their junior "B" league. Last week they rocketed to a 10-0 victory and Wednesday night Red Creighton's lads romped to a 12-4 verdict over Lindsay. While fattening their scoring averages, the Petes also gained sole possession of first place with the two points, keeping one game ahead of Port Perry (Oshawa) Flyers.

Lindsay, playing their second game in two nights, both games against the league-leaders, the Flyers and the Petes, and also playing several men short, were a match for the Lifloc boys for one period only. But from then on the Petes literally flew through the quickly tiring Scugog team.

Although 12 pucks slipped past him, Lindsay's goalie, George Kemp, kept the youthful Petes from making a complete runaway. Kemp, loaded with horseshoes, was chiefly responsible for the 2-0 lead which Lindsay held in the first period. He outguessed the Peterborough forwards time after time during those 20 minutes.

LITTLE PROTECTION

But in the remaining 40 minutes, the Lindsay lads gave him little protection, playing spotty defensive hockey. Late in the game they were simply too tired to backcheck.

Bob Delahaye had one dreadful minute in the first period when two were blasted by him, but behind stellar defence by John Pue, Kevin Heffernan and Jerry Frizzelle he tightened up.

The spark up front for the Petes was young Paul Doris. The short, dark-haired winger went, went and went both forward and backward. His play seemed to spark the others such as Bud McDougall, Bob Gardner, Jim Morrow, and Gary Kearns. Finally all the Petes were going at top speed in the final period.

Lindsay's first line, Tom Hutton, Art Truax and Murray Packer, were the main trio for the Scugog team, playing most of the game. Ross McGill, making ring-length rushes and starting neat passing plays, was Lindsay's individual defensive star.

Although the game was slightly penalty-studded, it didn't break out except in sveral small rashes. The worst of these was a stick slashing duel between Goalie Delehaye and Packer. Referee Jim Crombie quickly cooled their tempers with a two-minute penalty.

TWO GOAL LEAD

With McGill and Packer for Lindsay, and Kearns for Petes sitting in the penalty box, Lindsay's three remaining forwards romped ahead for a two-goal lead. Ron Teel and Jack Graham on quick-openers for breakaways scored.

Early in the second Heffernan on a rink-length solo rush scored, followed up five minutes later by Gardner scoring when Doris knocked the puck loose in front of the Lindsay goal.

Doris a minute later set up MacDougall for the tie-breaking goal, breaking away at centre with one man back. Doris passed to MacDougall and Kemp didn't have a chance. Before Lindsay could reorganize, the junior Petes thanks to Morrow and Coyle had a 5-2 lead at the end of the second.

That was the game, for during the last period the Petes practically scored at will. During the final two minutes they had the tired Lindsay team spinning, the Petes taking slap shot after slap shot to roll up the score.

Lineups:
Lindsay—Goal, Kemp; defence, McGill Graham; centre, Hutton; wings, Truax, Packer; alts., Williams, Teel, Cochrane, Lyle, Campbell, Growden.
Junior Petes—Goal, Delehaye; defence, Heffernan, Pue; centre, Uren; wings, Kearns, Hook; alts., Coyle, Ball, McDougall, Doris, Gardner, Frizzelle, Byrne, Ferguson.

U.S. Players Stalling On Argo Offer

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four, who now is scouting talent in the United States, says most of "the college boys don't want to commit themselves until after the National Football League teams make their annual drafts."

Clair said in a telephone interview from Cincinnati, O., Wednesday night he isn't disappointed with his trip through the eastern and southern states.

"I haven't had a definite rejection from any player I talked with but they want to wait and see how the college draft turns out."

WON'T BE HURRIED

Clair explained that a player may have his eye on one particular NFL team and would stay in the U.S. if he were drafted to that team. If another club selected him, he may be open for bids from Canadian teams or wait to compare the NFL offer with a Canadian contract.

The coach said several players he talked with in the Miami area told him they had talked earlier with Carl Voyles, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, but had made no promises to Voyles.

Orillia Takes Second Place In Senior "B" Group Beating The Petes By 7-2

Orillia Pontiacs took sole possession of second place last night before 1,300 fans in the Orillia arena, as they handcuffed the Petes 7-2. The loss dropped the Petes into third place, one point behind Orillia in the senior big five group. The game started off rather slowly but increased in tempo as it progressed and 22 penalties in all were handed out by referees Doolittle and Bossier. Orillia picked up [illegible] and the visiting [illegible] goal at the 12.57 mark by sharpshooting Ab Bowen, assisted by Clary Payne and Ted Favero, gave the Pontiacs a 1-0 lead as the first period ended.

Peterborough collected four of the seven penalties called during the period. Al Shewchuk of Orillia was serving the balance of his elbowing penalty when Bill McMaster shoved one by Bob Shropshire in the second frame to [illegible] the score 1-1.

TOOK A LEAD

John Wood put Orillia in front 2-1 assisted by Nelson and Pearsol. Peterborough took advantage of Al Shewchuk's penalty to tie the score again at 2-2 with Keith Montgomery doing the honors and Toodie Greenlaw assisting. Orillia came back with two markers to take a 4-2 margin.

Payne banged one in from Shewchuk and Grigg, and defenceman Marty Deroscher scored unassisted later. Orillia drew six of the nine penalties in the second period as Orillia skated off with a 4-2 lead.

The Pontiacs steamed in three goals in the third period while blanking the Petes to sew up the contest. Vasey, Shewchuk and Favero tallied for Orillia in that order. Payne, Wood, Deroscher, Vasey, Favero Nelson, Bowen and Shropshire were outstanding for Orillia. Bill McMaster, Keith Montgomery, Ed Redmond, Jack Donlevy and Doc Prentice were the pick of the Petes.

The lineups:
Orillia — Goal, Shropshire; defence, Desrocher and Shewick; centre, Bowen; wings, Macdonald and McLeod; alternates, Payne, Favero, Aiken, Nelson, Wood, McIvor, Vasey, Grigg, Pearsal.
Peterborough— Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, L[illegible]nard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; alternates, Crowley, Hill, Collins, Belisle, Patterson, Prentice, Garvey, [illegible]omery.
[illegible]ian Bossier, Scarboro; [illegible]ville, Aurora.

The summary:

FIRST PERIOD

Orillia—Bowen (Payne, Favero) 12.57
Penalties—Payne, Crowley 3, Shewchuk 2, Montgomery.

SECOND PERIOD

Petes—McMaster 0:50
Orillia—Wood (Nelson, Pearsal) 6:57
Petes—Montgomery (Greenlaw) 9:50
Orillia—Payne (Shewchuk, Grigg) 10:18
Orillia—Desrocher 11:49
Penalties — Pearsal 2, Crowley, Shewchuk, Favero, Prentice, Favero, Grigg, Hill.

THIRD PERIOD

Orillia—Vasey (Grigg) 3:30
Orillia—Shewchuk (Bowen, Macdonald) 6:05
Orillia—Favero (Payne, Nelson) 18:24
Penalties— Pearsal, Fryia, Bowen, Nelson, Redmond 2.

Remember When—

New York State athletic commission dethroned heavyweight champion Max Schmeling 23 years ago today for refusing to sign for a return bout with Jack Sharkey. Schmeling however remained in the fistic limelight, losing to Sharkey the following year, 1932, and finaly suffering a one-round knockout from champion Joe Louis in 1938.

Rangers Defeat Black Hawks In 4-3 Triumph

By AL COLLETTI, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The last time the Rangers made the Stanley Cup playoffs, in 1949-50, a Patrick was at the helm. Now, after three lean and hungry years, the Rangers have tapped another Patrick to try to turn the trick again. Murray (Muzz) P[illegible] hockey family, was signed as coach Wednesday, completing the full cycle of Patricks with the Rangers. Father Lester ended a 13-year coaching reign in 1939; Brother Lynn had the post from 1949 to 1951.

Muzz inherits a club that has suddenly "found" itself and is playing its best hockey in two years. Wednesday night the Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 with two-goal flurries in the first and third periods.

It was New York's third straight National Hockey League victory, the longest winning streak for the club in two years. The Rangers moved within four points of fourth-place Boston Bruins, who were idle. But Boston has played three fewer games.

POWER PLAY SCORES

Rookie Camille Henry scored on a power play early in the first period and Don Raleigh added another Ranger goal late in the session.

The Black Hawks came back to even the count in the second period on goals by George Gee and Pete Conacher.

Early in the final period Harry Howell and Nick Mickoski beat goalie Al Rollins twice within 65 seconds, Howell getting his goal at 5:21 and Mickoski the winning marker at 6:26.

Chicago's third goal came with four seconds to go when Conacher scored his second of the game.

A crowd of 7,571 fans saw the Rangers take the lead in the season series with the Black Hawks. New York has won four, lost three and tied one.

WORST LIES AHEAD

Patrick now must prepare the Rangers for the worst part of the schedule when most of the games will be on the road. They play only one game at Madison Square Garden in the next three weeks as the Hollywood Ice Review takes over next week.

Muzz will probably take over the coaching chores against Toronto Sunday night. One of Canada's greatest athletes in his younger days, Muzz now is 38. He started with the Rangers as a defenceman in 1938 and after three years joined the U.S. Army for four years.

Upon his return he played part of one season with the club and then became coach of the Providence team in the American Hockey League.

Tonight first place will be at stake, with the Red Wings trying to protect their one-point lead against Boston while the runner-up Canadiens take on Toronto Maple Leafs at home where they have managed 15 wins, one tie and one loss.

They'll Do It Every Time

Will Discuss Playoff Dates For Cup Series

MIDLAND (CP)—Matters dealing with Canada's team to the world championship at Stockholm and settling dates for the Allan and Memorial Cup playoffs are on the agenda for the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at Winnipeg this week-end.

The meeting, to be held Saturday and Sunday, will bring officials from coast to coast.

George Dudley, secretary-manager of the CAHA, said Wednesday the association also will consider its agreement with the National Hockey League. Last summer the NHL served notice on the CAHA of termination of the pro-amateur agreement, effective June 30, 1955.

PLAN NEW AGREEMENT

The pros claim they sponsor amateur teams at great cost and the CAHA takes the gravy from the amateur championship series. Negotiations for a new agreement are under way.

Canada will be represented by Toronto East York Lyndhursts, a senior B club, in the world tournament Feb. 26-March 7.

Annual meeting of the CAHA is scheduled for Vancouver May 9-13.

Hogan Voted Athlete Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Ben Hogan, called by many the greatest golfer who ever lived after he captured the British open championship with a record-smashing final round last summer, was voted "male athlete of the year" for 1953 in the 23rd annual year-end Associated Press poll.

The mighty Texas shotmaker, who won golf's triple crown in 1953—The U.S. and British open championships, and the Augusta masters — was an overwhelming choice in the country-wide poll of sports writers and sportscasters. The 41-year-old Bantam Ben received 67 first place votes out of the 129 ballots cast, and rolled up 229 points on a 3-2-1 basis.

For the second straight year, Rocky Marciano, world's heavyweight boxing champion, was in the runner-up spot. Marciano received 12 first-place votes this time and had a total of 80 points.

Misener Elected Football Club Head

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ralph S. Misener was elected president of the Winnipeg rugby football club for 1954 at an executive meeting Wednesday night, succeeding Karl Slocomb.

Misener, who was president in 1950 and 1951, has been on the Winnipeg club's executive in various capacities since 1945. The 45-year-old head of the Consolidated Shipping Co., formerly played football with the University of Western Ontario.

Misener was president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1952.

Marleybone Cricketers Score Jamaica Win

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—Hostile fast bowling Wednesday by Freddie Trueman and Brian Statham helped the touring Marylebone Cricket Club to a decisive victory over Jamaica here in their opening first class match.

MCC won by an innings and 21 runs. Jamaica were all out in their second innings for 170, having made 266 in their first knock. The MCC had scored 457 for seven wickets declared.

It was the first time that an MCC side had beaten Jamaica. The last MCC team to visit the West Indies, in 1947-48, failed to win a match.

Sees All-Out War Over Football Players

VANCOUVER (CP) — Orville Burke, vice-president of Calgary Stampeders, said here Wednesday that an all-out war over players is in the offing between the National Football League in the United States and Canadian professional leagues.

"The day is past when American teams give up their stars to Canada simply because we offer them more money," Burke said in an interview.

He charged that the NFL has apparently hired a "propagandist" to slander the Canadian game and thus persuade U.S. college players to stay at home.

Toronto Tri-Bells Defeat Queensways

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Toronto Tri-Bells Wednesday night handed St. Catharines Queensways their fifth straight defeat of the International Triple A Basketball League, winning 88-47. Toronto had a 13-0 lead before St. Catharines scored its first point.

Queen's Plate To Be Run On June 12

TORONTO (CP)—The 95th running of the Queen's Plate will be held Saturday, June 12, it was announced Wednesday by the Ontario Jockey Club. It is the latest date the 1⅛-mile classic has been held in its colorful history.

OJC announced also that two plate trials, in place of the [illegible] many one trial in effect since 1944, will be held this year. The first, of six furlongs, is slated for Saturday, May 22, and the second, of one mile and 70 yards, will be held Wednesday, June 2.

"The late date for the plate was set because we felt it would give the horses a better chance to get ready," an OJC spokesman said. "It will enable us to have a fit field and owners will have no excuses."

74 HORSES ELIGIBLE

Seventy-four horses still are eligible for this year's running of North America's oldest continuously run race. Dec. 1, 1952, the original nominating date, 177 horses were named.

Winter-book favorite is King Maple, owned by Mrs. James McMacken of Toronto. King Maple, named Canada's horse of the year, is quoted at 2-to-1 odds.

Second favorite is Hi Laude, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver, at 4-to-1 odds.

Father, Sons Acquire Store Chain

Ownership of the largest independently operated chain of stores in Eastern Ontario has been acquired by Harry Abramsky and his sons, Mortimer and Joseph, it was announced today.

The transaction involved the purchase of the shares owned by the estate of Samuel Abramsky in the Joseph Abramsky & Sons Limited stores at Kingston, Gananoque, Napanee and Picton, and in the Percival Stores at Smiths Falls, Brockville, Belleville and Peterborough.

Plans for the complete re-organization and modernization of the chain are now being made by Mr. Abramsky and his sons.

The '54 BUICK's got it—
The Big Change you've been hoping for!

The instant you see these 1954 Buicks, you'll know that something sensational has happened in automobile styling.

Here is vastly more than the usual model changeover. Here is vastly more than could be done just by warming over what Buick had before. Here is something accomplished by going far beyond artful face-lifting.

Here is that rarity of rarities—a completely new line of automobiles.

But Buick didn't stop with the bolder, fresher, swifter-lined beauty you see in raised and lengthened fender sweep—in the huge and back-swept expanse of windshield—in the lowered roofline—in the host of extra glamor features of exterior modernity.

They upped all horsepowers to the highest in Buick history.

They engineered a new V8 for the low-priced SPECIAL, so that now the entire Buick line has Buick's famous V8 engine—and in the process came up with new Power-Head Pistons that boost gasoline mileage in every engine.

They brought to market a sparkling newcomer with a famous name, the Buick CENTURY—a car with phenomenal horsepower for its weight and price—a car with more pure thrill per dollar than any Buick ever built.

And they did all this without change of the price structure which, for years, has made Buick the most popular car at its price in the world.

We invite you to come in and inspect these great beauties, these great performers, these great buys. Then you'll see why previewers are already saying, "Buick's the beautiful buy!"

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT—BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

10,000 Hockey Fans Eat Up Scintillating Game With Old Hockey Greats

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — The o masters of hockey, among the some of the greatest stars th game has ever produced, put o a surprising show of their on time wizardry Wednesday night and 10,000 fans ate it up.

It was the first meeting betwee the oldtimers' associations of O tario and Quebec, and the Quebe troops in their first attempt at [illegible]

There were ovations for the four Conachers, Lionel, Charlie, Bert and Roy; for Nels (Ole Poison Stewart, whose goalscoring record stood until last season; for Dit Clapper, 20 years in the National Hockey League; for such brilliant goalies as Bill Durnan, Jumping Jakie Forbes and Roy Worters; for a long list of one-time greats that included Ken Reardon, Toe Blake, Sylvio Mantha, Des Smith, Syd Howe, Johnny Gagnon, Hooley Smith, Cy Wentworth, Joe Primeau, Harvey Jackson, Butch Bellveau, Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat, Frank Boucher, Babe Siebert, Billy Burch, Art Somers, Bill Cook, Bun Cook, Frank Nighbor, Cy Denneny, Newsy Lalonde, Sprague Cleghorn, Georges Vezina, Clint Benedict, Alex Connell, Lorne Chabot, Hap Holmes, Jack Adams, Tommy Gorman, Conn Smythe, Frank Calder, Red Dutton, Art Ross, Lester Patrick, Frank Patrick, Dick Irvin, Eddie Gerard GREATEST SALES GAIN by far!

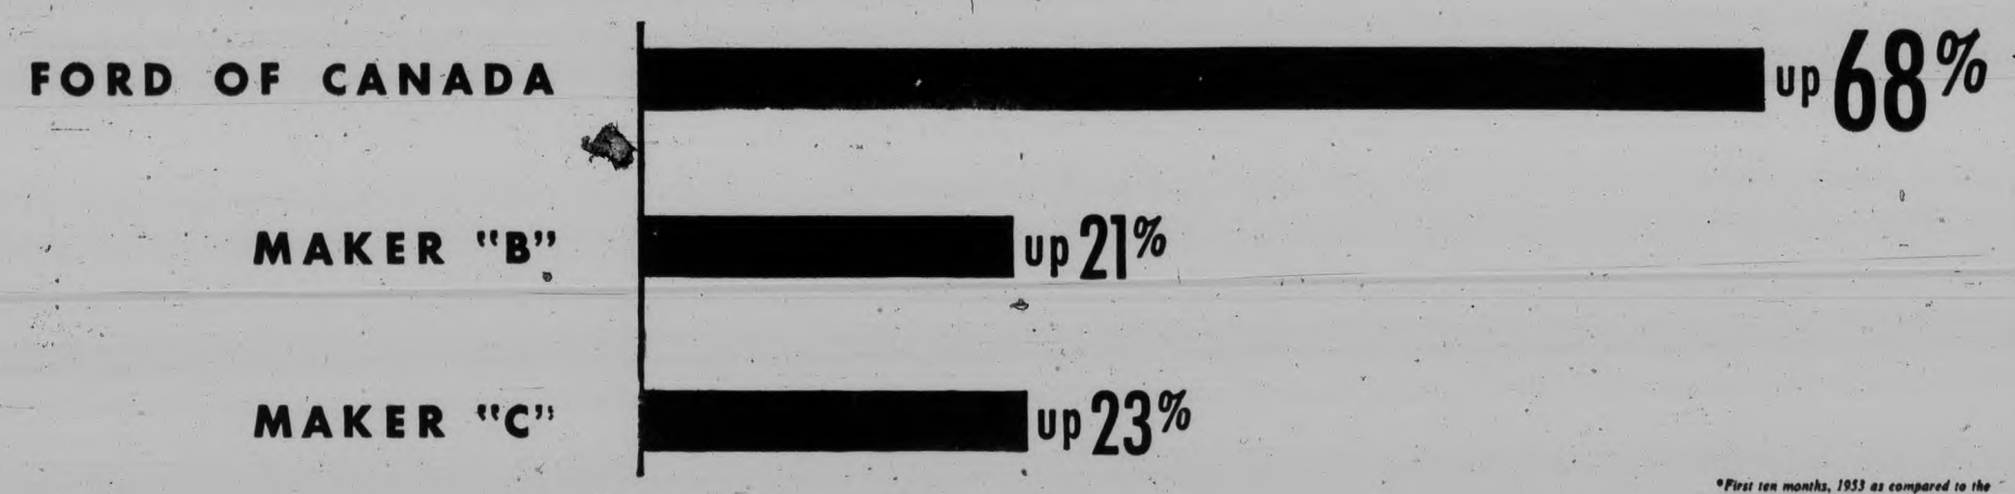
See how Canada is going V-8 WITH FORD OF CANADA V-8's

Canadians bought more new cars in 1953 than in any previous year. And again, sales facts prove the public's increasing preference for Ford of Canada cars. The chart below shows new-car sales increases* by the "big three"—company for company—in 1953. See for yourself that the greatest sales gain by far was made by Ford of Canada. Before you invest in any car, try a Ford of Canada V-8. Learn for yourself why the Canadian public made 1953 the greatest sales year in Ford of Canada's history. And watch your friends and neighbours, too, join the swing to Ford of Canada V-8's in 1954.



*First ten months, 1953 as compared to the same period of 1952 based on official new car registrations in Canada.

ASK THESE QUESTIONS BEFORE YOU INVEST IN ANY CAR

QUESTION

Does it have a V-8 engine?

ANSWER

The modern up-to-the-minute automobile is powered with a V-8 because it is a more compact, rigid engine than a six or an "in-line" eight. V-8 design means less inherent vibration, for greater smoothness, quietness and longer life. This design is more suitable for achieving the most efficient and economical "power-to-weight" ratio in any automobile—and performs better with today's new, more powerful gasolines. More and more makers are introducing V-8's. But back of all Ford of Canada V-8's is 21 years of experience in building more V-8 engines than all other manufacturers combined. And only Ford of Canada offers you V-8 power in the low price field.

QUESTION

Is it styled to lead... and equipped to satisfy?

ANSWER

In answering this we urge you, before you buy, to see the new 1954 Monarchs, Mercurys, Fords and Meteors. Monarchs and Mercurys are now on display—Fords and Meteors are coming next week. You will find a new and unique model with a transparent, Plexiglas top in each line . . . a model not offered by any other Canadian manufacturer! Power steering, power brakes, power seat, automatic transmission (or overdrive if you prefer) and a host of other features are available. You will see a new concept of interior styling and craftsmanship in the new Mercury Monterey and Monarch Lucerne series, which are fully equipped with all the features you want. And the Ford Crestline and Meteor Rideau series will bring to the low price field a similar concept of look-ahead styling and equipment.

QUESTION

How about trade-in value?

ANSWER

This question points up another reason why Canada's car buyers gave Ford of Canada the greatest sales increase by far of "the big three" in 1953. Canadians have discovered that a Ford of Canada V-8 is—

WORTH MORE WHEN YOU SELL IT... WORTH MORE WHEN YOU TRADE IT!

ON SACRED MAT—Queen Elizabeth steps from her car onto the sacred mat of kiwi feathers laid at her feet by Nau Paraora Kawiti Pururi of the Ngapuhi trible in New Zealand during her visit to the Treaty House at Waitangi. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, stands at left with an unidentified naval attendant. It was at Waitangi in 1840, on the foreshore of the Bay of Islands, that warring Maori leaders pledged their allegiance to Queen Victoria. Though pacification was not immediately assured, New Zealand was brought into the British Empire.

Banned In US Welcomed In UK

LONDON (AP) — British film critics declared today the Hollywood farce "The Moon is Blue" is a lively and enjoyable movie and expressed wonderment at its widespread banning in America.

The film, which deals with a seduction that doesn't come off, is being shown in Britain with a censors "X" certificate—to be seen only by persons of 16 or older.

"The moon is not so blue after all," headlined [illegible]

"Now what is the fuss all about? The film is certainly not prurient. It isn't even smutty. There is a bedroom scene and a bathroom scene, to be sure, but most farces have these."

The Daily Express reviewer described it as "such an innocent 'X'" and reported one young man behind him walked out because it [illegible] it "a saucy, provocative sex comedy, with spicy dialogue." The Daily Telegraph found "little in the act to shock anyone" but said "some will be offended by the dialogue."

But the Daily Express said these are "words that I imagine every young girl uses at some time in her life."

Fire Causes Damage To Toronto Building

TORONTO (CP)—A three-alarm fire Wednesday caused extensive damage to three floors of a four-storey brick building at Church and Front streets.

No damage estimate was immediately available. No one was injured.

The blaze broke out about 4:30 a. m. in a building occupied by Moore Pearsall Leather, Limited, and firemen were still playing water on the fire three hours later.

Would Rather See Chaplin Poles Fed Up With Propaganda

VIENNA (AP)—Poland's movie fans are fed up with their diet of tedious Communist propaganda productions. A Polish press comment reaching here says they want to see Charlie Chaplin—and some of those bosomy French and Italian beauties.

The Warsaw newspaper, Zycie Warszawy, said:

"In Poland we lately have read [illegible] Chaplin. Why [illegible] erpiece by this famous artist, like 'The Gold Rush,' for our movie fans?

"And why can't we get any good Italian or French movies like 'Bitter Rice,' 'Beauty and the Beast' or 'Forbidden Games'?"

Reviewing a number of East German, Hungarian, and Romanian films presently on view in the Polis capital, the newspaper said: "These tiresome, feeble efforts raise the desire for better artistic quality and skill."

Zycie Warszawy even labelled as "weak" a Russian film "Wait for Me," which was shown in Warsaw during a recent Soviet film festival week.

"It would have been far better if the company had kept this film [illegible] said.

Construction Records

KITCHENER (CP)—Both Kitchener and Waterloo set construction records in 1953. Permits issued in Kitchener represented a value of $11,474,223, a gain of $947,967. In Waterloo the value of building permits totalled $4,862,005 compared with $2,171,868 in 1952.

Where Night Becomes Day Stores Open Until 11 p.m.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—In Moscow you can pay a telephone bill at 3 a .m., buy a pair of shoes on the way home from the movies, or watch brick-layers at work all through the night.

A walk down Gorki street at 10:30 p.m. reveals the extent to which Muscovites have turned night into day. Unlike the business districts of downtown Montreal, Toronto or Vancouver, Gorki street is densely populated and there is as much traffic as on Montreal's St. Catherine street on a week night.

A grocery store here is called a gastronome or a magazine and handles most articles in the food and drink line.

At 10:30 p.m. gastronomes were selling their full daytime range: cooked meats, sausages, ham, bacon, tea, coffee, bread, butter, margarine, cheese, preserves biscuits caks, chocolate bars, soft drinks, beer, vodka wines, champagnes.

They open at 8 a.m. and close at 11 p.m. or midnight. But there is one gastronome a stone's throw from the Kremlin which is open from 6 a.m. to 4 a.m.

Also serving customers were the bakers, selling black, brown and white bread, and pretzel-like biscuits looped together on a string and sold by the kilo (2½ pounds).

Cheese shops, which also sell milk, butter and meat, and fruit shops, where you can buy liquor too, were still open.

Drug stores, which dispense spectacles as well, were doing business, as was the central telegraph office where until 3 a.m. you can send a letter, pay a telephone bill, make a long-distance call or send a telegram or cable anywhere in the world.

Some clothing stores were open, especially those selling shoes. Other stores, such as the stationery and book shops with which Moscow abounds, close at 8 p.m.

Barber and beauty shops are open until 11 p.m. and some restaurants are full until 3 a.m.

Typical of the round-the-clock atmosphere was a large apartment house project just behind Gorki street. Two cranes, searchlights studding their arms, were hauling bricks and mortar from ground crews to the bricklayers and masons nine and 10 storeys above.

Eats Sleeping Pills Asleep 24 Hours

OTTAWA (CP) — Little Cedric Wilson was "wide awake" Wednesday, apparently suffering no after-effects from four sleeping pills he is believed to have swallowed.

Hospital authorities said the four-year-old boy will be under observation for two or three days just in case pneumonia appears.

Cedric collapsed in a street car Monday, a few hours after he was seen playing with a box containing six sleeping pills. The boy dropped into a deep, 24-hour slumber.

Doctors said Credic gradually pulled out of a semi-coma overnight following a brief awakening Tuesday.

Amish Groups Prosper By Good Farming Methods

WASHINGTON — In mid-20th century America there still exists a group of plain, prosperous, and non - conforming people whose way of life, based solidly upon their religious beliefs, remains much as it was 200 years ago.

They are the Amish. They wear sober garb of ancient cut topped by wide-brimmed black hats and bonnets, speak their own language, drive square-topped buggies along country roads, and rank among North America's finest farmers, the National Geographic Society says.

SCHOOL VERSUS FARMING

As it happens nearly every year in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, a number of Amishmen recently spent three days in jail for keeping their children over 14 from school. To the Amish, learning to farm is the best education for sons who under their faith will inevitably be farmers.

Their impasse with Pennsylvania's school laws is one of the few situations in which Amish becomes involved with courts for any reason, or with an outside world that they would rather accept peaceably.

The Amish, followers of the teachings of Jacob Amman, are an off-shoot of the much larger Mennonite faith. Their heritage traces back to the 16th century Reformation when their forefathers were persecuted for their religious convictions.

Together with the Mennonites, Amish began migrating to America from the Palatinate, Alsace-Lorraine, and the Low Countries in the years after 1730. Another wave followed the Napoleonic wars of the early 1800's. Today there between 30,000 and 40,000 Amish in the United States and Canada. The largest settlements are in Ohio, Indiana, and Pennsylvania, in that order, but there are other groups as far west as Oregon and in Ontario. There are no more in Europe.

Over the last century splits have developed in Amish communities as various groups accepted more modern farming methods, costume, and household conveniences. But even today the Old Order or Conservative Amish do not have electricity or telephones in their homes. They use horses for both plowing and transportation, and retain the same hook-and-eye clothing their ancestors wore.

THE BIBLE AND THE SOIL

They live by Biblical tenets. Their sole aim is to be decent, upright people and first-rate farmers, and they are both. Some Amish now worship in churches and use automobiles, but the House Amish have neither. They choose ministers by lot; their "Ausbund," dating from 1564, is the oldest Protestant hymnbook still in use.

The Amish are only one of several sects who speak Pennsylvania Dutch, an odd mixture of low German and Anglicized expressions. Though they can also speak perfect English, in the home they retain a purer form of the old dialect than perhaps any other "Dutch" denomination.

At marriage the men grow beards and change from open buggies to those with tops. They receive farms by family purchase or division of land, with the result that farmland in Amish communities soon becomes extermely valuable. There is good reason, for in all America there are few people who tend the soil more carefully, often restoring worn-out land to richness by crop rotation, fertilization, and good farming practices.

Contrary to popular notions, the Amish are neither misers nor extremely rich. They borrow money and keep bank accounts, although they like to buy by cash. They pay taxes willingly. Their neers are simple,and they have a matchless "social security" assured by family unity and community self-efficiency. There has never been an Amishman in the poorhouse.

Magistrate Rules Man Innocent

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Magistrate R. G. Groom ruled Wednesday that a man who remained in an auto while his companions were robbing a store was innocent of the act.

He dismissed a charge of breaking and entering against William George Sproule. Magistrate Groom said:

"There is no evidence given he knew what was going to happen. Suspicion is supremely strong that he knew what was going to occur. However, suspicion is not enough in a court of law to convict."

Sproule's two companions, convicted earlier, testified that he remained in the car throughout the break-in.

Sproule was held to face a different charge of breaking and entering next Wednesday.

Meat Passed Through Slot To Make Sure Delivery Fair

By FRED CHEVAL

ELISABETHVILLE, Congo (AP) A native butcher stands beside a pile of fresh meat in a warehouse along the railyards in the Katanga province mining centre of Kipushi. In the wall next to him is a big slot. At intervals there is a knock on the wall and for each knock the butcher slips a chunk of the raw meat through the slot.

Outside, hundreds of chatting native housewives—wrapped in loin cloths, their children hung on their back—are lined up with buckets. One after the other they get their family meat ration from the slot, one for each knock by a "kapita" (foreman). Workers get about 1½ pounds of meat and nearly two pounds of fish a week, women and children over 10 slightly less.

This is one of the many functions performed by the Uranium Ore Producing Company, Union Miniere du Haut Katanga, for its native workers and their families.

DISTRIBUTION FAIR

Why the slot in the wall? a company official explained:

"If the butcher could see his clients, he would give the best piece of meat to those of his family or to those from his tribe. With the slot system and the neutral Kapita's knock on the wall, distribution is as fair as can be."

No one at the Union Miniere pretends this is charity. It's part of the company policy toward better production of uranium, copper, cobalt and zinc.

But the program brings better health and thousands of Katangi natives and their fellow workers from nearby villages are slowly moving to better living standards and improved social conditions.

In 1952 the Union Miniere employed 19,000 natives in its various mines and plants. In its own native quarters, it housed 45,000 women and children.

Russian Specialists Refuse To Live In The Provinces

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON (OFNS)—Those who think of the Soviet Union as the land where the sense of community is so deep that citizens tumble over each other in their eagerness to serve their neighbours would be disillusioned if they took a course in reading in the current Soviet press. They would find that a major cause of the crisis of morale, which Malenkov's government is striving desperately to overcome, lies in the attitude of technicians and specialists of [illegible] who refuse to leave the big cities and go out into the provinces and the countryside to help the "building of Communism." And the chief reason for this is the primitive nature of life in the countryside, which it is desired to overcome. Thus a vicious circle is set up.

PROBLEM OF STATE

For some years past there have been occasional revealing glimpses of this situation in the Soviet press; but in recent months it has become a first-class problem of State. Doctors, school teachers, agronomists, tractor-drivers and technicians of all kinds are being exhorted by all possible means to go out into the country. So far not much has been done to give material inducements to the doctors and school teachers, who are on a low priority; but the resistance of the "new Soviet man" to the vocation of serving his more backward fellows is shown most strongly in the failure, in spite of very strong material inducements, of the great drive to get agricultural specialists out of ministerial offices and on to the farms.

The picture now being presented in the Soviet press is so different from the highly-coloured propaganda issued for consumption in the West that it must come as a shock to the faithful. For years a great deal has been heard about the wonderful state of medicine in the Soviet Union. But here is a country doctor complaining about the miserable state of affairs in his district: "It cannot be said that medical practitioners do not come to our district," he says, "they come, but they do not stay long. Having worked in this district for fifteen years I note with pain the great turnover of doctors. In the last five years we have had four surgeons. All left because they were not given normal living conditions. The district, with its large population, is now without a surgeon." The local health authorities are so unhelpful and apathetic," this unfortunate doctor goes on, "that they will not even allow him facilities for subscribing to the doctors' newspaper, "The Medical Worker."

Some light on what the doctor means by abnormal living conditions is offered by a school teacher who was sent out to the little town of Tedzhen in Turkmenia some years ago. For nearly four years she had to live as best she could "in corners of other people's rooms" and now that she has a room of her own at last it turns out to be nothing but "an earthen-floored kitchen with a broken-down door." To escape this sort of fate graduates from the universities go to quite extraordinary lengths—even, according to the Moscow press, to the length of feigning madness and being admitted for long periods to mental institutions.

SOME PUNISHED

The situation has become especially serious in Georgia and in Trans-Caucasia. For example, in Baku it is reported that many graduates, especially in medicine, are refusing to take up their appointments, [illegible] have been punished for this with up to three months corrective labour; others, with the connivance of the local authorities, have managed to get away with it. In Tiflis it is reported that of the 307 doctors turned out by the medical institute this year only 30 had arrived at their appointed posts. Fifty-six had refused point-blank the posts that were offered them; another 169 had simply failed to collect their travel warrants and had disappeared. In Georgia as a whole, there are 476 vacant appointments for general medical practitioners; yet there are in fact 956 unemployed doctors in the Republic, "of whom 54 walk around Tiflis with nothing to do because they do not wish to take up posts in the country." Most of these are either party members or members of the Komsomol (Young Communist League), the very people who are supposed to set a high example of sacrificial and self-less labour.

IMPROVE AGRICULTURE

The whole problem seems to have been brought up into the forefront by the drive to improve agriculture. Nobody cared very much about the doctors and the school teachers; but the task of getting specialists into the fields has become a first national priority. Thus there is supposed to be at least one trained agronomist on every collective farm. Khruschev, the Soviet Minister of Agriculture, recently revealed that there are 95,000 collective farms, sharing between them only 18,500 specialists—which is five per cent. of the total trained specialists available. He went on to say that 75,000 of these trained specialists, intended for the land, have in fact never seen outside the offices of the ministry of agriculture. The satirical journal Krokodil has been carrying cartoons of highly-qualified agronomists employing their skill and scientific knowledge in watering the flower pots in their city offices.

Khruschev's demand was that no fewer than one hundred thousand of the chair-borne brigade should be freed from their administrative posts and sent out into the country-side — but this demand has by no means been met. And it is now reported that even when the central offices are persuaded to disgorge, the directors take pity on the poor specialists and instead of sending them individually to the remote collective farms where they are most needed, they allow them to settle like bees on the model farms near the town, which do not need them at all.

Cursed Starlings Thriving Spread Nuisance To Fiji

WASHINGTON—The war between men and starlings has spread to the Fiji Islands.

Officials of the British possession in the South Pacific, alarmed as increasing numbers of starlings threaten banana and papaw crops, have called in an ornithologist from Australia to help them get rid of the pesky birds.

His choice of weapons is wide, though man's offensive aganst starlings has so far met with but limited success.

The common European starling (Sturnus vulgaris, vulgaris) is an aggressive, tough and adaptable creature, says the National Geographic Society. It has defied rattles, DDT, electrified wires, fireworks, gas-filled balloons, water hoses, supersonic waves, blank cartridges, stuffed owls and ultra-violet rays.

Noise-makers and other irritants have merely forced the starlings to forsake their favorite roosts briefly, or to move to nearby shelters. Undiminished is their capacity to annoy—by shrill chatter, by eating the suburbanites' prized grass seed, or by bombarding the spring hat and the new car wash.

The European starling was first introduced into the New World in the 1890's. A U.S. manufacturer, president of the American Acclimatization Society, imported about a hundred of them from England as part of a project to establish in this country all the birds that Shakespeare had mentioned.

The starlings—small, purplish-black birds with strong yellow bills and short square tails—were released in Central Park, New York, in the spring of 1890 and 1891.

For the first few years the immigrants remained in the New York area, getting used to the country. Then they began to spread rapidly. They are now settled in force out to the Rocky Mountains, and in scattered western areas beyond.

They have moved into Mexico and into Canada, where they have been seen as far north as Churchill, on the cold shores of Hudson Bay. They are at home in tropical Jamaica, and have been reported in Cuba, though not in Central or South America.

The starlings have taken enthusiastically to big-city life. Flying out of huge community roosts in the heart of town, they feed during the day on the neighboring countryside, returning to the dormitories at night.

In the old home town of London, the birds have congregated by tens of thousands in the Trafalgar Square area. New York and Philadelphia business sections and the classical government offices of Washington, D.C., with their cornices and curlicues, are popular roosting grounds.

Washington sanitation authorities are now beginning a new anti-starling campaign, as the winter season for the heavy influx approaches. Some 500 bags of a smelly ("secret formula") chemical are being hung from infested trees along historic Pennsylvania Avenue. In other cities, whole lanes of fine old oaks have been cut down to discourage the birds.

Yet the starlings still have some defenders, who admire their swift and spectacular flights, their sturdy independence, and their talents for mimicry. These aliens reproduce the songs of many native birds, and even sounds of barking dogs, mewing cats and human "wolf calls." More important, starlings eat many crop- and garden-destroying insects. The United States Senate not long ago refused to legalize the shooting of the capital's unwelcome bird guests, on the ground that they kept down Japanese beetles and other pests.

Accuse Toronto Police Of Poor Relations Job

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman Roy Belyea accused police of "poor public relations" for putting parking violation tickets on cars left outside Toronto's newly-opened legitimate stage theatre, the Crest, Wednesday night.

It was the theatre's second night and most of those who took cars there found they had collected a ticket.

"The police are apparently doing their best to drive culture out of the city," Mr. Belyea said.

Need Attractive Packaging To Sell Cheese

TORONTO—If there are any surplus dairy products in Canada—and there is reasonable ground to doubt that there are—they are in the form of butter, C. W. Cameron, associate director of marketing service of the federal Agriculture Department, Wednesday told the [illegible] Cheese Producers' Association Hotel of the changes in the marketing picture which had produced this condition.

Mr. Cameron said milk which was formerly used to produce a Canadian cheese surplus is now being diverted to other uses to the extent that the cheese industry is now in a position comparable with that of butter prewar. In the past year, the amount of cheese imported into Canada from New Zealand almost equalled Canadian exports.

The past 10 years have been luxury European cheese imports increase from 1,000,000 to 6,000,000 pounds, Mr. Cameron said. Much of this has been as a result of attractive packaging and aggressive merchandising.

LARGEST CONSUMERS

Mr. Cameron told the cheese producers that Canadians are now the larest per capita consumers of evaporated milk in the world. In the past year, the increase in consumption alone has equalled 2,000,000 pounds of cheese.

Some 28 per cent of Canada's milk production goes to fluid milk and ice cream, he said. If the population continues to increase at its present rate, the milk sheds will further cut into the cheese-producing areas, Mr. Cameron said. To keep up with demand he estimated total milk [illegible]uction will have to be increased 2 to 3 per cent annually.

One year ago, there was a large cheese surplus. The present lack of surplus, Mr. Cameron attributed to the last large export of cheese and the recent increased use of milk by evaporated milk plants. There has been, he said, a phenomenal increase in consumption of dried skimmed milk—about 33 per cent last year.

No Non-African Is Allowed To Own Land In Uganda

By HUGH LATIMER

SALISBURY (OFNS) — The British East Africa Protectorate of Uganda is an exception among colonial territories. There, the African is the landlord and the European the tenant, for no non-African is allowed to own land, unless his ancestors bought it before the Buganda Treaty of 1900.

In Uganda one can farm wretchedly and still make a fortune, so rich is the soil and so great the world demand for coffee; some African coffee-farmers are making $30,000 a year and pay no income tax. But cotton is the great Uganda crop; $40 million worth was exported last year. This year though the world price of cotton has fallen, the price received by the African grower is the highest ever.

In Uganda it is the British Governor, Sir Andrew Cohen, who is pushing ahead to self-government, while Africans, on the whole, are suspicious and conservative, distrusting the legislative council on which Sir Andrew has arranged this year for them to have the majority of the seats. It is still uncertain just what motives led the African king, Mutesa, Kakaba of Buganda, to defy the Governor and lose his throne this month; but it is believed that Mutesa was afraid of being left out in the race for power unless he staked his claim early. The deposition, as yet, has caused no trouble locally. The Africans in Buganda are too rich to revolt.

SAFEGUARD MINORITIES

During the House of Commons debate in London that followed the abaka's deposition, an important statement was made by the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Oliver Lyttelton. "Her Majesty's Government," he said, "view the future of Uganda as primarily an African state, with safeguards for minorities."

There are 5,600 Europeans and 48,000 Asians in Uganda. If it had been the other way round, says the cynics, Uganda would have been scheduled for development as a "partnership" like the other East and Central African territories under British rule. The idea of a partnership is that Europeans and Asians shall have as much right to take part in government as the native African. It is a fine ideal, notwithstanding the disparity of numbers, because it recognizes the justifiable fears of the minorities. Unfortunately it has nowhere yet been workable in practice.

Anyway, Mr. Lyttelton's statement has put Uganda outside the partnership experiments. African intellectuals in Uganda have now begun to consider what attitude they should adopt to the minorities. Their attitude will be important to businessmen, for Uganda is really a rich country. Its valuable copper resources are soon going to be mined for the first time, and there are plans for an iron and steel industry and a cotton mill, all of which require the investment of foreign capital. The £22 million scheme to dam the Nile at Owen Falls (which will be formally opened by Queen Elizabeth in April), will provide Uganda with more than enough electric power for industrial expansion.

GUESTS OF THIS COUNTRY

One African attitude to foreigners, and it seems a fairly popular one, is that of Mr. J. Kiwanuka, leading member of the Uganda National Congress, an African political body, and editor of the newspaper, "Uganda Express." In a leading article he described "non-Africans" as "guests of the country." In an interview afterwards Mr. Kiwanuka explained that guests could be turned out if they "misbehaved."

Leading Asians, interviewed on this subject, commented caustically on Mr. Kiwanuka's views. "We were born in this country and have no other," they added.

A more startling opinion but really a more traditional one, was expressed by another editor, Mrs. E. M. K. Mulira, one of the Kabaka's supporters in his weekly newspaper, "Uganda Empya." It is that Europeans and Asians should be permitted to stay if they become Africans. In Buganda (the central province) this means they would be liable to be called out to mend the roads. It also means they could only approach the Kabaka by crawling along the floor.

No European or Indian commented on that article, no doubt because they had not read it, since "Empya" is written in Luganda, the language of Buganda.

There seems something unhealthy in the race relations of Uganda. It is not due to a colour bar, for such a thing hardly exists, and African wealth is a great leveller. Nor is there among the Uganda Africans any of that inferiority complex which seems to inflict the West Africans who are also advancing to self-government. The East Africans are a much politer people, and not ashamed of their own culture.

But the three races in Uganda seem to stand apart. One could find no Asian who seemed to know anything about the Africans, and no Europeans who had a good word to say for the Asians. The Asians think, with some justification, that the Government is setting the Africans against them. The Europeans, mostly civil servants, meet leading Africans in the course of their duty, but rarely afterwards. Service without a smile seems to be the characteristic of British rule in Uganda, a cold approach for which the African is unlikely to feel grateful.

Editors To Hear Reuther At Conference

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Newspaper men will hear labor and management talk about their relations with the press at the annual Canadian Managing Editors Conference here Feb. 4-7.

In a panel discussion, Walter Reuther, president of the United Au[illegible] CIO, will represent labor. J. Stuart Richardson of the public relations department, Northern Electric Company, Montreal, will speak for management as nominee of the Canadian Manufacturers Association. Angus Munro of the Windsor Star and Wilfred List of the Toronto Globe and Mail, labor reporters, will also take part.

Other panel discussions will also study the impact of teletypesetter, a mechanical means of setting type, on newspaper content; and analyze the various elements of the news report of The Canadian Press.

Guest speakers include Norman Isaacs, managing editor of the Louisville, Ky., Times; Edgar Guest, newspaper poet; Raymond Daniell, Ottawa correspondent of the New York Times, and his wife Tania Long, also a writer and correspondent; and Roger Lemelin, Quebec author and correspondent.

New Conference Suggested To Discuss Wheat Marketing

TORONTO (CP)—Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg grain exchange, suggested today that farm leaders, government officials and representatives of the grain trade "sit down together" and seek solutions to the marketing problems of wheat.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Empire Club, Mr. Jones said he was sure that out of such discussions "would come an acknowledg[illegible] plies into consumptive channels."

"There might come, too, some concept of financial guarantees to producers which would divorce from the marketing function this completely unrelated but equally important matter.

"To the extent that the present system (of marketing through government agencies) has failed to move abundant production into use, the most important requirement is a frank admission of that failure by advocates of the monopolistic price-fixing sales method."

Mr. Jones said that when supplies, in relation to demand, are high, "price declines must be realistically accepted."

MUST TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

This, however, did not mean that Canadian taxpayers and consumers could "shrug off" their responsibility to the farmer.

"I personally, and the Winnipeg grain exchange are strong advocates of agricultural price-support legislation which would provide adequate financial guarantees to agricultural producers.

"Such financial guarantees should be so conceived that they will not confound and aggravate the problem by creating unsold surpluses, which can only have a further depressing effect on prices, nor should they deprive the pro[illegible] of choice in [illegible] for [illegible] tion.

"In times of low incomes and depressed prices it must become the responsibility of consumers, both east and west, to protect farmers from the full impact of conditions which are so often beyond their control."

LIFE'S A BIG HOP—Squeaks, a two-legged pup, is showing his neighbors around Cleveland, Ohio, that he can overcome his handicap with plenty of spirit. The seven-week-old puppy belonging to Mrs. Dominic Guerra has shoulder blades attached to its rib cage, but his front legs were missing at birth. At first, Squeaks was pretty helpless, but he's learned to balance, to sit up instead of standing and to hop around like a kangaroo, except that he uses his hock bones.

North Ireland's Emigrants Want To Settle In Ontario

LONDON (CP)—The daily Belfast News-Letter reports some 90 per cent of Northern Ireland emigrants to Canada want to settle in Ontario.

The paper says this presents a problem for Canadian immigration officials who try to spread the new citizens through all 10 provinces.

L. G. Cumming, superintendent of the London office of the Canadian immigration service, said he could neither deny nor confirm the [illegible] are available on Northern Ireland immigrants. He said, however, that more than half of all immigrants arriving at Canadian ports express the desire to make their homes in Ontario. It is impossible to say whether they do, however, since they are free to settle anywhere.

Cumming believes a good number of Irish immigrants have settled in Quebec. But no figures are available.

The Irish paper cited two cases where emigrants have settled outside Ontario. Last spring 35 members of the Royal Ulster constabulary joined the Edmonton police force and recently 25 young women crossed the ocean to work as steno[illegible]

U.K. Captain Shrugs Off Hair-Raising Adventures

LONDON (Reuters)—A British Army captain just back from a four-month exploration of the Canadian arctic modestly shrugged off a whole catalogue of hair-raising adventures at a press conference here Wednesday.

Capt. Ian Maurice Sparrow of the Royal Engineers, 26, is a bachelor who lives with his parents at nearby Walton-on-Thames, Surrey.

His adventures began when the Canadian government asked for the loan of a "first class" British soldier to accompany T. H. Manning, famous Canadian explorer, on a two-man expedition [illegible]

[illegible] got it. Last April he was given his orders: "Make a coastal survey of the island, fix positions astronomically, collect biological and botanical speciments for Canada's national museum."

MISSED BY ICE PACK

In the course of carrying out these instructions, he and his companion risked attack by wolves and polar bears, were swept out to sea in their frail 22-foot canoe and missed death by two feet when pack ice swept down on them.

They brought back 300 specimens for the museum—seals, caribou, arctic chair (like salmon) arctic hares, arctic foxes, [illegible] owls, hawks, [illegible] and his biggest surprise was finding a United States icebreaker 10 miles inside the Prince of Wales straits. She had been kept south by excessive ice—and there was a big party on board in the darkness of an arctic midnight hundreds of miles from civilization.

Another surprise was finding at Mercy bay a cache of English coal and oak-barrel staves left by an explorer named McClure 100 years ago.

1953 Record Building Year For Most Cities Across Prairie

EDMONTON (CP)—Construction crews hammered out record building values in western Canada in 1953.

Reflecting the Prairie's booming postwar economy, a survey of the major centres in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta shows the value of building permits issued last year reached record levels in all but two centres.

Value of permits issued in Edmonton, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Portage la Prairie, Prince Albert and Brandon totalled $187,099,466.

Value of construction carried out in the same centres the previous year, 1952, was approximately $129,444,807.

Edmonton, the west's fastest-growing city which finished 1953 with a population of 193,000, started or completed construction valued at $55,023,816, well above the previous high of $46,579,372 in 1950. Last year was the first that starts on new home construction kept pace with the estimated yearly increase in Edmonton's population.

3,000 PERMITS ISSUED

Permits for more than 3,000 homes and apartment buildings, valued at more than $32,442,000, were issued. The remainder of the city's construction was made up of new commercial buildings and alterations.

Despite record home-building, city officials pointed out it would be years before home construction started to reduce the back-log demand for housing.

The only centres showing a drop in 1953 construction compared with the previous year were Moose Jaw, Sask., and Portage La Prairie, Man.

Moose Jaw contractors got the go-ahead on $2,169,805 worth of construction last year—about $500,000 below 1952. Portage La Prairie issued permits valued at $911,685 in 1953, well below the record $1,149,633 the previous year.

OTHER CENTRES

For the other centres, 1953 was an all-time high year. Winnipeg issued permits valued at $21,841,000; Regina $27,124,000; Saskatoon $20,000,000; Lethbridge $7,421,940; Calgary $42,121,154; Medicine Hat $3,901,120, and Prince Albert $3,624,800, and Brandon $2,959,246.

In addition to Edmonton, other centres also reported increases in the value of home construction started last year.

Prince Albert reported a 50-50 split on home and business construction. Medicine Hat said starts were made on 236 homes valued at $2,314,620 compared with 156 homes started in 1952.

BELOW RECORD

Of the 1,729 permits issued in Saskatoon, 676 were for homes. This was still below the 1,232 home-building permits and the 1,729 all-type permits issued in 1912, the year "Saskatoon was built." Value of home construction in 1953 was $6,409,650.

Of the more than $27,000,000 in construction started in Regina, $12,530,000 was for dwellings.

Both Calgary and Moose Jaw reported drops in home construction compared with 1952.

Permits for 2,015 homes issued in Calgary were valued at $20,820,759. In 1952, 2,131 home-building permits carried value of $21,313,664. However, value of new apartment construction jumped from $2,713,000 in 1952 to $4,083,000 last year. Two-family dwelling permits increased from 123 in 1952 to 193 in 1953 and value increased from $1,416,900 to $2,459,920.

In Moose Jaw, 220 new homes were started compared with 276 homes the year previous.

Report Layoffs In Hamilton Plants

HAMILTON (CP) — Layoffs in two Hamilton plants affecting employees were announced Wednesday.

The Studebaker Corporation of Canada laid off 500 employees for three days and Canada Iron Foundries will suspend operations for two weeks, starting Friday.

Gordon Grundy, vice-president of Studebaker, said the temporary layoff is necessary to catch up on upholstery work delayed by a recent shortage of seat trim.

C. O. Flowers, works manager of the foundry, said the shutdown will permit felining of the furnaces.

UN Television Experts Criticize U.S. Telecasting

PARIS (Reuters)—United Nations television experts have issued a sweeping attack on the kind of telecasting which goes on from early morning until late at night.

Such long programming, as in the United States, lowers the quality of TV in a way to deaden the public's taste, a survey issued by the UN scientific and cultural organization said Wednesday.

The survey also pointed out that [illegible] in Russia there is one set for 2,400 persons.

GREAT APPREHENSION

"Many countries regard with considerable apprehension developments in the United States and elsewhere which extend the broadcast day from early morning till late at night," UNESCO said. "The reasons for this apprehension are economic, sociological and artistic."

The survey also said that the 18-hour daily programming makes TV writers, performers and producers get "stale and exhausted" and "the public is swamped with a flood of programs which deaden its discriminative taste." (In Britain and France TV stations operate about 32 hours a week.)

Duke Plans To Visit Vancouver

of Edinburgh will arrive in British Columbia from London Aug. 1 for an eight-day visit that will include at least four appearances at the British Empire Games.

The duke is scheduled to begin the visit with a formal call on government officials at Victoria Aug. 2 and will inspect the naval base at Esquimalt the following day.

On Aug. 3 he will fly to Kitimat, 400 miles north of Vancouver, and return to Vancouver the same night.

Plans To Cross Canada In Eskimo Kayak

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jean Bartholdi, a 24-year-old Swiss youth who came to Canada two years ago, is planning to paddle across Canada in a kayak.

An expert at handling the cigar-shaped Eskimo craft, he says he intends to [illegible] mile

British Columbia and the Prairies are clear of ice—probably in mid-April.

He got the idea for the trip while reading French translations of stories of the Canadian north.

He expects the hardest part of the journey will be encountered while paddling upstream on this side of the great divide in the Canadian Rockies. Once over the hump he can "coast" practically all the way to Hudson's bay. From there he expects to paddle around to the tip of the bay at Moosonee, Ont., then down the Ottawa river to the St. Lawrence river and Montreal.

Vicar Bans Archbishop From His London Pulpit

LONDON (AP) — An Anglican vicar stirred up a three-year-long controversy simmering in Church of England councils by banning from his pulpit all Freemason clergymen including the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Rev. Thornton Thrapp, former RAF chaplain and vicar of St. Mary Magdelene in London's Paddington district, singled out Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Archbishop Primate of England and a past Masonry, for attack in his parish magazine.

"Because the archbishop is a Mason," wrote Mr. Thrapp, "we may fairly assume his opinions are unorthodox, and far more dangerous because they are kept secret from the non-Masonic rank and file."

He urged Dr. Fisher to "state in public the case for Christian Masonry" and added:

"Until he does, can he really expect our trust, our confidence, and our loyalty? I cannot, give him mine."

The Church of England assembly spent several days wrangling over freemasonry three years ago.

Many leading churchmen are masons. The assembly held that the movement is not antagonistic [illegible] the church.

Cheese Competition Stronger

TORONTO — Canadian cheese will face stiff competition in the United Kingdom market this year according to the adviser to the United Kingdom High Commissioner in Ottawa. Cheese likely will be off the British ration cards by June, W. F. Darke advised the Ontario Cheese Producers' Convention at the Royal York hotel Wednesday.

Restoration of "normal trade channels," Mr. Darke said, would mean "normal" to countries in the sterling bloc. Australia and New Zetland will continue to have a strong advantage over Canada in the cheese market until sterling is convertible.

When the Ministry of Food goes out of business, it will mean the subsidies will also be removed from cheese in Britain, he said. Mr. Darke questioned which direction cheese prices would take. Many other goods had dropped in price when taken off ration, he said.

The market, Mr. Darke said, was as big as ever, but while pre-war Canada had supplied 20 to 25 per cent of British cheese demand, Canadian cheese might price itself out of the market.

BUY BRITISH BOOM

To speed convertibility, he urged a Buy British boom among Canadian farmers. He did not advocate buying British manufactures when there was a suitable Canadian counterpart. But he stressed that when goods had to be imported, giving Britain the dollars would enable future cheese buying in Canada.

Producers' Association president, W. O. Coon, had earlier urged a Buy British drive, particularly in agricultural lines. A resolution along this line will likely be put before the convention today.

Mr. Coon reviewed the past year's story cheese picture. An increase in number of dairy cows and a drop in export of such cows combined with a similar situation in manufactured milk inventories and an early diversion of surplus milk to cheese production, had increased 1953 production. Cheese went on the open market and the price was driven down.

The late year British sale, however, enables the association to start off this year with a clean slate after two of the most difficult years in its history.

The problems of the year have produced the demand for new dairy legislation by Queen's Park, Mr. Coon said. The Co-ordinating Board wil seek to have all dairy producer groups brought under a single statute. The aims would be:

AIMS OF STATUTE

1. An overall producers' board.
2. A surplus fund with all producers contributing.
3. Licensing for producers as suppliers of milk to a specific plant.
4. The producers' board to have some power of direction and be able to deal in milk and milk products.

The time has come, Mr. Coon said, when the individual producers should not think of themselves as cheese producers. The businesses have become so interrelated, that conditions affecting one are bound to affect the other.

Secretary-treasurer C. N. Heath reported that the number of cheese factories in the province is continuing to decrease. There are now only 239 operating, he said, and likely more will close down this year. They close because the owners figure they cannot afford to bring them up to proper standards or because they are too small to overcome the inescapable overhead.

POPULAR MISCONCEPTION

Everett M. Biggs, Ontario Dairy Commissioner, warned against a popular misconception that the ideal state of the dairy industry would be when it is producing just enough milk to meet our domestic requirements. When that day is reached, the industry will have no defense against infiltration of substitutes and undestricted imports.

Policy must be to remain one of the five surplus food producing countries in the world, Mr. Biggs said. To overcome a further decline in cheese manufacture and to maintain the high quality of Canadian cheese, he urged better treatment of the cheesemaker—the man in the factory.

W. Jean Fewster, editor of the Dairy Foods Service Bureau, quoted statistics to show Canadians lagged behind other nationalities in cheese eating. Swiss, Swedes and Norwegians eat about 18 pounds per capita per year. Canadians eat less than six pounds a year.

Miss Fewster said a survey had shown that one-third of cheese consumers could not even tell whether it was cheddar or processed cheese they were eating. Criticism was also made of the packaging and labelling methods.

Car Licence Business Brisk In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Mrs. William O'Brien, who is once more in charge of the sale of motor vehicle licences and permits in the village reports that business to date has been quite brisk. The licence bureau is located in the council chamber of Memorial Hall and is under the management of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Two-Headed Baby Born In Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A two-headed baby girl born 23 days ago is doing well and gaining weight normally, reports from Belo Horizonte said Wednesday.

Dr. Armando Achilles Tenuta of Sao Vicente Hospital was reported as saying the baby now weighs nine pounds, 12 ounces.

The infant is the daughter of Mrs. Geralda Francisca de Jesus, wife of a rural storekeeper. The hospital disclosed the baby has two completely separate hearts and respiratory systems, one digestive system, four arms and three legs.

Lt. A. L. Riddle

A one-time resident of Peterborough, Lt. A. L. Riddle, a member of the Quartermaster's Branch in Ottawa, died there December 18. He was 37 years old.

Lt. Riddle lived briefly in Peterborough some years ago and leaves his father, A. Riddle of 785 Brunswick Ave., and a brother, surviving here.

Also surviving is his wife, one son John, and two daughters, Dianna and Rosemary.

Full military honors were paid the officer at funeral services.

Wage Dispute Settled

HAMILTON (CP)—A wage dispute between Local 105, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) and six Hamilton electrical contractors was settled Wednesday night when workers voted to accept the latest company offer of 15 cents retroactive to Nov. 16 and 10 cents next June 30.

NEW BUILDING PEAKS

Oshawa's building permits last year exceeded $17,000,000. St. Thomas also reports another of these building records with a total for their new CGE transformer plant. The previous high in St. Thomas was in 1952 at $3,096,473.

ARBITRATION CASE

Arbitration began today over the 17.7 acres of land expropriated from Klondike Gold Brown by the city for expansion of the waterworks. Another 2.34 acres was expropriated by the department of highways for improvements to Highway 28 (at the filtration plant, but this isn't at issue). Judge John de N. Kennedy is the official arbitrator.

DOUSES GREASE FIRES

Quick action by a Peterborough housewife, Mrs. Leonard Hicks of 461 Albert St., prevented any damage by fire in her kitchen late Wednesday afternoon. At 5:06 p.m. city firemen got a call from the Leonard home about a flareup of grease on the stove. Shortly afterwards they got another call saying the fire had been smothered with salt and was out. out.

INAUGURAL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the board of education is scheduled for this evening at 7:30 in the board room in the city hall. Election of chairman, vice-chairman and the naming of committees and committee chairmen will take up the first part of the meeting. Following this the board will get down to general business. Following the election of chairman the Rev. Maurice P. Poole of All Saints' Anglican church will offer the opening prayer.

PROMOTION

The latest copy of "Tick Talk", shop paper for Western Clock Co., states that Woodie Thirnbeck recently was promoted to foreman of the Power Press Department. He joined Westclox in 1934 and has been there since except for time out for artillery service as an officer overseas, being wounded in Holland. The same issue lists the following employees who became Quarter Century Club members during the past year: Paul A. Loescher, Stanley G. Payne, Frank Barrie, Catherine O'Brien, Robert R. Hayden, Charles Dorrington, Malcolm Latimer, Samuel Vint, Russel H. Curry, Raymond Delahaye, Robert Greer, William J. Milne and Leo J. Allen.

No Deaths From TB At Freeport San

KITCHENER (CP)—There were no deaths from tuberculosis during 1953 at Freeport Sanatorium here, which could be a record for any sanatorium in Canada, Dr. S. J. Hawkins, medical superintendent, said today.

He said he knows of no sanatorium in Canada that has had a 12-month period without single death. One hundred and seventy patients were discharged from the 158-bed institution in 1953.

In 1952, 15 patients died, and in 1942, 24.

Dr. Hawkins said that 50 years ago 16 deaths in 100,000 were attributed to tuberculosis. The present figure is eight in 100,000 deaths.

'53 Warmer Year Average Shows, Wetter Too

Averages released today showed 1953 was, for Peterborough, a warmer year than 1952; a whole .74 degrees warmer on the average. It was a wetter year, too, with 28.51 inches of precipitation (including rain and snow) as against 27.945 in 1952.

Temperatures in 1953 reached a high of 94 degrees on August 30, and September 1 and 2. There was a low of minus six degrees February 4, and December 18 and 31. The overall average temperature came out to 45.9 degrees.

In 1952, a high temperature of 91 degrees was recorded July 13 and 14, and a low of minus 19 degrees January 13. This worked out to an average temperature for the entire year of 45.16 degrees.

Twenty-four inches of rain and 45 of snow in 1953 worked out to an average precipitation of 28.51 inches; 24.295 inches of rain and 36.5 of snow in 1952 made its average 27.945.

That made it a much snowier, but less rainier, year in Peterborough.

MORE EXTREME

As far as December went it was not only colder but it was warmer, too, in spots, than December, 1952.

A maximum of 52 degrees was recorded on December 3, 1953, and a minimum of minus six on December 18 and 31. It averaged out to 27.3 degrees.

The same month the year before saw a high of 49 degrees and a low of minus five for an average of 28.45 degrees.

Precipitation-wise, December, 1953, won in a walk with 14 inches of snow and 1.01 of rain for 2.411 inches altogether. That figure is compared with four inches of snow and 11.76 inches of rain in December, 1952.

These figures were released by Jim Harrison, superintendent of the filtration plant.

THE BEAITH CHILDREN OF OTONABEE Township, who found the abandoned safe of the Canadian Tire Corporation on the Sixth Line near their home last Saturday, were rewarded on Wednesday for their quick observance. Store manager Harley Keefer is shown presenting a cheque for $100 to Mrs. Iva Muriel Beaith and, showing their delight, are Alan, 7, Eleanor, 9, and Norma Jeanne, 2 years. Three older Beaith children will also share the reward, their mother said; they are Patricia, 16, Charlie, 14, and Bill, 12 years. The safe, stolen from the Canadian Tire store a week ago Wednesday night, was located by the two older Beaith children in the above photo. It contained $442, which was stolen when it was forced open, and valuable records which were scattered around the abandoned safe.

Nursing Registry To Close Cannot Raise Funds

Operations of the Community Nursing Registry will conclude March 15 unless it receives substantial financial support by January 15. According to a board of directors' release, [illegible] preceded before the [illegible] amount yearly is "an absolute necessity if the registry is expected to operate without an annual deficit.

City council, the community chest, Civic Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and the city's Civic Commerce Committee have been notified of the decision in order that they may "take appropriate steps" if the bodies felt the registry should be maintained.

The registry acts as a clearing house for doctors and nurses and provides expert medical advice over the telephone if the need presents itself.

Previously the registry had appealed for aid from the two hospitals. Civic refused on the grounds grants were contrary to its policies and statutes. St. Joseph's aided with $200.

The registry set January 15 as its deadline for accepting help in order to give subscribers a 60-day notice of termination and close March 15.

Hold Mock Trial Of McCarthy In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A "public trial" of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, publicized in advance by the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, was held Wednesday night at St. Nicholas Arena.

An estimated 6,000 persons paid 75 cents each to take part in the mock trial of McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican who heads the Senate permanent investigations sub-committee.

The rally was sponsored by a group identified only as the Trade Union Veterans Committee.

FOUND "GUUILTY"

Rally speakers charged McCarthy with "conspiracy to injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate the citizens of the United States in the free exercise and enjoyment of the rights and privileges secured to them by the constitution and laws of the United States."

After a variety of charges were hurled at McCarthy, a mock jury found him "guilty on all counts."

Among the speakers were Mrs. Eslande Robeson, wife of Negro singer Paul Robeson, a Stalin peace prize winner; writer Howard Fast, another Stalin peace prize winner; and Russell Nixon, legislative director of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Ind.)

Pansy Forbes Named Citizen Of Year

Mrs. Pansy Forbes, coach of the crack Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, has been chosen this city's citizen of the year.

It was a popular choice: the balloting being conducted by the Review. Previous winners of the award have been Donald McGillis, Max Swanston and Robertson Davies.

As in the three previous years, B'nai B'rith will hold a dinner to honor the winner. It will be 6:45 p.m. Jan. 23 at the Empress Hotel's Kawartha Room.

MRS. PANSY FORBES

Guest speaker will be Mel Allen, recently named the United States' top sportscaster.

PIONEER

Mrs. Forbes has the distinction of introducing ornamental swimming to Peterborough. In fact she pioneered this type of swimming in Canada and was the first to lead a team from this country to a United States' championship.

The Peterborough ornamental swimmers now hold two national championships: the international (Canada and United States) championship for their synchronized exhibition last July in Niagara Falls, N.Y. And the United States' Amateur Athletic Union title (open to all) last August in Ormond Beach, Fla.

They've won three seconds in Dominion duet championships and in 1949 they were awarded the AAU sportsmanship trophy in Des Moines.

The first triumph of the ornamental swimming club, now in their tenth year, was in 1948 when Iris Forbes-Reilly and Jean Millard swam to the United States' AAU junior women's indoor synchronized championship in Detroit. That put Peterborough on the map, aquatically speaking.

Since then the Peterborough girls have been top contenders in all the international meets.

Mrs. Forbes was particularly proud of her team's triumph this year.

BIGGER TEAM

"We had a team of 12 girls competing against a team of four. You can train four to swim to perfection but it's a lot harder with three times that number . . . Nobody expected us to win."

Coach Forbes has future plans for the girls, too. If they can raise the money—and money is always a big "if"—they will travel to Vancouver and demonstrate their skill this August at the British Empire games.

Previously there has been no team competition in Canada.

A prior engagement is the national championships for indoor synchronized swimming in Chicago.

At present Mrs. Forbes has 68 girls from Peterborough and district learning the intricacies of synchronized swimming strokes. They are divided into three groups: juniors (four to 10 years), intermediates (10 to 14 years) and seniors (over 14). All are looking forward to winning more honors for Peterborough under Mrs. Forbes' guidance.

"A wonderful honor," was the way Mrs. Forbes described the "citizen of the year" award. She said, modestly, that she thought there were many other people doing important civic work but it hasn't caught the eye of fellow citizens.

Mrs. Forbes also praised the girls for their careful attention to coaching techniques and their willingness to put up with discomforts so they can compete with wealthier teams, particularly in the United States.

Mel Allen is best known to Canadians as the top baseball commentator during the annual World Series. He began his career in 1935-36 covering University of Alabama football games.

City Makes Move To Secure Site For Memorial Centre

Notice of the intention of Peterborough to apply to the Ontario Legislature for permission to obtain part of Morrow Park for a Memorial Centre was published in The Examiner Tuesday. This application will be dealt with by the private bills committee of the Legislature during its approaching sessions.

The pith of the notice is as follows: "To enable the Trustees of the R. A. Morrow Memorial Park to convey to the Corporation of the city of Peterborough, a part of the lands comprising the said Park, and further enabling the said Corporation to erect a Memorial Centre on the part of such park so acquired to make the same available for the purposes of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre . . ."

DECIDED IN 1953

This legal notice, as it is termed in the advertisement, refers to the course the city council of last year decided to take in a long standing effort to secure a suitable site for the Peterborough Memorial Centre.

The position of the Morrow Trust has been discussed from time to time, stressing the term of the Trust by which the late Harold A. Morrow stipulated that the property known as the Exhibition Park, and named the R. A. Morrow Memorial Park should be held "en bloc" by the Trustees. That was interpreted as tying their hands against proposals from the city and by groups of citizens to the effect that a piece of the Morrow Park property should be made available for the site of the Memorial Centre.

The council's action is a friendly appeal. One of the circumstances which appeared to strengthen the cause of building the Centre probalby at the Lansdowne-Lock corner, was its prospective use as a facility in the promotion of agricultural affairs in this county and district.

It has been suggested that the Memorial Centre would provide valuable space and cover for the Exhibition, the Central Ontario Spring Show, 4-H Club Achievement Days, and other agricultural affairs.

INTERESTED IN AGRICULTURE

R. A. Morrow had been long interested in his day in county agriculture and particularly the Peterborough fair, then the main activity in exhibiting livestock and farm products generally. The Spring Show held in March is a comparatively new exhibition. Its directors decided to hold it annually at Morrow Park because Peterborough is the central community in that district, and the old drill hall of the war years provided suitable accommodation.

However, that space is limited and the building was not erected for permanency. Another development is the expansion of the city south of Lansdowne St. during the years since the Centre fund was collected. That entire section is now virtually the equivalent of a small city, adding to the suitability of the park corner for the Centre location.

New Council Can't Give Grant

TORONTO (CP)—Frederick G. Gardiner, chairman of the new metropolitan council, said today it was not within the power of the council to grant the University of Toronto the $1,000,000 it is seeking for its building fund.

Sydney Smith, president of the university, Wednesday asked the board of control for half a $2,000,000 city grant promised in 1949. The board referred the grant to the metro council.

Officials of the department of municipal affairs said that the city must assume responsibility for the decision on whether to issue the grant—not the Metro council.

The university is seeking the grant, Mr. Smith explained, because all money in its building fund has been exhausted.

Born Here, Girl Slugged At Hospital Job

TORONTO (CP)—A 24-year-old brunette laboratory technician, found unconscious, in a pool of blood at a Toronto hospital, was given a slim chance to live today and police said she may have been slugged by an intruder seeking narcotics.

Helen Boyle, laboratory technician at St. Michael's hospital, is in a critical condition with two skull fractures. She underwent a brain operation early today and police said her chances of survival are slim.

The brunette was found lying on her back on the floor of her office by a woman doctor. Other hospital employees said they saw her walking in the halls at 11 p. m. Wednesday night about 20 minutes before she was found.

NO SOUND HEARD

Other workers in a room 50 feet from Miss Boyle's sixth-floor office heard nothing, police said. They said the girl could have fallen accidentally but the extent of her injuries made it appear unlikely.

Police said she might have been slugged by someone who entered the hospital seeking narcotics, but if so he left no evidence. No narcotics were reported missing. Members of the hospital staff were being questioned today.

The girl has been unconscious since she was found.

Her brother and father arrived in Toronto early today, from Oshawa. The brother, Jack, is employed at General Motors. The father, Thomas, a retired CNR maintenance man now lives with his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. D. Larkin in Cobourg.

COMPLAINED OF PAINS

While visiting her aunt, Mrs. Larkin, during the Christmas holidays, Miss Boyle complained of severe pains in the head. It was first thought that the girl, crazed with pain, had inflicted her own injuries, but the extent of her injuries makes this theory implausible.

Miss Boyle was born in Peterborough, but moved with her family to Brighton when she was four years old. After a short stay there, the family moved to Ohawa where they have lived for the past 18 years.

Another brother, William, died last year as a result of a burning accident.

NO OUTSIDERS SEEN

Police said no one other than nurses and doctors, went to the sixth floor of the hospital by elevator Wednesday night.

A hospital official said the only other means of access to the floor is by fire escape.

Police said the girl "will undergo a period of crisis for the next 48 hours." They said if she survives the period, she will live.

The girl's clothing—a dress, rather than a uniform—had not been disturbed.

Officers said if she was bludgeoned it appeared she was sitting at her desk at the time and there is a good chance she saw her assailant.

Police said they believe her assailant put out the light on leaving. The room was in darkness when Dr. Geraldine Arthur entered and stumbled over the girl. Dr. Arthur had her taken to the hospital's emergency ward where the brain operation was performed.

RAIN BADLY DAMAGED

Chief of detectives Archie McCathie said he believed an assailant hit the girl one or two crushing blows on the left side of the head. Her skull was penetrated in three places and the brain severely damaged.

Patients at the hospital were not questioned today. Officials said they feared questioning could have an adverse reaction on some of them.

Name Fred Ash Vice President Quaker Oats Ltd.

FRED G. ASH

Fred G. Ash, general operating manager of the Quaker Oats Co. Ltd., today was appointed a vice-president of the company as well.

Reg. Faryon, president of the company, made the announcement today.

Mr. Ash, a native of Peterborough and a well known baseball player, joined the Quaker Oats in 1924 and has worked in the Peterborough plant ever since.

Formerly superintendent of the Peterborough mill, he was named general operating manager for Canada in May, 1952. He will continue in his capacity as general operating manager.

Charge Three Miners With Shopbreaking

TIMMINS (CP) — Police today charged three miners with shopbreaking and theft of more than $300 worth of canned foods from a warehouse owned by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL). They say the three men are members of the union.

Held are Henri Gagnon, 35, Bernard Decoeur, 27, and Roland Lamarche, 35. The foodstuffs were stolen early Wednesday during a break in at the warehouse. Authorities said the food was recovered in raids on three Timmins houses.

Roof Blows Off

TORONTO (CP) — An exploding oil burner blew part of the roof from a one-storey brick storage plant in Toronto's north end today, knocked out several doors and windows and left two walls badly damaged. No one was in the building. Firemen estimated damage at $6,000.

Wm. H. Sims Dies Husband Of M. Denne

KITCHENER (CP)—One of the leading members of the Twin City legal fraternity, William H. Sims of Bridgeport died today at the K-W Hospital after a short illness. He was 45.

His widow, the former Mary Denne of Peterborough, and two sons survive.

Granddaughter Mrs. Traill Mrs. John William Todd Dies

Mrs. John William Todd, of Lakefield, the former Katherine Stewart Atwood, and granddaughter of the district's well-known literary pioneer, Mrs. Katherine Parr Traill, died today in hospital following a lingering illness. Though of quiet manner, she was one of the village's most respected citizens and a life-long worker at the parish church of St. John the Baptist. Mrs. Todd was organist there for 43 years, an outstanding record in any community church. She was also a life member of its Woman's Auxiliary and a member of the Katherine Parr Traill Chapter of the IODE, named by village women for her grandmother.

Mrs. Todd was born at Gore's Landing 85 years ago, daughter of the late James Parr Clinton Atwood and Anne Traill Fotherham. The family moved from there to their present home, "Ashelworth" in Lakefield, 67 years ago. Her husband predeceased her.

She leaves two sisters at home, the Misses Anne Traill and Florence Mary Atwood, and a brother in Toronto, George Evans Atwood.

The body is resting at "Ashelworth", the residence of her sisters. The funeral service will be held on Saturday at St. John's Church at 2:30 p.m. The Rev. Lloyd J. Delaney will officiate and burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

VINCENT TANTILLO, 6, a son of the old West, was anxious to show onlookers at Maxwell's Rodeo Arena in Nederland, Tex., how a real buckaroo could master a wild Brahman calf. It was easy staying aboard when the calf was confined to the chute, but once released, Vince was earth-bound as the unco-operative calf went into his tornado dance.

14 Female Fun-Hunters On Way To African Safari

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourteen bright-eyed fun-hunters shook civilization from their skirts Wednesday and flew off to a two-week safari in the deep, dank, dark jungles of Africa.

But hold, thou quaking beasts of Nairobi and Entebbe, of Mombasa and Zanzibar, still the fearful heaving of thy proud bosoms.

These sportswomen come to laugh, not to bury thee.

Armed with camera, compact and tropical costume, they have set their sights on less hunting and more fun.

An intrepid male reporter mentioned "gun" as the 14 boarded a plane at Idlewild airport.

The collective blanche was such as to turn night into day.

In age the party ranges from 27 to 60.

They are widows, mothers, business women, housewives.

COSTS $2,500

They are not without means. Their little safari is costing them $2,500 each.

They are thorough. Their measurements already are in the hands of an outfitter in Nairobi.

They have wanderlust.

They are female.

Asked the intrepid reporter: "Who's 27 and who is 60?"

The collective blanche faded into a furious flush.

"Why," demanded one of Beverly Putnam, who arranged the epic trek, did you tell them the ages?"

"I didn't; I didn't," the harassed Miss Putnam protested.

"Well," the traveller said darkly, "It's in the papers."

New Soil Conservation Plan To Develop Australian Wastes

By GRAEME BROOKS

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — The State of Victoria, of which Melbourne is the capita, has embarked on a program of soil and water conservation which may influence the course of Australian history.

Engineers say that if the program now under way in Victoria should spread to other parts of this island continent, Australia could eventually support a population of more than 25,000,000 people, compared with her present 8,500,000.

New developments in Victoria are expected to bring 1,000,000 acres of desert into production within 10 years, through irrigation. A fertilization program will bring another 1,000,000 acres into production. In addition, the state hopes to become almost independent of outside coal for gas and power.

SOIL DEFICIENCY

From research on the wool of sheep bred on the great desert in the north of Victoria, a soil deficiency was discovered. Now 100 acres a day are being fertilized, and shortly 1,000,000 acres will come into production.

In the Latrobe valley, about 100 miles southeast of Melbourne, bulldozers, excavators and dredges are slicing into 20 quare miles of brown coal to get fuel for the city's gas supplies and the state railways and power stations.

In the Goulburn valley, progress is well advanced on 2,300 miles of irrigation ditches. In the scheme is the steadily-rising Eildon dam, the largest man-made earth barrier in the southern hemisphere.

Student Councils Plan Keep Activities Going

TORONTO (CP) — Presidents of all Toronto high school student councils will meet tonight to discuss plans to keep student activities going should teachers stop extra-curricular work Jan. 22.

Secondary school teachers here have been ordered by their federation to quit such activities on that date unless the board of education makes changes in the single-salary scale which lumps together primary and secondary school teachers. Secondary school teachers, who want a separate salary scale, normally direct such things as athletic contests, formal dances and publications of school magazines.

Hope To Resume Cash Dividends

TORONTO (CP)—Henry Borden, president of Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Co., Ltd., Wednesday said the company hopes to résume payment of dividends in cash form.

He spoke to a special meeting of shareholders which approved a by-law authorizing the company to pay a stock dividend of 1-20th of a share.

This stock dividend plus three cents cash was declared by directors, subject to approval by the [illegible] payable Feb. 22 to sha[illegible] of record [illegible] placed the 50-cent cash dividend ordinarily paid half-yearly.

The change in dividend form resulted from foreign exchange shortages in Brazil.

The vote was 4,708,218 shares for the by-law, and 34,713 shares against.

The by-law lapses after a year, and Mr. Borden said directors have no present intention of again invoking it.

TUMBLING ACT—"How do we get in for supper?" seems to be the question facing little Jan Jones as she stands before a thick mass of West Texas tumbleweeds that a 50-mile-per-hour wind stacked almost roof-high in front of her Lubbock, Tex., home. Other houses all along the street were similarly hedged in. Tumbleweeds, famed in sentimental western folk songs, don't seem so romantic to home owners faced with the job of removing them.

2 More Years Before King's Biography Done

OTTAWA (CP) — Professor R. MacGregor Dawson began work on the official biography of the late William Lyon Mackenzie King in the autumn of 1951.

He's still going strong and says he should have the job completed in another "two or three years."

Professor Dawson, on leave from the University of Toronto—"they may be getting impatient"—says writing the biography of the former Liberal prime minister means virtually writing the political history of Canada for the last 30 years.

The biography, when completed, is expected to comprise two "substantial" volumes. Mr. King left a mass of material, some 1,000,000 pages of correspondence, memoranda and other papers.

Professor Dawson, who works in Laurier House next door to Mr. King's old bedroom, says he is not writing the biography in chronological order. He has dealt thoroughly with some phases of Mr. King's life and now is tackling the first chapter. He has yet to get deeply into the years of the Second World War.

His study of Mr. King's life has, he says, confirmed the public's general impression that the former prime minister was a "very complex" person.

Professor Dawson says he has unearthed many new facts on Mr. King's life, though none of them is particularly startling.

From the correspondence, Professor Dawson estimates that 90 per cent of Mr. King's life was taken up with political affairs.

Work on the biography is being financed by the Rockefeller Foundation.

LUCKY NEW YEAR BABY—Among other things, he may never have to face polio or rheumatic fever.

NATO Rules Security Calls For Sacrifice

By NORA BELOFF

PARIS (OFNS) — Behind the smoke-screen of the official communique, the essential decision taken by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council of Ministers in Paris may be divined: to scrap the long-term military targets which it originally adopted for the collective rearmament effort.

Instead, the ministers ordered the planners to start work immediately on a new program assuring Nato of the soundest defence system they can afford to buy at the current rates of military expenditure. The new long-term plan will be worked out on this principle in the course of the coming year, and is due to go into operation at the beginning of 1955.

Originally the fourteen member States which met at Ottawa in 1951 accepted minimum military requirements fixing Western European defence forces at 97 divisions, with corresponding air and sea power. Since then, military and civilian considerations have led to the rejection of these figures, and a new appraisal was contained in the form of a "long-term guidance report" prepared by the Nato Secretariat and accepted in its entirety by the ministers this week.

REASONS OUTLINED

Principal reasons for the change are that: first, scientific and technical advances, notably in nuclear weapons, have convinced military leaders that there is much less relation than they thought between the size of a fighting force and its destructive power; second, civilian governments have reached what they feel is the maximum level of defence expenditure which democratically - governed Welfare States will accept; third, knowledge of Russia's military and technical progress seems to have ruled out the possibilities of attaining a decisive military superiority which would allow the West to impose its own terms on the Russians through what used to be called "negotiation from strength."

As a consequence of all this, the Western nations have had to accommodate themselves to an indefinite continuation of the rearmament burden. New weapons and new aircraft have enormously increased the rate of obsolescence. This means that instead of making, as the West hoped to make, one giant effort to build up a big army, and then being able to relax into keeping that army on a "care and maintenance" basis, there is now no foreseeable prospect of security without sacrifice.

Thus, while 1954 will see substantial increases in the strength of the Western armies in line with previous plans, it will also see the preparation of an entirely new defence concept, of which the opening phase will be a military reassessment of the potentials and risks incurred through the development of new weapons. A preview of the new plan may be ready for the next ministerial meeting in April.

A number of political problems remain to be resolved before the new plan can come into being. First must come United States Congressional approval for President Eisenhower's request for authorization to release information about nuclear weapons to America's allies. Obviously there can be no military plan based essentially on new weapons while European commanders are deprived of direct knowledge of atomic arms.

U.S. RESPONSIBILITY

The plan will also depend on the willingness of Congress to endorse the U.S. Administration's assurance to its allies in Paris that it recognize America's continued responsibility for supporting the European defence effort after the initial build-up—notably through aid in modernising and replacing obsolete weapons. The proposal for standardizing arms and collating separate national programs — which will be an essential feature of the new plan —will ultimately save money and men, but initially will require large-scale capital investment which is likely to enlarge the dollar gap.

1954 Babies Best Chance For Future Of Any Yet

By PATTI SIMMONS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Baby New Year 1954 is a pretty lucky fellow.

He's got a better chance for survival than any of his January 1 predecessors. What's more, the child born in '54 is likely to live a longer life than the youngster born during the previous year.

Survival chances have been improving rapidly for the last 25 years. The following reasons, some appearing only five to 10 years ago, help tell the story:

A continuous upward trend in the proportion of hospital births, starting about 15 years ago. Last figures show that close to 90 per cent of all births were in hospitals.

Better pre-natal care available to more people.

Improved standard of living, including better diet. The old idea that a mother-to-be eats for two "quantity-wise" has been junked. Today's stress is quality-wise.

Increase in special facilities for premature babies. This type of birth is nevertheless the major factor in infant mortality.

Medical advances including "miracle" drugs and greater availability of medical care.

Improved sanitation plus purer water and milk supplies.

A tendency in the last four to five years toward less anesthesia in childbirth. "Heavy use," explains Dr. Catherine Bain of the Children's Bureau, "lessens a child's chances for survival."

AVOID DISEASES

A long life isn't the only thing Bay New Year has to look forward to.

He or she may never have to suffer polio or rheumatic fever. "Within the next couple of years it looks like there will be a preventative for polio," Dr. Bain points out. "Also great strides are being made on rheumatic fever."

More has been learned about epilepsy in the last five years. Likewise, she adds, "it looks like medicine is on the track of blindness in premature babies."

About one out of 14 babies is born prematurely, it's estimated according to the last available figures. That means an infant weighing under five and a half pounds. However, in 1954 there will be fewer deaths among premature babies.

To lesser degree than prematurity, birth injury and congenital malformation take their toll of young lives. But many more babies are being saved each year from dying of diarrhea, enteritis, pneumonia and influenza.

Nevertheless, according to the last (1952) figures on the subject, a baby born in New Zealand has a slightly better chance for survival than the child born in the United States. Nations measure infant mortality rate by the number who die their first year, per 1000 live babies.

The estimated figure for the U.S. is 28.6 babies while New Zealand chalked up 28.4.

The history of infant-saving in this country has made dramatic strides. For instance, 85.8 out of 1000 died in 1920 as compared to 47 deaths out of 1000 in 1940.

Of 1000 newborn infants, under mortality conditions at the beginning of the century, 772 would live to reach 20 years of age. Today the figure is more than 950 out of 1000.

BETTER IN CITY

The following safety factors are something for Baby New Year 1954 to think over.

The outlook is better if he's born a city child rather than a rural youngster. Likewise if he's born in a progressive state rather than a backward state. But a baby born to slum-dwelling parents is more likely to have serious health and social problems.

If it is a girl instead of a boy this year, survival chances will be better and so will life expectancy, which at last count was more than five years greater for girls. Back at the turn of the century the difference was only around two years. The increase in favor of women is due partly to things like safer childbirth and improvement in living standards which make it easier for women.

And don't forget girls have an advantage from the start.

"Girls are just born older," smiles Dr. Bain.

Scientists have found that fish migrate between the Red sea and the Mediterranean through the Suez canal.

WEST GERMAN CHANCELLOR KONRAD ADENAUER, right, who Tuesday celebrated his 78th birthday, waves from the window of his special train leaving the Friedland transit camp where he welcomed more than 2,000 German prisoners of war who were released from Russian captivity recently. With Adenauer are Konrad Mueller, one of the repatriates and his wife, Elfit Mueller, a neighbor of Adenauer in Rhoendorf.

Plane Brings Medicine For Constable

EDMONTON (CP) — A sick RCMP constable at Spence Bay outpost 200 miles inside the Arctic circle received drugs by airplane Wednesday but an RCAF Dakota which took part in the mission was forced to make an emergency landing [illegible] of engine trouble.

After attempts Monday and Tuesday to drop the drugs by parachute failed, an RCMP plane landed at Spence Bay, 1,300 miles north of Winnipeg, with the medical supplies.

The patient, constable F. E. Oxholm, 25, has a lung ailment. He is reported improved.

The downed RCAF Dakota, piloted by Flt. Lt. Al Richards of Edmonton, made an emergency landing at Embarras landing field, 600 miles south of Cambridge bay.

The RCAF said one of the plane's engines developed an oil leak.

Air force officials said they believed the downed plane carried two sick Eskimos picked up at Cambridge bay for treatment in an Edmonton hospital.

CANADA'S EXTERNAL AFFAIRS MINISTER, Hon. Lester B. Pearson (left), lets Jean Clavel, president of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Public Relations Society, in on a little diplomatic secret at the society's recent dinner in Montreal.

Dunsany Tells Off Modern Poets

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—Lord Dunsany, 75-year-old poet and author who sometimes engages in fierce criticism, told off modern poets in an address Wednesday night.

They are "bells of lead," he said. They should tinkle melodiously but what they say is likely to sound like "klunk."

To prove his point, Lord Dunsany even fooled his audience, the learned members of the Authors' Club of which he is president.

He read off what sounded like a new poem—it didn't make any sense—and the authors applauded appreciatively.

Then Lord Dunsany revealed what a diabolical critic he is. He told them that what he read was not a proper poem at all, but the disjointed first lines of many verses taken from the index of a book of modern poems.

NEW POEMS WILL DIE

"I prefer the old chimes," Lord Dunsany said. "I think these others will pass away.

"These modern poets sneeringly call the masters traditionalists. I am content with the old meters written by men who did not know any better, men like Shakespeare, Milton and Keats who were mere traditionalists.

"What authority have these people to give you their message in other than plain English? Persons who prefer such turgid lines of dull prose to the meter of Milton and Shelley and Keats may do so, but don't call it poetry."

Wheels Bring Fine

BRIDGLINGTON, England (CP) Truck driver James Mainprize, 35, was fined 10 shillings Wednesday after police testified that mud dripping from the truck wheels endangers road safety.

Motorist Jailed

CHICAGO (AP)—A 46-year-old motorist was fined $1,189.50 Wednesday for 18 traffic violations committed over four years. Unable to pay, Joseph B. Adams was ordered to work out the fine at $1.50 a day in county jail. Judge Joseph J. Butler figured Adams will be free in two years and 53 days.

Embarrassing Moments

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — Brighton's lady mayoress twice had to thumb a lift when her official automobile broke down. Now the council has decided to sell it.

Mails Yield $170,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A federal agent Wednesday said the government has intercepted, in the last month, $170,000 mailed from the United States to Hong Kong and destined for residents of Communist China. Such transfer of funds are illegal.

Snowboots Lead To Man's Arrest

ORILLIA (CP)—Police say a large pair of snowboots with distinctive sole pattern led to the arrest Wednesday of Clarence Stonehouse on four charges of housebreaking and theft.

Officers say that after a series of thefts footprints made by big boots were found in the snow outside the robbed houses.

They questioned Stonehouse, father of six children, after sighting him walking along the main street while wearing large snowboots.

Mass By Television Not Enough—Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Church authorities today reminded Roman Catholics that it is not enough to hear mass by television.

Replying to a query, Vatican authorities said that hearing and watching mass services on television is "laudable" but does not fulfill requirements for actual attendance at mass.

Regular television broadcasts began in Italy this month.

Greets Georgi In Hindi

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government press said today that Prime Minister Nehru's greetings to Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov on his 52nd birthday Friday will be in the Hindi language. Indians are pretty sure Malenkov will need a translator. The message in English reads like this: "I send my greetings and good wishes on the auspicious occasion of your birthday. Jawaharlal Nehru."

Youth Is Jailed Assaulted Girl

BELLEVILLE — Cecil Carman, 19, of Madoc, was sentenced to three months definite and two months indeterminate by Magistrate R. C. Jackson for charges of indecent assault and common assault against two young Madoc girls. The three-month term was given for assaulting a 14-year-old girl November 14. He was found guilty of a second charge of indecent assault but a charge of illegal possession of liquor was dismissed.

Bethany WA Members Hold January Meeting

BETHANY (ENS) — Mrs. George Waddell entertained members of the Women's Association of the United church for their January meeting on Tuesday with Mrs. Mansell Finney presiding. The roll call was answered by 21 members.

Mrs. Milton Wright read the scripture lesson with Mrs. Herb Coppins giving the lesson thoughts and leading in prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. Walter Rowland, read the minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence included numerous letters of thanks from shut-in members who had been sent gifts at Christmas. The treasurer, Mrs. Wellington Fallis, reported a substantial bank balance and the purchase of a new stove for the manse.

It was decided to send the sum of $5.00 to the "Save The Children Fund" in Toronto. Announcement was made of the annual congregational meeting and pot luck supper to be held in the Sunday school January 13. Each member was asked to contribute something for the supper.

Mrs. G. Waddell, Mrs. T. J. Jackson, Mrs. W. Fallis and Miss L. Thompson were appointed as a committee to supply flowers for the church throughout the year. Miss Elsie Richardson read "A Christmas Prayer." Mrs. A. Monk gave a reading "The New Year." Mrs. T. J. Jackson gave a poem "True Faith." Mrs. L. Norman and Mrs. Wellington Fallis sang "In The Garden With Jesus." Mrs. R. Carr gave the topic "Yet Another year."

Mrs. G. Waddell gave a reading "Time to Take Stock." The meeting closed with the National Anthem and prayer. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Leonard Driver, Mrs. Ernest Stacey and Mrs. H. Coppins.

Vaccine Soon Available

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, says chances are "good" that the new polio vaccine to be given in country-wide tests among children this spring will be available to every American family by mid-1955 if the experiments are successful.

Employee Stamp Club Stages Exhibition At Two Factories

MONTREAL (CP) — Stamp-collecting is fostered by a Montreal company to promote fellowship among its workers. Recently its employee stamp club staged an exhibition at two of its plants here.

The exhibition of 35 frames of stamps was so successful it probably will become an annual event.

The Northern Electric Philatelic Section, now a chapter of the Canadian Philatelic Society, is 20 years old. It is one of many sections of a company employee club devoted to gardening, bowling, hockey, baseball, hunting, fishing and other recreational activities.

Shown for the stamp-collectors' exhibition, the 35 frames each contained six sheets of stamps. One of the items was the famous British black penny stamp dating back to 1840. There were a variety of modern stamps.

POST OFFICE DISPLAY

A highlight was a post office department display of two frames of original artist's drawings and proofs used in the development of the 10-cent "fur resources" and the $1 "totem pole" stamps.

Also featured were franks first issued by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada about 1890 for payment of telephone messages.

The stamp show was held for three days at a plant at nearby Lachine and drew 400 employees. More than 1,000 employees visited the show at company's Shearer street plant.

Nova Scotia's Link Strong With Lands "Down Under"

In the journey which Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are making through Commonwealth countries on the other side of the world, Canadians are finding an absorbing interest, noting the arrangements made for their reception, the warmth of the welcome accorded the Royal couple, and living over again in this occasion the progress made only a few years ago on a similar tour of this Dominion. Even Queen Salote of the Tonga Island seemed an old friend as she welcomed Queen Elizabeth and her consort, and numbers chuckled (as, indeed, the two queens did too) when a shower greeted the arrival of the Royal party just as had happened on Salote's visit to Britain, says an article in the Halifax Chronicle-Herald.

EARLY MIGRANTS

In New Zealand, Canadians have continued to follow the Royal progress, Nova Scotians, in particular, recognized a link with this province when the Queen met and chatted with two elderly citizens, 100-year-old Mrs. Jessie McKenzie, who was born on a ship bound from Nova Scotia to those lands Down Under, and Mrs. Johanna McRae, 97, the only other survivor of those early migrants from these shores.

To the average person, the days of the Reverend Norman MacLeod are long ago and far away, but they seem comparatively recent when one hears of people still living who were part of his doughty settlers. It was in 1817 that Norman MacLeod and his followers came to Pictou. But he had been there only two years when word of the advantages of the Ohio River Valley reached him and he, with his people, decided to emigrate there. But he was never destined to settle in the United States. His "Ark" was driven into peaceful St. Ann's Bay in Cape Breton, and there he and his people expected to remain. A quarter of a century later, however, the urge to settle in Australia became strong. Another vessel was built and, in the autumn of 1851, Norman MacLeod and 135 of his followers sailed off on a voyage half-way round the world. But Australia proved a disappointment and, after two years, the voyageurs went on to New Zealand where they remained. The encouraging news which they sent back to their fellow-countrymen induced others to follow. It is estimated that between 1,000 and 1,500 people eventually sailed away from Cape Breton to make their homes in New Zealand.

COLONY'S GAIN

It was a disappointment to Nova Scotia to lose so many of her most promising citizens. But what was her loss was another colony's gain. And down the years since, the link forged by those early pioneers between the two far-separated lands has remained unbroken. Within recent years a centenary celebration in honor of the Waipu settlers was held in New Zealand. Nova Scotians, indeed, felt themselves to be a part of it. And when on the present Royal tour the Queen met the last two survivors of this famous emigration, it was almost to Nova Scotians as if she were greeting citizens of this province itself.

Perhaps that memorable meeting might have occurred earlier had those two aged voyageurs lived their lives here. But that was denied them. And in recalling the universal expression of affection which greeted the Royal couple in Canada only a short time ago, Nova Scotians will understand what prompted the New Zealand centenarian to murmur thankfully, "I'm glad I've lived so long."

1st Pacific Coast Newspaper Founded 95 Years Ago

VICTORIA (CP) — A stormy, bearded Nova Scotian who called himself Amor de Cosmos founded the first newspaper on the Pacific coast.

The British Colonist, first printed as a weekly in a ramshackle building on Wharf street Dec. 11, 1858, now is the Victoria Colonist. Last month it celebrated its 95th birthday.

De Cosmos fought bitterly against Governor James Douglas' family-company compact which dominated the island colony and lived to see accomplishment of his two major aims: responsible government and Confederation.

He became British Columbia's second premier and a member of Parliament in the new Dominion of Canada.

SUCCESSFUL PAPER

His newspaper switched to triweekly and then to daily publication; absorbed one competing paper and outlived 15 others.

De Cosmos, a tall, powerful man with a black beard and blazing eyes, was born William Smith in Windsor, N.S. After a few years as a Halifax grocery clerk, he journeyed to the California gold fields where he worked as a photographer, merchant and miner.

In Mud Springs, California, he grew tired of having his mail mixed up with that of six other Bill Smiths. So he changed his name to Amor de Cosmos—"Lover of the Universe."

Later de Cosmos moved north to Victoria and founded the Colonist as a "true index of public opinion."

De Cosmos said the Hudson's Bay Company had done useful work in opening up Vancouver island, but now the company was holding back progress; industrial growth and political reform were blocked.

BITTER FIGHT

His paper fought fiercely against Governor Douglas' "despotic rule," and Douglas struck back. On April 1, 1859, he revived an old English law and posted a proclamation demanding a bond of £800 for publication of the Colonist. For every day of "illegal publication" a fine of £50 was threatened.

But de Cosmos' friends subscribed the money. The paper thundered on for reform. Most of the recommendations de Cosmos made became law.

In 1862 he sold out and devoted himself to politics, fighting against a faction that wanted Vancouver island to join the United States.

The island and mainland colonies were joined in 1866. De Cosmos campaigned for Confederation, led a delegation to Ottawa and became a friend of Sir John A. Macdonald.

He retired at 57 after defeat in an election and died at 72.

New Refinery To Produce 5,000,000 Tons Of Oil

ADEN (AP)—The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's new refinery at "Little Aden" is nearing completion.

The $140,000,000 installation will in a year's time produce 5,000,000 tons of refined oil a year, company officials said.

The officials explained plans for the refinery were under way before the dispute with Iran in 1951 and the evacuation of the Persian refineries at Abadan. Construction of the refinery, they said, was due to two main factors:

1. Aden, where numerous ships put in every year, needs a large amount of marine fuel. At present the fuel is imported from the United Kingdom where Persian gulf oil is refined. The new refinery will cut unnecessary expenditure of carrying the oil all the way from the gulf to Britain and back to Aden.

2. Aden, being a British protectorate, gave all guarantees for a British investment.

Dutch and British concerns united under the name of "Joint Dredging Co." are in charge of dredging of the new port being built for the refinery.

Guilty 2nd Time Drunk Driving Jailed 1 Month

Found guilty on a second offence drunk driving charge, Lewers Deyell, 35, of 730 Monaghan Rd., was sentenced to one month in jail today. In addition, Magistrate W. R. Philp order[illegible] the accused's car impounded f[illegible] months.

In imposing the minimum penalty for a second offence charge, Magistrate Philp [illegible] Deyell [illegible] within the meaning of the act. Defence counsel Trevor Clarke may, however, appeal the conviction.

Evidence was supplied by three police officers, Constable Jack Wilson, Constable Bert Howden and Sergeant Claire McGillen.

PC Wilson described how, about 11 o'clock the night of December 5, he and PC Howden saw Deyell's car stopped in the intersection of Charlotte and Bethune St. A man was standing by the open door.

THOUGHT STALLED

At first they thought the car had simply stalled but on passing they saw indications the man was intoxicated. They rounded the block in the police cruiser and returned to see Deyell driving east on Charlotte St. They followed in the cruiser, saw him turn south on Aylmer St. west on King St. and north on Bethune St.

During this time, Deyell's car went off the road once onto the CNR freight shed property, returned to the road, and on turning at King, made a very wide turn.

When the car stopped on Bethune St. the officers went over to the driver and found him very unsteady, smelling highly of alcohol, very dishevelled, argumentive, belligerent and speaking thickly.

They took Deyell to the station where Sgt. McGillen had an opportunity to see him. The sergeant agreed in part with the two constables' description.

THREE DRAFTS

Deyell told the court he had consumed three drafts of beer in a downtown hotel during the late afternoon. Afterwards he had gone up to a friend's home, consumed one shot of liquor there and was promptly sick.

He recovered shortly, however, but stayed away from any more alcohol the rest of the night. By the time he left, about 11, he was very sleepy and attributed some of the symptoms of intoxication to that.

Explaining seeming difficulty in negotiating steps at the police station, he described them as treacherous. Officers had testified prior to this that he had to be aided up and down stairs there.

In the opinion of Magistrate Philp, though, the evidence was quite sufficient to convict the accused.

THIRD SOLID WEEK OF TEACHING for students of the Peterborough Teachers' College is being conducted this week. The students taught one week during November in rural schools, one week during December in a Peterborough school and this week they are teaching in an urban school of their home area. For Lois Jamieson, of Peterborough, this means Grade 5 of Queen Alexandra School where she is shown helping one of the pupils.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Brake Failure Caused Accident, Case Dismissed

Warning that "jalopies will involve a lot of expense," Magistrate W. R. Philp today dismissed a charge of driving with inadequate brakes against Douglas Tripp, 16, of 100 Kent St.

After hearing evidence the youth's brakes had failed to respond in time to avoid an accident, Magistrate Philp considered [illegible] the accused's stepfather the failure had been caused when a worn bolt snapped.

Tripp had been involved in an accident December 21 at Brock and George Sts. He had been driving north on George St. and William Bennett, 645 Orpington Rd., east on Brock when the crash occurred.

Investigating the accident Constable Andrew tested brakes on Tripp's 1932 model car. He found they didn't work.

BRAKES RELINED

The accused told the court his vehicle had its brakes relined and the brake rods adjusted in October as a result of a police warning. His stepfather, Douglas Morrison, a garage operator, safety-checked the car and it was issued a safety sticker.

On the day in question, however, Tripp tried to avoid Bennett's car by slamming on the brakes. On the 21-year-old vehicle the strain meant the end to the bolt that held the four brake rods. It snapped and the car crashed.

Accepting this testimony, Magistrate Philp dismissed the charge but suggested "old jalopies will involve a lot of expense if you persist in driving them."

Potato Floor Price Said Subsidy For Maritimers

TORONTO — The government assistance program for potatoes is a subsidy in the opinion of two Hamilton district potato growers, and they see in it the danger that Canadian growers are apt to face higher tariffs at the U. S. border.

O. E. Marshall and Harold Downey say it is a subsidy when growers in the Maritime provinces are guaranteed 50 cents a bushel or 62½ cents a bag and the price of potatoes in Ontario [illegible] of large shipments [illegible] Prince Edward Island and New Bruswick.

BIG GROWER

Mr. Marshall grows 125 acres of potatoes each year and Mr. Downey handles 100 acres. Their views are fairly representative of the people in the same line of farming in their district.

Early in Novehmber the federal government announced a plan of putting a floor of 50 cents a bushel under the potato price. However, the floor price was obtainable only through a co-operative growers' association large enough to make itself felt in the domestic market.

There is no such co-operative association in Ontario.

The upshot of the assistance scheme is that growers in the Maritimes are getting federal money to bring their potatoes to Ontario to compete with unassisted Ontario producers. The Hamilton people complain they are paying, in the form of taxes, the money that the federal price officials are going to hand over to the Marftimes.

OBTAIN LOANS

Growers receive scrip from the dealers under the floor price plan. This can be taken to a bank where they can obtain loans of up to 75 per cent of its face value. The [illegible] at the end.

At a rough guess, the way prices are right now, it will cost the federal goverment about 40 cents a bag on Maritime potatoes shipped into the Ontario market at the present time.

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Downey are concerned about the possible effect on the U.S. market.

Canadian potatoes' going into the U.S. are charged duty at 37½ cents per 100 lbs. U. S. potatoes, other than early ones from Florida, come into Canada duty free. In spite of this U.S. growers are saying through their trade magazines that the Canadian government is subsidizing Canadian growers to undersell the U.S. producers in their own markets.

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Downey feel this is apt to result in the sudden increase in the U.S. tariff on Canadian potatoes.

32 Airmen Dead Or Missing In Bad Crashes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-two men were killed in two military plane crashes Wednesday night in England and Panama, while word came from Tokyo that 10 United States Navy airmen are missing and presumed lost in the Yellow sea.

An RAF Valetta transport plane, carrying a service rugby team back to its Thorney island base near the Isle of Wight, crashed into snow-swept Tom's Hill, 30 miles from London. Only two of the 17 RAF passengers and crew were pulled out alive, and one died soon after.

The only survivor, one of the players, was reported in critical condition.

The team had lost a game at Reading Wednesday afternoon, 26-6, to another RAF team. The plane took off for home in the teeth of the snow storm.

PLANE UNDERSHOOTS BASE

Six men died and eight were injured in the flaming crash of a U. S. Navy photographic plane in a jungle area on the Isthmus of Panama. The plane was bringing a photo reconnaissance platoon to the canal zone from California.

Officers said the plane undershot by 2½ miles its destination, France air force base on the Caribbean side of the isthmus.

The U. S. Navy said in Tokyo that a twin-engined Neptune patrol plane with 10 aboard is presumed lost off the southwest coast of Korea. It was last heard from Monday.

Brush Up On Hair Beauty

The New Year is here again, bringing with it many new styles and fads. Hairwise, the Italian cut has taken hold of the fashion world. But whether you wear your hair short and curly, or in a long bob, you'll want to start off the New Year with tresses that sparkle and shine.

Here are some pointers on how to make those locks healthier and prettier—and keep them so.

First and foremost, a weekly shampooing is of the utmost importance for clean and sweet smelling hair—more often if your hair is especially oily, and every ten days or so if you have dry hair. Then every four to six weeks, see your hairdresser for thinning your hair and trimming it to remove split and straggly ends. A regular brushing every morning and night will help keep your hair radiant and healthy. Brushing increases circulation and stimulates your scalp — while keeping hair clean and shining.

But remember, clean hair demands a clean brush. Wash your brush and comb at least as often as you wash your hair. First, comb out all hair from the brush bristles. Then, wash comb and brush in mild soapy water, using comb to clean brush bristles and brush to scrub comb. Rinse in a solution of ordinary baking soda and warm water—two tablespoons soda to one quart warm water. Baking soda, which is pure mild bicarbonate of soda, emulsifies the greasy film and sweetens as it cleans — makes your brush and comb ready for those lovely tresses. Then shake your brush and dry it on a towel, away from the radiator. A brush should be dried on its side, or bristles side down to let the water drip down from the bristles.

So start off the New Year with a clean, well brushed, healthy head of hair.

Engineers Elect W. L. Sagar 1954 President

TORONTO (CP) — W. L. Sagar, 57, professor of civil engineering at the University of Toronto, has been elected 1954 president of the 12,000-member association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, it was announced Wednesday. He succeeds J. Herbert Smith of Toronto.

One of Canada's foremost authorities on soils and construction materials, Mr. Sagar also is vice-president of the Dominion Council of Professional Engineers.

Other officers elected to the executive council include:

J. S. Ellis, Niagara Falls; G. W. Ames, Sarnia; J. M. King, Peterborough; G. M. McHenry, London, and R. C. Mott, Falconbridge.

The association is the licensing body for civil, mining, electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers in the province.

STEADY CLIMB

Canada's population was estimated at 14,893,000 Sept. 1, 1953, a quarterly gain of 112,000.

Fail To Find Poison In Woman's Body

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police inspector T. W. Cousans said Wednesday night a post-mortem examination failed to reveal any poison in the body of Mrs. Sylvestor Lauzon, whose body was exhumed Dec. 10 from the cemetery at nearby Lahark.

The examination was ordered following the discovery of some arsenic poison near the spot where the elderly woman's body was found Oct. 20 last. Mrs. Lauzon disappeared in February, 1953, from the home of her granddaughter at Carleton place. Her body was found eight months later in a bush near the Lanark cemetery.

See Home Building Higher In Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP) — The rate of home construction in the Sudbury district will probably increase in 1954, building inspector H. E. Rosebrough said today. He based the prediction on 1953 sales of building lots in new subdivisions.

Building permits valued at $5,217,695 were issued last year, an increase of $1,500,000 over 1952.

Russian Girl Skiers Win In Tournament

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP)—Russian girl skiers swept through all opposition today to win the cross-country race of the international women's ski tournament with more than five minutes lead over all other entries.

Eighteen girls from Russia, Italy, Yugoslavia, Germany and Switzerland competed.

Killer Authorizes Use Of His Eyes

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Walter F. Griffen, one of the two convicted killers of a Buffalo jeweller, has authorized the use of his eyes to restore someone else's sight after his execution in Sing Sing prison's electric chair.

J. A. Albrencht, president of the Buffalo Eye Bank and Research Society, Inc., said today he had been notified of the 27-year-old Canadian's decision by Warden Wilfred L. De[illegible]no of Sing Sing.

Griffen and Maurice O'Dell, 28, both from Hamilton, are scheduled to die tonight for the holdup-killing of Donald F. Hurd in Hurd's downtown store Dec. 9, 1952.

Cornea transplanting operations can cure certain types of blindness. Griffen's eyes will be removed by Red Cross workers after the execution and taken to New York in special containers.

Red Danger Grows In Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce has cautioned top American officials that there is new danger in Italy of rising Communist strength, it was learned today.

Mrs. Luce, who conferred Wednesday with President Eisenhower, is reported to be urging continued American economic and military aid to Italy to bolster its pro-Western government.

Neither Mrs. Luce nor the president, reliable sources said, believes there is any imminent threat that Italy's already-powerful Communist party can seize power.

The ambassador is confident, it is said, that the current political crisis caused by Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella's resignation can be solved quickly without playing into Communist hands.

However, she is reported concerned about the long-range threat posed by the new non - violent tactics adopted by Italy's Reds.

Seguin To Learn Soon If Appeal Allowed

OTTAWA (CP) — Convicted slayer Henri Seguin of Cornwall, may soon learn whether he will be able to appeal his conviction before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret Wednesday reserved decision on the application for leave to appeal the case, but indicated he may give his decision by Saturday.

Seguin is under sentence to be hanged Jan. 19 for the slaying of Leonard Z. Hurd, Maxville, Ont., business man, in August, 1951. The conviction was upheld by the Ontario Court of Appeals.

Sportsmen Plan To Meet In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Representatives of hundreds of district sportsmen will meet here Jan. 17, at an executive session of the Huron and Erie zone of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters Incorporated.

Invitations have gone to sporting clubs across Western Ontario for representation.

The zone is headed by John Allen of Owen Sound, chairman; Walter F. Wilson of Kitchener and Bryce McDonald of Windsor, vice-chairmen.

Sudan Self-Governing By Next Saturday

KHARTOUM (Reuters) — Governor-General Sir Robert Howe is expected to proclaim next Saturday as the "appointed day," when the Sudan becomes self-governing.

Ismail al Azhari, 52, leader of the majority National Unionist party, is the first prime minister. His Egypt-backed National Unionist party holds 54 of the lower house's 97 seats and has a similar majority in the Senate.

Al Azhari was elected prime minister Wednesday by a vote of 56 to 37 over lawyer Mohammed Mahgoub.

Vatican Says Beria Asked For Bible

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican radio said today that Lavrenty Beria, late Soviet police head, asked for a copy of the Bible before his execution.

The Vatican radio, attributing its report to Vienna dispatches, speculated that Beria's thoughts turned toward the Christian way of life before his death.

One Miner Killed In Kilmar Cave-in

LACHUTE, Que. (CP) — Bruno Charbonneau, 35, was killed at the nearby Kilmar mine Wednesday when a cave-in buried him under 1½ tons of ground and rock.

Lawrence Gray of Hawkesbury, Ont., suffered serious arm and shoulder injuries in the same accident and was taken to hospital in Montreal.

The men were working at a depth of 975 feet when the wall of the pit crumbled. Both were employees of the Canadian Refractories Co.

Fierce Battle In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A fierce battle raged today between Kenya's security forces and more than 100 members of the Mau Mau secret anti-white terrorist organization. Twelve terrorists were reported killed and a number wounded. Large quantities of Mau Mau arms were captured.

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR wave aboard the liner Queen Mary on arriving in New York from Europe. They planned a short stay at their Waldorf Towers suite before leaving for Tallahassee, Florida. The Duke noted they were honorary citizens of both Florida and Texas and commented he was "proud of it."

$300,000 FIRE—Damage was estimated at $300,000 in a three-alarm fire in a downtown Toronto building. Firemen battle the early-morning blaze which for a time threatened an entire business block on Front St.

Can Have A Better House By Considering These Hints

Very few persons, no matter how good at odd jobs they are, ever undertake to build their own homes. The majority of us, sensibly, concentrate on making the money to pay to have the building tasks done by efficient workmen, skilled at their own particular profession.

But though we don't expect to pitch in and do the actual work ourselves, we can see to it that the job is done properly. A good builder, and you most certainly pick a good builder to put up your future home, will never mind showing you around the site, pointing out what has been done and the type and grade of materials that have been used.

Many times, however, you'll likely wander round the new house in the evenings, when all the workmen have gone for the day. So what do you look for to make sure that your home is going to be in as good a condition in 10, 15, or 20 years as it was at the day of completion?

First there is the site selection, and this should be done before any house plans are decided upon; it may effect them considerably. A lot on low ground may be wet and hard to drain. It may need expensive fill, or if filled, might contain clay and sand which could be a poor base for a foundation.

USE SLOPE

On a sloping lot, take advantage of the slope. Porches and terraces may require expensive fill if not properly located. So select the lot to suit the type of house you have in mind, or change the plans to fit the lot available.

If purchasing a house already constructed, make sure that it conforms to the ideas above. But, if you are selecting a lot, then do plan the ground before the first shovel full of dirt is turned.

Foundation walls should be of first grade materials. They should be strong enough to withstand the combined attack of weight and of frost. Unless the home is built on solid rock, foundation walls should rest on footings, concrete pads which form bearing surface against the soil and help prevent settlement. To resist the passage of water the foundation walls should be properly waterproofed.

NEED GOOD LUMBER

In actual building the, framing lumber should be sound and well dried to minimize shrinking, warping and twisting. To avoid weak structural points, binding of doors and windows and passage of wind and rain, all joints must be sound and doors and windows properly framed. Lumber should be correctly sized to provide adequate support for all loads.

Flooring lumber should be well dried and properly laid to prevent excessive expansion and contraction. Good nailing eliminates squeaks.

Adequate footings to support the chimney superstructure are essential. Suitable flue lining and masonry are required as protection against fire and the passage of gas fumes inside. Because of the fire hazard chimneys must not come in contact with the wood framing.

To get the best results use good materials on the roof. See that shingles are laid properly and nailed adequately. Flashing should be provided around all the projections through the room.

For interior work and finish, use the best quality lumber to resist wear and tear. Vapor barriers on the interior face of exterior walls are required to prevent shrinkage which results from wind and rain. The application of god sheathing will add to the structural strength. A suitable moisture barrier should be used to prevent rain or water from getting into the walls. And, finally, a suitable outside finish should be provided to resist the elements and to provide a pleasing appearance.

Remand Jacobs To January 14

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Clarence Jacobs of Tecumseh appeared in county court Wednesday and was remanded until Jan. 14 when a date will be set for an extradition hearing in connection with charges brought against him by United States authorities in the attempted murder of union leader Walter Reuther in 1948.

Jacobs, a barber by trade, told reporters before the hearing it was a little early to say anything yet.

Jacobs is wanted by Michigan on charges of assault with intent to commit murder and conspiracy of assault, Provincial police arrested Jacobs Tuesday night. He will be held in county jail without bail.

Charges were brought against three Americans in the same case. Police named Carl Renda of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Peter Lombardo of Detroit, now serving a term in federal penitentiary at Terra Haute Ind., and Santo (Sam) Perrone, Renda's father-in-law.

The assault on Reuther, when a shotgun was fired through a window of his house, occurred April 20, 1948. A year later, an attempt was made on the life of his brother, Victor Reuther. Both carry lifetime scars and disabilities from the shootings.

Danish Textiles Boost Export Trade

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) —The Danish textile industry has played an important role in the country's post-war export drive.

One of its strong points is that it is new and is not, therefore, hampered by conservative ideas and out-of-date machinery.

The industry is the product mainly of young men with new ideas. This is seen especially in the wide variety and range of its designs and colors, which have won customers abroad.

The industry has a skilled labor force of about 30,000. Yarns, piece goods and finished articles account for more than half the textile exports, which in 1952 totalled $16,800,000.

University Requests $1,000,000 Grant

TORONTO (CP)—Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, Wednesday asked the board of control for half the $2,000,000 city grant promised in 1949. He explained that the university has exhausted all the money in its building fund and needs $1,000,000 in January or February.

Officials of the board indicated it would have to seek to have responsibility for the grant assumed by the newly-created metropolitan council.

Police Keep Secrecy Lid Tight On Reuther Case

DETROIT (AP)—Police kept a tight lid of secrecy on their movements today in the continuing investigation of the Walter Reuther 1948 assassination attempt.

A motive for the ambush shooting of the CIO leader also remained an official secret 24 hours after criminal charges of conspiracy and assault were brought after five years against a Canadian and three Americans.

No positive signs are present of an immediate additional "break" to follow Wednesday's announcement. But police today were reported [illegible] of entry [illegible] the city of the [illegible] defendant, Santo (Sam) Perrone.

Perrone, 56, Sicilian-born big-money dealer in post-war scrap metal contracts who was once convicted of labor racketeering, was reported from one source to be on his way here from an undisclosed city.

OTHERS ACCUSED

Accused with him are his son-in-law, Carl Reda, 35, also a dealer in scrap metal; Peter Lombardo, 51, now in Leavenworth penitentiary as a carrier of counterfeit money; and Clarence Jacobs, 48, of Tecumseh, Ont., once involved in alleged alien smuggling.

Jacobs, a barber by trade, was something of a mystery man in the small Ontario town near Windsor. Some residents believed he had a barber shop in Windsor while others said he was in the television business in that city.

The formal charge said the four men—and four others not yet named—did "feloniously, wickedly and with malice aforethought" try to kill Reuther at his home the night of April 20, 1948. A shotgun charge was fired at Reuther through his kitchen window.

The next year a similar attempt was made on the life of his brother, Victor Reuther, a co-official in the CIO president's United Auto Workers union.

Renda and Jacobs were arraigned on the charges Wednesday—the former in Detroit and the latter in Windsor, Ont. Renda suplied $25,000 bond for his release pending examination Jan. 14. Jacobs was remanded to jail without bond.

HAVE MOTIVE

Meantime, Gerald K. O'Brien, Wayne county (Detroit) prosecutor, said flatly: "We definitely have a motive." But he refused to disclose it.

O'Brien also said he did not know whether the two shootings had any connection.

In the Essex county court at Windsor a letter from O'Brien was read which said "Jacobs participated in the actual shooting (of Walter)."

Later O'Brien said, however, that he did not mean that Jacobs was the trigger man. He refused to say exactly what he did mean.

PLEADED IGNORANCE

Jacobs pleaded ignorance of anything concerned with the case. His lawyer, Ross S. Ridell, said "We don't even know what he's charged with." Jacobs, arraigned on a fugitive warrant, will be given an international extradition hearing Jan. 14.

Renda grinned and tossed wisecracks at his court appearance. He refused to pose for pictures until he had been returned his necktie. It was taken from him at his arrest, a routine police act.

His two lawyers, Sam Travis and Eugene O'Leary, denounced the charge and the arrest. They said it was an attempt to "make a stir before the statute of limitations runs out."

Michigan law provides a six-year limitation on charges of this nature. After next April the charges could not be brought.

Queen Begins Making 'Whistle Stops'

HASTINGS, N. Z. (AP)—The Queen today started a bumpy 460-mile train ride lasting a day and a half, with "whistle stops" so that New Zealand countryfolk may see her.

At the start of the royal tour's 15th day in New Zealand, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh left Napier by car this morning [illegible] to this centre [illegible] fruit-growing and farming district.

The Queen inspected a cannery where peas are picked, cooked, canned and put on to the railway within two hours.

Then the royal party started on the train journey which lasted from 12:20 p. m. today until arrival at Palmerston North tonight. They will ride all day Friday until reaching New Plymouth for an overnight stay.

REDECORATED CAR

The red and white carriage occupied by the Queen and the duke was built in 1934 for a visit by the Queen's uncle, the Duke of Gloucester. Redecorated and refurnished, it has wide observation windows, comfortable lounge chairs and a rear observation platform on which the Queen and the duke stand when leaving stations.

Their ride was a bumpy one because they were scheduled for speeds of nearly 50 miles an hour on the narrow—three feet, six inches—gauge which is standard throughout New Zealand. All seven coaches were rocking and swaying through rolling hills and over small rivers.

Four public welcomes were planned for the Queen at railway stations on the way today. During these 15-minute "whistle stops," it was planned that the train should pull up about 100 yards past the dais to which the Queen would walk from the rear carriage, giving people a chance to see her.

Fairview WA Ladies Appoint Committees

FAIRVIEW (ENS) — The Fairview Women's Association met for the New Year meeting at the home of Mrs. Everett Cockburn with 18 ladies present.

The president, Mrs. Stanley Boyce, opened the meeting with a poem entitled "the Lamp of Hope."

The roll call was a thought on the New Year.

A number of letters of thanks for baskets of fruit which had been sent at Christmas time were read by the secretary Mrs. Cephas Heard.

Committees for the coming year appointed were:

Citizenship convener, Mrs. Fred Brown; guild convener, Mrs. Frank Trude, committee, Mrs. W. D. Wilson, Mrs. Walter Heard, Mrs. Ernest Mahood; parsonage board, Mrs. W. D. Wilson, Mrs. R. Harrison, Mrs. Albert Bulmer; M and M, Mrs. R. Harrison; official board, Mrs. Stanley Boyce; flower committee, Mrs. Everett Cockburn, Mrs. Wesley Bell, Mrs. W. Heard.

The cent a day giving will be carried out again this year. Fifty dollars will be given to the church towards the M and M fund.

Group Leaders are: Mrs. Carman Bell, Mrs. Milton Kidd and Mrs. Edison Kimball.

The worship service was led by Mrs. Carman Bell, leader of group one.

Mrs. Wesley Bell read the scripture and Mrs. W. D. Wilson gave the meditation. The Rev. Fleetham offered prayer.

Mr. Fleetman led in the installation service when officers were installed for the coming year.

Mrs. Cephas Heard thanked the hostess and Mr. Fleetham closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served.

Drought Hits Bathing

ST. PETER PORT, Guernsey (AP)—Residents of this drought-stricken Channel island were ordered Wednesday to limit themselves to five inches of bath water.

French Cabinet's Life To Be Extended

PARIS (AP) — Premier Joseph Laniel and his cabinet ministers have a new lease on their shaky offices, and are due to hang on to them at least until after the Berlin Big Four conference of foreign ministers.

France's badly split National Assembly got together Wednesday [illegible] Georges Bidault could go to Berlin Jan. 25 as spokesman for a real government.

Laniel, who said he would resign if the vote went against him or wasn't big enough for him, had been expected to get the assembly approval. But the size of the endorsement—five more than a majority of the chamber's 627 seats—surprised most observers. The assembly had sent the premier to meet President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill at Bermuda with only a 275-244 endorsement.

Most of the ballots against the premier came from the Communists, who oppose his whole program, and the Socialists, who are against his conservative domestic policies.

Correspondent Fined

SEOUL (AP)—Akira Shiraishi, a Japanese newsreel camera man, was fined $55 in a Korean court today for assaulting a Korean gate guard. Shiraishi, first United Nations war correspondent to stand trial in a Korean court, was convicted of pushing, striking and cursing Lin Chun Sahg during a scuffle inside the 8th Army press billets compound here. He is an employee of United Press-Movietone news.

Homer Watson Work Found In Attic Of Vancouver Home

VANCOUVER (CP)—A painting by Homer Watson, renowned Canadian painter of landscapes, has been found in an attic here and will be placed on exhibition soon.

Painted 30 years ago, it is a striking scene of an old mill on the Doon river in Ontario. A similar picture, "The Pioneer Mill" hangs in Windsor castle, having been acquired for the royal collection during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Watson, regarded as one of the [illegible] was born in 1855 at Doon. During a long and brilliant career ended by death in 1936, he achieved a wide international reputation. His works figured in the collections of the late prime minister Mackenzie King in Ottawa, and of the Oscar Wilde estate in London.

He exhibited at the Royal Academy in London and at other leading art displays, won the gold medal award at the Pan-American Exhibition in Buffalo in 1902 and another award at the St. Louis [illegible]

Policy Committee Studies Resolutions

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The policy committee of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce met Wednesday as delegates began to filter in for the annual meeting here which ends Friday.

About 150 are expected by mid-morning today. The policy committee meeting reviewed last year's statements and brought them up to date in the light of 1953 provincial legislation.

The 18-member committee studied resolutions submitted this year by members from all parts of the province. It acts in an advisory capacity to member organizations.

The first business session of the convention will be today and the day's program will end with a reception and banquet. Reforms Minister Foote will address the dinner. Speaker at the final luncheon Friday will be W. J. Borries, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Major Clubs Scout Latin America, Doubt That YearRound Play Good

By AL CARTWRIGHT
NEA Special Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—Eddie Collins, Jr., is somewhat of a leg man for the Phillies.

Collins, assistant farm director, puts in his mileage during the baseball season, but they made him a winter traveller, too, this time. The old Yale was instructed to take off for Mexico for a look at winter baseball there. When you are through, the orders read, [illegible] to Colombia.

It used to be that action in the winter was rare, with a handful of American imports, all minor leaguers, playing with the natives in a couple of countries. Now they're all over the hotlands, with name players plentiful in the Puerto Rican, Panama, Venezuelan, Colombian, Cuban and the Winter and Pacific Coast Leagues of Mexico.

The player plays four games a week for a price which in most cases resembles the pay he was getting for the same thing back home.

Is all this baseball good for the talent? Collins says the Philadelphia Nationals haven't decided.

"We won't know until around Labor Day, when we'll have had a chance to measure the performances of the winter leaguers in our organization," the tortilla authority replied.

"I believe winter ball is pretty good for pitchers. They work only a couple of games a week and I think a pitcher should keep those arm muscles in action during our off-season.

"But I wonder about infielders, outfielders and catchers, who are playing every game around the calendar. The effect on the regulars, I suspect, would be mostly mental. Along about August, in our leagues, I should think they'd be fed up with baseball. It would become a drudgery. The bat would get heavier every time it was swung.

"Most of the managers have had professional experience. In Mexico, they include Mel Almada, Clint Courtney, Adolph Luque and Hub Kittle, who is one of our farm managers.

"If a manager loses a couple in a row, he's liable to go the next day. The fans won't come out if the team is losing.

Mexico has six clubs," continued Collins, and he stumbled over entries like Ciudad Obregon, Mazatlan, Culiacan and Guadalajara. "It is by far the better of the two leagues there—the other is the remnants of the old Pasquel organization—and is well conducted. The parks are pretty good, will be better when an irrigation project is completed. Right now they can't grow grass because there wouldn't be water to keep it alive.

"Attendance for the better attractions is from 5,000 to 7,500. The clubs travel by plane. Accommodations are adequate, the food good. The umpires take a lot of abuse from the fans.

"Each club is allowed five imports. The others are natives, many of whom play in American Leagues. The natives mostly are small, feature bunting, at which they are expert."

Eddie Collins, Jr., was not nearly so impressed with the Colombian League, which has four teams—Torices, Willard, Vanytor and Indios. He sensed a feeling of resentment by the natives against American players, feels that it could become a problem.

Another objection to Colombia is the weather. It's no hotter than Mexico, but the humidity is much greater, a drain on the players.

It's easier to play in Mexico's dry climate.

W. McCarrell Tops

Winnie McCarrell led ladies in Mercantile Bowling League this week with a 271 single and 602 threesome. Bert Gordonier topped men with 260 and a trio of 639. Neill's topped teams with 2887.

A & P No. 1 whitewashed Cal Nicholls' team 4-0, while Neill's did the same to Prudential, and Austin's applied the brush to Crowe's. The 3-1 victories were by A & P No. 2 over Glen Baker's, and East City over Coffee Shop. This is the first bowling in the loop since the start of the new year.

Trabert And Hoad To Meet In Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (CP)—Tony Trabert of the United States and Australia's Lewis Hoad, whose epic singles clash helped decide the Davis Cup tennis final which Australia won in December, will meet again in the finals of the South Australia tournament.

Hoad put on a great rally today to beat the defending titleholder, Rex Hartwig, his cup team-mate, 4-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2 in one semi-final while Trabert beat Aussie Davis Cupper Ken Rosewall 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Hoad and Trabert meet in the finals Saturday.

Theatrical Company Opens Own Theatre

TORONTO (CP)—The first professional stock company established in its own theatre in Toronto in more than two decades held its opening performance Tuesday night.

The Murray and Donald Davis company presented Gordon Daviot's Richard of Bordeaux at the Crest Theatre, a former movie house which seats 835. Opening night was sponsored by the Toronto Women's Press Club.

Herbert Whittaker, theatre critic of The Globe and Mail, said "the company lived up to its claims of professionalism. Time and Time again, the acting hit the proud peaks of fine performance."

F. Kokesh Leader

In the Wednesday afternoon lasses' bowling loop, F. Kokesh led in triples with 743 made up of 226-272-240, as Dot Boon rolled best single of 296 in a 616 trio. H. Mesley had 227 and 222 in 644. Rockets had a 2792 triple for teams and 1018 single. Little Hope Held Miner Found Alive

RAVENSDALE, Wash. (AP)—Cascading coal freed by a mine cave-in swept one miner from sight 400 feet below the surface here Wednesday and trapped another for nearly four hours until he was rescued.

Rescue workers still are digging for Harry English, 39, of nearby Black Diamond. Little hope is held that he will be found alive when the coal chute down which he disappeared is cleared of 35 feet of coal and broken timbers.

Roy Coutts, 25, working companion of English, was found after two hours, pinned by a rock which rested on his left leg and right arm. His head was covered with coal, but he could breathe.

Kaietur, 741-foot waterfall in British Guiana, is among the world's highest falls.

Havelock Down Campbellford 9-8

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Cambellford TVL team lost a close game to Havelock in the local arena on Wednesday night, when the opening game of the season on home ice drew a crowd of close to 500 fans. The final score of 9-8 for Havelock fairly well indicated the play.

Doris stood out for the visitors, scoring four of the nine goals, and his team-mate, Mason, ran him a close second with [illegible] Eady got three, Kemp two and Herrington, Wilson and Simpson one each. C's got six of the eight penalties.

Campbellford—Goal, Payne; defence, Free and Baker; centre, Blake; wings, Herrington and Cole; alternates, Eady, Kemp, Wilson, Pace, Jeffs, Fields, Simpson and Garvey.

Maroons Trip Dutchmen In 5-3 Senior Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lowly Chatham Maroons Wednesday night followed the difficult trail blazed Tuesday night by Stratford Indians to break their fifth-place tie with Indians in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group.

Maroons defeated league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3. Indians edged into a 29-point tie with Maroons Tuesday with a 3-1 win over the pace-setters.

The defeat for Kitchener, and a 5-4 victory for Owen Sound Mercurys over cellar-dwelling Niagara Falls Cataracts, left the Dutchmen just two points ahead of Mercurys. Owen Sound previously was tied with the idle Hamilton Tigers for second spot.

The Maroons scored three goals in the third period after entering the session tied with the Dutchmen 2-2.

Jim Connelly scored twice in the final session for Maroons. Other Chatham goals were scored by Bill Lee, Joe Caryeth and Palmer.

Kitchener scorers were Ken Laufman, Don Rope and Howie Lee.

TAKES EARLY LEAD

Mercurys held a 3-0 lead early in the second period before Cataracts threatened with two goals. Owen Sound scored again in the second and outscored Niagara Falls 2-1 in the final period.

Mercury scorers were Buck Forslund, Gerry Reid, Herbie Carnegie, Elwyn Morris and Bill McCombe.

Eric Unger scored three for Cataracts and assisted on the other marker by Jack Hill.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association southern group, Sudbury Wolves defeated Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 3-2.

Friday Windsor is at Chatham, Stratford at Hamilton Tigers and Owen Sound at Niagara Falls.

Dog Tags For Ducks Latest U.S. Wrinkle

SEATTLE (AP)—The Washington state game department has popped up with a new wrinkle—dog tags for ducks.

It's sort of a licensing arrangement for critters used in training gun dogs during the closed seasons. Pheasants and any animals used in the training are included in the licensing arrangement.

Any nimrod who wants to train his pooch during the off season on live quarry will have to get metal tags to hang on the bird or beast he is loosing for the pursuit.

Patterson Hits 356

J. atterson had high single of 356 and J. Barnes top three of 818 this week in the Major Bowling Leauge. Team top pinnage went to Clapper's with 3449 as E & B led in singles with 1271. The 7-0 wins went to Lock, Godson and Patterson over Revenoors, Silents and Boucher. The 5-2 victories were taken by Clapper's, UE, Edward's Sea Horses, Crowley, E. & B, Bartley and Hewitt against Plaza, D & W, McLeod, Burtol, Sherbrooke, Selkirk, Wonder and Clements. The Paramounts won 4-3 from Curtis.

Good scores were: C. Reynolds (300) 728, M. Caccavella 715, Schweir a 302 single, J. Platt 761, L. Murray a 312 single, J. Pasquino (311) 702, W. Miller 712, C. Clarke 704, G. Walton (326) 722, M. Doris 713, A Stevens 784, J. Latchford 708, J. Patterson 746, B. Allan 731, Wilson (306) 763 and singles of M. Mackay 326, T. Elliott 316, E. Downer 315 and J. Barnes 306.

P Of W Boys Win

Prince of Wales defeated Central 4-3 in a school hockey game. Central's goals were by Val Armstrong, McInroy and Aulbrook. For the winners, Coombes got two, with Robinson and Allen counting one each. Both goalies turned in a neat effort. Vilneff was given two hooking penalties in a clean tilt.

Prince of Wales — Goal, Marshall; defence, Robinson, Conners; centre, Shaw; wings, Coombes, Jay; alternates, Wren, Finney, McIntosh, Dunstan, Barker.

Central — Goal, Drinkwater; defence, Duncan, Vilneff; centre, McInroy; wings, Sorrie, V. Armstrong; alternates, Aulbrook, Frizzelle, Chalmers, Harrington, Gray, T. Armstrong.

Don't Hurry Buying Girdle

By ALICIA HART

The most neglected items in many women's wardrobes are their foundation garments.

Yet, when chosen with care and cared for, they will return excellent service. They will be comfortable as they work wonders with your figure.

Look to yourself if your garments do not wear well and feel like torture chambers. Do you take time to be properly fitted? Do you buy two at a time so that frequent rests and sudsings can prolong their lives?

And have you found a conscientious corsetiére whose advice you can rely on? She can help you to make the right selection, provided you allow her sufficient time to do her job.

For example, when trying on a girdle, one should walk in it and sit in it to determine the fit. Bend over to see whether it pulls in too much at the waistline. Nausea is not the price to pay for waist-trimming.

You will find that you will get most satisfaction if you build up a foundation wardrobe. This might consist of two sturdy girdles or all-in-one's for every day, one or two lighter ones for sports and a more fragile garment for dress wear.

And before making your purchase, try your clothes on over the new undergarments. This is especially helpful when you are undecided about several garments. How you look fully clad is the final criterion.

CORONATION SCHOOL

Coronation Home and School Association met Monday evening, with Mrs. W. Amos presiding. "Thoughts for the New Year" was the theme of devotions taken by Mrs. B. Neeley.

A pupils' oratory contest will feature the February meeting, along with founder's night. Plans were made for a rummage sale to be held in the near future. Mrs. Neeley, parent education convener, made announcement of the new CBC broadcast series, "The Way of a Parent," starting January 13.

Mr. E. King's intermediate grades won the attendance prize.

It was "audio visual aids night" and the following films were shown, with Mr. M. Northey operating the projector: "The Four Seasons," showing life in Gatineau Park near Ottawa in technicolor; "Trappers of the Sea," showing lobster fishing on the Nova Scotia coast; "North to Hudson's Bay," a trip from Winnipeg to Fort Churchill.

A social half-hour followed, with lunch served by Mrs. J. Trennum and her assistants.

✧ ✧ ✧

GROVE SCHOOL

Grove Home and School Association had as speaker at the meeting Tuesday evening Mr. Norman Armstrong, chairman of the annual Kiwanis Music Festival. He was telling the mechanical highlights of the festival, first explaining that preparation of the syllabus for the spring festival starts the previous June.

He stated that a great deal is gained by the contestants by having an adjudicator from England where music festivals are a tradition. He also remarked "music is the only international language, and a child should learn music appreciation early in life." He also stressed an important fact "that performance at such festivals teaches the young people to be able to appear in public."

Children who intend to participate in the forthcoming festival entertained with piano numbers, Joan and Margaret Whitfield playing a duet and Margaret Shoemaker and Karen Keen solos.

The speaker and the girls were all thanked by Miss Eleanor Glover.

Mrs. S. Whitfield conducted a business period which was preceded by a devotional service in which Mrs. R. Barker read the 121st Psalm and thoughts for the new year.

Health convener Mrs. N. C. Smith announced the Home and School Council's special health night on Wednesday, January 20th, at the YWCA. Mrs. N. Hadley was introduced as the sunshine convener. The next executive meeting was announced for January 11th at the home of vice president Mr. J. Holt.

Miss Galway's junior class won the attendance prize of $2.

The social hour was under convenership of Mrs. H. Harris and Mrs. C. Bevan with Mrs. R. Johnston, Mrs. K. Johnston, Mrs. J. Simmons and Mrs. C. Barnes assisting.

WMS Officers Installed At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Rev. H. C. Wolfraim presided for the installation service for new officers of the United Church Women's Missionary Society at the annual meeting held Tuesday at the parsonage.

The following is the slate of officers: past president, Mrs. P. H. Darling; president, Mrs. H. J. Brown; vice-presidents, Mrs. Earl Orr, Mrs. Russell Bullock, Mrs. Hilliard McCracken; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. F. Blake; recording, Miss Ora Dunford; treasurer, Mrs. Bruce Charlton; roll call secretary, Mrs. Herbert Kemp; literature secretary, Miss Ora Dunford; Christian stewardship, Mrs. P. H. Darling, Mrs. W. W. Yale and Mrs. J. H. Sherin; associate helpers, Mrs C. S. Tanner, Mrs E. J. Millage; community friendship, Mrs. Ed Dunford, Mrs. Elmer Northey; temperance and citizenship, Mrs. Elmer Milburn, Miss Margaret Milburn; supply secretary, Mrs. Frank Darling, Mrs. Percy Spence; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. E. J. Millage; pianist, Mrs. M. Kennedy; press, Mrs. Orr; representative to official board, Mrs. W. W. Leonard and Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Yale was in charge of the devotional period which opened with a call to worship. She also led in prayer and gave an appropriate New Year's message. Mrs. Bruce Charlton led in prayer and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. Kemp. Solos were sung by Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. M. Deck who were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Kennedy.

The president, Mrs. Brown, presided for the business period in which the treasurer reported that $496.70 had already been sent to the presbyterial.

Miss Dunford and Mrs. Orr were appointed delegates to the presbyterial rally of the WMS to be held in Mark Street church, Peterborough, January 25.

Mrs. Yale read a letter of thanks from Miss Irene Moore, a missionary in a leper colong located on an island near Hong Kong, for the bale sent from the Lakefield WMS which had arrived in plenty of time for Christmas.

A period of silent prayer and meditation was held in memory of the late Mrs. William J. Charlton, a valued member of the society, who passed away recently. The president recalled Mrs. Charlton's interest at all times in the missionary work of the church, and of the loss suffered in her passing.

A chapter, "The Four R's in Europe" from the study book, "Where'er The Sun," by Samuel Moffett was taken by the president.

Assisting Mrs. Wolfraim in serving tea were Mrs. Millage and Mrs. Darling. Mrs. Spence moved a vote of thanks to the hostess and those who had assisted with the program.

How To Patch Broken Nails

By ALICIA HART

Just when you want so badly to be perfectly gromed, it will happen: A run will pop, a pimple will blossom or a nail will break. One would think these little disasters could sense a party coming.

Should a broken nail threaten your party poise, teen-agers, you can make it appear as good as whole. You can find kits for this purpose at drug stores and cosmetic counters.

All you need do is remove a piece of the tissue that is provided with the solution and tuck it under the break with an orangewood stick. Tear the tissue from the booklet since a ragged torn edge is less apparent than a cleanly cut one.

A second patch will reinforce a particularly bad break.

After the patch has dried thoroughly, apply a base coat and then your polish. By applying your base coat freely, you help to make the patch waterproof.

The tissue and solution can also be used to reinforce a fragile nail that threatens to break. For this condition, tear off a wedge-shaped piece of tissue, and trim the wide end to correspond with the tip of the nail. Saturate with solution and lay it flat on the nail. Have rounded end extended about an eighth of an inch beyond nail edge. Smooth with moistened finger tip.

Now turn your finger over and apply solution to expose edges of tissue. Turn tissue inward over nail edge with orangewood stick that has been dipped in remover. Press firmly to inner surface of nail.

Asks Co-Operation

President Mrs. F. Guilfoyle in her address to the members of St. Peter's Sub-division of the Catholic Women's League, meeting in the social centre Tuesday evening, asked for more co-operation from the councillors, many of whom do not attend meetings and leave too great a burden on the executive. Reports o. the extensive Christmas work of the welfare committee were heard. Ways and means of improving the financial situation, lowered by this work, were discussed after a reading of the financial statement. It was decided to have a lecture on landscaping and gardening at the next meeting, with a social hour to follow. The monthly gift of a very pretty piece of china was won by Mrs. J. E. Burke. A rummage sale is to be held in the immediate future.

Roll call was answered by gems on the New Year. Mrs. E. Shaw, Christian stewardship secretary, gave a paper. Mrs. P. Hetherington was appointed temperance secretary. Mrs. A. Fitzgerald invited the ladies to her home for the February meeting. Following business there was a happy event in the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Horton who has given the group six years of capable leadership. Mrs. Parnell spoke of the work and fellowship that had been enjoyed during this period and Mrs. D. [illegible] made the presentation. "Blest be the tie that binds" was sung to close the meeting. Dainty refreshments were then served by Mrs. McGee and helpers and a social time was enjoyed.

Reid, Mrs. K. Kidd, Mrs. C. McIvor, Mrs. D. Simpson, Mrs. E. Manley; sewing convenor, Mrs. Mac Gordon; assistant, Mrs. V. Calling; Baby Band supt., Mrs. D. Dorsett; press secretary, Mrs. S. Laing; librarian, Mrs. D. Miller; card convener, Mrs. J. Dougherty.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. Reid and her group. Feature of the evening was a variety cooking school arranged and presented by Mrs. H. Parnell. Cake mixes, Ovaltine and a booklet of kitchen secrets were given by local offices. Lunch was served at the close by Mrs. W. Parnell, Mrs. Lloyd Rowland, Mrs. R. Russell, Mrs. H. Payne, Mrs. J. Wilson, Mrs. W. Lawson and Mrs. E. Reid.

Timely Talk Given WA

The Woman's Association of St. James' United Church met Tuesday afternoon in Wesley Hall, with Mrs. Henry Turner presiding.

Mrs. Newton Brown gave an inspirational and timely talk on "Our calendar for the New Year", naming the resolutions for members as an association to bring into the organization— work, fun, rest, patience, prayer, love, sense of humour, play, faith, etc. Reports were given by the secretaries, treasurer, and various superintendents, showing that a very successful year had been accomplished. Arrangements were made to have a showing of films and a lecture on landscaping and gardens February 3rd. The executive for 1954 was installed by the Rev. Lloyd Shorten, as follows: President, Mrs. Henry Turner; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Gordon Pearson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. N. Monks; recording secretary, Mrs. H. Tamblin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. Hewitt; financial secretary, Mrs. A. Saunders; treasurer, Mrs. R. Ritchie; parsonage, Mrs. A. Brumwell; local council representatives, Mrs. E. Rutherford, Mrs. A. Wagstaffe; sunshine convener, Mrs. G. E. Church; visiting committee, Mrs. A. Phillips, Mrs. Draper; devotional, Mrs. George Rowe; secretary for Training School Fund, Mrs. W. A. Prest; pianist, Mrs. R. Moynes. Nominating committee, Mrs. W. R. Moncrief.

THE DESIRE FOR THE NATURAL LOOK which has taken hold is prompting women to use a light hand in applying cosmetics. This girl (above) is using a new beauty technique to help her apply her make-up smoothly and softly. After putting on her eyebrow pencil (left), she feathers it with a tiny sponge. Then (centre) she applies rouge. For the final step, blotting the lipstick (right), she also uses a sponge, a small oblong one. By being sparing in use of the cosmetics and blending and smoothing carefully, she has achieved the coveted doll-face look. While this new technique takes practice, it's worth the effort.

Three Titled Young Women Make Mark In Television

By FERN RICH

LONDON (Reuters)—Three beautiful and brainy young women of title are known at the BBC television studios as "The Three B's"—Ladies Bartlett, Boyle and Barnett. They like to be called Mary, Kate and Isobel.

Lady Bartlett, granddaughter of Lily Langry, queen of Victorian London's music halls, is married to Sir Basil Bartlett, head of the television script department. Her grey - streaked brown hair and [illegible] interviewers as the Queen's face. Her job is announcing, both on radio and TV.

Newcomer to the titled-TV group is Lady Boyle, 26-year-old blonde viscountess-by-marriage and owner of an Italian title in her own right. She has been helping to keep herself in nylons as one of the four most successful models in London.

Lady Boyle is on the quiz panel of "The Name's the Same."

Lady Barnett, 35-year-old doctor, magistrate, writer, horsewoman, swimmer, mother and former lady mayoress of Leicester, has been acclaimed as "one of TV's notable discoveries of 1953."

OVERNIGHT SUCCESS

The star of another quiz show, "What's my Line?" she has scored more correct answers than anyone else. She became an overnight TV success after appearing on an unscripted "town forum" program because "they needed another woman." (Her husband, Sir Geoffrey, was knighted only last June in the Coronation honors list).

"I've only got about six different tops to wear with the same skirt," Lady Barnett said a few months ago, but since then her audience has seen a transformation. She has a new "choir boy" hairdo—hair very short and brushed towards the face—and wears gowns glamorous enough to outdazzle such beauties as sultry actress Patricia Medina who recently shared the cameras with her.

Ask Jewish Women To Attend Zionist Convention

In an appeal to the 15,000 members of the Hadassah Organization of Canada, Mrs. D. P. Gotlieb, National President, pointed out that the Hadassah is an integral part of the Zionist Organization of Canada and it is important that every Hadassah Chapter throughout the country be adequately represented at the forthcoming 32nd National Convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada, which opens its four-day sessions on Friday, January 22 at the Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal. The wider the representation, the more successful will be the deliberations.

"The Zionist Organization of Canada," said Mrs. Gotlieb, "is one of the few nation-wide movements where the women members have the privilege of formulating policy and of planning program for the years ahead. We can only take full advantage of that opportunity by attending the sessions, by entering in the discussions, and by allowing ourselves to be counted in large numbers."

Several hundred women from all parts of Canada are expected to participate in the deliberations which the attracting over 700 men.

Use A Light Touch For The Natural Look In Make-Up

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

All of us long to achieve a kind of doll-face beauty through cosmetics. While this desired look may seem difficult to attain at first, there is nothing more important. This is especially true this season when the utterly feminine look is in the fashion foreground.

The half-comic expression, "putting your face on," that many men employ may be a key to the make-up problem of some women. Cosmetics are not made to change faces, but to enhance them. Attempting the former requires a heavy application of cosmetics, and that can mean only a change for the worse.

The most we can expect from well-applied cosmetics is to accent our best features and to flatter our worst. What is needed is a light-handed approach. As with jewelry, a bit less rather than a bit more is a safe guide on the road to perfect taste in cosmetics.

For daytime wear, a light liquid foundation, matching powder, a little rouge, a touch of mascara and eyebrow pencil and lipstick are proper. Consult a cosmetician in a department store when selecting your next foundation and powder to be certain you are using the correct shade.

Eye make-up is important but it is often overdone. Unless you are well on the way to having a deft hand for application, it would be well to avoid eye shadow in the daytime at least. Be sparing in the use of mascara and remove the excess after it has dried. Use eyebrow pencil to fill in a sparse brow.

In order to achieve the light-handed touch, you need effective applicators. One of the cosmetic houses thinks it has a new solution to this problem in sponges. It has just put on the market a set of tiny sponges to accompany each step in make-up application. Using them, says the firm, you will sponge away that hard, artificial look and reveal the much-desired doll-face look.

The packet contains a large sponge, for applying foundation, that's said to allow even coverage as well as speed. A more porous sponge is included for powder. Patting on the powder with this sponge is supposed to eliminate the rubbing which causes wrinkling and enlarged pores.

There is also a small, oblong sponge which you can use to separate your lashes after applying mascara. Dabbing lightly with the same sponge after you have applied eyebrow pencil will help smooth the brow into a lovely, natural-looking line, according to the cosmetic house.

This house also believes that a sponge is ideal for blotting lipstick since, they claim, tissues may sometimes leave a tiny residue of lint.

Flattering Fake – Yarn Fur Cuffs And Ruffs

Supposing you can't have a black fox stole . . . or neckband and cuffs of mink. You can have yarn fur for your fashion accessories. In colors fur-bearing animals never dreamed of! Whoever saw pink mink, for instance, but pink yarn cuffs on a jersey blouse or tweed dress can be charming. Or a little yarn fur ruff to wear as a warm and becoming choker. Or a stole. Or a yarn boa in some heavenly pastel shade to border a bed jacket or a filmy negligee.

Besides being pretty, yarn fur washes beautifully. Use a mild soap or detergent with lukewarm water. Gently squeeze the suds through, as if you were washing a sweater. Rinse gently. But now you turn brutal! To remove moisture from your fake fur, slap the article hard against the inside of the bath tub! (Who'd ever dare slap a real mink around!) The harder you slap, the fluffier your accessories will be. But then turn gentle again and finish the drying away from heat.

It's a study in moods, isn't it?

Here are the direction for tufted cuffs:

DIRECTIONS FOR TUFTED CUFFS

MATERIALS: 1 4-oz. skein knitting worsted crochet hook, size G (or comparable size).

DIRECTIONS (foundation for cuff or neck ruff): Ch 55, turn sc in 6th stitch from end of chain. Ch 3, sc in 3rd stitch from last sc. Continue this pattern to end of chain. Ch 6, turn. Sc through loop made by 3 ch st on 1st row. Ch 3, and continue loop pattern for ten rows. Fasten and break yarn. This makes 10 rows of 17 loops each, which measures 10" by 2½", the approximate size for cuffs or a neckpiece.

FUR: Cut 4 strands of yarn by winding around 2 in. cardboard and cutting through one end. Loop two strands of yarn at a time over foundation loop and pull ends through, as for tassel. Make three tassels to each foundation loop and one in each sc. When entire area is covered, trim yarn ends to even length. For tighter tufting, use 2 instead of 3 cs for foundation loops, and extra yarn tassels. For larger pieces, make larger foundation.

Mrs. William Tinker of 266 Burnham Street has received word from England of the deaths of her brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph Tinker, OBE, of Monkseaton, Northumberland, and of her niece, Mrs. Robert Whittaker of Timperly, Cheshire.

Most homemakers have closets and drawers cluttered with never-used clothing. Such items can be put to good use if sent to some authorized relief agency.

Install Branch 452 Slate Of Officers

Installation of the 1954 slate of officers of Elizabeth Smellie Branch 452, Canadian Legion, took place at the Legion Hall Monday evening with Zone Commander M. Hamblin of Norwood and Branch 52 president, Lou Durkin, officiating.

The re-elected president is Miss Barbara Waters; vice-presidents are: Mrs. D. Grady (re-elected) and Mrs. K. King; treasurer, Miss Nan Duncan (re-elected); corresponding secretary, Miss Irma Allen; recording secretary, Miss Betty Shields.

Committee chairmen are as follows: Publicity, Mrs. H. Campbell; welfare, Mrs. B. Merrett and Mrs. J. Dech; telephone, Miss Helen McFarlane; sick and visiting, Miss Esther Might; entertainment, Miss Irene Vivash; refreshment, Mrs. K. King; standard bearer, Miss Helen McFarlane; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. L. Thornington; Christmas project, Miss Edna Rule; Bulletin editors, Miss Irma Allen and Mrs. H. Campbell; ways and means, executive committee; membership, Miss Grace Simpson.

Reports on last year's work were read by all chairmen and officers. Letters of thanks were received from the Children's Aid Society and St. Vincent's Orphanage for Christmas stockings sent the children. The Christmas project included packing and shipping Christmas stockings to a children's home in England.

Highlights of the year were the 100 per cent representation at Remembrance Day activities and the dinner at Mrs. King's home that evening, a picnic at Miss Allen's cottage at White lake, and the good prepresentation of members at zone and district meetitngs.

Following adjournment, lunch was served by Mrs. King and committee.

'38 Club Hears Of Stratford Festival

First meeting of the new year of the '38 Club, on Wednesday at the YWCA, was opened with an appropriate devotional period conducted by Miss Hazel Mutton, who was in charge of the evening's program.

She chose the hymn "O worship the King", a story titled "Conrad the Cobbler" and scripture from Matthew read by Miss Pearl Mullen, a poem "Is someone happier" read by Miss Muriel Ball, and closing prayer was offered by Miss Nellie Tinney.

Business, presided over by president Roma Brindle, included reading of amendments to the consitution, a report of the Members' Council meeting by Miss Tinney, and progress on preparing a scrap book for Miss Marion Foster.

It was reported that Miss Isabel McCamus is recovering satisfactorily from a recent operation and that Miss Leta Brownscombe, executive director of the Y, is now out of hospital.

Guest Mrs. W. J. Gilling, in speaking to the girls of the Shakespearian Festival at Stratford this past summer, said "the aim was not financial, but to encourage acting in Canada and to give Canadian actors and producers a chance they never had before." She outlined some of the behind-the-scene planning and preparation that went into the festival "that did more to put Canada and Stratford on the front page than anything for many years."

Mrs. Gilling mentioned names of actors familiar to her audience through the Peterborough Summer Theatre and described the terra cotta tent with blue lining and the unusual stage used for the two plays "Richard III" and "All's well that ends well." She concluded "This experiment proved that 'culture pays'."

A vote of thanks was extended the speaker by Miss Hazel Wilson. Refreshments were then served by Misses Ruby Leach, Alice Whitred and Jane McArthur.

Fashion Flashes

Fine detail adds distinction to a dress and makes it a prize. Black silk taffeta is used for a cocktail-dinner dress the fine fabric set off by all-over tucking in a zig-zag points and chevron design. Deep rounded neckline, short sleeves and very flared skirt complete a nice design.

✧ ✧ ✧

Filmy dresses for late afternoon into evening wear are doing well this season, especially those with street-length skirts. Chantilly type lace, with inserts of nylon tulle and velvet makes up into a handsome dress with deep, oval neckline and long sleeves. A wide band of tulle makes the lower part of the skirt.

Take A Giant Step In '54

Take a giant step toward foot comfort in 1954.

Make a firm resolution to stop complaining about your "aching feet" — and do something about them.

And this is one resolution that is easy to keep, because most of your foot trouble are the result of either the wrong type of shoe for your foot, or shoes that are poorly fitted or badly constructed. All you need do is exercise a little caution when buying shoes this year.

In the last couple of years, new leathers and new shoe designs have resulted in such a multitude of both comfortable and good looking leather shoes that you have no excuse for hobbling about in 1954.

Here are a few New Year's resolutions drawn up for you by an eminent foot doctor:

(1) Take a good look at your shoes. Do they fit properly, without cramping your toes or squeezing tender nerves and muscles, which can impede blood circulation? Do they fit snugly around the heel? Shoes that slide up and down will work blisters on your feet in short order.

(2) Exaxmine the material in your shoes. Make sure it's leather top and bottom. Leather uppers are sufficiently supple to "give" with your foot, at the same time that they provide adequate support. The resiliency of leather soles helps absorb the shocks and poundings on your daily rounds. And leather linings stay smooth and won't wrinkle and cause blisters.

(3) Have the right types of shoes in your wardrobe. If you have only high-heeled shoes, and wear them all day long, you are storing up trouble. Have at least one pair of low-heeled walking shoes— and there are plenty of pretty ones around. Alternate high and low-heeled shoes, so that your leg muscles are accustomed to both. Also, don't keep wearing the same pair of shoes day after day even if you're mad about them. They'll soon become uncomfortable— and, incidentally, it's poor economy. Shoes last much longer if you "rest" them between wearings.

Miss A. Williams Heads YW Council

Members' Council of the YWCA held the annual meeting, following supper in the Library on Wednesday evening. A devotional service was conducted by Mrs. A. Haldimand who read a New Year's poem.

Reports showed a busy year and the Y secretaries reported on activities of their departments, past and future. Nominating chairman Mrs. Marlow Banks presented the slate of officers for 1954, as follows:

President Miss Annie Williams, succeeding Miss Jean Hammond; vice-president, Miss Jean McIntyre; secretary, Miss Pauline O'Brien; treasurer, Miss Hazel Wilson; social conveners, Misses Helen Edmison and Ruby Leach and Mrs. Stan. McBride; telephone convener, Mrs. E. Killingbeck and Mrs. Banks; publicity, Mrs. L. V. Hele.

A vote of thanks was extended to Miss Hammond for her guidance and help as president during the past two years.

Plans were made to hold a card party on January 28th and the Spring Hat Tea on March 13th. Other arrangements were for the annual meeting of the Y on February 17th and for delegates to the regional conference at Kitchener February 26 to 28.

Women's Institutes Report On Organized Activities

TORONTO—Good neighboring has always been a practice of a Women's Institute — not only through such organized projects as working for hospital, children's shelters and old people's homes.

For instance, the Aylmer Institute started a fund to buy an artificial eye for a young immigrant. Allenwood sends home baking to families in time of bereavement. Alliston helped a New Canadian music teacher by giving her the use of their room, rent free, as a place to do her teaching. Another branch reports sending gifts to a woman "whose finances had been exhausted through illness."

Institutes express their neighborliness in sociability, too, especially with newcomers and strangers in the community.

Beehive Institute in North Wellington has done an interesting piece of work in conducting a cooking school for their new neighbors recently arrived from Holland. The Dutch women asked for this help in learning Canadian ways of cooking and they, themselves, organized the classes.

The Canadian institute women took turns in giving the courses according to their special abilities.

The secretary reports: "One of our members offered us the use of her very modern kitchen and the institute members paid all expenses. We had two classes of Dutch-Canadian ladies, one of women and one of girls. We taught them how to make tea biscuits, muffins, pies, tarts, cakes of all kinds and at their request we continued with lessons on meat and meat substitutes, potato and other vegetable dishes. Their progress and their enthusiasm were beyond description. We also sponsored a baking class at the fall fair especially for new Canadians. We gained much in the way of friendship through this project."

ABBREVIATED SHORTS take their place in the sun, this season in shining cotton satin. They're teamed with mandarin shirt in diamond-striped cotton.

Take A Check Of Winter Wardrobe

Now is the time for all good girls to come to the aid of their warbrobes.

Winter clothes serve most of us from October through March. To keep them in top condition and to keep ourselves from becoming thoroughly bored with tham along about February, it is a good idea to set aside a few hours for repairs, refreshing and refurbishing.

The morning of a windy day would be ideal for such a session. After selecting the clothes that need repairs, hang the others outdoors. Woollens particularly benefit from fresh air baths.

While doing your mending, you might consider new ways of accessorizing your outfit. Many women fall into a set accessorizing pattern; it eliminates the need to think while dressing.

By planning different clothes combinations you can give a big lift to a weary wardrobe without spending a penny. And that should give a lift to anyone's spirits.

And should your budget be in rather good shape, you can lend new excitement to your wardrobe by adding a really striking pair of gloves, a bit of jewelry or a scarf.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband's Visits to Children Make Second Wife Nervous

DEAR MISS DIX: I was a widow with an 8-year-old daughter, and had a fine job, when I met and married Paul, a widower with five children, four of whom were married in homes of their own. His youngest boy lived with us. He was 17 at the time, and was constantly disresepctful to me. We lived in Paul's old home, furnished as it was during his first marriage. His children came to see us every week, and I always [illegible] This [illegible] for me, as I had been accustomed to office work, coming home at night to find things done for me (my mother lived with my daughter and me). Things were all right until my husband began complaining of my daughter. Finally, it became too much for me, and I left, returning to my mother's home. I loved my husband, but wanted him to show me kindness and consideration. In time, however, he begged me to come back. His son had married, and I was promised a new home and furniture.

Now the trouble is that I go to pieces whenever his children visit us (which isn't often, any more), or when anyone mentions them, or their mother. I'm willing for him to visit his children, but think he should forget them when he's with me. I can't stand this constant aggravation. I feel that I've given up two jobs, friends, and family to live in a distant town with my husband and that the least he can do is to give up his children. I want to move away and begin all over; he won't agree.

ANSWER: The pages and pages of your letter that I have omitted indicate clearly an extremely distraught and nervous woman. In such a state you can scarcely be expected to see matters in proper prospective. I urge you to seek medieal and, if necessary, psychiatric help, as soon as possible.

The most dififcult marriage relationship is one involving children of previous unions. Only a man and woman of superior endowments can cope successfullly with such a complex situation. It takes intelligence, emotional stability, understanding, symyathy and love, together with implicit faith. Unfortunately, few people are so endowed. You have faced the added complication of tackling domestic details for which you had no aptitude.

You are entirely unreasonable in your reaction to Paul's attitude toward his children. No man of feeling can brush off his family as easily as you expect him to. You profess devotion to your own child, and expect your husband to ignore his offspring completely. It just isn't humanly possible. All the complications of your wedded life could have been met and conquered with the proper understanding. That you lacked it isn't entirely your fault. You just weren't endowed by nature with the necessary qualities. I am sure you can get straightened out with the help of a doctor and a minister. Do consult them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am engaged to a boy I have been dating for four years. He is a musician and has been asked to play at a night-club. I don't approvce of this, and told him if he took the job I'd break our engagement.

B. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A man can't always choose the conditions of a job, and if your beau has a career in music, by means of which he hopes one day to support you, I don't think you should be so dictatorial. There's nothing so horrifying about nightclubs in general; there are some to which you might reasonably object but, by and large, such clubs are just jobs to the waiters, musicians and other workers.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend, who had always been most loving and considerate, has changed suddenly. He now flirts with every girl he sees, dances with women to whom he hasn't even been introduced, and is very thoughtless so far as I am concerned. Is this an indication of being no longer in love, or a temporary maladjustment.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A young man in love is devoted and most anxious to please his beloved. Any other conduct usually can be counted as a loss of affection.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Personal Method To Trim Excess Pounds Taken On

Oh! So you at [illegible] much. When you stepped on the scales on January 2nd you found you had gained three pounds, and you were the gal that thought you were doing so well turning down so many choice morsels of fruit cake and cookies.

Better join me, my fat friends, and order a couple of dozen oranges and a thick steak and a dozen eggs and subsist on those for a while.

How do I know all about it? . . . you can have one guess. However, it was fun, but a woman sure pays . . . when she weighs.

This is my plan to trim off my excess three pounds.

BREAKFASTS

1. One large orange sectioned (not juiced for you do not get all the vitamins and roughage that way—nor sliced, for vitamins pop out when the cut surfaces are exposed to the air for even a few minutes); one-half slice unbuttered whole wheat toast under 1 small poached egg; 2 cups coffee with whole milk. (If you want your coffee sweet use sucaryl tablet.)

(2) Half grapefruit; 1 large sliced ripe banana with 2/3 cup corn flakes and whole milk on them. (If the banana is fully ripe it is sweet and you won't miss sugar.); 2 cups coffee with whole milk.

LUNCHES

(1) Two slices whole wheat bread unbuttered, but 1 slice spread with French mustard, the other thinly with mayonnaise—made into a sandwich with a thick slice of lettuce; 10-oz. glass skim or buttermilk. (That's all. At this point you will have to push back your chair with a determined air and leave the lunch table, for a cookie could be too tempting.)

(2) Salad of cottage cheese, 1 sliced tomato, ¼ cucumber and ¼ head lettuce, reducers' dressing. 1 slice whole wheat toast buttered sparingly; 10-oz. glass skim or buttermilk; 1 apple or orange.

DINNERS

(1) Four ounces baby beef liver (or calves' liver if you've any cash left) and 2 slices bacon—both broiled. (Brush the liver with a little of the bacon drippings, on both sides when you are turning it over and sprinkle with salt and pepper.); ¾ cup each cooked green beans and diced carrots; 1 cup tossed green salad with minimum amount of dressing or a little more reducers' dressing; 2 table figs OR 1 orange; 1 cup coffee.

(2) One 4-oz. serving lean broiled steak or chopped beef cake; 1 small baked potato (eat the skin too and use ½ pat butter on it); 6 oz. quick-cooked spinach with lemon and salt; fruit cup of fresh fruit and no sugar (but if you must have it a little sweeter dissolve 1 sucaryl tablet in 1 tablespoon hot water and add); tea with lemon or coffe with whole milk.

✧ ✧ ✧

If all of this watchful eating seems to austere for you I have a recipe for you for a frozen dessert that is very low in calories.

LOW-CALORIE ICE CREAM

One and one-half cups skim milk, 24 sucaryl tablets, 2 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 teaspoons vanilla, shake of salt. Scald the milk with the sucaryl tablets over boiling water. Beat the egg yolks, and slowly stir scalded milk into them. Soak the gelatin in the vanilla and 2 teaspoons cold water, then stir this into the hot milk and egg mixture. Cool. Add salt. Pour into freezing tray and freeze firm. Remove from tray to chilled bowl. Break up with wooden spoon then beat with rotary or electric beater until free from lumps but not melted. Fold in egg whites wich have been beaten until stiff. Return to freezing tray and freeze firm.

LOW-CALORIE COCOA

Soak 6 sucaryl tablets in 2 tablespoons milk until dissolved. Mix together 2 (or 3 if you like it strong) tablespoons cocoa, shake of salt, ½ cup water until smooth, then add sucaryl dissolved in milk. Heat in double boiler 2⅞ cups skim milk, and then when scalding hot stir in the cocoa mixture, cover and heat through.

BED WETTING -STOPPED-

DEVELOPED BY A DOCTOR
APPROVED BY MANY DOCTORS

Bed wetting in children over 4 results in many serious problems which may affect the child's whole future life.

At last science has developed a safe, fast, simple solution to this problem—The Enurtone Method.

The Enurtone Method has been described in Redbook Magazine by Dr. E. T. Wilkes and was also described in one of the leading medical journals, devoted exclusively to children's problems, the Journal of Pediatrics.

Look what one of our satisfied clients says about the Enurtone Method: "We still cannot get used to the miracle of having Paul get out of bed during the night to go to the bathroom. He is so happy, too, about it all."

Mrs. J. F. G.

For full information and details on the proven Enurtone Method, simply mail in the attached coupon. There's no charge or obligation or embarrassment to either child or family. Do it today and end the bed wetting problem for good.

6—In Memoriam

CURRAN—In loving memory of my dear dad, William Curran, who passed away January 7th, 1953, at Winnipeg.
You're not forgotten dear dad,
Nor ever will you be,
As long as life and memory lasts
We will remember thee.
—Ever remembered by daughter Mina and family.

HOOK—In memory of a dear husband and father, Harold A. Hook, who passed away January 7th, 1952.
In the morning we remember, and when night comes we do not forget.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

SCOTT—In loving memory of John Henry Scott, who passed away January 6, 1951.
Those who we love go out of sight
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they left behind.
—Ever remembered by Doris, Eric, Scott, Robin and Peter Little.

7—Card of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. John H. Scott wish to thank their many friends and relatives, the attending doctor, the Women's Association, Women's Institute, for the lovely floral tributes and expressions of sympathy. Also Rev. R. G. Newman, the choir leader and choir of Trent River United church for consoling words in scripture and in song during the loss of our beloved mother and auntie.—Mr. and Mrs. Eric Little, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. MISSING?—When Marilyn Monroe did not report for work at her studio on Monday the rumour spread rapidly that she had eloped with Joe DiMaggio, the former New York Yankee baseball player, who has generally been regarded as her boy friend since this photograph was taken early in 1952. Mr. DiMaggio has been located in San Francisco, but Miss Monroe has not been seen, although he says she is in the city visiting friends.

President Asks Seaway Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower today urged Congress to give prompt approval to U.S. participation with Canada in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

Eisenhower, in his state of the union message outlining proposed legislation for the new session of Congress, said "our continental transport system" is a part of the foundation of a sound defence program.

"Some of our vital heavy materials come increasingly from Canada. Indeed our relations with Canada, happily always close, involve more and more the unbreakable ties of strategic interdependence. Both nations now need the St. Lawrence seaway for security as well as for economic reasons. I urge the Congress promptly to approve our participation in its construction."

Canada has announced plans to go ahead alone with construction of the seaway if the U.S. does not decide to join in the project. The seaway, on which construction is expected to begin this year, will provide access to the Great Lakes for ocean shipping.

Clipsham Stone Supply Short

CLIPSHAM, Rutland, England (CP)—British builders have been shocked by news that supplies of Clipsham stone, used extensively in the restoration of many famous buildings including Buckingham Palace, have run out.

The announcement comes as a disappointment to contractors who had hoped that opening of a new quarry 10 months ago would safeguard supply of the fine, soft, grey stone for at least 50 years.

Clipsham stone, considered among the best of all British building stones, has been quarried here for centuries. It has been used on Buckingham Palace, the restored House of Commons, buildings at Oxford and Cambridge and on Canterbury and Sglisbury cathedrals.

Many tests were made on Clipsham stone, particularly under London conditions, and it was found to be one of the best weathering stones available.

Now DO J. Davenport-Handley, owner of the Clipsham Quarry Company, announces that the new site, dubbed the Coronation quarry, will be closed because it is unworkable. He said the company cleared away 40 feet of clay and found that the stone had been shaken to pieces, presumably by ancient volcanic action.

KHAKI IS A BIG PART of the cotton story, for resorts now and for summer to come. It's a lighter weigt than the army cotton twill and has been sharpened up by combination with black or white. Chino cloth, the actual army twill in khaki color, is used by Nelly de Grab for tailored shirt and slim pants (left). Light-weight khaki goes (centre) into Haymaker's date separates that are embroidered in white. Carolyn Schnurer uses light-weight khaki twill striped in white for coat (right) that's a double-duty design. This can be worn as coat or dress, can go over bathing suits to and from the beach.

Royal Train Delayed Twice On Trip

PALMERSTON NORTH, N. Z. (CP) — The royal train carrying the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh on a "whistle stop" tour of the New Zealand hinterland was delayed twice today — but both times it was all in the interests of safety.

A stop signal on the single-track narrow-gauge line became jammed and the train stood for several minutes until the green light flashed.

Another delay occurred when the engineer dropped the "staff" — symbol of his rights over other trains — from the cab. The train was held up for several minutes as the red-faced engineer and train crew members combed the ballast for the two-foot-long leather-covered stick.

One of the crew members today was W. I. Inglis, who was a trainman on the ill-fated Wellington-Auckland express which plunged into a river Christmas Eve in New Zealand's worst rail disaster. The wreck, the night after the royal couple's arrival in the dominion, brought death to 136 persons.

ROYALTY NOT ANNOYED

The queen and the duke didn't appear annoyed at today's delays. They smiled and waved frequently at the crowds which gathered beside the track on both occasions.

Thousands of cheering villagers lined the track as the royal train cut across the countryside, followed by cars racing along parallel highways. Movie cameras whirred and spectators shouted welcomes as they sighted the royal couple on the rear platform of the red-and-white train.

Troops lined the track to hold back crowds in heavily-settled areas. But nothing stopped four cars from racing beside the train for miles after the railroad journey began at Hastings. Passengers leaned from the careening vehicles to keep their cameras trained on the royal targets.

STAGE-FRIGHT

Official planning received another setback at the civic welcome here, where the royal couple stopped to spend the night.

After a flurry of speeches, the mayor's grand-daughter, six-year-old Robyn Tremaine, marched up to the bandstand to present a bouquet to the Queen.

Robyn got to the top of the steps, curtsied and stayed there, six feet from the Queen.

After a moment the Queen stepped forward and took the bouquet from the stage-frightened youngster with a smile.

Seasonal Lay-offs Increase At Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — Seasonal lay-offs in the rubber footwear industry here have increased the unemployment total.

The national employment advisory committee was told today that 2,004 men and 1,400 women applicants could not be placed in jobs.

A year ago 1,652 men and 1,370 women were looking for jobs here.

5 Mines Begin Negotiations In Gold Strike

TIMMINS (CP) — Negotiations aimed at ending the strike of northern Ontario gold miners are in progress in five of seven strikebound mines in the Timmins area, an official of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said Wednesday.

The union in separate meetings Wednesday met officials of the Coniaurum and Delnite mines. There was no comment on the progress of the talks.

A union official said further meetings are scheduled although no dates have been set.

Talks start Monday at Aunor mine and arrangements have also been made between the union and Hallnor mine although no date has yet been set for the meeting.

BEGIN AT WEEKEND

Negotiations were begun last weekend between McIntyre mines and the union. Further talks have Tuesday.

Eight gold mines originally were on strike. So far settlement has been reached only at the Hollinger gold mine, where 1,500 men now are back at work after being on strike 3½ months.

It was hoped the Hollinger settlement would provide a pattern for settlement of disputes at the other Timmins area mines. The 18-month agreement provided an hourly increase of five cents but did not include the union-demanded checkoff.

Gold mines that still have not opened negotiations with the union are Preston East Dome and Broulan Reef.

Killed By Logs

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A local man, Oscar Berger, 29, was killed Wednesday night in a bush camp at Caramat 125 miles east of the Lakehead under a fall of logs. He was an employee of the Marathon Paper Company which operates the bush camp and was loading logs at the time of the accident. His wife resides in Port Arthur.

Toronto Roads High On Accident List

TORONTO — Three main traffic routes now within the metropolitan roads system are among the worst in Ontario for accidents.

On top of the list is Bloor St. with a ratio of 41 traffic accidents per mile per year. Close behind Bloor St. are Spadina Ave., with 38 per mile and Bathurst St. with 37.

A tabulation prepared by the city traffic department in conjunction with the city police department revealed the traffic hazard on these three routes.

The volume of traffic along these three metropolitan routes is extremely heavy during the morning and evening rush hours.

As an example, a traffic count in 1952, showed that an average of 1,039 autos an hour passed along Bloor St. during the morning rush downtown. On a six-lane expressway in the U.S. the average count is 5,000 autos hourly.

On Bathurst St. 930 autos passed a given point during the morning rush hour. On Spadina Ave. the count was 840.

A 1953 survey by the traffic department revealed that the worst intersection in the metropolitan area was Parkside Dr. and Lake Shore Rd.

This intersection compiled a record of 44 accidents. Next in line was Davenport and Yonge St. with 26 accidents. In 1953 there were 12 intersections with a record of 20 or more accidents.

Liberalized Trade Program Expected

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says in a Washington dispatch today that extension of a liberalized reciprocal trade program for at least 10 years is expected to be recommended to the United States Congress about Jan. 16.

The 17-member Randall commission on foreign economic policy is slated to complete its report at sessions Saturday and Monday.

The report would give the president power to reduce tariffs as much as 15 per cent below present statutory limits and otherwise strengthen the government's authority to promote freer world trade.

Recruiting Officer Ruled Too Zealous

LONDON, (Reuters) — British army spokesmen today admitted that a recruiting officer went too far when he tried to lure young engineering trainees away from careers in industry.

They said all further letters prepared for distribution by Lt.-Col. C. E. Adie have been stopped since the British Employers Confederation protested bitterly against an invasion of their territory. The zealous recruiting officer "rather exceeded his brief," the war office said.

The industrialists put it somewhat more strongly. They said the recruiting letters were "absolutely disgraceful" and "obviously written by someone wedded to the army and nothing else."

Dr. John C. Green

Funeral services for Dr. John C. Green, 528 Gilmour St., veteran of two world wars and a practising dentist in the city for many years, was held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church officiated and burial was in Little Lake cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives attended the service.

Pallbearers were Frank Jobbitt, Searl Haskell, Dr. M. J. McCartney, Charles M. Harrison of Port Hope, Gilbert E. Putnam of Buttonville and Dr. O. VanLuven of Kingston.

NATIVE POPULATION

Full-blooded Australian aboriginals were estimated in June, 1947, to number 46,600.

Khaki Finding New Use In Clothes For Holidays

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA)—Liking the texture and silky sheen of khaki, designers are making it an important part of the cotton story for resort wear.

This famed army cloth, noted for ability to hold its shape and stand up to laundering, got its fashion start with college girls. They started wearing pants and shirts of this Chino cotton twill because they liked the way it retains its lustre.

Though the college girls wore it only for leisure and play, designers now are taking it everywhere, even into the ballroom. Pierre Balmain has done a white khaki ballgown. Jane Derby has designed britches with a torso top. From Carolyn Schnurer, there's a bathing suit and a lace-trimmed khaki top worn with striped khaki shorts. Jonathan Logan has a striped khaki camisole and skirt.

But that's not all. Designers are using khaki in a new light weight that's crisp and fine to the touch—a fabric that drapes well. They retain the regulation army weight for pants and tailored shirts.

Khaki comes not only in the regulation suntan, but in bold and narrow stripes (suntan, black and white), pink, blue and white.

Base Built To Repel Invasion Now Centre Of Oil Operations

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — Oil, not war, has brought Australians together again on the coast of Western Australia where once they prepared for a Japanese invasion that never took place.

Few people know that the Exmouth gulf region, 700 miles north of Perth, where a huge reservoir of oil was discovered last month, 11 years ago was a base against a Japanese threat from across the Timor sea.

In 1942 it was discovered that the Japanese had assembled hundreds of landing barges in the island of Timor. They were believed to be planning a landing on the northwest coast of Australia.

Rear Admiral Charles Lockwood, Jr., of the U.S. Navy, was given command of a naval task force, including an American submarine group, based in Western Australia. Coastal surveys had disclosed that Exmouth gulf provided an ideal spot for a submarine base for observation against a threatened invasion. Admiral Lockwood is credited with the phrase: "I guess we'll take a potshot at it and see how it turns out."

The plan was thereupon dubbed "Operation Potshot" and within a few weeks a base known as Yankeetown sprang up in the desolate, sandy scrub of the gulf. There were huts, a jetty, oil tanks for refuelling the submarines, an airstrip nearby and anti-aircraft guns for air protection. Later came coastal guns and a radar station.

Australians controlled the anti-aircraft defences, radar and air force. Americans the submarines.

Yankeetown mushroomed into a military community of more than 1,000 men, but it was never called upon to combat an invasion. It was attacked once by a lone Japanese bomber which was driven off and early in 1944 the troops were withdrawn.

In 1945 a tidal wave swept away what was left of Yankeetown.

Even the name failed to survive, but another name, that of a squadron leader who operated from one of the two airstrips built by the Royal Australian Air Force, still clings to the area. This is the name Learmonth, which is practically the only address Australians know for the new oil field.

Order Roomer Sent To Mental Hospital

OTTAWA (CP)—Sylvio Potvin, 48, who slashed his landlady nine times with a knife last Dec. 9, today was ordered transferred to the Ontario Mental Hospital at Brockville.

Deputy magistrate Joachim Sauve ordered the transfer, and agreed to the withdrawal of a charge of wounding, at the request of the crown.

The landlady, Mrs. Yvonne St. Amour, has recovered.

Heart Surgery Gives Dying Woman Chance To Lead Normal Life

NEW YORK (CP)—An Ontario woman who was told by her doctor in November that she had only a few months to live now is healthy and looking forward to her discharge from hospital here.

Mrs. Phoebe Park, a 54-year-old psychiatric nurse from Woodstock, Ont., suffered acutely from Angina pectoris, a serious heart ailment. She collapsed on the street one day in November while [illegible] from work at Ontario Hospital in Woodstock and was carried home by police.

"From my own knowledge of medicine, I knew I would not live through December," she recalled. "Then one day I bought a .... magazine which described successful heart surgery being performed in New York, and at last, I had a ray of hope."

The article described the "talcum powder" heart operation perfected by Dr. Samuel A. Thompson of Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospitals. It explained that angina was caused by a deficient flow of blood into the heart.

STIMULATES BLOOD FLOW

Thompson inserts powder silica into the heart sac. The powder clings to the walls of the sac, causing irritation which stimulated the flow of blood.

[illegible] Dr. Thompson and told him I'd been fighting for two years to stay alive, but that I couldn't fight much longer."

Thompson said he knew of no Canadian doctor performing the operation but agreed to perform it on Mrs. Park if she would come to New York.

Three days after Mrs. Park arrived in New York, Thompson performed the operation. She is fine now and expects to be released in a few days—raring to go.

PINNED UNDER TRAIN — Patrick Regan, 64-year-old Pennsylvania Railroad car inspector, grimaces with pain as an unidentified fireman comforts him after Regan's legs were pinned beneath a freight car wheel in a Philadelphia yard recently. Regan, who directed his own rescue, said he was inspecting cars when the train apparently was moved accidentally, pinning him under one wheel. Trapped for 20 minutes, he was taken to hospital where officials said both legs were seriously injured.

Strange Fish Turning Up In Maritime Nets

OTTAWA (CP) — Strange fish have been turning up in the nets of Canada's east coast fishermen.

The fisheries department said Wednesday that one of its research vessels, the Investigator 2, had [illegible] of blue hake [illegible] waters last summer for the first time in history.

Also, the department added in a statement, fishermen had found among their cod and redfish catches such rare types as the deep sea eel, the dollarfish, lantern fishes, viper fishes, grenadiers and spiny eels.

SPOT TROPICAL FISH

Farther south, off the coast of Nova Scotia, some types of tropical fish have appeared. These include the white shark and tarpon, which seldom before have ventured so far north.

The department said discovery of these tropical specimens coincides with reports of higher temperatures in the North Atlantic and the fact that large catches of cod are now being made regularly far to the north in the Davis strait, off Greenland.

Asked Wrong Man

BARRIE (CP)—George Badden, 43, with 61 cents in his pocket, asked a man on the street for a "loan" of 14 cents to make up the price of a bottle of wine. The man he approached happened to be talking to a police officer in plainclothes. Badden didn't get the loan. He was sentenced Wednesday to five days in jail on a vagrancy charge.

Felt Tired, Rundown, Back Ached; Stomach Rebelled

Is Delighted With Improvement In Health Since Taking Syntona. "Felt Better From First Few Doses."

MR. DOUGLAS LOZON

For a number of years I was troubled with backache and became nervous, [illegible] tona I am delighted with the improvement in my health," said Mr. Douglas Lozon, 51 Lowe Street, Chatham, Ontario, in a recent report.

Couldn't Sleep Well

"I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I felt worn out almost from the time I got up each morning. Food that I ate gave me gas, indigestion, heartburn and sour risings. I would get sick headaches and dizzy feelings and many days my limbs, joints and muscles were very sore and painful.

"I heard of so many people who had used Syntona that I finally decided to try it and to my surprise my stomach felt better from the first few doses. As I kept on taking the medicine my appetite improved. I could eat my meals without all that distress afterwards, and I found I could eat many things that previously used to give me trouble.

"Gradually the backache and other pains have left me and now my nerves are calmed down so I sleep better, and as a result I feel better than I did for several years."

Easy To Take

Although Syntona is made from herbs and roots, it is very pleasant to take. Syntona has helped countless numbers of people suffering from health disorders similar to those described by Mr. Lozon.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough by Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

ONR Quite Within Rights To Move Car—Premier Frost

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said today that Ontario Northland Railway officials "had been completely within their rights" in moving a railway car of material destined for the strike-bound Noranda mines last month.

The premier called a press conference after receiving information from A. W. Freeman, general manager of the ONR at North Bay, dealing with union charges that ONR officials acted as strikebreakers in moving the shipment.

The premier said that the car in question had been delivered to the ONR at Noranda, Que., and that railway officials moved it to a transfer point with railway property. From there mine workers moved it to mine property.

NEVER OFF ONR AREA

"At no time," the premier said, "had ONR officials gone off railway property. The point at which the Noranda crew picked up the car was 200 yards within railroad property."

The premier also released Mr. Freeman's statement an 11-point defence of ONR action.

CITES RAIL LAW

Mr. Freeman said by railway law the Ontario Northland Railway must accept and deliver shipments to any concern as long as the customer is willing to accept shipments and pay the freight.

The railway was faced with legal liabilities if it failed to place cars according to contract.

The striking workers placed a picket at the entrance to the railway's transfer track at the point where it joined the main line. This picket was on railway property and was ruled illegal by the Superior Court of Quebec, the statement added.

Mr. Freeman said the train crew expressed fear of physical violence from the picketers.

"I decided not to ask the train crew to do what I would not do myself and therefore, I took charge of the train with Messrs. Jardine (superintendent) and Millar (chief mechanical officer) and placed the same on the transfer track," the statement said.

"While the picket line would have deprived the railway of the use of its siding and deprived it of business, trucks have been entering the plant from the provincial and municipal roads and delivering hundreds of tons of materials and equipment."

U.K. Buys Beef At Third Of Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain has agreed to buy the last of Canada's surplus frozen beef at a price about one-third of cost.

The 8,000,000 pounds, remainder of the original $3,000,000 purchased by the government under beef price support, now is being loaded at Vancouver.

The agriculture department Tuesday announced the deal, but gave no estimate of price. However, it was learned that Britain will pay about 15 cents a pound, well below the 45-cents-a-pound cost to the government.

This and other losses in beef and canned pork sales may push the government's total meat operation losses to more than $50,000,000. Of this about $32,000,000 has been written off by Parliament in last February's budget. The remainder likely will be written off in the budget next spring.

EMERGENCY MOVE

The loss is put down as part of the government's battle against foot-and-mouth disease in western Canada in 1952. Beef and pork price-support operations were undertaken as an emergency move to prevent collapse of the Canadian meat industry at a time when Canada's biggest market, the United States, barred imports from Canada.

Auditorium Gate Up

KITCHENER (CP)—More than 500,000 persons clicked the turnstiles at the Kitchener auditorium last year, boosting the attendance to well over the 1,000,000 mark in 2½ years of operation. Manager H. M. (Bob) Crosby reported that the 1953 turnout represents a 24-per-cent increase over the 1952 figure.

Urges Fines Be Paid In Instalments

TORONTO (CP) — Payment of fines by instalments has the support of at least one member of the Ontario legislature's reform institutions committee.

Irving Himel, chairman of a delegation from the Association of Civil Liberties, suggested to the committee Wednesday that instalment-paying of fines would enable poor persons, unable to meet the full amount of their fines at once, to stay out of jail.

Mr. Himel asked that procedure in police courts in larger centres by examined to eliminate "the tendency of treating people awaiting trial who have no bail or legal counsel as cattle paraded in assembly line fashion through the legal mill."

W. J. Grummett, CCF house leader, said the committee agreed with Mr. Himel's advocacy of night courts and instalment-paying of fines.

HAS OPPOSITION

Mr. Himel ran into opposition when he claimed corporal punishment is not a deterrent to crime and said many European countries have abolished it.

The only cure for criminals who make brutal and sadistic attacks on women, girls and taxi-drivers, Mr. Grummett said, "should be a little bit of their own medicine."

W. M. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Kingston, said "There is an element in society today trying to bring into contempt the police and the judiciary."

INSIDIOUS ATTACKS

"There have been continuous and insidious attacks going on to shatter confidence of the people in the police, courts and judiciary which, if successful, would lead only one step away from chaos," he said.

Mr. Grummett said he thinks the time has come for Canada to classify murders as "first-degree" and "second-degree" as is done in the United States.

"In the last 10 years, many young fellows have gone to the scaffold for something done in a few seconds in the heat of anger. I don't think fellows like that should be charged with the same crime as someone who premeditated a murder and carried it out in cold blood."

Driver Splashed Wrong Man

MONTREAL (CP)—The motorist drove his car through a puddle, giving a mud-and-slush bath to a sidewalk group on Craig street. He stopped a short distance away and walked toward a building.

"You ought to be more considerate of pedestrians," said one of the group, shaking slush from his trousers.

"Well, you people ought to stand farther back from the street," said the motorist.

"At all events, you'll be hearing from me," said the complainant.

"And who might you be, brother?"

"That's none of your business right now."

THEN TO COURT

The motorist, bearing a summons charging him with splashing pedestrians in contravention of a city bylaw, walked into municipal court Tuesday. On the bench was the sidewalk complainant, Judge Henri Monty.

The motorist pleaded guilty and offered apologies.

"I didn't know I had splashed a judge," he said.

"Whether you splashed a judge or nor doesn't matter," said Judge Monty. "The idea is that a driver isn't entitled to splash anyone."

The motorist got off with a suspended sentence because, as the judge said, "I'm not here to obtain vengeance."

$1,995 Watch Sold By Mistake For $19.95

TORONTO (CP)—A part-time Christmas clerk, a conscientious young husband and a diamond-studded, $1,995 watch—these were the ingredients for one Toronto jeweller's mammoth headache.

Jeweller Frank Proctor said the young husband, wanting an inexpensive watch for his wife, selected one the clerk said was priced at $19.95. Only after the customer had gone did the jeweller discover a mistake had been made.

In a frenzy the storekeeper tried every means to locate the customer. But his name wasn't known and police couldn't help. Then, a few days after Christmas, the customer reappeared. Shamefacedly, he explained his wife thought the "rhinestones" on the watch were too showy. She wanted a less-pretentious watch.

It was given in a hurry—from a tray of $60 watches.

Lab Worker In Toronto Murdered Police Decide

A FINE SWEEP OF THE OTONABEE River valley, with a large portion of central Peterborough nestled at the bottom, is a little-appreciated vista point in the city, except for those who live in that particular neighborhood. This photo, looking southeast from the Bethune St. hill at approximately where Antrim St. ends, show more of Ashburnham in the far distance than of the streets immediately below. King George School and the Westclox plant are on the opposite hill. It is believed that this choice residential district was once known as the "Smith Town Hill."

Windsor Tip Broke Reuther Case

Say Gangsters Sought To Seize Control Of Auto Workers

WINDSOR —(CP)— Belief that the final tip which led to arrests in the 1948 shooting of Walter Reuther came from a Windsor meeting, and that one of the four men charged, Santo (Sam) Perrone, is hiding out in or near Windsor, emerged today from a tangle of police security and underworld rumors.

Wayne county prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien stated the shooting case was broken by a midnight meeting with a tipster who got in touch with him by telephone several weeks ago.

Although O'Brien, top man in the investigation, refused to give details, it was learned that the meeting was held in Windsor and that the tipster's reward includes immunity and the chance at at least $110,000 in reward money.

A close watch being kept by police at border crossing points lent strength to the theory that Perrone, only one of the four men charged in the shooting who is still at large, is hiding out with former associates in or near Windsor.

"I don't know whether Perrone is hiding out in Detroit," Chicago, Windsor, or anywhere else," O'Brien said.

1954 Lochinvar Story Has Happy Ending

Jolt To Wedding In Old Pig Truck, Families Relent—Reach Solution

LONDON (CP)—And so they were married . . .

Isabel Patino, 18, the rich girl in the leopard-skin coat, and dapper Jimmy Goldsmith, 20, a hotel director's son, were wed Thursday in a registry office in the tiny Scots town of Kelso.

It was a happy ending to a courtship British papers hailed as the elopement of the century —a mechanized version, 1954 style, of young Lochinvar come out of the west.

As a love story it had everything—youth and beauty, an irate father, a cross-country chase, romantic-minded Scots keeping the secret of the young lovers.

The story started last year with the love - at - first - sight meeting of young Goldsmith, a graduate of Eton, and the slender, dark-haired Isabel, daughter of Antenor Patino, an enormously wealthy Bolivian tin magnate.
